A Developed Orchard of Only 10 acres in the Bitter Root Valley, Montana, Pays $2000 to $5000 Yearly.

What offers a better chance to the man of means than a strongly secured investment of this kind? In what better way can a young man or woman, now in prosperous circumstances, prepare for the future and old age, when perhaps an annuity will be needed, or how can parents more easily provide for their children's future than to buy for them orchard tracts which after five years will bring steady incomes and independence for life. FIRE DISTRICT MEETING.

Slight Attendance and Little Interest Shown.

TOTAL OF TWENTY-ONE VOTES CAST.

Old Officers All Re-elected. Tax Rate Will Be Lower Than That of Last Year.

Apparently the voters of the fire district are satisfied with the conduct of the affairs of the district and the fire department during the past year, for only 21 voters took interest enough to attend the annual meeting Tuesday afternoon.

These officers were chosen, all being re-elected: Chief engineer, James Summers; first assistant, Charles E. Fuller; second assistant, Edward B. Taylor; clerk and treasurer, Charles A. LeGro; auditor, Charles E Fish; prudential committee, Louis E Chandler, William E. McDonald, Charles L Waid. The moderator of the meeting was Louis E. Chandler, and the tellers were J. A. Hawkes and Charles T. Brainerd.

The appropriations were:

Water rent,	$1,380
Fire patrol,	325
Chief engineer,	200
First assistant,	100
Second assistant,	75
Firemen,	850
Foremen steamer company,	75
First assistant,	65
Second assistant,	60
Engineer of steamer,	75
Stoker,	50
Superintendent fire alarm,	75
Janitor of engine house,	96
Clerk of steamer company,	10
Practice meetings,	50
Coal,	75
Clerk and treasurer,	60
Auditor,	10
Treasurer's bond,	10
Contingencies,	800
Telephone rental,	24
Memorial Sunday,	25
Desk and equipment,	25
Total,	$4,515
Less	800
To be raised by taxation,	$3,715

The appropriations are practically the same as last year, but the treasurer has over $500 on hand and there are known receipts of over $300 coming, and these sums were voted to reduce the tax levy. On the same basis of valuation as last year, this will make a tax rate of about $2, instead of $2.40, as last year.

The only diversion from the usual routine was the vote to install two new hydrants on the Three Rivers road to protect property on Arnold street and vicinity, the appropriation of $25 additional so that the night fire patrol might have a vacation with pay, and the vote to purchase a desk and equipment for the use of the board of engineers in the engine house. Chief Summers asked the sense of the voters regarding the removal of the "jumper" hose reel to or near Main street when the auto chemical truck is installed, and the board of engineers was informed that it had the power to make the change if it was deemed best for the protection of property, the apparatus being given into their care to use as they considered best. The engineers reported property on hand belonging to the district to the value of $4,940 35

The department has responded to 22 calls during the year—four box calls, eight house calls and 10 still alarms. The engineers report fires of incendiary origin, but say that "through the vigilance of our night fire patrol they have been found and put out with very little damage, considering their location and the start some of them had. The parties have been arrested and brought before the court; one of them forfeited his bail and the other was bound over to the grand jury." The new ladders have been secured and placed on the truck, also the life net. The men have responded to an unusual number of brush fires during the year, although not required to do so. The board has visited all the hotels of the town and found them equipped with fire escapes as required by law. They have also visited the schools and witnessed the fire drills there, all of which were quickly executed.

The calls during the year were as follows:

April 15. House call. Woods fire on land of Hastings and Damon; about 250 acres burned over. Cost to town, $68

April 27. House call. Woods fire at Forest Lake Railroad fire.

Boy Catches Big Trout.

A trout weighing a pound and four ounces was caught near the dam of the Marcy Brick Company in West Brimfield last Saturday by Albert Heberge, 10 years old. After experienced men had fished all day on the river without success, young Heberge took his elder pole and an ordinary line, dug a couple of nice fat wiggling worms and proceeded to take the fish from the water in a very few moments. He is naturally quite proud of his catch.

Found Dead in Sandbank.

Uuknown Man Discovered Near Moran's Bridge, North Wilbraham.

The body of a man was found lying in a sandbank near Moran's bridge about 2½ miles west of North Wilbraham, early Tuesday morning. The man was seen Monday night near the sandbank by teamsters, who thought him intoxicated and paid no special attention to him. When they saw him again Tuesday morning in the same position, they investigated and found him dead.

The selectmen of Wilbraham were notified and Officer A F. Friend went to Moran's bridge and took charge of the body. Medical Examiner T S. Bacon of Springfield was notified and viewed the body, pronouncing death due to exposure. A peculiar feature of the case was the finding of blood on the man's shoes, but there was no indication of violence, and it is believed that the man may have had the nosebleed not long before his death.

The man was seen going east on the railroad track late Monday afternoon, probably not long before he was seen by the teamsters The man was 55 to 60 years of age, five feet six or seven inches tall, had gray hair and mustache, and was dressed in a black coat and trousers and a dark overcoat. He had a scar about 1½ inches long under his left ear, and there were no teeth on the upper jaw. Nothing to indicate his identity was found in his pockets, but there was a ticket to the Brookfield 250th anniversary, and a tag bearing the name of Mr and Mrs. E R Sadd. The remains were taken to Sampson's undertaking rooms in Springfield.

Cigarets Sold Ware Boys.

Chief Buckley Gets After Illegal Sellers, Who Plead Guilty.

Chief B W. Buckley of Ware swore out complaints against seven men Tuesday for recent alleged illegal sales of cigarets to boys under 18 years of age The defendants were Edward McArdle of East street, Charles H. Richmond of West street, George Rafferty of the P J. Mulvany store on Main street, Leander Letourneau of Pleasant and Aspen streets, Karol Ruczenski and Wawrzeniec Sidur of Water street and K. Vasolocoponlos of North street. Five different nationalities were represented and all sections of the town They appeared in court Wednesday. Letourneau and Vasolocoponlos were represented by George D Storrs, but the others joined with these two in entering pleas of guilty and waiving the reading of the complaints against them. Chief Buckley requested that all the cases be placed on file rather than be disposed of by a sentence and this was done. Judge Davis, however, administered a stern rebuke to the defendants Chief Buckley, it is understood, has evidence against as many more storekeepers, and declares his purpose to be the doing away in the future with the indiscriminate sales of the past to boys of all ages. There have been many complaints against the careless way in which those selling tobacco have handed out cigarets and tobacco. Chief Buckley has had the matter in mind for some time, and is now prepared to make a desperate move. Every dealer in cigarets was warned some time ago of what was allowed under the law and what was not.

Verdict For Monson Woman.

On Saturday Judge Loranne E Hitchcock filed a final decree ordering Epaphro Day of Hampden to discharge a mortgage held by him on the Thomas Mills farm in Hampden and to hand the property over to Melissa L. Mills of Monson. The court finds that a promissory note for $491, signed by Thomas Mills, has been paid to the defendant, and that the mortgage held by the defendant has been discharged. Mr. Day is also ordered to pay Mrs. Mills $1046 58 as rental for the farm since 1899. Thomas W. Kenefick and Carroll & McClintock were for the plaintiff, and no one appeared for the defendant at the hearing before Judge Hitchcock. The case has been to the supreme court, where the question of the discharge of the mortgage was decided in favor of the plaintiff J. L. Rice appeared for the defendant in the supreme court.

BURGLARS TRY A STORE.

Store of F. A. Fuller at North Wilbraham Entered.

MAN AND WOMAN MAY HAVE DONE JOB

Surprised at Their Work and Frightened Away Before Securing Much Booty.

The store of Frank A Fuller in North Wilbraham was broken into Wednesday night about 10 o'clock, but the burglars were frightened away before securing much, if any, loot. Mr. Blandon, one of the clerks, happened to go into the store with Nelson Bradway, soon after 10 and they heard the sound of hurried footsteps in the back room just after they entered. They rushed to the grain room in the back part of the store, where the burglars had escaped through a window by which they entered, and it is believed that they went along the Boston and Albany tracks, as fresh tracks were found in that direction, one of which is believed to be that of a woman and the other the track of a man This fact was not discovered, however, until yesterday morning.

Officer A. F. Friend was notified and he took the next car east as far as H. M. Greene's, where he left the car and searched the territory thereabouts. F. A Fuller and Charles Fletcher started out in an automobile and after overtaking Officer Friend, went to Palmer, where they met Deputy Sheriff G. A. Bills and Officer Crimmins, and a search was made along the tracks and roads between Palmer and Wilbraham, but no one was found. A reward of $50 has been offered by Mr. Fuller for the arrest and conviction of the burglars

A man and woman were seen by Charles Calkins in East Wilbraham about 12 o'clock Wednesday night, and a couple were seen by George Warriner yesterday morning about 5 or 5 30, sitting near a fire in the woods near the Point of Rocks As the tracks had not been discovered at the time these people were seen, they were not regarded with suspicion, but it is thought now that they may be the ones wanted.

101 Years Old Yesterday.

Mrs. Laura Griggs Moore of Brimfield, Still in Good Health.

Mrs. Laura Griggs Moore passed her 101st birthday yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs Sanford Booth, in Dunhamtown, a part of the town of Brimfield. There was no formal observance of the day, but many friends called and Mrs. Moore received a number of remembrances, including over 100 postal cards from friends at a distance.

Mrs. Moore enjoys good health Her hearing is somewhat impaired, but her eyesight, assisted by glasses, is remarkably good. She has always been an expert with the needle and for the past two years has been especially interested in embroidering sofa pillows, having made six or seven in the past 12 months. The braiding of rugs has also been a favorite occupation and she has made several during the past year.

Mrs. Moore has three children living. They are: Ella A., wife of Sanford Booth of Brimfield; Malone G. Moore of Stafford Springs, Ct., and Emerson O. Moore of Sidney, N Y.; also seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, the children of Milton S. Booth of Palmer.

WALES.

Mrs. Kent has returned to her own home from Albert Sizer's, where she has been spending the winter.

Mrs. Ernest Worth and son, Stanley, of Holyoke have been spending a few days with Mrs Kate Williams.

Rev. Charles Ricketts and two sons of Norwich, Ct., visited Mr. Ricketts' sister, Mrs. Mary Sexton, this week

Thomas Warrington and family have gone from the boaring house to their farm in Holland. The boarding house is closed, as the mill is not running.

A pleasant social event took place Friday evening when Rev. and Mrs. Charles T. Hoit received their friends at the home of Mrs. Holt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lanphear. For the present Mr. Hoit will spend his Saturdays and Sundays in town and will continue to supply the Baptist pulpit.

A brush fire set by Charles Copp near his barn on the Pelton place Saturday afternoon got beyond his control and endangered both the barn and the sheds belonging to the brick house nearby Help was summoned from the other end of the village and the fire was put out before any serious damage was done.

WILBRAHAM.

Raymond J Pease of Wilbraham and Genevieve M Moore of Bradford, Vt., were married Saturday evening by Rev M. S. Howard at the home of Mr. Pease's sister, Mr. and Mrs F. A. Blodgett, on Main street.

The Woodlawn Dell cemetery Association have elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, C E. Peck; vice president, C. N. Mowry; secretary, Miss Carrie A. Moody; treasurer, F. A. Gurney; executive committee, C E Peck, F. N. Mowry and F. W Green.

Chauncey E Peck and sister, Mrs. J. M. Hann, have gone to Sonora, Cal., for a visit with their uncle, Horace G Kibbe, who went to California in 1852 from East Longmeadow, and has never been back since. Mr. Kibbe supposed to be the first white man who ever saw Lake Eleanor, which lake San Francisco has now taken for a water supply. Mr. and Mrs Alonso Noble of Hampden will occupy the home of her brother, C. E Peck, during his absence.

Doings of the Legislature.

BOSTON, April 12, 1911.

This noon the committee on election laws came to an agreement on the direct nominations bill and put it into the hands of Representative Langtry of Springfield to report. He is a candidate for the office of state auditor and this prominence in connection with this highly important bill will bring him to the attention of the voters. It is to be expected that the bill will have an easy passage through both branches, for it has the support of both the Republican and Democratic state committees and had the benefit of the expert skill in the office of the secretary of state. Both the chairmen of the state committees were invited into consultation with the committee on election laws and their suggestions taken for details of the bill. It covers all the candidates for office who are voted for at the state election, and in addition the district members of state committees, members of ward and town committee and delegates to state conventions All that will be left to a state convention under this system will be to draft a declaration of principles upon which the candidates shall stand. As the candidates are especially interested persons, they are to be members of the convention, as are also the United States Senators, on account of their superior political knowledge It is a noticeable fact that Chairman Hatfield of the Republican state committee says that he favors trying the system because that is the tendency of the times and they had better learn by trial than to argue about it But he expects that trial will prove that candidates will be confined to two classes,—rich men and demagogs At the same time, he does not expect that the state will return to the present system of conventions. It will try to remedy the evils which will develop under direct nominations, and so there will be retained the nearness to the people which the new system will promote. It is to be noticed that the statement given out with the bill by Senator Stearns of Middlesex, the Senate chairman of the committee, emphasizes the point that there has been a strengthening of party bonds in the bill by perfecting the party enrolment provisions,—which seem to be contrary to the tendency of the times. The bill is very long and the committee puts it out with the expectation that publicity will bring further suggestions for the improvement of the measure.

The vote of 156 yeas to 63 nays for the biennial state election amendment, with the novel provision of the recall inserted, was surprising all round. But it is not at all likely that it will be sustained on the two remaining stages which it will have in the House, for some members voted for it in order to get more time to think it over and they are already saying that they will vote against it on the next stage. A new generation has grown up since the long debates and desperate struggle over the matter in 1896, when the amendment for biennials of state officials was defeated by over 45,000 and biennials for members of the Legislature was snowed under by over 50,000. Debate this week did not even scratch the surface as compared with the arguments of those days. Party lines were ignored. But both the labor and the Democratic votes are solid against biennials by party record, and enough Republicans against will doubtless make an adverse majority when the vote really strikes bottom.

"We shall be here till September," was the despairing remark of Speaker Walker when he heard that Gov. Foss had sent in his message against taxdodging and asking the members to coöperate with him in trying to prevent it. There is criticism of the governor in Republican quarters for interfering with the prerogatives of the Legislature, though it is a part of his duty to send messages upon matters which he believes are fit subjects for legislation. The prospect for a long session increases, however, with the reports of the public institutions which are sent in by the governor's experts. Certain statements of fact are put before the legislators. The governor's finger is put upon certain specific points and he says that right there the administration needs improvement. This puts it upon the Legislature either to disprove the alleged facts, or to make the improvement, or to say that the situation cannot be improved. Either course will take time. The governor is giving the institutions a real overhauling and that is what makes a long session probable, especially if a congressional redistricting is to be added to the task now in sight. It will be noted that the governor took pains to commend personally Superintendent Hollis M. Blackstone of the Bridgewater state farm in the same message as that in which the methods of the institution were condemned as demanding an immediate remedy. Representative Norman H. White of Brookline, candidate for Republican nomination for governor against Speaker Walker and chairman of the House ways and means committee, has had a grist of matters sent back from his committee to their original committees in order to wait for the action of the governor's experts in reporting upon them. That makes further delay.

The milk situation still holds the first position in importance for many people. Last week the men who want the Saunders milk transportation law of last year repealed had their say at length before the committee on railroads. Tuesday the opponents of repeal had their day, and they made a roomful. At their head was State Master Charles M. Gardner of Westfield, of the state grange, who is also chairman of the state dairy bureau. He was supported by George S Ladd of Sturbridge, former master of the state grange, while Contractors Whiting and Granstein of the railroad counsel were present in opposition. It is the position of the state grange by formal vote that the Saunders law ought to be tried until it is seen how it works after the most careful trial has been made. Gardner was acting under instructions, but, for all that, he has been severely criticised for pushing his side so strongly. But he is just that sort of man, and that is what gives him strength with the grange.

The health people seem to have got a twist on the milk producers by the favorable vote, and probable passage of the bill to put regulations relating to the production, transportation and sale of milks into the hands of the city and town boards of health. The farmers have kicked against this as putting them into the hands of unsympathetic critics, but the doctors have made such a strong issue of the health of infants, especially in summer, that it is as if they would win over the farm... the face of such regulation... cline of dairies continues. The h... bulletin said that there w... where milk was formerly pro...

PALMER NEWS.

C. E. Convention Wednesday.

Annual Hampden County Gathering To Be Held in Palmer.

The citizens of Palmer are invited to attend the sessions of the annual meeting of the Hampden County C. E. Union to be held here Wednesday, April 19. The afternoon session will be held in the Baptist church, beginning at 1 30 with a praise service. There will be two special features for the afternoon, one for all workers among little people, an exercise presented by Juniors from Springfield and called The Junior Army. The other is the address by Rev. J. S. Lyon, D D., pastor of the Baptist church in Holyoke. The afternoon service will close at 5 o'clock and supper will be served in the Congregational church dining rooms for 15 cents a plate, with ice cream extra for those who desire. Between 5 and 7 various parties will be formed of delegates who desire to visit points of interest, such as the Flat Rock, Great Bear Tree, etc. The evening service will begin promptly at 7 o'clock, closing in time for all delegates to leave on the 9 15 cars Rev. Neil MacPherson, D D , pastor of the First Congregational church of Springfield, will speak on the theme, "Prospecting for Christ." Mr. William Shaw of Boston, general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, will speak on the building fund, and will wear a costume made up from different lands where Christian Endeavor is at work. He will also speak on the International Convention to be held in Atlantic City July 6—12. The Palmer Endeavorers, from both Baptist and Congregational churches, are hard at work in preparation for this convention and a large reception committee with their badges of red and white will meet all delegates and be at the service of all inquirers

Town Clock Will Stop.

Has Been Wound Up For the Last Time. Running Fine of Late.

Some time next week the town clock will, like the famous grandfather clock of song, "stop, never to go again." At least, it will not go again until lubrication for the wheels in the shape of funds for its care are provided Arthur E. Fitch, who has been custodian of the timepiece for the past year, wound it up yesterday so that it might strike the hours until after Easter, and bade his charge an affectionate farewell. The voters at the annual town meeting failed to provide funds for the winding and care of the clock — a miserable $60 would have done the trick—and Mr. Fitch is heartily in accord with the "no checkee no washee" of the Celestial laundryman, and so "no money no time." He can hardly be blamed for this position, as it takes time and effort to keep the clock running as it has for the past two months or more—on time almost to a second. There has been some talk of a subscription paper among the citizens of the village to secure enough to keep the clock going, but whether or not this will be done remains to be seen.

Store Will Change Hands.

G. C. Kinsley Will Leave Bay State Drug Store To-morrow.

Mr. G. C. Kinsley, manager of the two stores of the Bay State Drug Company in Palmer, will sever his connection with the company with the close of business to-morrow. He will remain in town for a short time, but will then move to the eastern part of the state. Mr. Kinsley has been in Palmer about two years and a half, during which time he has made a host of friends who will regret his departure. His position with the Bay State Drug Company will be filled by Mr. Charles P. Brown of Boston. Mr. Brown is a drug man of long experience. He was for about 15 years with the T. Metcalf Company, one of the oldest and best known retail drug concerns of Bostop, and recently has been manager of one of the Riker-Jaynes stores. He will assume his duties in Palmer next Monday.

Fire Alarm Boxes Molested.

Glass Continually Broken by Boys, Who So Far Remain Undetected.

Superintendent Connor of the fire alarm system has had much trouble recently with boys smashing the glass over the keys to the alarm boxes, attached to them. There has been little trouble of this sort until recently, and then it seemed to spread as rapidly as a contagious disease with no attempt at prevention. The trouble is worse in some localities than in others, and the superintendent has found it almost impossible to keep glass in one box. There is a severe penalty for tampering with these boxes, but the trouble is to determine who is doing the mischief. Certain it is that if anyone is caught they will be severely dealt with.

E. G. Childs to Leave Town.

Agent of the Boston Duck Company Will Go to Boston May 1.

Announcement is made that Elmer G Childs, agent of the Boston Duck Company's mills in Bondsville, is to leave that position May 1 He will enter the employ of Bliss, Fabyan & Co., and his headquarters will be in Boston. Mr. Childs has been in Bondsville since 1895 At present he holds the position of President of the Palmer National Bank. His place as agent of the Boston Duck Company will be filled by Samuel Stewart, who for some years has been superintendent of the mills.

Red Men's Ball.

The annual concert and ball of Tockwotton tribe of Red Men will be held Monday evening in the opera house with music by Bryant's singing orchestra of Orange There has been a good sale of tickets, and a large attendance is expected. The floor director is G. W. Roche, assisted by D. E. O'Connor, F. A. Smith, D. V. Fogarty and E. A. Buck; committee of arrangements, G. F. Emmons, G. W. Roche, F. L Morway, R H. Paine and G. C. Goodes. There will be a concert from 8 to 9, with the following program:

March. "Napoleon's Last Charge." Bennett
Overture. "Poet and Peasant." Suppe
Trombone Solo. Selected.
Mr. Arthur F. Martin.
Selections. "Carmen." Tobani
Descriptive. "A Hunting Scene." Bucolosco
Finale.. "American Fantasia." Meacham

Dancing, of 22 numbers, will follow, from 9 to 2.

Flynt Company Gets Contract.

The Flynt Building and Construction Company has been given the contract to erect an addition to the mills of the Boston Duck Company at Bondsville. The new structure will be of brick, about 140 by 100 feet, of slow-burning, modern mill construction.

"Billy Bruce of Palmer."

Under the above caption the Journal will publish, in its issues of April 21 and [illegible] story by I. S. Browne. The incidents [illegible] matters of interest connected [illegible]r, and as many of the characters known here, it will no doubt [illegible] interest.

Town Counsel Appointed.

George D. Storrs of Ware Will Guide Legal Affairs of Town.

The selectmen at their meeting last evening appointed Attorney George D Storrs of Ware as town counsel for the present year Mr. Storrs is well known in Palmer. He studied law in the office of Charles L. Gardner and after admission to the bar opened an office in Ware, which he has since maintained He has had an extended experience in town affairs, having served the town of Ware as one of its selectmen for a number of years.

The selectmen decided to grant an exclusive junk license to one person, as in the last few years, and bids must be in by 8.30 next Thursday evening. This decision was arrived at after consultation with numerous individuals, the prevailing sentiment being in favor of a continuation of the present plan.

Arsene Bechand of Thorndike and J. P. O'Connor of Palmer were granted pool licenses. Charles Darling, Thomas McCrea, Albert Senton and Lewis Morin, all of Three Rivers, were appointed public weighers.

Two Accidents Yesterday.

One Man Gets Broken Leg, Another Has Severe Scalp Wound.

Charles Precht of King street received a broken leg yesterday in a peculiar manner. He was at work in the lumber yard of T. D Potter in Bondsville and was standing on the ground beside a planing machine, when a timber rolled from an adjoining pile and struck him on the leg, breaking it between the knee and ankle He was attended by Dr. S. R. Carsley.

John Dean, employed at the Wright Wire Co's. No 3 mill, received a severe scalp wound yesterday while at work. He is in charge of the elevator, and on one of the down trips a wire reel fell from the floor above, striking him on the head. The wound was not a serious one, and after it had been dressed by Dr. H. C. Cheney he returned to work.

BRUSH FIRE PERMITS.

Unlawful Now To Start Fires in Open Without Written Permit.

With the disappearance of the snow and the drying up of the grounds comes the time when farmers and others find it needful to build fires for the burning of brush and various kinds of rubbish. In this connection it will be well to remember that the building of fires in the open between the first of April and the first of October is forbidden unless a permit has first been obtained from the forest fire warden. The Palmer warden is James Summers, and permits may be obtained of him. Builders of fires who have no permits run the risk of arrest and prosecution.

WARREN.

Death of Mrs. Columbus F. Reed.

Mrs. Jennie E Bond Reed, 62, wife of Columbus Reed, died Wednesday afternoon at 4 at the home of her son, Harry E. Reed, on Maple street, after a six-months' illness. Mrs. Reed was born in West Brookfield, but since her marriage had lived in Warren She leaves besides her husband, who is in feeble health, one son and a sister, Mrs Charles H. Keith of Palmer.

Mr. and Mrs Arthur Brodeau have gone to Waterloo, Can., for a four-weeks' visit with relatives.

The quarantine has been removed from the home of Peter Mazur, whose infant son Rowan has been ill with infantile paralysis since March 7 The child has recovered.

Miss Katherine Cunningham has resigned as teacher in grades 5 and 6 to take effect at the close of this term to take a similar position in the Springfield schools.

Edward Durgan, who was operated on for appendicitis in the Framingham hospital two weeks ago, has returned to the home of his parents, Mr and Mrs. Michael Durgan on Hillside avenue.

Frank Granno, until recently a resident of Warren, but who has been working for a few months in West Rutland, was operated on for appendicitis at the Worcester hospital last week Thursday evening. He is slowly gaining Joseph D Vigneaux has been qualified as forest warden and has been accepted by State Forester Rane. The following have been appointed deputy wardens: Timothy O'Brien, Edward D. Sullivan, Carl M. Wheeler, Lester L. Burroughs, Herbert P. Johnson, Eugene W. Root, Charles E. Comins, Jeremiah M. Sheehan, Robert H. Hyde, Herbert N. Shepard, George L Bridges, Charles E Rice, Edward F. Moran, John Crowley, Fred Reynolds, Timothy M. Collins, Arthur Palin, John Collins and George Normandin.

It was voted at a meeting of the school committee Tuesday to adopt a new course in the curriculum of the Warren high school to begin at the fall session of the school in September. It is to be styled a commercial course, and it is intended to give a course similar to that for which so many young people are going to Worcester and Springfield to obtain A special teacher will be employed to take the immediate charge of the work At the same time the grammar school will be merged with the high school, making a five-years' course, and the teacher of the ninth grade will become an assistant of the high school It is not expected that any more teachers will have to be employed than at present.

Monday morning a gang of about 60 men, under direction of P. E. Taylor, supervisor of tracks, began the work of laying 20 miles of new iron to replace the iron now in use on the north track. The iron weighs 100 pounds to the yard. The work this year is being done on week days without the use of a single track, so that there is not much time left for work after 10 30 a. m. Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when the gang were finishing up their work, one of the men had a narrow escape from fatal injury. He was midway on the bridge on Maple street when the express No 54, eastbound, met at that point the express No. 13, westbound He did not have time to reach either end of the bridge, but jumped over the railing and hung down from the rail on the outside until the trains passed.

BELCHERTOWN.

Death of Mrs. Samuel Pember.

Mrs. Leona Williams Pember, 29, wife of Samuel Pember, died Tuesday night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merrick Williams, after a long and painful illness. Mrs. Pember was a graduate of the Belchertown high school and of a business school in Springfield, being employed as a stenographer in that city for several years. She leaves, besides her husband and parents, an infant barely six months old; also two brothers, George of Amherst college and Leon at home. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2.

HAMPDEN.

The Hampden baseball team met Saturday evening and organized as follows: Manager, Francis H. Eldridge; captain, George Schenfler; treasurer, Robert Ballard; secretary, Amos Merrill; groundkeeper, Albert Weeks. The battery will probably be: Pitchers, Eldridge and Ballard; catchers, Schenfler and Burleigh. The manager wishes to arrange games with teams averaging about 20 years old.

Hampden Grange held an interesting meeting Friday evening, Deputy King of East Longmeadow was present to inspect the Grange and exemplified the written work. The ceremonies began with a grand march of the functionaries in appropriate costumes. The third and fourth degrees were then worked for the benefit of a class of six. More applications for membership have been received.

BRIMFIELD.

Death of Mrs. Ada Douty Bailey.

Mrs. Ada Douty Bailey, 25, wife of Arthur Bailey of East Swanzey, N. H., died at the home of her parents last Friday morning, after several months' illness of tuberculosis. Mrs. Bailey was Miss Ada Elizabeth Douty and was born in Southbridge August 3, 1885, the eldest daughter of Edward F. and Susan (Lyon) Douty. She was removed to Brimfield, December 22, to be cared for by her mother. She leaves, besides her husband, two small sons. The funeral was held at the home of her parents Sunday afternoon, Rev. William Jennings officiating. The body was taken to Ware for burial.

Miss Alice I. Sawin of Smith College is at her home here.

Robert G. Sherman of New York has been the guest of his mother, Mrs. E. T. Sherman.

Dr. George H. Janes of Westfield, formerly of Brimfield, and Frank Cutler of North Attleboro have been spending the week at the hotel.

Miss Anna E. Locke of East Brimfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs James Looke, and Lemuel Victor Howlett of Holland were married by Rev. William Jennings at the parsonage Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Booth have returned to their home in Brimfield after spending the winter in Georgia and Florida. They first visited Anstelle, Ga., where they spent three weeks, and went from there to Anhurndale, Fla., where they remained about two months. The last two weeks of their stay they spent in Corona, Fla., near the Indian river. Mr. and Mrs. Booth are very enthusiastic over the enjoyments afforded by the scenery and climate of Florida and the companionship with people with whom they became acquainted.

Bids for the new bridge over the Quinnihang river were opened Saturday afternoon by the committee appointed at the annual town meeting and the contract was awarded to T. J. Hynes and his son, James Hynes of Wales for $1193 The award is of interest to Brimfield people, as James Hynes is a graduate of the Academy in the class of 1907. He has been in the employ of the Fred T. Ley Company, and more recently of the W.

Selectmen Receive License Application.

The selectmen have received the license applications. Four hotels, Joslin & Morse at the Mansion House, William Rohan at the Hampshire House, David Rohan at the Storrs House, and Malboeuf & Shea at the Commercial Hotel, applied for first-class licenses and also for the provisional fourth-class intended for hotels alone. The four others who now have licenses of the first and fourth class: Boyle & Gravel of West street, James Neville on Water street, Smith & Gilson on Main street and Barry & Potts on Water street, asked for licenses of the first-class and also for licenses of the fourth class, although but one can be granted under the new bar and bottle law. Beside these four, Joseph Boncher at 5 Pine street, and a new firm composed of William Deady and George Dubois at 56 Water street, have applied for a license of each class. There were three applications for a fourth-class or wholesale license alone, one from John R. Hennessey at 9 West Main street, and the other two from Louis Strack and a firm made up of Leandre Letourneau and Henry A. Fugere The applications of the last two are for a license at the same place, 40 Water street. The selectmen can grant by their arrangement, determined upon at a previous meeting, six licenses of the first class and two of the fourth, but the four hotels, if they are included among the ones receiving first-class licenses, can have the provisional fourth class also. If the hotels are granted licenses it will mean that only two of the other six applying for first class can receive licenses or if the fourth class are given two, they can be allotted to any two ont of these six or the three applying for fourth class alone, so that the number who will not receive any license will be the same as the number of new applicants in the field, or five. Three drug stores also applied for druggists' licenses.

It Grows Hair.

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk.

Marvelous as it may seem, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has grown hair on heads that were once bald. Of course, in none of these cases were the hair roots dead, nor had the scalp taken on a glazed, shiny appearance.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic acts scientifically, destroying the germs which are usually responsible for baldness It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nourishing them It is a most pleasant toilet necessity, is delicately perfumed, and will not gum or permanently stain the hair.

We want you to get a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed. If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair, and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for it. Two sizes, 50c and $1 00. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Lynde & Gould, Palmer.

Death of James Connor.

The many friends in this village of Miss Maude Connor, a former popular school teacher here, will be pained to hear of the death of her father, James Connor, in Brooklyn on Thursday of last week While teaching here Miss Counor's home was in Holyoke, in which city she taught after leaving here, later going to Brooklyn; the family moved there about eight months ago. Mr. Connor was formerly a prominent Holyoke wool manufacturer, and was for many years proprietor of the New York mills in Bigelow street and South Main street, Holyoke. The company was prosperous for many years and had a big trade throughout the country. He leaves, besides Miss Maude, two other daughters, Miss Edith, a stenographer in Brooklyn, and Mrs. Thomas D. O'Brien, wife of Lawyer O'Brien of the Highlands, Holyoke. Mr. Connor was born in Northampton 67 years ago. The body was taken to Holyoke for burial, the funeral being held from the home of Mr O'Brien Saturday.

"Lame Leg Well"

"I wish to say that I have used Sloan's Liniment on a lame leg that has given me much trouble for six months. It was so bad that I couldn't walk sometimes for a week. I tried doctors' medicine and had a rubber bandage for my leg, and bought everything that I heard of, but they all did me no good, until at last I was persuaded to try Sloan's Liniment. The first application helped it, and in two weeks my leg was well."—A. L. HUNTER, of Hunter, Ala.

Good for Athletes.

Kidney Troubles Attack Palmer Men and Women, Old and Young.

Kidney ills seize young and old
Come quick with little warning.
Children suffer in early years—
Can't control the kidney secretions.
Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain.
Women worry, can't do daily work.
Men have lame and aching backs.
The cure for man, woman or child
Is to cure the cause—the kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys—
Cure all forms of kidney suffering.
Palmer testimony proves it.

Mrs. Elizabeth Maxwell, 16 Park St., Palmer, Mass., say: "Undoubtedly my age had a great deal to do with my kidney complaint. My back ached and it was impossible for me to lie in a comfortable position. I was often so dizzy that I could not stand alone, and the kidney secretions were unnatural. My whole system seemed to be run down. I finally saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and procured a box from Lynde & Gould's Drug Store. This remedy proved to be just the one I needed, the first few doses giving me relief. The pain lost its severeness and my kidneys became normal. I am only too glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

Distinctive Fashions in Easter Millinery

In a profusion of color and design, our Millinery Section presents the most varied interpretation of these charming modes it has ever been our good fortune to show. It's our pre-Easter showing, and rarely one more interesting. For they're the portrayal of the exquisite creations which have been designed by our own skilled milliners. The combining of style and originality with a touch of exclusivenss that has always marked our ready-to-wear fashions. Then, too, for the home milliners, there's countless fashions in untrimmed shapes of handsome braids and straws. Trimmings, of course, of every description for fashioning a becoming and appropriate style for every occasion.

THE JAUNTY HERCULES HELMET

IN OUR FRENCH PARLOR AND TAILORED ROOM

In the seclusion of this handsomely appointed fitting room, where the magnificent Georgettes, Rembrandts, Napoleons, Gainsboroughs and the like revel in a wealth of style, the smartly tailored effects stand out as a dominant feature. Among them is the Hercules Helmet. This model has a white straw crown fitting closely about the head, with trimming of black velvet and velvet bands, edged with white silk, and finished with four shapely cut Mercury wings, and sells for $14.98

Other Exclusive Models Marked for Their Perfection of Finish

A quiet unassuming model in a fine Black Straw Braid trimmed with a band and flower effect of beautifully tinted iridescent beads, $14.98

A stunning model in a Rough Straw Turban effect of a bluish hue, trimmed with blue velvet band and combination straw and velvet uprights at $14.98

A splendid assortment of new untrimmed shapes of wide Jap Braids and Rough Straws, and in styles of Olympic, Venice, Bobby Helmets, Empire effects, Napoleons and La Modes. Of course, the predominating colors— 98c and $1.49

A wide variety of attractive styles in Trimmed Hats of the popular wide fancy Jap and Nacre braids, trimmed most effectively with the new quill and upright effects. The colorings are black, burnt, navy, green, and here and there a touch of "Helen Pink," $4.98

Smart Walking Hats of hemp braid, trimmed with vivid magenta and Mercury wings, $18.00

Georgette Sailors of black and white braid, with facings of coral velvet and with tailored band encircling top of crown, $17.00

A Draped Hood of tagel braid with straw band, studded with coral beads and handsome tailored bow of coral velvet on left side back, $17.98

Becoming fashions in pretty flower trimmed effects and French novelties in straws and braids, that for exclusiveness of design are in a class quite by themselves, $7.98

Stunning creations in all the popular straws, trimmed with imported French flowers and various other trimmings, to give them style and distinction, $12.98

Third Floor.

There are 3 Features in Crawford Ranges which make them superior to any others

1. The Single Damper
2. The Oven heated by cup-joint flues
3. The Two Hods in the base

Either of these features is worth the price of the range. The Single Damper is the greatest help in cooking ever invented. One motion—push the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check"—the range does the rest.

The Oven is heated by the cup-joint flues all over alike; no "cold corners," no "scorching spots". Quickest and surest baker.

The Two Hods in the base (patented) is a wonderful trouble-saving feature. The ashes fall through a chute into a Hod which is easy to empty. The Coal Hod is beside it.

Gas Ovens and Broilers for end or above range if desired.

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

the House gave up a part of the day to see the baseball game,—the opening of the season for the Boston Nationals. According to the custom of every year complimentary tickets were sent by the management to all the members of the Legislature. The House put in an extra hour and 10 minutes from 12 50 to 2, and took ont two hours and a half from 2 to 4 30, making a net loss of an hour and 20 minutes, and, of course, they think that is part of their perquisites, especially since it is never safe for them to raise their salaries from the $750 at which they have stood for many years.

Immoral conditions in Boston have had an airing by the debate in the House over the bill to prevent boys under 21 years of age from acting as night messengers. Testimony was put in as to the shocking and disgusting sights in bad houses which the boys are compelled to see when they are summoned to run on errands for beer and opium and make assignments and do such dirty work. The House was almost unanimous for the bill, in spite of the efforts of some Boston members to limit the age to 18, saying that boys needed to earn money to pay for their education. It would seem as if a thorough reform was needed. It was said that there was testimony of similar conditions in other cities and Newton, Worcester and Springfield were among those named.

The House is still inclined to be radical and to favor the labor men, for they have voted without debate for the eight-hour bill which Gov Draper vetoed, and for other labor legislation LANDON.

For Constipation.

A Medicine That Does Not Cost Anything Unless It Cures.

The active medicinal ingredients of Rexall Orderlies, which are odorless, tasteless and colorless, is an entirely new discovery. Combined with other extremely valuable ingredients, it forms a perfect bowel regulator, intestinal invigorator and strengthener. Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy and are notable for their agreeableness to the palate and gentleness of action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience.

Unlike other preparations for a like purpose, they do not create a habit, but instead they overcome the cause of habit acquired through the use of ordinary laxatives, cathatics and harsh physic, and permanently remove the cause of constipation or irregular bowel action.

We will refund your money without argument if they do not do as we say they will. Two sizes, 25c and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Lynde & Gould.

CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Made Safe by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—MRS. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

The testimonials which are constantly being published in these advertisements are guaranteed to be absolutely genuine. D1

Here's Something New

No more ashes to lug. No clumsy pan to spill dust and dirt on the kitchen floor.

The Glenwood Ash Chute

solves the problem. It is located just beneath the grate and connected by a sheet iron pipe straight down through the kitchen floor to ash barrel in cellar. No part is in sight. Not a particle of dust can escape. Just slide the damper once each day and drop the ashes directly into the ash barrel.

The Dust Tight Cover

to barrel is another entirely new Glenwood Idea and is very ingenious. The Ash Chute is sold complete with barrel and all connections, as illustrated, at a moderate price to fit any cabinet style Glenwood. This is only one of the splendid improvements of the Plain Cabinet Glenwood the Range without ornamentation or fancy nickel, "The Mission Style" Glenwood. Every essential refined and improved upon.

Up-To-Date Gas Attachments

This Range can be had with the latest and most improved Elevated or End Gas Range attachments. It has a powerful hot water front or for country use a Large Copper Reservoir on the end opposite fire box. It can be furnished with fire box at either right or left of oven as ordered. When the Ash Chute cannot be used an Improved Ash Pan is provided.

Makes Cooking Easy.

ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

Large Attendance at County Gathering Wednesday.

ABOUT 500 PRESENT IN AFTERNOON.

Sessions Afternoon in Baptist and Congregational Churches. Union Evening Session.

The annual convention of the Hampden County Christian Endeavor Union was held in Palmer Wednesday, with sessions in the Baptist church in the afternoon and in the Congregational church in the evening. There was a large attendance, about 500 being present at the opening session.

The convention was called to order at 1.30 by the president, Rev. E. B. Robinson of Holyoke, who led the praise service. Rev. C. W. Williams, pastor of the church, conducted the devotional service. Greetings were received from the county unions of Essex, Barnstable and Bristol counties, also from the Amherst local union. The report of the secretary was read by Miss Eunice M. Bates of North Wilbraham, and was especially worthy of praise for its detail and completeness. The treasurer's report showed receipts of $56 98 and expenditures of $48 57, with a balance of $8 41 in the treasury. The committee on delegates to Atlantic City, A. J. Miller, John Riffenberg, W. E. Lamb, Miss Nettie E. Bisbee and Miss H. A. Ellis, recommended John Riffenberg of Holyoke. The committee on place of meeting, William J. Cole, Miss Fairfield and Miss Ripley, reported that an invitation had been received to meet in 1912 with the First Congregational church in Springfield, which was accepted. The committee on the awarding of banners, Rev. C. W. Williams and John S. Crow, awarded the banner for "good citizenship" to the society from the First Congregational church of South Hadley and the missionary banner to the society from the Congregational church at Longmeadow, who contributed an average of $2 75 per member, East Longmeadow being second with $2 21. The committee on resolutions were C. Leonard Houlton, Rev. Thomas E. Williams and Mrs. Charles Granger.

Rev. Frank Smith gave the report of the nominating committee and reported the following list of officers; President, Rev. J. T. Nichols; vice presidents, John Merriman, Dr. W. W. Weeks and Rev. A. G. Reed; secretary and treasurer, Miss Eunice M. Batea; junior superintendent, Miss Lindquist; chairman of lookout committee, A. John Miller. The report was accepted and adopted. A special convention song was then sung by the delegation from the First church of Springfield.

The speaker of the afternoon was Dr. John Lyon of Holyoke, who said in part: "There is danger of motion without nutrition, of doing things without having anything happen, of effort without results." He made an earnest plea for definite results in Christian work. He said the work of Christian Endeavorers should be one of construction; something should come out of it, something that should take shape out of the work accomplished. In the world there are those who build, those who tear down and those who look on and do nothing. No man has a right to criticise the church of Jesus Christ unless he has something better to put in its place. If one is going to build he must have a passion for results that will glorify the Master. There is no better place for an endeavorer to spend his force than in the church of Jesus Christ. Second, he must have a plan. There is no use to attempt to carry on work without a distinct plan. Third, he must count the cost. When there comes an appeal for service that demands heroism and sacrifice, then you have dropouts. God never cheapens the best things by making them too easy. Fourth, we must avoid waste. It is possible to overweight ourselves, it is possible to waste. He hoped God would take hold of the young people's work and conserve it so as to avoid waste.

This was followed by an exercise by the junior army of the Springfield societies, after which there was a fellowship meeting at which Rev. C. A. Reiul, Rev. Frank Smith, C. Leonard Houlton and others spoke.

The evening session opened at 7 with a praise and devotional service led by Rev. F. S. Brewer. The first speaker was William Shaw, secretary of the United society. Mr. Shaw spoke on the work of the general society and was dressed in a costume made from the dress of the different countries where Christian Endeavor was at work. Dr Neil McPherson, pastor of the First church, Springfield, took for his subject, "Prospectors for Christ." This was followed by the presentation of a picture of Dr. F. E. Clark.

Mr. Shaw said in part: Christian Endeavor is not a spent force. It is not effeminate. There is a large place for men in its work. Boys' clubs and men's clubs are good, but the church needs more than these to provide its future workers. The speaker urged sending of delegates to Saganore and the world's convention at Atlantic City, and made an urgent appeal for the headquarters building at Boston. He dressed himself in a garment from Burma, a fez from Egypt, a handkerchief from Japan and a garment from the Marshall islands, with a plea for the people whom these costumes represent.

Dr McPherson compared the Christian Endeavor Society to a prospector in mining regions. He said in part: "The prospector's general knowledge is limited, but he knows a little about mining and has committed himself to it. The men who have lifted this world to higher and nobler things have been men who have committed themselves to one purpose. When a Christian Endeavor Society turns aside to any purpose except that for which it was organized it weakens itself. The prospector loves to do original things. We must follow out his gospel in some measure. When a thing becomes conventional it loses its soul. We need courage to see what no one else has seen and to do what no one else has done. The great things that have been done for mankind have been original things done through love. May your love show you new ways to help your church, your home and your community."

Freight Accident at Warren.

Special freight train No. 2569 met with an accident in Warren Saturday afternoon. It was switching two cars of coal on the switch track at the mill of the Sayles & Jenks Co., when one truck of a Grand Trunk box car was thrown off the center so that the car could not be removed. Men were sent from Springfield late in the evening and with the use of hydraulic jacks succeeded in replacing the car on the trucks and as it was loaded with household goods consigned to Spencer, another freight was stopped and the car sent on its way.

Holland Man Wins Damages.

E. M. Hall Given $1000 For Assault by C. F. Crawford.

In the superior court Monday Judge Sanderson awarded $1000 to E. M. Hall of Holland in his suit against C. F. Crawford of Brimfield. The award was made by default as compensation to Mr. Hall for an assault committed upon him by the defendant. Crawford is now serving a sentence of 18 months in the local house of correction for the same assault. Mr. Hall was awarded a verdict by default last fall for the amount asked, but the default was subsequently removed at the request of the defendant, and has now been imposed a second time. H. A. McFarland of Wales secured a judgment against Crawford in the district court of eastern Hampden for injuries received by him in another assault. He subsequently attached Crawford's property in order to recover the judgment and when Crawford learned of this he offered to settle with Mr McFarland. This would free the property from the attachment and Mr. Hall desired to secure the judgment in order that he might attach it as soon as Mr. McFarland's attachment is removed. C. L. Young appeared for Mr. Hall.

Ludlow Merchant Charged With Setting Fire.

Adam Dymon, a Polish merchant whose store is on Joy street in Ludlow, was arrested in Ludlow Saturday by Deputy State Fire Marshal James Anderson of Springfield and Officer Consedine of Ludlow on a warrant sworn out by Mr. Anderson, charging Dymon with burning a building in the night-time for the purpose of defrauding an insurance company. Mr Dymon's store on Joy street was destroyed by fire on November 30, 1909, and Mr. Anderson has been since working on the case, being unable to secure evidence that would warrant making a complaint until this week. Dymon pleaded not guilty before Judge Birnie in the Ludlow court Monday morning and the case was continued, bail being fixed at $1000.

WARE.

Celebrate 17th Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs P E. Moran observed the 17th anniversary of their marriage at their home on East street Sunday evening, when they entertained a party of friends and relatives. They were presented with a handsome china tea set and a number of other gifts. Refreshments were served and there was vocal and instrumental music. Relatives were present from Bridgeport, Ct., Hartford, Ct., Springfield, Fitchburg and Waterbury, Ct. As the guests were leaving Mrs Moran announced the engagement of her sister, Miss Nellie Higgins of this town, to John W. McDermott of Waterbury, Ct.

The public school will re-open Monday after a week's vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Leander Letourneau observed the fifth anniversary of their marriage Tuesday evening at their home on Pleasant street, when they entertained a number of relatives and friends.

Mrs Julia O'Leary of New York city has bought the Murdock place in West street and will build a two tenement block on the land after tearing down the old house.

George H. Coney has returned to Woodstock, Ont., after having disposed of all his remaining property on Church street. The double house now occupied on one side by Mrs. Lizzie McGrath and her brother, Harlie Spear, and on the other by Mrs. Nelson C. Williams, was sold recently, with all the land in the rear to the line of Grenville Park, to Hugh Gormley. The new owner said he bought for investment, and there is a rumor that he will sell again to prominent men in town. Mr. Coney also sold to Missea Annie and Alice Breckenridge the land in the rear of their home with the large storehouse which stands upon a part of the lot. Mr. Coney formerly lived himself in the house now occupied by the Misses Breckenridge and their mother. The storehouse has not been used much of late years since Mr. Coney left town, and it is now understood that it will be taken down and removed.

WALES.

Death of Former Resident.

Eli B. Fiske, 79, a building contractor, died at his home in Springfield Saturday night after a long illness of Bright's disease. Mr. Fiske was born in Wales, in 1831, the son of Stephen and Lucina Fiske. He was educated in the public schools in Wales and lived in his native town until 27 years old, when he went to Springfield, where he had since lived, having had charge of the erection of many of the finest residences in that city. He married April 24, 1856, Miss Martha Flint of Charlton, who survives him, with two sons, Frank B and Charles S., both of Boston. The funeral was held Tuesday and burial was in Springfield.

O. C. Switzer of Monson spent Saturday in town.

Mrs. Elijah Shaw is visiting her sister, Mrs H. E. Thayer in Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. George Steele of Palmer spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Steele.

Mrs. George Parker and Mrs. H. H. Moore of West Warren were in town Wednesday.

About 50 new books were placed on the shelves of the public library last week. A large part of these were presented by the free public library commission. The list contains a good number of interesting and attractive juvenile books.

There was a fire on Mt. Pisgah Tuesday afternoon, which burned over several acres of sprout land, destroyed about a hundred ties belonging to E L. Needham and threatened to burn the house formerly occupied by Thomas King.

Mrs C. T. Holt, president of the Baptist Ladies' Aid Society, entertained the society Wednesday afternoon. As this was the first meeting since Mrs Holt's marriage the ladies presented her with an amethyst brooch set with pearls.

BELCHERTOWN.

Alvin R Lewis has been unanimously elected superintendent of the Belchertown and Enfield schools at a joint meeting of the committees of these two towns.

L. W. Dillon has exchanged the Park View hotel, his fine residence on the adjoining lot and the belt factory for the brick block on the corner of State and Hawley streets in Springfield, the property of F. E. Fuller. Mr. Dillon has owned the Park View for nearly 20 years and has conducted it most of that time.

BRIMFIELD.

Mrs. Scott Campbell and young son have returned to their home in Somerville after visiting at the home of Fred T. Parker.

Miss Mabel Morton of Revere, a former teacher in the Center grammar school, visited friends in town the first of the week.

OLD DEEDS ARE FOUND.

Prove Town's Title to Bondsville School Lot.

GIVEN IN 1861 BUT NEVER RECORDED

Had Been In Office of Boston Duck Co. in Boston. Discovered by Agent Childs.

The uncertainty concerning the ownership of the land on which the Bondsville schoolhouse stands, which was brought to the attention of the public recently through the published statement that no deeds transferring the property to the town could be found, has been dispelled by a letter and documents received this week by Town Clerk John F Foley, which prove beyond peradventure of a doubt that the town has an undisputed title to the land. The letter is as follows:

BOSTON DUCK COMPANY,
BONDSVILLE, MASS
April 15, 1911.

Mr. J. F. Foley, Town Clerk,
Palmer, Mass.

Dear Sir—I received recently a lot of old documents from our Boston office, and among them I find a couple of deeds which I find do not belong the Company, but refer to property and rights conveyed to school district No 10, this village.

I find the quitclaim deed by Rodney Davis for school district No 10 was recorded in 1885, but the deed from the estate of Aaron Gould, by Otis Lane, administrator, was evidently never recorded, as it is not so indicated on the deed.

Our Boston office probably did not realize the value of these papers to the town, and I am pleased to turn them over to you. Please acknowledge receipt of same.

Yours,
E. G. Childs, Agt.

The deed from the estate of Aaron Gould of Ware, given by Otis Lane, administrator, mentioned above is dated April 25, 1861, by a peculiar coincidence almost 50 years to a day before its receipt by Town Clerk Foley. The compensation named is $200, and the land described is that now occupied by the grammar school building in Bondsville. There is no record on the document of its having been recorded, and it is probable that it never has been, this being the reason why the question of the town's ownership of the land was brought into question.

The other deed referred to is one from I. Rodney Davis of Belchertown to "The inhabitants of school district No 10 in the town of Palmer." It conveys "A certain parcel of land lying in said Palmer in the village of Bondsville, so called, it being my right to use a certain lane as a public highway, as reserved to me in a deed given by Emulous Bond, as set forth in a plan made by one Hodges, and described in said deed from said Bond to myself. Said highway is bounded as follows; Beginning on the highway leading from Duckville to Bondsville, which is 12 feet on said highway, thence easterly to the westerly line of my land, thence northerly 12 feet, thence westerly in a line parallel with the south line described, to the highway."

The piece of land thus described lies just east of and adjoining the schoolhouse land, and is occupied on the Main street side by Shea's drug store. Older residents will recall that the passageway from Main to High streets, when open and used by the public, was called "Cherry lane." It has been closed up and unused as a highway for a number of years, and of late there has been raised the question of ownership, which seems to be definitely settled by the deed mentioned above.

Nearly Killed By Gas.

Belchertown Man Has Narrow Escape From Accidental Death.

Timothy Sullivan of Belchertown narrowly escaped losing his life Wednesday night as a result of blowing out the gas in his room in a Main street lodging house in Springfield. He was found in an unconscious condition yesterday morning and was immediately removed to the Mercy hospital, where he recovered later. Sullivan went to the lodging house kept by Miss Catherine Callahan Wednesday evening and was assigned to a room. Nothing further was seen or heard of him. Yesterday morning Mr. and Mrs. Noel Wood, who occupied an adjoining room, noticed a strong odor of gas. Mr Wood knocked on the door of Sullivan's room, but received no response. The gas was escaping from the room and Mr. Wood accordingly broke in the door. He found Mr. Sullivan in bed with the gas jet turned on and unlighted. The only window was tightly closed. Dr. Thomas F Godfrey was summoned and the police were notified. Mr. Sullivan was taken to the hospital in the police patrol wagon. Mr Sullivan had been to the Main street house several times before, but on previous visits he was assigned to a room without gas.

Probate Court Business.

At a session of the probate court in Springfield yesterday the following local business was among that transacted:

Wills proved of—Hannah Pilling, late of Hampden, Abraham Pilling executor.

Administrations granted in the estates of—Peter Proulx, late of Brimfield, P. M. Proulx of Pittsfield administrator; Anna E. Craw, late of Monson, Walter E Holmes of Monson administrator; Louise Lanagan, late of Monson, Rachel Burt of Monson administratrix.

Sales of real estate decreed in estate of F. F. Marcy, late of Palmer.

WARREN.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Warren Rural Improvement Association was held in the selectmen's room Monday evening, when these officers were elected: President, Miss Mary S. Hitchcock; vice presidents, Miss Edith W. Chadsey and Charles D. Perkins; clerk, George E Tarbell; treasurer, Daniel G Hitchcock; executive committee, William E. Patrick, William A Jenks, Joseph G Hastings, George A. Shumway, Edward Fairbanks, Arthur S. Tucker, William L Curtis, Henry S. Howe, Charles B. Blair, Mrs. Charlotte E. Demond, Mrs. Joseph W. Hastings and Mrs. Julia F. Newton.

Death of Mrs. Grace B. Cutler.

Mrs Grace Blodgett Cutler, 75, widow of Charles Cutler, died Wednesday afternoon at the home of her son, William N. Cutler, on High street. She had been in poor health for some time. She was born in Monson but had lived in Warren most of her life. She was a member of the First Congregational church. She leaves two sons, Charles A. Cutler of Hartford and William N. Cutler, with whom she lived. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at 2, Rev. J. P. Hess officiating.

The annual Easter offering at the First Congregational church amounted to $225.

Herbert Tuttle of Yale University is the guest of his brother, Archer N. Tuttle and family at Breesland.

Arthur W. Taylor of Salem has been the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Taylor on Quaboag street.

Doings of the Legislature.

BOSTON, April 19, 1911.

We get here a suggestion of the Lowell celebration of April 19 which is in progress to-day, for the top of Beacon Hill, on the State House Park, has witnessed the gathering and departure of the uniformed soldiers to join the companies at Lowell. There has been a remarkable prominence of the Civil War veterans in connection with the anniversary, for the parade of the minute men of '61 Saturday, past the state house, was only a few minutes after Secretary Olin breathed his last. Then came his funeral yesterday, with another turnout of the Grand Army comrades, and now, to-day, comes the commemoration of the Baltimore conflict 50 years ago, and of the battle of Lexington and Concord, 136 years back in the dimness of the past. So, on this particular Patriots' Day, we have reminders more than ever before since the memorial anniversary was made a legal holiday. After all, the public interest in these men and the anniversaries does not seem nearly as much as in an average game of baseball, and it is evident that there is still abundant need of teaching in the schools the facts and the lessons of the struggle for freedom.

To-morrow, having buried our dead and sung their praises, we return to plunge into a mass of personal politics which could not be restrained even till the funeral of Secretary Olin was over. The morning paper has it that J. Otis Wardwell has been to Washington to see how Senators Lodge and Crane feel about running Representative Langtry of Springfield, editor and proprietor of the Springfield Union, as Olin's successor. Their judgment is reported to be friendly and thus the organized representative of the party takes the lead, for the Republican state committee, through Chairman Charles E. Hatfield, is said to be behind the whole movement. Doubtless the purpose is to prevent a strife in the party and to lead two good men in two prominent state offices. Mr. Langtry has been till now the most prominently named candidate for state auditor.—Auditor Turner being so ill that he has not been expected for weeks to survive from day to day. Senator John E. White of the Cape, who is a first-class man, has also wanted the auditorship. Hence, if Langtry takes the secretaryship, that will leave the auditorship for White without a contest, and the state committee doubtless believe that, with the aid of the two senators at Washington, they will be able to deliver the secretaryship to Mr Langtry.

But right here steps in Representative Russell A. Wood of Cambridge, who was out openly for the secretaryship before Olin was taken ill, on the ground that Olin had had the office long enough and that it was time to give the young men a chance. There is said to be some disposition to support Wood rather than Langtry because of the latter's sudden shift of position regarding which office he wants. Wood will do his best to capture the office. It is probable that a party caucus will be held soon, and, till then, the race is lively.

This change of scene has forced another speakership candidate into the open,—Representative Cavanaugh of Everett. He was named for secretary of state by some friends. This led him to make a public statement over his own name, that he was not to be considered for that office because he was going to be a candidate for speaker next session. He added that he had not expected to say so thus early, but circumstances forced him. Already Messrs. Underhill of Somerville, Washburn of Worcester, Haigis of Montague and Thomas of Quincy have put out their candidacies. Mr. Wolcott of Milton is also in the same class. Really, therefore, there is such a glut of candidates as was never known since men can remember. This includes the race between Speaker Walker and Norman H. White of Brookline, his colleague, for governor and President Treadway's candidacy for lieutenant governor. Mr. Underhill has been put in the chair frequently during Walker's absence when he has had to go off to speak, or has had official business to attend to, and so he is getting much practice. Mr. Haigis of Montague has also had his time in the chair, and is going to have a whole session sometime before prorogation. He was in charge of the income tax amendment and has had his name connected with other important matters, so that he is kept well in the public eye. Mr. Wash abundantly able to conduct his from the floor, and he has not chair enough to show how he wo all emergencies. Wolcott presided the other day. But Cavanagh and Tho are not much known yet. But it ca seen that this multiplicity of cand has its effect upon the transaction ness and upon the relations of with each other. In the Senate heard of the candidacy of senato chair of President Treadway. T dent, by the way, came out in a sp evening against biennial elect sober second thought is sure to m ference with the large House vote i of the amendment on its first appearance.

Speaker Walker is throwing his influence against the resolution supporting the income tax amendment of the United States constitution. He had his name called with the other House members and voted "no," though the record showed 130 yeas to 69 nays. A majority vote in both branches of the Legislature is sufficient to carry the proposition. But the opposition is not by any means yet ready to surrender because of the House vote. Not a word of debate occurred in the House. Mr. Dean of Wakefield rose to say something for the amendment, but Mr. Haigis, in charge, motioned to him to sit down. The first speech was due to come from the opposition, and if no one opposed, then there was no reason for the friends to say anything. Nobody attacked it, therefore it happened that no debate occurred. But Speaker Walker wants the matter debated. This will come to-morrow. In the meantime, the Boston chamber of commerce has got busy and last evening expressed itself against the income tax amendment. This means that Walker will hold back the matter for a day or two and that will give longer time for lobbying the Senate. Hence the friends of the amendment are by no means certain yet that they will win.

It will be noticed that Speaker Walker, speaking publicly last evening, said that no abler man than Martin M. Lomasney has sat in the House. That must rankle with the many men who find themselves hard put to resist Lomasney's influence in the House. Conservative Boston is ready to shriek with horror at the thought of Lomasney's being able to carry through the bill to make the Boston city council a body of 27, instead of a body of five. Lomasney is not at all popular with the ruling aristocracy of Boston. Hence Speaker Walker takes a very questionable political step when he publicly says a word in favor of the man whom many promin

PALMER NEWS.

Privilege Goes Over.

Bids Will Not Be Opened Till Next Week. Selectmen Kept Busy.

The selectmen at their meeting last evening received sealed bids for the exclusive privilege of collecting junk in the town of Palmer for the coming year, but they were not opened on account of a multiplicity of other business, and will be considered next week.

The contract for the new concrete walks to be built was awarded to John W. Rochford of Springfield. It was decided to ask for bids for painting the town house, and specifications may be had of Chairman Warriner. James Summers was appointed inspector of buildings under the statute accepted by the town at the annual meeting; he will have power to order rubbish and inflammable material removed from buildings and back yards, in order to lessen the liability of fire. An extension of the permit to give exhibitions was granted the Polish National Hall in Thorndike. Delvini Fortier of Four Corners was appointed a special police. N. Monat and Frank Lamb of Bondsville were appointed public weighers. Gale Bros. of Palmer and John F. Crean of Thorndike were granted pool licenses.

Licenses Are Granted.

That Is, All But One, Which is Held Up Until Next Tuesday.

The license commissioners inspected the places of the applicants on Tuesday, and last evening met and awarded a portion of the privileges asked for. Liquor licenses were granted as follows: D. E. O'Connor & Co., Nassowanno House, Palmer, first and fourth classes; C. H. Burns & Co., Burns Hotel, Palmer, first and fourth classes; Blanchard & Co., Weeks House, Palmer, first class; McKelligott & Gebo, Thorndike, first class; D. V. Fogarty & Co., Three Rivers, first class; Pendergast & Hebert, Three Rivers, fourth class. There are eight other applications, all of which were laid on the table until next Tuesday evening, when it is expected that the one more license allowed will be granted.

Sixth class, or druggists' licenses, were granted last evening to John F. Shea of Bondsville and Lyman L. Keith of Three Rivers

Common victnallers' licenses were granted P. E. Bard, Thomas Edmonds and the Union News Company of Palmer, C. R. Russell of Bondsville and John Crean of Thorndike. The fee was fixed at $1.

District Attorney Here.

Visits Palmer to Investigate Alleged Case of Incendiarism.

District Attorney Christopher T. Callahan of Holyoke paid Palmer a visit Monday afternoon in an endeavor to learn as much as possible concerning the recent fire in the clothing store on Church street, which is alleged to have been of incendiary origin and for previous knowledge of which Lonis Tallant has been arrested. The case is scheduled to come up soon in the superior court, and Mr. Callahan, with State Detective Bligh, was in consultation Monday with Officers Crimmins and Bills regarding the matter. Mr. Callahan's action is not a little pleasing to Palmer people, as it gives evidence of an attempt at least to make good his ante-election promise, "to deal so vigorously with the murderer, the burglar, the fire-fiend and others who terrorize the community as to make this district unattractive to them."

Foresters Hold Caucus.

The sixth annual caucus of delegates elected from Palmer district, Foresters of America, to the grand court convention, was held Sunday afternoon in Foresters' hall. The meeting was called to order by Grand Treasurer William F. Duncan of Warren as chairman and John J. Donahne was secretary. After the regular business was transacted, the delegates chosen to represent this district at the Quincy House conference, Boston, were as follows: Joseph P. Love of Webster, George Black of Ludlow, George Plonff of Indian Orchard and William F. Duncan of Warren. Mr. Duncan was the unanimous choice to represent this district on the executive council. The supreme delegates from this district are: George Plonff of Court Royal Oak, No. 42, of Indian Orchard and Alfred Deslanriers of Court Ware, No. 89, of Ware. The alternates are R. J. Darling of Monson and J. P. Love of Webster. The following courts were represented: Oxford, Webster, Spencer, Warren, Palmer, Monson, Ware, Robervale, Indian Leap, Levis, Royal Oak and Southbridge. It was voted to hold the next year in Webster.

School Wins First Game of Season.

Palmer high school baseball team has hands full defeating the Winchester A. C. team of Springfield Wednesday the first game of the season, but the work was done, 1 to 0, in ten innings both teams played a good game, especially in the field. Cole pitched a fine game for Palmer, striking out 23 men, to nine by his opponent. But one hit was made off Cole, while Palmer secured four off Seaman. The winning run was made after one man was out; Harrington hit safe to center, stole second and scored on a hit by Chalmers

Requests for Tar Walks.

In another column the selectmen announce that all applications for new concrete walks must be made not later than June 1, at which time the contractor will be in town and begin work. On walks built under these applications the abuttors will be required to pay one-half the cost. As the applications are usually far in excess of the amount of money on hand, it will be well for those who wish walks to get their applications in early.

Men's League Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Men's League of the Congregational church will be held in the church next Wednesday evening. A beefsteak supper will be served at 6.30, to be followed by the business meeting. Supper will be for members of the league only, and it will be necessary for those who wish to attend to secure tickets not later than Tuesday evening, so that the entertainment committee may know how many to prepare for.

John Smith of Florence spent Easter at his home on Fox street.

H. L. Hunt of Springfield will speak in the Advent chapel Sunday afternoon at 3. Sunday school will be at 2

Mrs. Horace Todd and daughter Helen of South Main street have been spending part of the week in Worcester.

A number of the Knights of Columbus will attend the working of the third degree in Northampton Sunday afternoon.

The fire steamer was taken to Thorndike Sunday morning for pumping out the sewer on Main street in that village.

Miss Mary Ledyard, teacher in the first grade of the Palmer grammar building, spent Patriots' Day at her home in Maynard.

The engagement is announced of Newton C. Wing of New York, formerly of Palmer, and Miss Elizabeth Myers of Frankfort, N. Y.

George Barnes of Ware, who was formerly employed as a motorman on the street railway here, is moving his family to Palmer to-day.

Miss Elissa Caryl of Wesson Memorial hospital has been spending part of the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F H. Caryl of Pine street.

Samuel Brooks has leased the vacant store in the post office block on Main street and will open a tailoring establishment there in a few days.

Good Cheer Rebekah lodge will meet next Thursday evening, when there will be work. A supper will be served at 6 30 to which the public is invited.

F. J. Hamilton is making extensive changes in his house on Park street, adding dormer windows and finishing off several rooms on the third floor.

The executive committee of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural society will hold a meeting at the Converse House next Tuesday afternoon to make plans for the fair next October.

H Platkin has taken the vacant room in the basement of Caryl's block, with an entrance on Bridge street, and will move his shoe repairing establishment there as soon as it can be fitted up for him.

Miss Elizabeth Keefe, teacher in the fourth and fifth grades in the Bondsville grammar school, has resigned her position to take a similar one in her home town, Quincy, at an increased salary.

The Foresters of America will hold a class initiation in the town hall in Ware next Sunday afternoon at 2 30 The work will be performed by the Milford degree team. Court Palmer will meet in their rooms at 12 30 and will go to Ware on a special car.

Quaboag council, Royal Arcanum, initiated three candidates at its meeting Tuesday evening and received several applications. The council is showing decided signs of life, nearly a dozen new members have been received since the first of the year.

Sealer of Weights and Measures E. P Brown has been at the town house to-day and will be there again to-morrow, to test any weights and measures which may be brought to him for that purpose. After that time he will make calls when desired, for which there will be a fee.

"Individuality in the religious life" will be the subject of the sermon at the Congregational church Sunday morning Sunday school at 12. Christian Endeavor service at 6, subject, "Sabbath benefits;" evening service at 7, sermon subject, "The church and Christian Endeavor."

The sermon at the Baptist church next Sunday morning will be on the subject "Our English Bible," in observance of the tercentenary of the King James Version Bible school at 12; Y. P. S C E at 6 15, evening worship and sermon on "The Two Sons" at 7 o'clock. All are invited.

Washington council, Royal and Select Masters, will hold a regular assembly in Masonic hall next Monday evening, when there will be an official visitation from Grand Lecturer Fred L Moses of Somerville, and suite. The work will be the royal degree, and a collation will be served.

The demonstration of King's Puremalt, announced for all this week at the stores of the Bay State Drug Company, was cancelled from the office of the company in Boston and the demonstrators ordered elsewhere for this week. The manager of the stores in Palmer was notified too late to cancel the announcement in the Journal of last week.

The annual concert and ball of Tockwotton tribe of Red Men was held in the opera house Monday evening with a good attendance, and was a social and financial success. Bryant's singing orchestra of Orange made its first appearance here and furnished excellent music. The stage was prettily decorated with palms and Easter lilies by members of the tribe. Royce catered.

The annual meeting of the Palmer Woman's club was held this afternoon and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Lanra Tipper; vice president, Mrs. Emma Chandler; recording secretary, Mrs. Lillian Norman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Alice Gordon; treasurer, Mrs. Ruth Keith; directors, two years, Mrs. Mary Cheney and Mrs. Luella Backus; one year, Mrs. Katharine Holden and Mrs. Addie Hamilton; music committee, Mrs. Eloise Brainerd; village improvement, Mrs. Abbie Hart; guest night, Mrs. Katharine Holbrook; social evening, Mrs. Katharine Holden.

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

men in Boston regard as the embodiment of political bad influences. Lomasney has the House strongly with him on the Boston charter bill, and the effort now is to defeat it in the Senate. It ought not to be forgotten that the Republican city committees and the Democratic city committees both agree in returning to a large city council, and that Lomasney has had much Republican co-operation, without which he would not seem so powerful.

The Senate has surprised the conservatives by voting largely for a bill to reduce the hours of labor of women and minors in factories from 56 to 54 hours per week. The conservative element saw their danger and had got a bill for a reduction from 56 to 55 hoping, by that device, to save passing the 54-hour bill. But the Senate majority took the bits in their teeth and substituted a 54 hour bill for the 55 bill. This was quite a revelation of radicalism in the Senate, and perhaps they will pass the income tax

A straight, high tariff, standpat tariff resolution is pending in the Senate calendar, moved by M. Pearson of Brookline It is against the reciprocity bill at Washington and proposes that Massachusetts shall put itself on record as opposed to reciprocity. Such is the real meaning of the resolutions, and hence it is not at all certain that they will get through.

It will be a profitable thing to keep watch of the governor and make note how he seems to be making good. He is doing some most interesting work, and at the same time, disposing of the state business in a way which some critics think creditable. Keep watch of him in order to have ground for a fair judgment. LANDON

Susannah's Independence

It Was Short Lived, but Served Its Purpose

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

That Sunday had been one of Miss Lettice Penfield's lugubrious days when the whole world was garbed in a dark dismal blue. She had looked up from her melancholy book of sermons to discover her niece, Susannah, smiling radiantly at Martin Wayne's portrait in its shrinelike frame on the bookcase. Susannah had the grace to blush rosily as her eyes met Aunt Lettice's dispirited glance.

"Isn't he handsome, Aunt Lettice?" she asked daringly.

"'Handsome is as handsome does,'" quoted Miss Penfield gloomily. "Sometimes I have qualms regarding your future happiness. Marriage is such a lottery you can never tell how one of 'em is going to turn out. Sometimes it seems as if when there's the most reason to expect happiness there comes the most misery. And it doesn't do for a girl to trust herself to a man just because he is handsome."

"Seems as if I'd heard something of that sort before," Susannah said scornfully. "Aunt Lettice, I've always noticed that you have qualms about everything on Sunday afternoons, never any other time unless it's a rainy day. I do believe it's that horrid book of sermons all about everlasting torment and so forth. Now, I'm going to prescribe a cure for your melancholia—there!"

Miss Penfield gasped as Susannah leaned forward, caught the book of sermons from her hand and tossed it page downward into the glowing grate fire. The flames flickered up, and the ancient and brittle pages curled into charred fragments. The old sheepskin binding sent a black pillar of smoke up the chimney, while it smelled horrible.

"Susannah Penfield," cried her aunt indignantly, "see what you have done! That book belonged to my grandfather. You know how I have cherished it. You are lacking in respect to me and to your forbears." Miss Penfield adjusted her gold eyeglasses on her Roman nose and sailed majestically toward the door.

Susannah was genuinely penitent and rather frightened at her own rash deed, but Aunt Lettice was always so exasperating on Sunday afternoons and there had been so many Sundays since Susannah had come to live with her an orphaned and penniless little girl.

"I am so sorry, Aunt Lettice," cried Susannah remorsefully. "I wish I could undo that mischievous deed."

"I must expect ingratitude from you, Susannah. It is ever thus when one performs an act of benevolence. I have always tried to do my duty by you ever since you came to me poor and friendless, and now you turn and bite the hand that has caressed you."

Susannah arose and stood before her aunt, her pretty cheeks pale as white roses, her gray eyes dilated until they merged into black.

"Aunt Lettice, what are you saying? You exaggerate what I have done. I have been grateful for your kindness—I have tried to be as a daughter to you, and now"—

"Merely because I suggested that your future life with Martin Wayne might not be all rose color." went on Miss Penfield in monotonous complaint. "I couldn't help thinking about it when I saw Martin paying so much attention to that rich Miss Fearing—not that he needs the money, for he has plenty of his own, but"—

Susannah anticipated Miss Penfield's departure by leaving the room hastily through the library door, thus adding insult to the injury she had imposed upon that austere lady.

Through the gloomy library and the dim hall she went, up the wide red carpeted stairs to her own room, where she locked the door and sank breathlessly into a chair before her writing desk. Her face was still white, and her eyes wore a new look of trouble. Before this Susannah had always brushed her troubles aside. Today they were heavy enough. She, too, had observed her lover with Madeline Fearing, but until Aunt Lettice's insinuation Susannah had never entertained a doubt of Martin's loyalty. Now her honest heart was aflame with jealousy and her pride was stung by Aunt Lettice's taunt.

Pen and paper were at hand, and it was the work of an instant to write a brief note to Martin, breaking off the engagement and inclosing within the envelope a tiny box containing the ring he had given her. Another note to Aunt Lettice announced that henceforth Susannah would make her own way in the world and would try to repay little by little her indebtedness to her aunt. Susannah selected her plainest last year's street suit, gathered a few other necessaries into a shabby leather bag, slipped her own especial picture of Martin on top and stole away in the dusk of that Sunday evening just at the time when she might have been expecting Martin to come. She had left the letters on her dressing table so that when Aunt Lettice came to seek her they would be found.

With a beating heart she rode down town to the railroad station and bought her ticket for New York Her own inland town did not offer any opening for a young woman who had no talent for anything in especial unless it was to make a home for some excellent young man, and Susannah's career in that direction seemed to be closed forever.

Arrived in New York, she found lodgings at a working girls' club of which she had often heard, and the next morning she awakened to a new life of independence and work.

At the end of three days Susannah found work in the basement of a large department store, where she sold all sorts of kitchen ware to busy housewives. Because Susannah was a born housewife herself she found genuine pleasure in recommending the various utensils that composed her stock. Her knowledge of music and languages was not sufficient to offer her a means of livelihood; here was her own proper sphere among the household gods and their satellites.

Her wages were small enough, but there was a great satisfaction in the thought that she was earning her own way after all. She knew how horrified Aunt Lettice would be if she could see her cherished niece behind the counter. As for Martin—she shrugged her pretty shoulders with assumed indifference.

She had been there a week when a very sharp eyed, thin faced man edged his way toward her and appeared to study her appearance closely. Later she saw him talking to the floor manager, and after awhile he disappeared. Susannah thought little of the incident, for shortly afterward it was eliminated from her memory by the appearance of Martin Wayne.

Susannah shrank back among the blue enameled saucepans and pots and hoped some other clerk would wait upon him, but it was a busy morning, and there was no way of escape, for Martin came directly toward her and, without the slightest sign of recognition, spoke to her:

"Will you show me some teakettles, please?" he asked, referring to a paper in his hand.

Without a word poor Susannah set forth on the counter a row of teakettles of every size and shape—tin, copper, nickel and enameled ware of every color.

Martin looked at them critically. "What would you choose?" he asked, looking her directly in the eyes with his clear, searching glance. "What would you choose for a family of two. I'm going to be married," he added in explanation.

Susannah's color came back in a swift rush, and her daintily poised head went up proudly. All at once she was the model saleswoman, brisk and attentive. If Martin Wayne in his chagrin was to flaunt his marriage to Miss Fearing, Susannah would not flinch. It did not occur to her to think it strange that Martin should be buying his kitchen ware alone. Had not he and Susannah planned every detail of their future home down to the very toasting forks?"

"What would you choose?" he repeated, and Susannah picked out a green enameled kettle because in the house that they had built in fancy there was to be nothing but white enamel ware.

"Green?" he repeated in a puzzled tone.

"It wears well," said Susannah in a businesslike tone. "Now, here are other kettles to match in the same color—pots and saucepans and"—

"I must ask your advice," he said soberly and laid his list before Susannah—the very list they had compiled together in the red glow of the fire in library. "My wife—that is, the lady who is to be my wife—has expressed a wish for white enameled ware—pure white. Don't you think I had better choose what she wants? You see, she made out this list herself." He gave it to her, and before her blurring eyes the letters danced up and down, but it was her own writing.

All at once Susannah found speech. "Martin!" she said in a very small voice.

He turned instantly. "Susannah, dearest, what is it?" he asked in a low tone

"Oh!" said Susannah sharply. "When you got my note?"

"Yes—and tore it up," said Mr. Wayne promptly. "Your Aunt Lettice is weeping over hers yet. Dear, she sent you a message by me: 'Tell my little girl that I don't regret the book of sermons; I have learned a sermon by heart now.'"

"Oh, dear!" half sobbed Susannah. "I'm afraid I'm going to cry, Martin. I've been so horrid to you both! Did Aunt Lettice tell you all about it?"

"Every word, even unto how she incited your jealousy of Madeline Fearing. Susannah, as they say in the melodrama, all is forgiven; come home." He covered her little hand with his own while the floor manager turned his back.

"I must wait until the whistle blows," smiled Susannah through her happy tears.

"And I will wait outside—just as if I was your 'steady company.' Shall I, Susannah?"

"Yes," said Susannah softly.

"Tomorrow we will come back and select white enamel—eh, dear?"

"Yes," said Susannah again, her face radiant with blushes. "Martin, how did you know I was here?"

"My detective—didn't you see him prowling around awhile ago? I was waiting outside for his report."

"I see. And, Martin, just as I was beginning to enjoy my independence it is ended," she sighed, a little regretfully

"Isn't there something sweeter than that—dependence upon me?" whispered Martin as he slipped the ring back into its accustomed place.

"Yes, indeed." And this time there was no regret in Susannah's voice.

Servants In Turkey.

Turkey is not nearly so benighted as we imagine, for there is no servant question there. Though slavery is still recognized, the kadun (mistress of the house) is a mother to her servants, whom she treats as children, and no children in the world are better treated than Turkish children. The most painful thing the kadun can do to a maid is to say: "The master has found a good husband for thee Thou will be married at such and such a time."

"Oh, mistress, what have I done to be thus abandoned?" is the usual sorrowful response.

Even after the servant's marriage the kindly relations between mistress and maid continue. There are no fixed servant wages in Turkey. Faithful servants are rewarded from time to time in accordance with their masters' or mistresses' good pleasure or circumstances.—Chicago Journal.

Where Tips Are Permitted.

"Do you believe that everything comes to him who waits?"

"If he is a waiter, yes."

Might Be In a Nice Fix.

Two men of Milwaukee were discussing the case of a person of their acquaintance whose obituary, it appears, had been printed by mistake in one of that city's newspapers.

"Oh, ho!" exclaimed one of the Germans. "So dey haf printed der funeral notice of a man who is not dead already! Veil, now, he'd be in a nice fix if he vas one of dose beebie vot believes everything dey sees in der papers."—Harper's Magazine.

When a medicine must be given to young children it should be pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is made from loaf sugar, and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it pleasant to take. It has no superior for colds, croup and whooping cough. For sale by all dealers.

Harmony in the Leaves of a Tree.

One of the remarkable characteristics of a tree is the process of leafage, and if we examine the bough upon which the leaves grow the admiration of the scientific agriculturist will become thoroughly aroused over the perfect consistency and artistic skill manifested in the arrangement of each spray and the exact number of leaves arranged with the most exquisite art and regularity. Every group of leaves forms merely long lines, no two alike, no two in the same position, yet all so perfect and harmoniously blended that there can be no antagonism, no sameness and all those thousands and thousands of strange and delicate forms grouped together, neither confused nor ill arranged.

Conlin—Gough.

Miss Grace A. Conlin, daughter of Stephen Conlin of 111 Bancroft street, Springfield, and Geoffrey T. Gough of this town were married in the Sacred Heart church in Springfield Monday morning, at 8 o'clock by Rev. W. B. Fallon. A large number were present at the ceremony, including Mr. and Mrs. Charles E Lynch and nearly all the employes of the Lynch store, where Mrs. Gough has been a popular saleswoman. The Lynch store remained closed until 9 o'clock to permit the employes to attend the service Miss Josephine Premo sang and the wedding march from Lobengrin was played as the bridal party entered and left the church. Miss Jennie O'Neil was the bridesmaid and James Gough of New York was best man. The bride's gown was white serge; she wore a picture hat to match and carried a prayer book. The bridesmaid was gowned in white and wore a black picture hat Following the ceremony the wedding breakfast was served in the new Kimball hotel. Their presents were very numerous including many gifts from employes of the Lynch store. The couple left in the afternoon for a wedding trip to New York, Baltimore and Washington. On their return they will live in their newly furnished home on Pleasant street in this town. Mrs. Gough has always lived in Springfield and was one of the most popular young women in the Catholic circles in that city Mr. Gough is employed as foreman at the Flynt Granite Quarry and has always been a resident of this town.

Academy Notes.

Miss Olive Tolman spent Sunday at her home in Worcester.

The last meeting of the Linophilian society this year will be heid next Friday evening at 7:15. Officers will be elected for next year and refreshments will be served.

The senior class will hold a pnblic social this evening in the Academy chapel. Ice cream, cake, and candy will be on sale and the usnal good time will be enjoyed by all present.

The baseball team will meet the fast Springfield high school nine at that city tomorrow afternoon. The next home game will be played Wednesday afternoon against the Warren high school team.

The baseball management of Monson Academy announce that the season tickets will hold good at all games, but owing to the large gnarantees that will have to be paid to visiting teams this year, they request that everybody pay admission to the following home games: Williston Seminary, April 29; Hartford high, May 20; Worcester South high, June 13.

Many thanks are expressed to Miss Rand and all those who assisted in making the glee club concert the success that it was Wednesday evening. As this was the first time that a glee club has been formed in the Academy it was feared that the concert would not prove a financial success, but in spite of this fact the proceeds amounted to nearly $100. This sum has been presented to the athletic association.

The seventh division of rhetoricals were given Wednesday morning. The program follows: Selection from "The Conciliation," Smith; "Massachusetts," Lewis; "Evangeline on the Prairie," Miss Harrington; selection from "Julius Cæsar," Walter Pease; "The American Constitution," Grnnfield; "The African Chieftan," Miss Anna Savage; "The Death of Lincoln," Hall; "Bruce at Bannockburn," Leahy; "The Cumberland," Miss Fagan.

Miss Margaret Crawford of Middletown, Ct., has been spending a few days with Miss Norton at Cushman Hall.

Manager Flynt has recently completed a football schednle, which certainly looks like a strong one for the Academy boys. All hookings have been completed with the exception of the game intended for Oct. 14. Wesleyan Academy, Holyoke and Chicopee high have been dropped and Cushing Academy and Worcester Classical high added. The Wesleyan Academy asked for a series of games in Wilbraham, but inasmuch as the Monson team has played there for the past four years, Manager Flynt would not agree to the proposition. The opening of school this coming fall is placed later than nsnal and because of this the first game will not be played until Oct 7. Five good men are lost by graduation: Dunsford, Squier, Kidd, R. Taylor and Hopper. The entire backfield, Smith, E Taylor, Bowker and Dunbar, remains intact, while Carter and Bates are available for line positions Harold Smith will again lead the team The schedule follows:

Oct. 7 Cushing Academy, at Monson.
Oct. 11 Springfield T. S Seconds, at Monson (pending)
Oct. 14 Open.
Oct. 21 Williston Seminary, at Easthampton
Oct. 28 Connecticut Literary Institntion, at Monson
Nov. 4 New Britain high, at New Britain.
Nov. 11. Connecticnt Aggies, at Monson.
Nov. 18. Worcester Classical high, at Monson

A SINGULAR WILL CASE

By ARTHUR W. BREUSTER

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Of all the strange coincidences I have ever heard none is stranger than one happening in my own life, and it led to important results.

One day, happening in at my lawyer's office, he said to me:

"By the bye, we have a big lot of papers in your case against Bunsby. It has all been settled up, and I would like to turn them over to you. We are overburdened here with dead documents."

He called an office boy and sent for the papers. They came to me in one large bundle, which I tucked under my arm, walked home with it, and threw it, without opening it, into an iron box kept for family records.

Ten years passed, during which period I went on an average to the box once or twice a year to toss into it some document that would probably never be needed again. I had no occasion to look into the box during all this period, but the time came when I found it necessary to overhaul it in a search for a missing paper. By the time I found my paper every separate bunch had been unrolled and their contents were all in confusion. Picking up a paper marked "Last will and testament of James Chieningsby," I was somewhat surprised to find such a document.

I opened and ran my eye over its contents. There was nothing to indicate the value of the estate, nor were the names of any of the legatees familiar to me. There were a few small bequests to different persons, and the residue was to be given to a minor. How the paper got into my box was a mystery. I was not interested in the will, but I was deeply interested in how it came to be where I found it. It must have been there a long while, but not more than twenty years, for the date it was executed was no further back than that. But it might have been put in my box much more lately than that.

I should have attached more importance to it if persons could not make more than one legal will. It struck me that this might be an old one which had been voided by a later one and had got mixed with old out of date papers But that did not explain how it came to be in my possession, for it was not a paper in which I or any of my family, so far as I knew, had any interest. I looked it over carefully to see if there was any clew by which I could discover who were the legatees, but there was nothing to give me the slightest information concerning it. I took it to my desk in a room I occupied for smoking and placed it in a pigeonhole, intending to advertise it. But time passed, and I took no action.

Some time after this I married my stenographer and typewriter. She was very poor, and I was not rich. I was making a bare living and until our first child was born she retained her position in my service. Indeed, it was essential that she should, and when children came and I was deprived of her assistance in spite of all my efforts I was losing my grip and could not afford to hire another stenographer.

One morning while looking over my newspaper my eye drifted to real estate items. One of them mentioned the sale of a piece of property belonging to the Chieningsby estate. The name was an odd one, but it seemed to me that I had seen it somewhere before.

"My dear," I said to my wife, "did you ever hear of the name Chieningsby?"

"I had an uncle by that name, though I never saw him. He disappeared when he was a boy and was never heard from. All I know of him is that I heard my mother speak of him before she died."

I kept thinking of the name till suddeniy it flashed upon me that I had seen it in the will found in my iron box. I went to my desk, took out the document and read the name of the testator—James Chieningsby. I called my wife and read the will to her. When I came to the name of the heir to the residue of the estate I stopped, wonder stricken. It was her maiden name.

She was as much mystified as I. All she knew of the name of Chieningsby was what she had told me. But we were both in a flutter of excitement. What did it mean? Then I remembered that a man may make a will every day if he likes and only the last one is of any value. Nevertheless I was aroused. I rushed out to my attorney, or the one who had once had my law business, showed him the document and was about to ask him to make an investigation for me when he exclaimed:

"By thunder!"

"Explain!" I cried impatiently.

"Instead of answering me be called out to his partners. "Here's a will for the Chieningsby estate."

"For heaven's sake tell me!"

"Where did you get this?"

"Found it in a box of mine where it has probably been for years."

"It represents an estate that has never been settled since no one has been found near enough of kin to claim it. If this is genuine all but these few bequests goes to Miss Katherine Miller, whoever she may be."

"She's my wife."

We were rich. The will had been left by the testator with my attorneys, had got mixed with the bundle of papers given to me and had come to light when most needed.

A Doubtful Compliment.

The popularity of Tolstoy often brought him into comical situations which he himself would tell about afterward. One incident, noted in P. A. Sergeyenko's "How Tolstoy Lives and Works," will bear repetition.

One day in Moscow he was walking along a narrow sidewalk when an intoxicated man crawled, staggering along, to meet him. When the stranger caught sight of Leo Nikolaevitch he came to anchor, as it were, and with twisting tongue inquired:

"Count Tolstoy—y-yes?"

"Yes."

"I am your adorer and imitator," said the fellow, with feeling, and respectfully made way for his exemplar.

The Change.

"He used to complain because he never got what he wanted to eat."

"Yes, but he's rich now."

"Yes, and now he complains because he never wants what he gets to eat."—Catholic Standard and Times.

THE SCHOOLMA'AM

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

We had no luck with our school at Turnerville—that is, with the teachers, for what's a school but a teacher, anyway? At last, when we'd just fired one of 'em, a good lookin' gal applied for the position and got it just because she wasn't like any of the rest of 'em. She was soft spoken and said she preferred managin' the children by kindness rather than any other way. Some of the teachers we'd had were great trouncers, and the boys didn't like 'em.

Miss Hatbaway—that was her name—was engaged, and I must say the school settled right down to business. I don't know how much larnin' the children got, but they was quiet as lambs. Some of us tried to find out how she done it by questionin' the scholars, but they didn't know. Some of 'em said that when she told 'em to keep quiet she looked at 'em in a way that convinced 'em they better had.

The cashier of Boodle's bank fell in love with Miss Hathaway and wanted to marry her. She kep' him on the rack, not givin' him any decided answer. We who had children to eddicate hoped she wouldn't have him, for the school was doin' mighty well and had never succeeded before. The mothers were especially anxious, not that they was particular about their children gittin' larnin', but because if the school wasn't runnin' and they had to take care of their young uns they hadn't no time to gossip over the feuces that divided the back yards.

But somehow if Miss Hathaway brought us good luck with the school a heap of trouble came with her. There was raids made on the town by hoss thieves one after t'other till nearly every hoss in town was stole. It looked as though some un who had lived in the town was leadin' 'em, for they seemed to know just where every hoss was located. When there wasn't but a few hosses left their owners tried to hide 'em. But it didn't do no good—the thieves seemed to smell 'em and went right to where they was hid.

All this time Shinkley, the cashier of Boodle's bank that I tole you about, was a-settin' up to Miss Hathaway. He had a fine iron gray hoss he paid $600 for that he used to drive her out with. He was awful afraid he'd lose the animal, and Miss Hathaway suggested that he keep him nights in the schoolhouse. Nobody wouldn't think of lookin' there for a hoss. He done it, and, sure enough, in the mornin' there was the hoss, safe and sound. But he only kep' the critter there a few nights when somepin happened that he didn't need to keep him there any longer.

One night Shinkley visited the teacher, and when he went away they both went to the schoolhouse, which was close by, and put in the hoss. Then Shinkley kissed her good night, for she'd promised to marry him. He went home and to bed. He couldn't git no sleep because he was so happy ut gittin' the only gal he'd ever seed that he wanted to marry.

That was in June, when the day breaks early. Between 3 and 4 o'clock in the mornin' Shinkley was awoke by a clatter of hoofs comin' down the street. Thinkin' it was the hoss thieves and wishin' to git a sight of 'em, he jumps out of bed and runs to the winder. He was in plenty of time to see all he wanted to Five men was ridin' down the street, headed by a woman ridin' straddle, just as they was. When they got opposite the winder where Shinkley was looking out he see that the woman was the schoolteacher, and she was riding his iron gray hoss. She looked up at him and larfed.

"Much obleeged," she said, "for givin' me the combination of the safe. My friends have been after somepin better than hosses this time. We got all the currency in the bank."

Then the feller ridin' next to the schoolmarm he sung out, "Take that for kissin' my wife!" And he fired a shot that went through a panel of glass jist above the cashier's head.

Well, now, I reckon that cashier was mad. Nothin' makes anybody so mad as to git fooled. Shinkley had been fooled as to his affections, had lost his fine hoss and given away an entrance into the bank's safe.

Mebbe he didn't git a move on him! Without stoppin' to git into his clothes he run down and out, and, seein' a friend of his'n that had a bicycle, he got him to follow the robbers while he got up a posse. Inside of ten minutes men was leavin' the town on wheels—they wasn't no hosses to ride—all armed with rifles. They didn't wait for one another, but as fast as Shinkley got a man out he sent him on. When Shinkley had started a dozen men he lit out himself.

The robbers, knowin' there was no hosses in the town, forgot about bicycles, and they didn't expect such a quick chase. They didn't hurry much. The bicycles closed up and made chase together. A hoss gits tired, and a bicycle doesn't, so every one of the robbers was tooken.

Shinkley couldn't revenge himself on a woman by hurtin' her. The way he did it was by hangin' every one of the men, includin' her husband, who had shot at him. She was forced to see one after another swung off, includin' her husband. When the ceremony was over they left her lyin' in a heap in the middle of the road. She was all gone up

RHEUMATIC FOLKS.

Are You Sure Your Kidneys Are Well.

Many rheumatic attacks are due to uric acid in the blood. But the duty of the kidneys is to remove all uric acid from the blood. Its presence there shows the kidneys are inactive.

Don't daily with "uric acid solvents." You might go on till doomsday with them, but until you cure the kidneys you will never get well. Doan's Kidney Pills not only remove uric acid, but cure the kidneys and then all danger from uric acid is ended. The following testimony will convince the most skeptical Palmer citizen.

Thomas E. O'Brien, 54 Main St., Brookfield, Mass., says: "Cold and exposnre, I believe, brought on my kidney complaint. I was in a miserable condition when I was advised by a friend to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. I was soon able to be back to work and I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for my present good health.

Origin of Dukes.

The word duke comes from the Latin "dux," a leader. In early Saxon times the commanders of armies were called dukes—i. e., the leaders of the soldiery. In other words, the first duke was the first best fighting man. No regard was had to ancestry or present attainments or any other sort of thing beyond the simple matter of warlike efficiency. Naturally the leader of the fighting would when the fighting was over come in for the lion's share of the spoils and "honors," and naturally again the rest of the folks would "look up" to him, and by degrees his superiority would be imparted to his family, and a "nobility" would spring into being. It all rested, to start with, on brute force and animal courage combined with cunning in clubbing and thrusting.—New York American.

Vegetable Fancy Work.

Little Mrs. Bride had almost everything to learn about housekeeping, but she was so enthusiastic in her interest that every one was glad to help her.

"I have some particularly fine asparagus," the marketman told her one day, and he displayed a bunch for her admiration. "Picked not three hours ago," he added.

Mrs. Bride looked at it with unaffected amazement.

"Does it grow like that?" she asked. "I always supposed the cook braided the ends of it."

The Candid Friend.

"Gee, but I feel like a fool today!"
"Naturally."

For Aged People

Old Folks Should be Careful in Their Selection of Regulative Medicine.

We have a safe, dependable and altogether ideal remedy that is particularly adapted to the requirements of aged people and persons of weak constitutions who suffer from constipation or other bowel disorders. We are so certain that it will relieve these complaints and give absolute satisfaction in every particular that we offer it with our personal guarantee that it shall cost the user nothing if it fails to substantiate our claims This remedy is called Rexall Orderlies.

Rexall Orderlies have a soothing, healing, strengthening, tonic and regulative action upon the bowels. They remove all irritation, dryness, soreness and weakness. They restore the bowels and associate organs to more vigorous and healthy activity. They are eaten like candy, may be taken at any time without inconvenience, do not cause any griping, nausea, diarrhœa, excessive looseness, flatulence or other disagreeable effect. Price 25c and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Lynde & Gould, Palmer.

"Billy" Bruce of Palmer

An Easter Romance

By I. S. Browne

In a Palmer home, not long ago,
Sat "Billy" Bruce and Annie Snow.
She was fair as the summer skies,
While on this lad there were "noffles."
And thus it was our hero "Billy"
"Popped the question," as lovers will.
When she replied: "if you'll agree
To provide a Home for you and me,
On Easter Sunday, one year from now,
We'll consummate the marriage vow."
And "Billy," being a lad of muscle,
Pulled off his coat and began to hustle,
And, spurred by love and being fortunate,
His gains began to accumulate.
He had plenty of pluck, let no one doubt it,
And this is how he went about it:

With the money he, in time, had got,
Of George Ezekiel he bought a Lot.
Here he planned, and planned right well,
That in beautiful Palmer he would dwell,
"No paying Rent for me," said he,
"No Landlord bossing over me—
I'll have a Home my own to call"—
A lesson which applies to all—
After which the Deed was Drawn
And the Lot was his, ere another dawn.
Ezekiel, to-day, is offering nice
Houses and Lots at a Moderate Price,
And should one have a Farm for Sale,
To see this man he should not fail,
And he'll act for you in a manner just
For Ezekiel is one whom you can trust.

His House was Built, in manner neat,
By F. L. Jones, 36 Park Street,
And never was a House Built better;
Each Plan carried out to the very letter,
From the Cellar to the very Dome.
It was, indeed, a Model Home,
For whenever Jones a Contract takes
He has no time to make mistakes,
Go take a walk, Palmer around,
On many streets there will be found
Noble Buildings of his Erection,
To which he invites your inspection,
And you may search where ere you will,
No one can better fill the bill.
One of his Specialties, I would state,
Is Ornamental Roofing done in slate.

The Painting and Paper Hanging was done By the firm of Geo. A. Authier & Son, A firm well known for miles around, None better as our hero found. Wall Paper of the Highest Grade, Paints that the sun will never fade; Decorating a special feature— An art in which they need no teacher. Employees, all of whom are skilled. Guaranteeing every Contract filled. Now bear in mind this simple fact And then on my suggestion act: When you want Painting or Paper Hanging done, Remember Geo. A. Authier & Son.

To William Porter he gave his trade
For Furniture of the Highest Grade.
Oil Cloth, Linoleums and Art Squares,
Carpets for both Rooms and Stairs,
Shades and Draperies and all those things
Known to the trade as "Furnishings."
In Furniture, everything that's new,
Kitchen Ware and Crockery, too,
Side Boards, Dressers, or a Chiffonier,
Mattresses, by no means dear,
Glenwood Ranges and Couch Beds,
Tete-a-tetes for Newly Weds,
All delivered to his door
From Wm. Porter's Furniture Store.
Three Rivers.

As on Thorndike Street he chanced to stroll,
Of F. J. Hamilton he bought his Coal,
The Quality of which he found
A No. 1 in every pound.
Carefully Screened and free from Slate,
Chestnut, Stove, Egg or Grate,
Put in his cellar without fuss,
Where oftentimes men make a muss.
Here, too, our Hero brought well-seasoned wood,
Sawed and Split, Quality good:
"No better Fuel," said Mr. Bruce,
"Have I ever found for Summer use."
So kindly remember, everyone,
Coal and Wood is sold by Hamilton!

To Move his Piano whom should he see
But the Palmer Trucking Company,
Who Delivered it safely from the car
To his Parlor without a scratch or mar.
This Company has 20 Horses, I'd say,
In active employment to-day.
Moving everything with greatest care

For Anyone, Anytime, Anywhere!
Light and Heavy Express they do,
Agents for Electric Express Co., too,
They Deal in Pure Spring Water Ice,
Wholesale and Retail at Moderate Price,
Delivered in quantities, less or more,
To Hotel, Residence or Store.
For further particulars I refer
You to F. M. Ralton, Manager.

"And now," said he, "to make secure,
With Clough & Record I'll Insure,"
And a Policy was there obtained
On his Dwelling and all that it contained.
Clough & Record, be it understood,
Represent in Insurance all that's good.
Promptness being their one Great Aim
In meeting the Policy Holder's Claim.
It seems incredible to think
That from being Insured one should shrink
When the cost is Little, but the Risk so Great.
Why then, I ask, should one hesitate?
So, if from Loss you'd be Secured,
Go to Clough & Record and be Insured.

Our Hero next Insured his Life
For Protection of his future Wife.
Before doing so he carefully sought
Where the Best Insurance could be bought.
Among numerous Inquiries in his quest,
All pronounced "The Travelers" the Best.
George Ezekiel, whom I now introduce,
Wrote the Policy for Mr. Bruce,
Including both Life and Accident,
Which was Money, both declared, well spent.
Mr. Ezekiel has the District Agency
Of The Travelers Insurance Company.
Your attention also he invites
To Surety Bonds, which he writes.
Liability Insurance, too, I'd state,
All in Companies strictly up to date!

To the Wedding next they wend their way,
Mrs. Bruce, to be, in Bride array,
While Billy wears a Brand New Suit
From Geo. F. Emmons; 'twas indeed a "beaut."
No one can show a better line
Than Emmons, the Tailor of Suitings fine.
And when it comes to Fit and Style
He's got all Rivals beat a mile!
Stylish Business Suits for men,
Full Dress for the "upper ten,"
Embodying all the Tailor's Art,
So when one's Dressed he looks the part.
Also Furnishings, Hats and Neckwear neat,
All at Geo. F. Emmons' on Main Street.

The Stylish Shoes this Couple wore
Came from Ellithorpe, the Shoe Man's Store,
Where Fit and Comfort, too, as well,
Are found in every Pair he'll sell.
If you want the Shoe that satisfies,
If you want the Shoe that gratifies,
That has the Style, that has the Wear,
Where Quality is always there,
A Shoe that "Stands Up" every day.
A Perfect Shoe in every way.
There's just One Place for you to go—
A place I'd have you All to know,
So pin this statement in your hat;
Ellithorpe For Shoes! Remember that!

Choice Floral Gifts perfumed the air,
Purchased at Royce's Green House fair.
Did Royce's Green House you ever visit?
If not, dear reader, do not miss it.
Summer or Winter here one finds
Floral Specimens of various kinds,
And Rare Designs he'll make for you,
Introducing features new,
For all get their Floral Offerings here
For Birthdays, Weddings and, also, the Bier.
Cut Flowers and Bulbs you here will find
To suit the most fastidious mind.
So don't forget, when this you read,
To visit Royce when in need.

Then T. F. Edmonds, at his best,
Performed the Catering for each guest,
And they all declared that his Ice Cream
Was like unto a heavenly dream.
Edmonds provided the Wedding Cake,
Which, by the way, was his Own Make,
For all which applies to the Bakers' trade,
Which he has to sell is all Home Made.
Whether Cookies, Doughnuts, Cakes or Pies,
And guaranteed to him who buys.
Mr. Edmonds conducts a Dining Room, neat,
And the Meals he serves cannot be beat.
Here 25 cents will procure for you
An Elegant Breakfast or a Supper, too,
While 35 cents will buy a Dinner
Which you might well pronounce a winner.

Cigars now followed, to each male guest,
William Gale's very Best,
For no better Cigar was ever made
Than Gale is offering to his trade.
Here, Smokers' Articles you will find
To suit the most particular mind,
For everything in Gale's you see
Bears the stamp of Quality.
Special Pipe Mixtures here are made,
And Pipes are sold of every grade,
From a Meerschaum Pipe to a Cigarette.
All needed things you here can get,
So if you're a Smoker do not fail
To make the acquaintance of "Billy" Gale.

To consummate their happy Marriage,
Twiss furnished the Bridal Carriage,
And with "God Speed," from many a lip,
They started on their Wedding Trip.
Here is a Livery that's up to date!
No Played Out Nags the crows to halt,
For Frank K. Twiss has too much pride
To work Poor Rigs on them that Ride,
And when you go a Team to Hire,
If a competent Driver you require,
You'll always find him here on hand,
Obedient to your command.
The Best that's going, and that's no fable,
Are the Rigs from Twiss' Livery Stable.

* * * * * * *

A month has passed, in rolls the train,
Mr. Bruce and wife are Home again.
Said Mrs. Bruce, "do you not know
Of a Market quoting Prices Low,
Where Cash will buy the Best of Meat?"
"'Tis Thompson's Market, on Main Street."
If Meat is high, 'tis a reason why
At Thompson's Market all should buy.
Here you'll find the sweetest Ham,
Corn-fed Pork and Tender Lamb,
Roasts and Loins, Chops and Steak,
Poultry, to Fricassee, or Bake.
The best of Coffees and of Teas.
Also Canned Goods and of Cheese,
Vegetables, fresh as morning dew
And Courteous Clerks to wait on you

And Free Delivery to your Door!
What need have I to tell you more.

Tho' Mrs. Bruce from Stimulants shrank,
Good Temperance Drinks she often Drank,
So they always kept, to treat a guest,
An assortment of Charles Burns' best.
Who is Burns? Well, I'll tell you:—
He is just the man to sell you
Ginger Ale, Birch Beer and Vanilla,
Lemon Sour, Soda, Sarsaparilla,
Champagne Cider and Root Brew,
Blood Orange, Coffee, Strawberry, too,
Sherbet, Root Beer, Orange Phosphate,
Peach Mellow, also Chocolate,
Plain and Cream Soda, Nerve Tonic, too,
And Seltzer, Bottled and Delivered to you.

"Jim" Summers, it was agreed,
Should Forge the Shoes for his Noble Steed.
Mr. Summers, I would state,
Is a Horse Shoer, thoroughly up to date!
Having a Practical Knowledge of Horses' Feet,
Thus Guaranteeing Work that's neat.
Not only this, he Builds Wagons, too,
In a manner that'll appeal to you.
Makes a Specialty of Fine Repairing, and
His Work's the kind that long will stand.
So for all I've mentioned, when in need
Of a Wagon, or one to Shoe your Steed,
When you want Good Work, done Prompt and neat,
Call on "Jim" Summers, Thorndike Street.

Mr. Bruce, in time, has prosperous grown,
The result of which is herein shown,
For an Automobile next he buys
From Geo. S. Holden, 'twas indeed a prize!
Mr. Holden is Agent for the Ford,
For which I'd like to say a word,
For this Automobile has a name
Second to none in the world of fame!
And when you consider the price of it,
At Eight Hundred Dollars, you've made a hit!
Now, if like our hero you'd win a prize,
Then Geo. S. Holden patronize.
Thus in prosperous lines we leave our friends,
Long may they live, our Story ends.

Crab Eating Monkeys.

People are so much in the habit of thinking that monkeys are found only in forests that it comes as a surprise to learn of one that bears the name of the crab eating macaque. It is found through Burma, Siam and Malay land, living among the trees that line the tidal creeks. The chief food of these animals consists of seeds, insects and crabs. In pursuit of crabs they must take to the water. Use has become second nature with them, as with other animals, and they are said to be able to swim uncommonly well.

"I wonder why bees make honey?" queried the inquisitive youth. "I suppose," replied his friend, "they make it to sell!" —Punt

Before Allowing an Operation

Please Read These Two Letters.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before. Then after all that suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored her health.

HERE IS HER OWN STATEMENT.

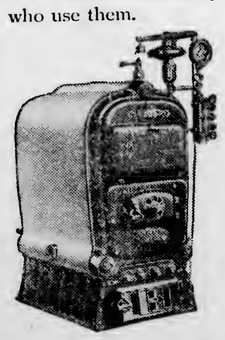
Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement—I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief, and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. To-day I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise every woman who is afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Mich.

"There never was a worse case."

Rockport, Ind.—"There never was a worse case of woman's ills than mine, and I cannot begin to tell you what I suffered. For over two years I was not able to do anything. I was in bed for a month and the doctor said nothing but an operation would cure me. My father suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so to please him I took it, and I improved wonderfully, so I am able to travel, ride horseback, take long rides and never feel any ill effects from it. I can only ask other suffering women to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation."—Mrs. Margaret Meredith, R. F. D. No. 3, Rockport, Ind.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.



The testimonials which are constantly being published in the Pinkham advertisements are guaranteed to be absolutely genuine, honest, and given without reward in any way whatever.

The Chief Difference Between Crawford Boilers and other boilers is that they heat the houses they are rated to heat;—you don't have to get the "next larger size."

These Boilers give more heat per pound of coal than others and cost less in repairs. They are simplicity itself in operation, are guaranteed for zero weather efficiency and to save fuel, labor, worry and money to those who use them.

There are no packed joints, sheet iron parts or brick linings in these Boilers, and the "Heat Ribs" cast on the interiors are found in no others.

They are a gilt edge investment for those who want heat and plenty of it at the minimum of expense and care.

REVISED TOLL RATES

Important Changes and Improvements on Short Haul Telephone Calls

BEGINNING MAY 1, the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company will extend the No-Delay System of handling toll calls and will establish a uniform rate of 10 cents for each five minutes or fraction thereof for calls between Palmer and the following exchanges:

Warren	Enfield
Ware	Gilbertville
Brimfield	No. Brookfield
*Hampden	*Fiskdale
Ludlow	*E. Longmeadow
Indian Orchard	*Springfield
Belchertown	*Chicopee

(*The operation of the system to this exchange will be begun as soon as practicable.)

Under this no-delay system of operation, toll calls to all points where the rate is 10 cents or less will be handled in the same manner and with the same expedition as local calls, that is, calls must be made by number only. In order to give this no-delay service, WE CANNOT UNDERTAKE TO HANDLE CALLS FOR A DESIGNATED PERSON.

The caller will retain the receiver at his ear until an answer comes from the called station, or until the operator reports that the called station does not answer. If communication with the station called is not obtained, no charge will be made.

As this is the first of a series of announcements of important improvements in local and toll service, the co-operation of our patrons in regard to the making of such toll calls is earnestly requested.

We always have what we advertise

IF any young fellows haven't been here to see the new styles we've brought together for you we suggest that you come along pretty soon. As we handle them, young men's clothes are not only a little more extreme in style, but the fabrics, colors, patterns, are all livelier.

Hart Schaffner & Marx have produced several new ideas in young men's styles; and we're ready to show them to you any day.

The Shape-maker is one of these new models; an entirely new idea in designing clothes; it brings out the lines of the athletic young figure; helps to create such lines; broad-shouldered, high-chested, tape-waisted. It is the best thing yet done in clothes-making.

The Varsity is another; very smart, stylish. Men of older tastes will like the Varsity; some older men will like the Shape-maker; you don't have to look old, no matter how old you are.

We've got some mighty snappy overcoats, too; Chesterfield's, slip-ons. There's no such a stock hereabouts.

SCHOOL FIRE DRILLS.

Tests Made by Board of Engineers This Week.

CHILDREN GET OUT IN GOOD TIME.

Some Conditions Found Which Need Remedying, And Which Will Be Changed Soon.

The board of fire engineers paid a surprise visit to the public school buildings Tuesday and gave an unexpected fire drill test. The conditions were found excellent in some places, while in others there was evident room for improvement.

At the high school the first attempt was a failure. The signal was given as the engineers understood to be correct, but there was an evident misunderstanding for the pupils failed to take notice of it. The correct signal was then given, and after the building was supposedly emptied an examination disclosed one room on the second floor in which no move had been made on the part of the occupants; the electric signal had failed to work in that room, so neither teacher nor pupils had moved. The signal is given from the principal's office on the bell used for all signals, and this was criticised as unwise. At a meeting of the school committee Wednesday evening it was voted to install a gong signal in each hall which shall be used for no other purpose than the fire signal. A test drill Wednesday morning emptied every room in the building in 36 seconds.

In Tuesday's tests, 377 pupils left the grammar building in 50 seconds. At Thorndike it took only 35 seconds to get 202 out; the 220 at Bondsville got out in 30 seconds. At Three Rivers 281 left the building in 40 seconds, and the Wire Mill 44 pupils were all outside in 15 seconds.

The engineers found that in some cases the signal had to be given from the principal's desk instead of from the hall, where it could be reached by anyone at any time, and also found some of the room doors which opened in instead of out. They recommended changes, which will probably be made.

BASEBALL.

League Elects Officers.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Palmer town league Ernest E Hobson was elected president and John J. Conway of Bondsville secretary. The league will consist of teams from Palmer, Three Rivers, Thorndike and Bondsville, and the secretary was authorized to draft a schednie of 18 games, the first of which is to be played May 13. The pennant for last year's games was awarded to Bondsville to be presented later.

The question of umpiring the games was left with the president of the league, and anyone wishing to act in this capacity is requested to communicate with him. The directors adopted the rules which were in force last year. The next meeting of the directors will be held to-morrow evening in the Converse House, when the schednle will be adopted.

Palmer Team Organizes.

The Palmer Club of the town league was organized Monday evening The following officers were chosen: President, John B. Dawson; directors, James Summers, William Gale, Dr. H. C. Cheney, George S Holden, D. E O'Connor, J. A. Hawkes The directors appointed Daniel J. Dunn manager of the Palmer team.

Palmer High Wins Again.

The Palmer high school team won its second game Wednesday by trimming the West Springfield Highs 12 to 7 in a 12 inning game. For Palmer Cole pitched a fine game, striking ont 14 men to six by his opponent. Bronillette of the Palmers made a donble-play unassisted.

In the grammar school league Tuesday, Thorndike defeated Palmer 4 to 3 in an 11 inning game, and Bondsville defeated Three Rivers 10 to 0.

The first game of the season for the Palmer team will be on the driving park to-morrow afternoon, when the Palmers will play the Wright Wire Mill team, composed of players from the mills of the company in Palmer and Worcester.

To Exhibit in Springfield

Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Far East have united and will exhibit in Springfield Saturday, May 13 This union brings together two great factors in out-of-door entertainment While, of conrse, the general style of the combined entertainment remains the same as when they were separate units in public amusement, there will be many features entirely new to this style of exhibition. The Far East contingent will be represented in an Oriental spectacle of great beauty and splendor; introdncing many picturesqne types whioh inhabit the romantic East. In this scene and as a particular feature, Rossi's Musical Elephants, imported at an expense of $1000 per week, will introdnce their remarkable exhibition: playing various musical instrnments, dancing, and in other manners evidencing their remarkable sagacity and wonderful training. The chief scenic featnre will be the Battle of Summit Springs, a reprodnotion of one of the deciding conflicts in Indian warfare; a battle in which Col. Cody participated and in which he shot and killed Chief Tall Bull. In A Holiday at "T-E" Ranch will be pictnred the pleasnres and pastimes of the plains man, cowboy sports and a dance npon the green.

BRIMFIELD.

Rev. William Jennings and family are spending the week in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Booth have been spending the week with their niece in Providence, R. I., and will visit relatives in Boston before their retnrn.

EAST BRIMFIELD.

Work was begnn this week on the new conorete bridge over the Quiniboag river, near the Snell Mannfactnring Company's shop, and Contractors T. J. Hynes & Son of Wales think that the highway will be closed, with the exception of a foot-bridge, for abont three weeks.

The schools have been closed this week for the spring vacation, and the teacher, Miss Warner, has been at her home in Snnderland. Miss Warner's pupils gave a drama entitled "Pandora" last Friday evening. This is the second entertainment given by the school for the purpose of raising money to add nsefnl things to the school. Since Miss Warner came in September there have been added among other things a wall clock, pictures, encyclopedia and on Patriots' Day a fine flagpole was dedicated and the red, white and blue raised.

Bad Fire At Ware.

Fine Residence of R. C. Snow Badly Damaged Last Friday.

The fine residence of R C. Snow on Pleasant street in Ware was badly damaged by fire last Friday night The blaze may have started outside of the house in the rear, in a corner formed by a connection of an ell part, and the rear part or ell running east and west snffered more than the main house facing north on the street. The flames spread into the attic of the main part burning all of the woodwork that snpported the tin roof. This tin roof made the fire difficult to get nnder control, and the recall was not sonnded nntil after 3 Saturday morning, over 140,000 gallons of water having been thrown at or into the house. Mnch of the fnrniture was rescued by men from all sides. Up in the attic some goods belonging to two of Mr. Snow's sisters was stored and these were probably rnined. The house was insured for $4800, Mr. Snow had $2000 more on his household goods and his sisters carried $500 on their effects. The total is $7300.

Mr. Snow was the only person in the house when the fire was discovered, but his son Ralph, who was on the street, soon reached home. The latter's wife and child were away on a visit. Mr. Snow was overcome by smoke and excitement, and was assisted to a shelter elsewhere for the night.

The honse was one of the fine residences of the town in the generation before the Civil War. It was bnilt back in the '40s by Henry Lyon, an agent of the Otis Company, and after he died his son George and Mrs. Lyon lived there for a number of years. After the death of Henry Lyon the estate was settled, and the late Charles A. Stevens as executor of the will sold the honse to R. C. Snow, and had occnpied it since.

Masons to Meet in Ware.

Arrangements have been made by District Deputy Paul R Bridgman of Ware for an exemplification of the three degrees by the lodges in the 19 h Masonic district in Ware Wednesday, May 17, beginning at 2 p. m. Grand Lecturer Frederick L Putnam of Cambridge will be present to snpervise the exemplification. The work has been assigned to the lodges in the following manner: First degree, Mount Zion lodge of Barre and Quaboag lodge of Warren; second, Bethel of Enfield and Day Spring of Monson; third, Vernon of Belchertown, Eden of Ware and Thomas of Palmer. The work of the last two lodges will be done in the evening session, opening promptly at 7 30. Her maiden name was Hattie Bracken and she had previously lived in Belchertown and Springfield. She was twice married, her first husband being Frank Avery of Ware. She is survived by her second husband, a daughter, Miss Lnrlene, and another daughter, Miss Lillian Avery. The fnneral was held Tnesday morning at 11, and burial was in Aspen Grove cemetery.

A forest fire bnrned several hours Tuesday on the slope of the hills to the east of the valley road of Gilbertville, about opposite the lower part of Grenville park. A large force of men were kept at work a part of the morning and most of the afternoon, causing quite an expense to the town aside from the loss to the individual owners in the damage to the acres of sprout land burned over.

Fire Warden S. Charbonneau was called to district No 3 Monday afternoon to aid in putting ont a big fire that was not nnder control until 7 in the evening. The fire burned up the farms of Michael D. Griffin and John J. Moriarty, and the former, who is an assistant warden, had made all possible effort to put it ont before sending for help. The schoolhouse in the district was saved only by hard work, the fire nearly burning up to the bnilding. Warden Charbonneau had a large force of men at work from 2 o'clock to 7, and even then the fire was not wholly out, but was nnder control.

BURGLARS MAKE HAUL.

Get Over $300 From Desk in Nassowanno House.

ALL DOORS AND WINDOWS FASTENED

Thief Evidently in the House All Night and Well Acquainted With the Situation.

A haul of between $300 and $400 in cash was made from the desk in the office of the Nassowanno Hotel some time between the closing of the office Tuesday night and the opening again Wednesday morning. While there are no clues—at least none have been made public—there are indications that the job was done by someone who was very familiar with the surroundings. The money was taken from a roll-top desk, and the loss was not discovered until morning

The night clerk closed the hotel at 11 45 and went to his home in another part of the village. When the day clerk opened the office in the morning he noticed a tool chest, which had been kept behind the counter, standing near the desk. The top of the desk was raised a couple of inches, a chisel was lying on the desk and the lock appeared bruised. An examination showed that it had been broken open. Mrs. Jeremiah Bradley, who conducts the hotel, was notified, and on investigation found that something over $300 which had been left in the desk the night before, was missing.

The fact that none of the doors or windows were unlocked, and that nothing else was disturbed, indicates that the act was that of someone who was in the hotel when the office was closed, and who remained there through the night. Night Officer Crimmins and Deputy Sheriff Bills are at work on the case.

A petition is being circnlated by owners of real estate and others on Main street, asking the selectmen to take immediate action on that part of the Main street sewer which has been condemned and ordered closed. This sewer from a point near St. Mary's church to the residence of Mrs. Frances Andrews has been found to be of insufficient grade to carry off even surface water, it being almost on a level. It is understood that the Street Railway Company is willing to contribnte a share of the expense inonrred in bnilding a new sewer if it will not be compelled to change the location of its tracks. Residents along Main street are interested in the matter not only because they are without sewer connections, but also as a matter of protection of health. It is hoped that the selectmen will act promptly and bring the matter before the citizens if necessary.

Foresters' Class Initiation.

Ware Court Entertains Large Number of Visiting Brethren Sunday.

Court Ware, Foresters of America, entertained about 500 members of the order from Palmer, Monson, Ludlow, Indian Orchard, Warren, West Warren and Spencer Sunday afternoon in the town hall at Ware, when a class of 60 from the different courts in the Palmer district were initiated. The Milford degree team, which is one of the best in the state, exemplified the work, assisted by its own orchestra of six pieces. The meeting was called to order by Chairman James H. Feehan of Court Ware, who welcomed the visiting brothers, after which the exemplification of the degree took place. Court Palmer won first place with the largest number of candidates, closely followed by Court Ware. After the obligation was given, Chairman Feehan introduced Grand Chief Ranger W. J. Mountain of Gardner, who spoke on "The Great Work Being Done by the Foresters of America." He was followed by Grand Recording Secretary George S. Janes of Haverhill, Grand Treasurer William F. Duncan of Warren, Grand Trustee James Braziel of Plymouth, the speaking being concluded by John F. Murray of Winchendon, after which a collation was served by Rohan of Ware. The event was such a success that the members of Court Palmer are planning to hold one in Palmer in the near future.

Numerous Grass Fires.

And One Call for Blaze in Village. Firemen Kept Fairly Busy.

The firemen have been kept fairly bnsy this week on brush and grass fires and one thing and another, but there have—fortunately—been no serious blazes. The activity started last Saturday, with a blaze in the grass east of the Metal Culvert Company's plant east of the village. This was handled by employes of the Boston and Albany railroad however without assistance from the local fire department. Monday they were called to a grass fire near the Cooley Crossing, and again Tnesday to one in nearly the same place. Wednesday there was a bad brnsh fire on land near the Palmer Water Company's reservoir, about 150 acres being burned over. Wednesday evening abont 9 45 the men were drafted for a fire in timber land of John O. Hamilton in the Forest Lake district, started by the railroads.

Wednesday just before noon box 66 was pulled for a blaze on the roof of an ice house at the Weeks House on Main street. The box did not work well and there was much confusion over the erratic manner in which it struck. The fire was not serious and was soon extinguished.

PALMER NEWS.

Hoodlumism Let Loose.

Gang of Youngsters Deliberately Smashes Driving Park Property.

The directors of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society have had under advisement this week the question of what should be done with members of the high and grammar schools who recently deliberately damaged the society's property to a considerable extent. The park gates have been kept locked through the winter and spring for the preservation of the grounds and buildings, consequently the baseball diamond, to which all lovers of the sport had free access all last summer, was not available for practice. Without asking permission even to use the grounds, boards were removed from the fence at the rear and the boys proceeded to occupy the grounds as they desired. A large frame-work left standing on the midway was pulled down and the timbers scattered about promiscuously. Other damage was done, but the climax was reached the first of last week, when a gang of youngsters—every one old enough to know better—deliberately smashed nearly 40 panes of glass in the ball windows. The officers of the agricultural society, realizing that the park is the only suitable place in this village available for baseball, have allowed its use without charge to the smaller teams, and think that the destruction of the property is a pretty poor return for the favors granted. At a meeting Tuesday there was some suggestion of locking the grounds and prosecuting any person found within the fences, but it was finally decided to leave the gates open this year as last. A close watch will be kept on the property however, and if it found that damage beyond the ordinary wear and tear is being done—either at ball games or any other time, the public will be barred out. It was decided to have the broken glass reset and the expense proportioned among those responsible for the damage, as the names of about a dozen of them are known.

Junk Privilege is Granted.

Goes to Present Holder, Louis Green. Other Important Matters.

The selectmen held a busy session last evening, there being many things to consider. The most important was the deciding of the bids for the junk collecting privilege. This went to Louis Green, who has had it the past year, under the same conditions—he will pay the town a lump sum for the exclusive privilege, and will be permitted to take out licenses for four teams.

The following were appointed public weighers: A. Rider, F. Fournier, A. Marsh, F. J. Hamilton, J. P. Smith, M. Smith, H G. Todd, all of Palmer. The contract for sewer pipe for Pleasant and Oak streets and the Wire Mill district was awarded to S. W. Lyon & Co. of Palmer A considerable number of pistol carrying permits were granted. Patrick Murphy of Bondsville was granted a pool license. The contract for painting the town house was awarded to William Lawton of Palmer. Bids for the construction of sewers in the Springfield road, Chestnut, Pleasant and Oak streets in the Depot village, will be received until the evening of May 11.

Meeting of Men's League.

Beefsteak Supper At Annual Gathering Wednesday Evening.

The annual meeting of the Men's League of the Congregational church was held in the church parlors Wednesday evening. At 6 30 a beefsteak supper was served to about 30 members present. The menu included steak, mashed potato, rolls, coffee, cocoa, radishes. After the supper had been disposed of the members gathered in the parlor to sing, discuss of the work of the past year and plan for the future, and the election of officers. There were talks by several members of the league on various matters of interest for the coming year, and the meeting closed with an evident spirit of push for the coming months. These officers were elected: President, S. M. Phillips; vice president, Alfred Swann; secretary, Theodore Norman; treasurer, Rufus Flyut; executive committee, in addition to the above, Rev. F. S. Brewer, F. A. Smith and A. L. Roper.

A couple of young lads of 7 and 8 years—too young to understand the enormity of their offense but old enough to know that the possession of money means good things to eat—broke into the grocery store of Whitcomb Brothers on South Main street Monday evening. They secured about $1 30 in pennies, but were located the next day by Officer Crimmins. On account of their age they were not dealt harshly with.

Final License Granted

The license commissioners met Tuesday evening and granted the eighth and final license for the year beginning May 1. It goes to W. F. Dunn & Co. at the Elms House in Palmer. Chapman. Candy and refreshments will be on sale.

Manager Miller has booked Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" for next Wednesday evening in Memorial Hall. It is a well-known fact that the Stetson Company is one of the best that has ever presented this great play, and this season will but add to its popularity with young and old, for it is even better than what it has been, if such a thing could be possible to so good a company. New features have been added, the old ones given better interpretation. The musical part of the program has been greatly increased It is said to have the heaviest scenic equipment of any company traveling Academy Team To Play Williston.

The strong Williston Seminary team will meet the Monson Academy team to-morrow afternoon in Monson. Williston is well known throughout New England on account of the strength of its athletic teams, and judging from the way it has started the season this year's baseball team is capable of upholding the athletic prestige of the school. There are several veterans on the team and a number of new men who have made reputations elsewhere in previous years. The Monson Academy team has started out in a way which shows that it is capable of playing first-class ball by winning two of the three games played thus far, losing to Springfield High by the score of 3 to 2. All of the men are playing their positions in fine shape. Captain Bowker is showing up strongly at second, and L. Fusté, the Cuban midget who leads the team in batting, is covering plenty of ground in the field Elliott, the mainstay of the box, has proved his ability to keep the hits few and scattered. He will twirl on Saturday Monson people are especially fortunate in having an opportunity to see this game as this is the only preparatory school game that Williston plays away from home. All who attend are sure of seeing a "gilt edge" game.

First Annual Ball.

For the first time the people of Monson and surrounding towns who are interested in music and dancing will have the rare treat of hearing the famous McEnell y's singing orchestra of Milford. It was with much difficulty that the Monson Basket Ball Association arranged to have these fine musicians present in Memorial Hall next Tuesday evening at their first annual concert and ball. The committee in charge of the affair are: Thomas Durkin, Luke F. Moran, Edward A. Hanley, Frank L. O'Brien, Howard Giffin, Charles F. Osborne and Edward F. Faulkner. The fact that a large number will attend is shown by the advance sale of tickets. Reserved seats may be obtained at Bradway's news room. The concert will begin at 8 o'clock and the grand march at 9 o'clock

Selectmen Grant Licenses.

The annual meeting of the selectmen for the granting of licenses was held in their room in Memorial Hall last evening. It was voted to charge $1200 for first class licenses, which together with Innholders' licenses, were granted to James F. Dunn at the Monson House, George T. Hagerty & Co. at the Gilmore House and Fisk G. Rogers at the Century House It was decided to charge $900 for a fourth class license, the granting of which was deferred until to-night.

Arthur L. Noyes has resumed his position as superintendent of the water works after an illness of two months.

Frank Lippsett, who has been visiting at the home of E. D. Rees on Main street, has returned to his home in Woburn.

Luke W. Closson has returned from the Wesson memorial hospital in Springfield, where he has been for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs W. A. Needham have returned from Baltimore, Md., where they have been visiting their son, Harry.

Rev. Abram Conklin of the Universalist church will exchange pulpits with Rev. O S. Raspe of Palmer Sunday morning

H M Barlow has resigned his position as janitor of the Memorial Town Hall and has been succeeded by R A. Beckwith.

John Costello, who has been visiting his brother, Thomas Costello on Hampden avenue, has returned to his home in Boston

Prof Harry Alger, who has been the guest of Henry N. Flynt on High street, has returned to his home in Providence, R. I.

Charles Moore of Hampden avenue has returned from Huntington, where he has been doing guard duty for the Huntington Mfg. Co

Mr. and Mrs. Geoffry T Gough have returned from their wedding trip, and are residing at their newly furnished home on Pleasant street.

Miss Mary Cahill of Southbridge, Mrs. John Avery of Chicopee Falls and Miss Alicia Greenway of Westerly, R I., are visiting Monson relatives.

The weighers of coal appointed by the selectmen at a recent meeting are Miss Elsie Alden, A. P Randall, M. N. Post, G. E Wills and C. M. Gage.

Mrs. Lyman Moulton, who has been spending several days at the home of her brother, E. D. Rees on Main street, has returned to her home in Everett.

Charles Bailey has moved his family here from Wales. He will occupy Mrs. Nellie Sullivan's house on State street.

The stand pipes for the use of the street sprinklers have been put up and the sprinkler will be put in use at once.

Rev. W. McConnell, the new pastor of the Methodist church, arrived from Fairfield, Ohio, last Saturday and conducted his first services at the church last Sunday.

Rev. Frank McConnell, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, will preach at the Silver Street chapel Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The following board of fire engineers were appointed: D. B. Needham, J. V. Colleton and M. C. Howe. They were ordered to meet and organize in No. 1 engine house next Monday evening.

They granted John Purcell a pool and bowling alley license; R. F. Bradway an undertaker's license; a motion picture license to the Roderick theater; a license to hold public entertainments at the Hasters' Athletic Assoc ation; auctioneer's license to Bert Leach. R. A. Beckwith was appointed special police officer.

Commencing Monday morning, May 1st, the local telephone exchange will handle all toll calls to Palmer, North Wilbraham, Ludlow, Ware, Hardwick, Belchertown, Warren and Brimfield, and the rate to these exchanges will be reduced to 10 cents for five minutes conversation. The rate to Palmer will be the same as at present, five cents for five minutes conversation.

Officer W. J. McDonald has been on the lookout this week for a man giving the name of Matherson, who was trying to raffle a watch. He claimed to be in poor health and wished to secure sufficient funds to get to California. The fact that aroused the indignation of the people around town is that there is a man in Monson by the name of Matherson, who is in ill health and the stranger was claiming to be this man and on the strength of this collected quite a sum of money.

Academy Notes.

Mr. Dewing spent Sunday with friends in Boston.

The freshmen class has elected Louis Fuste to captain the class baseball team.

The bowling alleys in Holmes Gymnasium have been remodeled and now may be used by Academy students and instructors at five cents a string.

The Philomathean society will meet this evening at 7. The program follows: "Life of Scott," Miss McCray; reading, Miss Fuller; music, Miss Ellis; news items, Miss Monton; spice, Miss Foley.

The last meeting this year of the Linonhilian society will be held this evening at 7 15. The officers for next year will be elected and refreshments will be served. The debate will be, "Resolved that Congress Should Pass An Act Subsiding Our Merchant Marine." Bowker and Crankshaw will take the affirmative and Hall and Bardwell the negative.

The Academy baseball team received their first defeat of the season at the hands of the Springfield high school team in that city last Saturday. The game should have been Monson's, but poor judgment throughout the game allowed the city boys to be winners by the score of 3 to 2 Bradley, the Springfield pitcher, had the local boys swinging at everything; they seemed to have a liking for high balls, saying if they did not swing at them the umpire would call them anyway. Umpire Girard was certainly off color when he called a balk to third on Elliot, allowing Springfield to score.

The eighth division of rhetoricals were heard Wednesday morning after chapel exercises. The average mark received was 81. The program follows according to marks: Miss Ellis, "The House by the Side of the Road;" Miss Larned, "King Canute;" Nye, "Robert Emmetts' Last Speech;" Hollenbeck, selection from "The Merchant of Venice;" Nash, "The Appeal of the Missigan Indians;" Kirov, "Vindication of Mr Pitt;" Earl Taylor, selection from "The Declaration of Independence;" McCarty, "The Nightingale and the Glow Worm;" Miss Peck, "Oh Captain! My Captain!"

The Academy baseball team took a good fall out of the Warren high boys Wednesday afternoon on Sullivan's field, 15 to 2. Borgeson, a new man, was tried in the box and after the first inning, when he allowed three hits, the visitors were able to get but three singles, while he fanned seven Fusie clouted out a timely two-bagger in the first, after which Smith and Bowker were allowed to walk. With the aid of Francis' sacrifice and a triple steal, the three men came over for a run. In the second, after being walked, Fuste scored on Smith's two bagger Dunbar was also on Bowker's single walked and came in on a wild throw In the third Davis became wild, hitting two men and allowing three baogies off his delivery, resulting in four runs for the home team Francis opened the fourth with a pretty two-bagger and came home on Dunsford's sacrifice, Dunbar and Entwistle following scored on errors. In the last half of the game the Acad-mites let up, Francis in the fifth and Rourke in the eighth, being the only ones to score. For the visitors, Sullivan knocked out a single and came in on Torque's hit In the seventh Edson was walked and also scored on Sullivan's hit

GIVING OUT.

The Struggle Discourages Many a Citizen Of Palmer.

Around all day with aching back;
Can't rest at night;
Enough to make any one "give out."
Doan's Kidney Pills will give renewed life.
They will cure the backache;
Cure every kidney ill.
Here is Palmer proof that this is so:

Mrs. Julia Dewey, School St., Palmer, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for some time and judging from my experience, I feel that this remedy cannot be praised too highly. My work is very hard on my back and at times I suffered from acute attacks of backache. These were accompanied by severe headaches and dizzy spells and at night I was subject to chills. When suffering in that way, Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Lynde & Gould's Drug Store, have never failed to bring relief. I have never heard of an instance where this remedy did not live up to representations."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—DOAN'S—and take no other.

When a medicine must be given to young children it should be pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is made from loaf sugar, and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it pleasant to take. It has no superior for colds, croup and whooping cough. For sale by all dealers

ROYAL Baking Powder
Absolutely Pure

The Only Baking Powder Made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar.

Safeguards the food against alum.

Chemists' tests have shown that a part of the alum from biscuit made with an alum baking powder passes into the stomach, and that digestion is retarded thereby.

Read the label and make sure that your baking powder is not made from alum.

The Doctor's Question

Much Sickness Due to Bowel Disorders.

A doctor's first question when consulted by a patient is, "Are your bowels regular?" He knows that 98 per cent illness is attended with inactive bowels and torpid liver, and that this condition must be removed gently and thoroughly before health can be restored.

Rexall Orderlies are a positive, pleasant and safe remedy for constipation and bowel disorders in general. We are so certain of their great curative value that we promise to return the purchaser's money in every case where they fail to produce entire satisfaction.

Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy, they act quietly, and have a soothing, strengthening, healing influence on the entire intestinal tract. They do not purge, gripe, cause nausea, flatulence, excessive looseness, diarrhoea or other annoying effect. They are especially good for children, weak persons or old folks. Two sizes, 25c and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Lynde & Gould, Palmer.

Boy Gets Bad Tumble.

Milton P. Willis, son of Mr. and Mrs. H E. Willis of Springfield street, while taking a bicycle ride to Palmer Tuesday afternoon fell from the railroad bridge near the Farrell place to the highway below a distance of about 15 feet. He, with other companions, were riding beside the Central Vermont track and got off their wheels to walk across the bridge. In falling he landed on his wheel, striking his face with great force upon the handle bars, cutting a bad gash on his face and knocking out one tooth. He was unconscious for some time. Dr. S. O. Miller was summoned at once taking him to his home, where he was cared for, several stitches being taken to close the wound in the face. He is resting comfortably and a speedy recovery is hoped for although the extent of his injuries cannot be determined at present.

Rev. W. Lenz Transferred to Easthampton.

Rev. W. Lenz, pastor of the Church of St. Peter and Paul at Four Corners, has been transferred to the parish in Easthampton, and left Three Rivers Monday for his new pastorate. The Polish church at Four Corners was built about eight years ago and has been under the supervision of Father Lenz, who has been its pastor since it was established. There has been a division in the congregation, regarding financial matters, for some time. Fr Lenz came to Three Rivers 10 years ago, and has made many friends among the Protestant, as well as the Catholic people, who regret his removal from town. He is succeeded by Fr Kalesanaky of Ludlow.

Excellent Fire Drill.

The board of fire engineers of Palmer visited the grammar school building Tuesday afternoon and called out the children for practice in fire drill. The building was emptied quickly and in good order. There are 281 pupils in the building, and the doors were cleared and the pupils were well away from the building in 40 seconds. However, unsatisfactory conditions were found in the building, as some of the doors into the rooms open inward and the only place from which the alarm can be sounded is from the room of the principal, at her desk. The alarm should be rung from the hall and the doors should all swing outward.

Death of Simon Porada.

Simon Porada, who was taken to the House of Mercy hospital a short time ago for treatment, died at that institution last Sunday evening. Mr Parada came to this country from Poland about a month ago and had since been living in the Hastings' block on the Palmer road. He has a cousin, Joseph Porada, living here, also a daughter, Apolonija Porada, living in Bayonne, N. J., who was sent for. Undertaker Belanger went to Springfield Monday and brought the body to Three Rivers, where funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon. Burial was in the St. Anne cemetery.

BONDSVILLE.

Death of Mrs. Thomas Waterhouse.

Mrs Thomas Waterhouse, 48, died very suddenly at her home, 25 Hall street, Springfield, about noon Monday. Mrs. Waterhouse was until recently for 21 years a resident of Bondsville, and her death comes as a great shock to the community and her many friends here.

Lillian Scofield Waterhouse was born in Sheffield, England, and was married at the age of 19 to Thomas Waterhouse, coming almost immediately to this country with her husband. They made their first home in Lowell, where they lived for nine years; they then came to Bondsville, and for 21 years resided here. Mr. Waterhouse, who was an overseer for the Boston Duck Co., resigned his position a year ago and went on a farm in Monson; about a month ago they went to a new home in Springfield. A week after they went there Mrs Waterhouse had a shock, which, though severe at the time, she rallied from and great hopes were felt of a speedy recovery; later she was seized with a third, which proved fatal. Many years ago she had a shock, which for several months paralyzed one side, but from which she had entirely recovered.

Mrs. Waterhouse will long be remembered by her neighbors and friends as a kind and sympathetic friend in times of sickness, at which times she was ever read to assist in any way she could. She was a valuable member of the Ladies' Aid Society for many years, ever willing to do her part towards its maintenance. She leaves a husband and one son, Thomas Jr., who is the only child remaining of six; he is a resident of this village She also leaves a sister, Mrs. Arthur Ingham of Philadelphia, Pa.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon in the Methodist church, and was largely attended Rev. W. H. Upham officiated. Miss Blanche Upham of Three Rivers sang two selections The bearers were: Edward Sharratt, Adalard Marsan, Rowland McFarland, Arthur Hague, Lewis Holden and Charles Holden. Burial was in the family lot in the cemetery at Four Corners. The floral tributes were very beautiful.

"Billy" Bruce of Palmer

An Easter Romance

By I. S. Browne

In a Palmer home, not long ago,
Sat "Billy" Bruce and Annie Snow.
She was fair as the summer skies,
While on this lad there were "no flies."
And thus it was our hero "Bill"
"Popped the question," as lovers will.
When she replied: "If you'll agree
To provide a Home for you and me,
On Easter Sunday, one year from now,
We'll consummate the marriage vow."
And "Billy," being a lad of muscle,
Pulled off his coat and began to hustle,
And, spurred by love and being fortunate,
His gains began to accumulate.
He had plenty of pluck, let no one doubt it,
And this is how he went about it:

With the money he, in time, had got,
Of George Ezekiel he bought a Lot.
Here he planned, and planned right well,
That in beautiful Palmer he would dwell,
"No paying Rent for me," said he,
"No Landlord hossing over me—
I'll have a Home my own to call"—
A lesson which applies to all—
After which the Deed was Drawn
And the Lot was his, ere another dawn.
Ezekiel, to-day, is offering nice
Houses and Lots at a Moderate Price,
And should one have a Farm for Sale,
To see this man he should not fail,
And he'll act for you in a manner just
For Ezekiel is one whom you can trust.

His House was Built, in manner neat,
By F. L Jones, 36 Park Street,
And never was a House Built better;
Each Plan carried out to the very letter,
From the Cellar to the very Dome.
It was, indeed, a Model Home,
For whenever Jones a Contract takes
He has no time to make mistakes,
Go take a walk, Palmer around,
On many streets there will be found
Noble Buildings of his Erection,
To which he invites your inspection,
And you may search where ere you will,
No one can better fill the bill.
One of his Specialties, I would state,
Is Ornamental Roofing done in slate.

The Painting and Paper Hanging was done
By the firm of Geo. A. Authier & Son,
A firm well known for miles around,
None better as our hero found.
Wall Paper of the Highest Grade,
Paints that the sun will never fade;
Decorating a special feature—
An art in which they need no teacher.
Employees, all of whom are skilled.
Guaranteeing every Contract filled.
Now bear in mind this simple fact
And then on my suggestion act:
When you want Painting or Paper Hanging done,
Remember Geo. A. Authier & Son.

To William Porter he gave his trade
For Furniture of the Highest Grade.
Oil Cloth, Linoleums and Art Squares,
Carpets for both Rooms and Stairs,
Shades and Draperies and allthose things
Known to the trade as "Furnishings."
In Furniture, everything that's new,
Kitchen Ware and Crockery, too,
Side Boards, Dressers, or a Chiffonier,
Mattresses, by no means dear,
Glenwood Ranges and Conch Beds,
Tete-a-tetes for Newly Weds,
All delivered to his door
From Wm. Porter's Furniture Store.
Three Rivers.

As on Thorndike Street he chanced to stroll,
Of F. J. Hamilton he bought his Coal,
The Quality of which he found
A No. 1 in every pound.
Carefully Screened and free from Slate,
Chestnut, Stove, Egg or Grate,
Put in his cellar without fuss,
Where oftentimes men make a muss.
Here, too, our Hero brought well-seasoned wood,
Sawed and Split, Quality good:
"No better Fuel," said Mr. Bruce,
"Have I ever found for Summer use."
So kindly remember, everyone,
Coal and Wood is sold by Hamilton!

To Move his Piano whom should he see
But the Palmer Trucking Company,
Who Delivered it safely from the car
To his Parlor without a scratch or mar.
This Company has 20 Horses, I'd say,
In active employment to-day.
Moving everything with greatest care
For Anyone, Anytime, Anywhere!
Light and Heavy Express they do,
Agents for Electric Express Co., too.
They Deal in Pure Spring Water Ice,
Wholesale and Retail at Moderate Price,
Delivered in quantities, less or more,
To Hotel, Residence or Store.
For further particulars I refer
You to F. McHatton, Manager.

"And now," said he, "to make secure,
With Clough & Record I'll insure,"
And a Policy was there obtained
On his Dwelling and all that it contained.
Clough & Record, be it understood,
Represent in Insurance all that's good.
Promptness being their one Great Aim
In meeting the Policy Holder's Claim.
It seems incredible to think
That from being insured one should shrink
When the cost is Little, but the Risk so Great.
Why then, I ask, should one hesitate?
So, if from Loss you'd be Secured,
Go to Clough & Record and be Insured.

Our Hero next insured his Life
For Protection of his future Wife.
Before doing so he carefully sought
Where the best insurance could be bought.
Among numerous inquiries in his quest,
All pronounced "The Travelers" the Best.
George Ezekiel, whom I now introduce,
Wrote the Policy for Mr. Bruce,
Including both Life and Accident,
Which was Money, both declared, well spent.
Mr. Ezekiel has the District Agency
Of The Travelers Insurance Company.
Your attention also he invites
To Surety Bonds, which he writes.
Liability Insurance, too, I'd state,
All in Companies strictly up to date!

To the Wedding next they wend their way,
Mrs. Bruce, to be, in Bride array,
While Billy wears a Brand New Suit
From Geo. F. Emmons; 'twas indeed a "beaut."
No one can show a better line
Than Emmons, the Tailor of Suitings fine.
And when it comes to Fit and Style
He's got all Rivals beat a mile!
Stylish Business Suits for men,
Full Dress for the "upper ten,"
Embodying all the Tailor's Art,
So when one's Dressed he looks the part.
Also Furnishings, Hats and Neckwear neat,
All at Geo. F. Emmons' on Main Street.

The Stylish Shoes this Couple wore
Came from Ellithorpe, the Shoe Man's Store,
Where Fit and Comfort, too, as well,
Are found in every l'air he'll sell.
If you want the Shoe that satisfies,
If you want the Shoe that gratifies,
That has the Style, that has the Wear,
Where Quality is always there,
A Shoe that "Stands Up" every day,
A Perfect Shoe in every way.
There's just One Place for you to go—
A place I'd have you All to know.
So pin this statement in your hat;
Ellithorpe For Shoes! Remember that!

Choice Floral Gifts perfumed the air,
Purchased at Royce's Green House fair.
Did Royce's Green House you ever visit?
If not, dear reader, do not miss it.
Summer or Winter here one finds
Floral Specimens of various kinds,
And Rare Designs he'll make for you,
Introducing features new,
For all get their Floral Offerings here
For Birthdays, Weddings and, also, the Bier.
Cut Flowers and Bulbs you here will find
To suit the most fastidious mind.
So don't forget, when this you read,
To visit Royce when in need.

Then T. F. Edmonds, at his best,
Performed the Catering for each guest,
And they all declared that his Ice Cream
Was like unto a heavenly dream.
Edmonds provided the Wedding Cake,
Which, by the way, was his Own Make,
For all which applies to the Bakers' trade,
Which he has to sell is all Home Made,
Whether Cookies, Doughnuts, Cakes or Pies,
And guaranteed to him who buys.
Mr. Edmonds conducts a Dining Room, neat,
And the Meals he serves cannot be beat.
Here 25 cents will procure for you
An Elegant Breakfast or a Supper, too,
While 35 cents will buy a Dinner
Which you might well pronounce a winner.

Cigars now followed, to each male guest,
William Gale's very Best,
For no better Cigar was ever made
Than Gale is offering to his trade.
Here, Smokers' Articles you will find
To suit the most particular mind,
For everything in Gale's you see
Bears the stamp of Quality.
Special Pipe Mixtures here are made,
And Pipes are sold of every grade,
From a Meerschamm Pipe to a Cigarette.
All needed things you here can get,
So if you're a Smoker do not fail
To make the acquaintance of "Billy" Gale.

To consummate their happy Marriage,
Twiss furnished the Bridal Carriage,
And with "God Speed," from many a lip,
They started on their Wedding Trip.
Here is a Livery that's up to date!
No Played Out Nags the crows to bait,
For Frank K. Twiss has too much pride
To work Poor Rigs on them that Ride,
And when you go a Team to Hire,
If a competent Driver you require,
You'll always find him here on hand,
Obedient to your command.
The Best that's going, and that's no fable,
Are the Rigs from Twiss' Livery Stable.

* * * * * * *

A mouth has passed, in rol's the train,
Mr. Bruce and wife are Home again.
Said Mrs. Bruce, "do you not know
Of a Market quoting Prices Low,
Where Cash will buy the Best of Meat?"
"'Tis Thompson's Market, on Main Street."
If Meat is high, 'tis a reason why
At Thompson's Market all should buy.
Here you'll find the sweetest Ham,
Corn-fed Pork and Tender Lamb,
Roasts and Loins, Chops and Steak,
Poultry, to Fricassee, or Bake.
The best of Coffees and of Teas,
Also Canned Goods and of Cheese,
Vegetables, fresh as morning dew
And Courteous Clerks to wait on you
And Free Delivery to your Door!
What need have I to tell you more.

The Mrs. Bruce from Stimulants shrank,
Good Temperance Drinks she often Drank,
So they always kept, to treat a guest,
An assortment of Charles Burns' best.
Who is Burns? Well, I'll tell you:—
He is just the man to sell you
Ginger Ale, Birch Beer and Vanilla,
Lemon Sour, Soda, Sarsaparilla,
Champagne Cider and Iron Brew,
Blood Orange, Coffee, Strawberry, too,
Sherbet, Root Beer, Orange Phosphate,
Peach Mellow, also Chocolate,
Plain and Cream Soda, Nerve Tonic, too,
And Seltzer, Bottled and Delivered to you.

"Jim" Summers, it was agreed,
Should Forge the Shoes for his Noble Steed,
Mr. Summers, I would state,
Is a Horse Shoer, thoroughly up to date!
Having a Practical Knowledge of Horses' Feet,
Thus Guaranteeing Work that's neat.
Not only this, he Builds Wagons, too,
In a manner that'll appeal to you.
Makes a Specialty of Fine Repairing, and
His Work's the kind that long will stand.
So for all I've mentioned, when in need
Of a Wagon, or one to Shoe your Steed,
When you want Good Work, done Prompt and neat,
Call on "Jim" Summers, Thorndike Street.

Mr. Bruce, in time, has prosperous grown,
The result of which is herein shown,
For an Automobile next he buys
From Geo. S. Holden, 'twas indeed a prize!
Mr. Holden is Agent for the Ford,
For which I'd like to say a word,
For this Automobile has a name
Second to none in the world of fame!
And when you consider the price of it,
At Eight Hundred Dollars, you've made a hit!
Now, if like our hero you'd win a prize,
Then Geo. S. Holden patronize.
Thus in prosperous lines we leave our friends,
Long may they live, our Story ends.

MY DAUGHTER WAS CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"I send you herewith the picture of my fifteen year old daughter Alice, who was restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was pale, with dark circles under her eyes, weak and irritable. Two different doctors treated her and called it Green Sickness, but she grew worse all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking three bottles she has regained her health, thanks to your medicine. I can recommend it for all female troubles."—Mrs. L. A. Corkran, 1103 Rutland Street, Baltimore, Md.

Thousands of such letters as the above ought to give women confidence in the virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It certainly has done a world of good among the women of America.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take immediate action and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by its use.

Surely this is an honest, tried and true remedy. m

90TH BIRTHDAY TUESDAY.

Mrs. E. Brown of North Main Street Receives.

FRIENDS TENDER CONGRATULATIONS.

Many Call During Day and Evening, and Leave Numerous Reminders Of Event.

Mrs. Mary A. Brown celebrated her 90th birthday Tuesday at her home on North Main street, when she received calls and congratulations from a large number of friends from Palmer and elsewhere. She received numerous remembrances of the occasion. Light refreshments were served by her granddaughter, Miss Mollie Barton, and by Miss Frances Chandler. The house was prettily decorated with cut flowers of various kinds, many of them being gifts from friends.

Mrs Brown was born in Belchertown May 2, 1821, the youngest of seven children of Chester and Anna Rice Allen. All the children lived to be more than 80. She was married to Ebenezer Brown in Ware December 16, 1845, and they went to Salem, where Mr. Brown was employed by a wholesale dry goods firm for a year, after which he came to Palmer.

During Mrs. Brown's residence of 65 years in town she has been prominent in the social life until her health began to fail a few years ago. In her younger days she was a singer of considerable ability and sang in the choir of the Congregational church, of which she has been an active member for many years. She has always been affiliated with the church societies and has taken an active part in the benevolent and missionary work.

Wales Woman's Will Contested.

Son and Two Daughters Unsatisfied With Terms of Document.

After a hearing in the probate court in Springfield last Friday, Judge Charles L. Long allowed the will of Mrs Mary E. Royce, who died in Wales on February 25, leaving all but $100 of her $3000 estate to be divided equally among her three daughters, Mrs. Ida M. Squier, Mrs. Rosa V Cooke and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Heck, all of Wales. She gave $100 to her son, A. J. Royce of Wales, and cut off her fourth daughter, Mrs. Julia Belcher of Stafford, Ct. The will is being contested by Mr Royce and his two sisters, Mrs. Heck and Mrs. Belcher. The peculiar feature in the case is that Mrs Heck gets one-third of the estate, amounting to over $900, by the provisions of the will, but if the will is broken she would get only one-fifth, amounting to $600, yet she joined the sister and brother in asking that the will be disallowed. Judge Long appointed the other two sisters the executrices of the will. The contestants waived their right to be heard, and gave notice that they would appeal, as they want the case to be tried before a jury. Mrs. Royce was 89 years old at the time of her death, and she had been totally deaf and nearly blind for many years. The contestants allege undue influence on the part of the other two sisters as the reason for opposing the will Gardner & Gardner appeared for the will, and Speilman & Speilman appeared for the contestants.

The list of grand jurors from this section who reported for duty Monday morning is as follows: Miner H. Corbin of Brimfield; James M. Smith of Ludlow; Harry T. Bishop of Thorndike; Frederick A. Blodgett of Wilbraham.

Belchertown Pastor Contests Dismissal.

Rev. M. H. Fishburn made the startling announcement to the parishioners of the Congregational church in Belchertown Sunday morning that the parish vote dismissing him was illegal and that he should not recognize it. The parish at its annual meeting Monday evening voted not to reengage Mr. Fishburn for another year. He stated Sunday morning from the pulpit that the meeting of the parish was entirely illegal and out of order, basing his contention upon clauses in the Congregational manual, which say that the calling and dismissal of a pastor was a prerogative of the church body, wherefore Mr. Fishburn assumes that the parish body was out of its legal province in taking action to dismiss him. In regard to Mr. Fishburn's dismissal the people of the parish simply state that they felt it was time for a change to be made. The parish officers believe that their action in voting not to engage him for another year will stand the test of legality according to Congregational policy because of the fact that Mr. Fishburn was never formally installed as pastor of the church, having simply been hired from year to year by the parish. Mr. Fishburn has been in charge of the church at Belchertown for the past two years. He was paid $800 a year and given the use of the parsonage. His children are all self-supporting and the salary was considered adequate to meet his needs in Belchertown. The salary has been paid by the parish.

Ware Foresters Hold Class Initiation.

All Saints' court, Massachusetts Catholic order of Foresters of Ware, held a class initiation of officers Sunday afternoon in the town hall, in Ware, at which time 25 new members were received into the society. P. J. McCarty of Springfield, deputy high chief ranger, was present and addressed the assembly. District Deputy Culiane of Springfield also gave an address. The degree work was under the Tony degree team of Springfield, assisted by their own orchestra. Representatives were present from John J. Leonard, Father Sherry and St. Valerian courts of Springfield, Wiseman court of Monson and John Barnes court of Wheelwright. William Rohan catered. The committee of arrangements was made up of Andrew Campion, C. R.; Daniel Campion, V. C. R.; Miss Annie Hurley, secretary; Miss Mary Dugan, recording secretary; Miss Margaret O'Brien, treasurer; Mrs. Annie Shea, S. C.; Miss Mayme Shea, J. C.; James H. Feehan, J. S.; Tobias Roach, D. S. There were over 400 present.

Ware's 150th Anniversary.

Committees Which Will Have Charge of a Long List of Events.

The general executive committee for the arrangement of the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the town of Ware, consisting of H. K. Hyde, J. H. G Clark, E. P. Morse, James E. Clark and F. D. Gilmore, announce the following subcommittees:

Invitation—H. M. Coney, chairman; George S. Marsh, Henry B. Anderson, Amable Gareau, Owen H. McArdle.

Decoration—Henry O. Robinson, chairman; Paul R. Bridgman, Henry F. Lamonreux, David Woolley, E. J. Brannigan.

Parade and music—Minot C. Wood, chairman; C. B. Wetherby, Herbert W. Sibley, J. A. Plouff, J. W. Clark, Jr.

Dinner—F. M. Sibley, chairman; C. W. Booth, S. W. Coe, P. Durand, William Rohan.

Sports—Bernard W. Southworth, chairman; J. M. Reilley, W. C. Lincoln, W. E Smith, L. A. Bassett, Ulric Bonchard.

Loan—George E. Tucker, chairman; Mrs. J. H. G. Gilbert, Miss Mary S Root, T. P. Studd, John B. Hitchcock.

Fireworks—Charles E Stevens, chairman; William N. Newcomb, E. D. Howard, P. W. Reilley, John H. Connor.

Public comfort—D M Ryan, chairman; M. W. Pearson, H P. Cummings, Miss Elizabeth Byrns, Miss M. E Dennen.

Transportation—John J. Kidgell, chairman; E. J. Curtin, P. O. L'Heureux, D E. Pepin, W. L MacMenimen.

Publicity—R E. Capron, chairman; A. H. Eldredge, J. G. Lincoln, E M. Mallionx, James Keefe, George W. Dillon, William E. McGurgan.

The sports committee are planning something somewhat different from anything that has ever been attempted at Ware in that it is proposed to make a canoe regatta the main feature of this branch of activity. There will be five classes and entries are expected from several prominent canoe clubs. There will also be a purely local boat race, and on land there will be a 100-yards dash for high schools and other events not yet fully decided upon. The transportation committee has practically made arrangements for a special train to Coldbrook and will endeavor to see to it that both the steam and electric railways make arrangements to make it easy for people to enter and leave town on that day.

Unknown Man Killed.

Found on Track of B. and A. Road Sunday. About 23 Years Old.

The body of a man was found near Blanchardville Sunday morning by the men on the paper train arriving in Palmer at 5.36. It was brought to the station and Medical Examiner J. P. Schneider notified. The body was that of a man apparently about 23 years old, but was so mutilated as to be unrecognizable. There were no marks of identification. It is supposed that the man was walking on the tracks and was struck by some train during the night. The body remained unidentified and was buried by the authorities yesterday.

"The Chocolate Soldier" at Springfield Next Week.

A rare treat is in store next week for theatregoers in "The Chocolate Soldier," which comes to the Court Square Theatre in Springfield for three nights, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with matinee Wednesday. Unlike many comic operas of later-day fame, the popularity of which hangs upon a single melody, "The Chocolate Soldier" is credited with being possessed of an abundance of good things, and the interest already evidenced in the fascinating music of Oscar Straus with a full choir of wood and brass strings enough to generously balance the vocal efforts of a great company, promises capacity audiences during its engagement here.

The quaint humor of George Bernard Shaw's famous story has given opportunity for an unusual range of theme development, and as the music becomes the voice of drama when Alexius repudiates Nadina, so does it cause the fancy to dance with it in its lighter moods in much the same way as "Der Meister-Singer" with which "The Chocolate Soldier" has so often been likened.

Superior Court Entries.

Among the cases entered in the superior court in Springfield this week were the following from this vicinity:

Actions of contract—Adam Dymon against Julia Picard, both of Ludlow, $94, on account; Robert Weiner against Julia S. Picard, both of Ludlow, $103 68 on account; Arthur W. Holbrook of Palmer against Peter A. Gandiette of Worcester and George Steen of Hopkinton, $3000 on a promissory note; Walter T. Bugbee of Springfield against Mary M. Shaw of Wales, $79 on a promissory note; A. F and R. E. Ballard of Hampden against Charles A. Nasch of Springfield $37 48 on an account; George M. Atkins of Palmer against Charles S. Ballard of Springfield and Marguerite K Newell of Longmeadow, $305, on six promissory notes.

Tort—Sarah E. Felnberg of Ware against Springfield street railway company, $3000 for alleged personal injuries.

First Mass in Belchertown Celebrated.

The first Roman Catholic mass ever celebrated in Belchertown was held in the town hall in that place Sunday morning, about 75 people being present. Rev. Thomas Kennedy of Bondsville was the celebrant. If it is found that there are enough people of the faith in Belchertown it is probable that a parish will be created by the bishop and a church erected.

AUTO BUMPS CABOOSE.

Tries To Push It Off Track at Three Rivers.

THREE PEOPLE MORE OR LESS HURT.

But None Seriously. Track Hidden by Building, Cause of the Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Shaw and Bert Fellows, all of Belchertown, narrowly escaped being killed in an automobile accident which occurred in Three Rivers Sunday afternoon at 5 30. The machine in which they were riding collided with a caboose on the Athol road near the station. Both men received painful injuries, while Mrs. Shaw was severely bruised. The front of the machine was badly battered and was taken to the factory for repairs. Mr. Shaw had owned the machine only a few days.

The automobile was headed in the direction of Belchertown when the accident occurred, the party having been in Springfield. The railroad track was hidden from view by Wilson's store and before the automobilists were aware of the fact their machine was running against the side of the caboose, which the locomotive was pushing down the track from Barrett's Junction. The three occupants were thrown from the machine. They were removed to the home of Dr. C H. Giroux, who found that Mr Shaw had sustained a broken collarbone and a broken rib; Mr. Fellows sustained a broken leg, while Mrs Shaw was severely shaken up and bruised. A large touring car soon came from Belchertown with their family physician, Dr. James Collard, who took them to their home, where they were cared for.

Guardianships decreed in the estates of—Mabel S Woodard, minor, of Hampden, Frank E Woodard of Hampden guardian.

Accounts allowed in the estate of B. A. Day, late of Monson.

Death of Former Holland Resident.

William S. Wallace, 85, a native and former long-time resident of the town of Holland, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. E. Janes, in Springfield Monday morning. He resided in Holland for nearly 50 years, and was one of the old New England stock, whose sterling character gave him a large influence in the eastern part of this county. He was married in Holland to Miss Miss Macilva Perry, a school teacher, and 10 children were born to them. They removed 15 years ago to Springfield, where Mrs. Wallace died three years later. It is remarkable that all his children, six sons and four daughters survive him. The funeral was held Wednesday from the home of Mrs Janes in Springfield.

Arrested for Assaulting Wife.

Joseph Pelewicz of Ludlow, who was arrested April 22 for assault on his wife and whose case was continued until this week for trial on account of his victim being too ill to appear, was brought before Trial Justice Birnie Tuesday morning. Mrs. Pelewicz, who had been at the Ludlow hospital for 10 days as the result of the injuries received, was brought to the court room from the hospital. She testified that her husband had beaten her with a heavy leather belt which he wore and the examination at the hospital by the physician sustained her testimony. Justice Birnie sentenced Pelewicz to 90 days in the county jail and he was taken there Tuesday morning by Sheriff Hall E Storer of Ludlow.

Switchman Loses Arm at North Wilbraham.

While at work Tuesday in the yards of the Cutler Company in North Wilbraham, Carl Borgwandt of West Springfield, one of the crew of the switching engine, was caught between the couplers of two box cars and his left arm severed between the elbow and wrist. It is not certain how the accident happened. The forearm was crushed nearly off, being held only by a thread of flesh. Employes of the mill heard the injured man's calls for help and assisted him to the mill, and an attempt made to stop the flow of blood. A doctor was summoned, but before his arrival the man was placed in the caboose and hurried to Springfield, where he was removed to a hospital.

Incendiary Fire at Ludlow.

A serious fire was narrowly averted in Ludlow Tuesday. When one of the assessors of that town went to the town sheds to feed his horse at noon, he discovered a blaze just starting in one corner of one of the sheds. A large pile of waste material had been placed against one of the dry posts and set on fire, probably by boys, who spend much time in and around the sheds. The posts and sides of the shed had not caught when discovered and the blaze was quickly put out with an extinguisher. If it had burned a few minutes more it would have reached the roof and probably spread to Burr's woodyard and grain store, which are close by.

EAST BRIMFIELD.

Mrs. Herbert Whiting was removed Monday to the Springfield hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Grace Titcomb, a former principal of the grammar school at North Wilbraham, but now of Medway, has been visiting friends in town.

There will be an old folks' concert in Grace Union church this evening, to be given by Wilbur Miller of Ludlow. The proceeds will go to the church.

Springfield Music Festival.

Brilliant Concerts Are Promised With a Strong List of Artists.

Plans are now complete for the Springfield Music Festival, to be held at Court Square theater, Friday and Saturday, May 12 and 13, with public rehearsals Friday morning and Saturday morning, and afternoon and evening concerts both days. The festival will open with the concert Friday afternoon by the Boston Festival orchestra under the leadership of Emil Mollenhauer. The soloist for this opening concert will be Mlle. Yolanda Mero, the delightful Hungarian pianist.

Friday evening will come the chief choral work of the festival, the rendering of "Elijah" by the full chorus and the best soloists ever engaged in Springfield for this splendid oratorio. The singers for these solo parts are, Mme. Corinne Rider-Kelsey, acknowledged to be the foremost soprano now singing in oratorio; Miss Pearl Benedict, contralto, a New York choir singer of wide reputation; Daniel Beddoe, the splendid Welsh tenor now conceded to be one of the best tenors in the country, and Claude Cunningham, baritone, who will complete this remarkable quartet. Mr. Cunningham has never sung at a Springfield festival but he has appeared with many of the leading choral societies of the country with great distinction.

Saturday afternoon comes the second orchestral concert with the appearance of Miss Kathleen Barlow, the remarkable young Canadian violinist, who is the sensation of the year in music circles. Saturday afternoon concert will be one of the greatest attractions of the entire festival.

The festival will come to a brilliant close Saturday evening with Mme. Louise Homer, prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, as the bright particular star. Mme. Homer will sing two of her most famous arias, and the other soloists of the evening will be Miss Josephine Knight, soprano, and Lambert Murphy, the Springfield boy whom the festival honored last year, and who proved himself the possessor of a magnificent voice and exceptional musical training. The Saturday evening concert will close with the choral number, Gounod's cantata "Gallia," with full chorus and orchestra, and Miss Knight as soloist.

The chorus this year, under Mr. Bishop, is the largest that has ever sung for the Springfield festival in recent years, numbering nearly 300 voices.

The season tickets are on sale at Otto Baab's Music House.

HAMPDEN.

The annual meeting of the Congregational churches was held recently and the following officers elected: Clerk and Sunday school superintendent, A. B Newell; treasurer, H. H. Thresher; deacons, for three years, A. P. Newell and John N. Isham. The report of the treasurer showed the total of the benevolences of the year to have been $87 53.

BRIMFIELD.

Death of Mrs. William L. Daniels.

Mrs Cornelia (Dunham) Daniels, 60, wife of William L. Daniels, died at her home in Brimfield Monday morning of heart failure, following pneumonia, from an attack of which she had recovered sufficiently to go out of doors about a week ago. Last week Tuesday she suffered a relapse and there had been little hope of recovery since that time on account of weakness of the heart. Mrs. Daniels was Miss Cornelia Dunham, the daughter of Roswell and Mary (Cronch) Dunham, and was born in Brimfield March 25, 1851. She was twice married, her first husband being Bryant Durant of Brimfield, of which union there were three children, the eldest, Henry, having died some years ago. Her second marriage was to William L. Daniels in 1879. Besides her husband, she leaves three children, Lewis Durant of Southbridge, Mrs. Lilian Durant Shaw, the wife of Fred C. Shaw of Springfield, and George W Daniels of Brimfield. She is also survived by two brothers, Edwin S. Dunham of Wales and Rodney Dunham of Charlton, and by one sister, Mrs. Roxanna Bacon of Brimfield. Mrs Daniels' life had been spent in Brimfield and had been one of much usefulness. She was a member of the Congregational church and of the Christian Endeavor Society. The funeral was held at the church yesterday afternoon, Rev. William Jennings officiating, and members of the church choir sang three selections. There were many beautiful flowers. The sons acted as bearers.

William Newton of Springfield has been spending several days at the home of Fred N. Lawrence.

A pleasant social was held in the church vestry Friday evening under the auspices of the Christain Endeavor Society. Supper was served, after which there were readings and music.

The Hampden Co. Congregational conference will meet in the Brimfield church next Wednesday. This is the first meeting of the conference in Brimfield, as the Brimfield church has only recently joined that body of churches. The program is one of unusual interest and prominent speakers will take part.

PALMER NEWS.

No More Packages On Cars.

Many People Inconvenienced By New Order In Effect Last Saturday.

Residents along the line of the street railway in Palmer, the villages, Monson and Brimfield, have for some time enjoyed a package service on the cars, under the Legislative act passed some time ago permitting the Springfield and Eastern company to carry small parcels and haggage on its regular passenger cars. This has been a great convenience, as parcels could be sent at almost any time of the day to places directly on the line, the company being willing to deliver parcels to stores or persons on the street, but declining to take them to houses or points away from the street.

Last Saturday this service was discontinued on orders from Springfield, and since that time nothing hut newspaper packages have been transported, much to the inconvenience of citizens. In some instances persons residing in other places trade with the markets of Palmer, ordering by phoue and having the meats sent by trolley, and there came near being meatless dinners Sunday in consequence of the new order of things, about which no advance notice was given. Druggists who have forwarded medicines by car or phone orders were at a loss how to get the goods delivered, and there was a good deal of inconvenience and not a few mild cuss words.

The new order of things is nnderstood to have resulted from a trip on a local car hy a member of the state highway commission, who found the front of the car completely fillled with bulky packages, such as never should have been shipped other than by trolley express. His report is said to have been responsible for the new rnle. Certain it is that the "small packages" which the company was permitted to handle on passenger cars have grown out of all reason in size, when there is a trolley express business over the same routes. The company has the power to regulate the size and weight of parcels which may be carried on passenger cars, and so can eliminate the trouhle along that line if it desires. The matter has heen taken up with the officials in Springfield, who have promised to look into it and see if some arrangement satisfactory to the pnblic cannot he devised.

District Nursing Meeting.

Officers Elected. Reports of Year's Work Show Much Done.

The annnal meeting of the Palmer Society for District Nnrsing was held in Memorial Hall last Friday evening. The reports of the officers showed the society to be in a flourishing condition, with a membership of 220. There have heen 10 meetings of the board of directors. The report of the district nnrse showed that she had made 112 calls, 1209 visits, with 82 paid patients and 20 charity calls. The report of the treasnrer showed the receipts to have been $1235 34 and the cost of the work to date $640.11. The balance of the year will raise this amonnt several hundred dollars. Of the receipts, $960 04 was received by gifts, $110 from membership fees, $156.95 from nurses' fees, and the halance from miscellaneons sonrces. A vote of appreciation was extended by the association to the nurse, Miss Clara M. Thnrston.

It was voted that a committee of three be appointed by the chair to revise the hylaws, and officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Ahhie J. Lawton; first vice president, Mrs. M. Louise Palmer; second vice president, Mrs. Winifred W. Bodfish; secretary, Mrs. Ellen S. Leach; treasurer, Mrs. Hattie C. Parker; directors, Mrs. L. E. Carpenter, Mrs. Michael Snllivan, Miss Genevra F. Clark, Mrs. C. K. Gamwell, Mrs. Joseph Geer, Mrs. John Donoghue. Mrs. G. S. Holden, Mrs. Bessie C. Jenks, Mrs. W. E. McDonald, Mrs. C. F. Mooers, Mrs. Cambridge Moulton, Mrs. Samuel Stewart, Mrs. J. C. Sullivan, Mrs. E. B. Taylor, Mrs. H. A. Northrop, Mrs. F. D. Thompson; advisory board, D. L. Bodfish, H. E. W. Clark, C. E. Fish, F. S. Gordon, E E Hobson, H. H. Howe, J. F. Lnman, R. C. Newell, Samnel Stewart, F. A. Upham.

The directors met Monday afternoon and discnssed plans for the coming year. It was voted to engage the present nnrse, Miss Thurston, for another year. The following committees were appointed: Finance, Mrs. W. E. McDonald, Mrs. L. E Carpenter, Mrs. J. C. Snllivan; music committee, Mrs. J. J. Donahue, Mrs. Michael R. Snllivan, Mrs. Bessie C. Jenks, Mrs. Charles F. Mooers, Mrs. Angnsta Thompson; supply committee, Mrs. H. W. Holbrook, Mrs. Samuel Stewart, Miss Genevra F. Clark, Mrs. J. H. Trickett.

Play at Opera House Monday Evening.

Sudden Change in Weather.

After four days of temperature ranging from temperate to torrid—Friday, Satnrday, Snnday and Monday—the mercury took a downward tendency Tuesday noon and kept dropping, accompanied hy a cold raw wind, nntil well into the night. As a consequence Wednesday morning was decidedly winterish, a marked contrast to the heat of the previons few days. Light snmmer garments were replaced hy warm winter ones, and furnace fires were coaxed hack to life again or started new.

Half Hour Time Saturday and Sunday.

The street railway company will give an additional service Satnrdays and Sundays, beginning to-morrow, when half-honr cars will he put on the Springfield line at 11 45 in the morning, continuing until 8 45 at night; this makes 9 45 the last half-hour car ont of Springfield on hoth nights.

WARREN.

Celebrated 25th Anniversary.

Clara Barton Relief corps celebrated the 25th anniversary of their organization Wednesday afternoon and evening. The regular meeting of the corps was held in the afternoon at 2 30 and at 6.30 a banquet was served to members and guests. Among those present were the department president, Mrs. Nellie F. Libbey of Lynn; the department inspector, Mrs. Mary A. Landt of Hyde Park; the chief of staff, Miss Annie M. Atwood of Whitman; the national patriotic instructor, Mrs Lue Stuart Wadsworth of Boston; Mrs Lavinia Carpenter, past president of the corps at Palmer; Mrs. Fannie Stone and a large delegation from Ezra Batchelder corps of North Brookfield. An address of welcome by the president, Mrs. Elmina Cutler, included a letter from Miss Clara Barton Of the 25 charter members, seven are still living and are members, Mrs Warriner Bliss, Mrs. Ellen Whiteside, Mrs. Juliette Hitchcock, Mrs. Mary E Jennings, Miss Alida Hitchcock of Warren, Mrs. Hulda White of Springfield and Mrs. Carrie P. Kelley of Holyoke. The corps at the present time has 31 members.

Death of Former Resident.

Word was received in town last Friday from Fruitland, Fla, of the death of John Wetherbee the day before. Mr. Wetherbee was born in Brookfield August 25, 1828, but had lived much of his life in Warren, where he was engaged in business with his brother under the firm name of S. & J. Wetherbee. About 30 years ago, on account of poor health, he sold out to his brother and went first to Georgia and then to Kansas, but had been for the past 25 years in Fruitland. He had devoted his time to raising oranges, and at one time was credited with sending the best fruit received in the northern market. He was married to Miss Marietta Moore, and she survives him, as well as his brother, Seth, in Warren He was next to the oldest living member of Quaboag lodge of Masons, and also its oldest living past master, which he presided over in 1865, 1866 and 1867.

Thrown From Carriage.

Walter B. Hall, superintendent of the Warren cotton mills, was thrown from his carriage near Cheney brook while driving to Warren Tuesday afternoon, and sustained a dislocation of his right arm. He was driving along the state road, when the horse suddenly stumbled and fell, and in trying to hold him up with the reins Mr. Hall was thrown over the dashboard to the ground and struck npon his right shoulder. He was taken to the office of Dr. John E Dalton, and with the assistance of Dr Charles A. Deland, the dislocation was replaced and Mr. Hall was later taken to his home in West Warren.

Runaway Accident.

There was a lively runaway on Main street late Saturday evening William Steele left his horse hitched near Charles P. Morse's store and a passing freight train scared the animal so that it broke away. The horse and buggy circled around the old hotel hnilding and livery barn, the horse being thrown once, bnt getting up and starting on; after reaching the place where he started from he made a turn around the Soldiers' Monument and started np East Main street The hugky was badly used up, the harness was somewhat hroken, hut the horse escaped with a few small cuts.

Death of Bartholomew Hurley.

Bartholomew Hurley, 46, died last Friday at his home on Ramsdell street after a long illness with tuberculosis. Mr. Hurley was born in Ireland April 15, 1865, and had lived in Warren a number of years, being employed as a weaver at the Sayles & Jenks Manufacturing Company. He leaves, besides, his widow, two daughters, Mary and Agnes. The funeral was held Monday morning in St Paul's church and burial was in St. Paul's cemetery.

The Warren Grange will observe its 20th anniversary this evening The entertainment will he in charge of the past masters and the members of the women's auxiliary will serve a banquet.

The May dinner served in the chapel of the Congregational church Tuesday was a success, and $52 was cleared The committee in charge was Mrs William L Curtis, Mrs. Ralph B Patrick, Mrs. Herbert R Barrongha, Mrs W. H Hitchcock, Mrs. George E Tarbell, Mrs. W. D. Hosley and Mrs. William F Taylor.

GIFT TO MONSON ACADEMY.

Fine Athletic Field Presented by R. P. and E. D. Cushman.

Through the generosity of Edward D. and Rufus P. Cushman, Monson Academy is to receive the gift of a fine athletic field. This field, which covers about 10 acres, is the northerly part of the meadow owned by Hon. A. D Norcross, fronting on Washington street and extending back to the river. For an athletic field the location could not be better, being less than 100 yards from the school buildings In equipment this is the only thing that Monson Academy lacked to place it on a level with the leading preparatory schools of New England, and the advance in school athletics which the Academy has taken in the past two years undoubtedly appealed to the two members of the Cushman family who have done so much for the local institution.

A baseball diamond and a football field will be made and around these will be a quarter mile cinder track. The field will be fenced in and later a large grand stand will be erected on the west end of the field for the benefit of those attending baseball games. Temporary bleachers will be put up during the football season. It is also planned to have several outdoor basketball courts and tennis courts on the new field.

The property will be formally turned over to the trustees at their annual meeting in June.

Teachers Appointed.

The school committee have made the following appointments for the coming year: Green street, grade 9, Miss Mattie M. Collis, principal, $15 per week; Green street, grade 8, Miss Cecelia Delehanty, $13; State street, primary, Miss Elizabeth McGuirs, principal, $12 50; State street grade 7, not filled; Mechanic street, grades 4 and 5, Miss Margaret T. Corcoran, principal, $13; Mechanic street, grades 5 and 6, Miss Stella M. Hodge, $12; Mechanic street, grades 2 and 3, Miss Annie C. Murphy, $12; Mechanic street, grades 1 and 2, Miss Gertrude Bennett, $11 50; No. 8 school, grades 5 and 6, Joanna Leary, $13; No 8 school, grades 4 and 5, Miss Elsie Gunn, $11 50; No. 8 school, grades 2 and 3, Miss Marion L. Tucker, $11 50; No. 8 school, grade 1, Miss Alice E Carpenter, $11; East Hill, Miss Dorothy Hill, $10 50; Childs district, Miss Eleanor M. Norton, $10 50; State Line, Miss Lillian Hals, $10 50; Peaae school, Mrs. Grace C. Peass, $10 50; Colton Hollow, Miss Beatrice Belden, $10; North Monson, Miss Mary V. Conghlin, $10 50; supervisor of music, Miss Joanna V. Cantwell, $8; supervisor of drawing, sewing and manual training, Miss Louise Larsson, $11. Miss Mildred Moulton elected at $10 50, and Miss Anna M. Connihan at $10, have not been definitely assigned as yet. Miss Mary V. Merchant at the Quarry and Miss Theresa Costello did not desire reelection. Miss Costello has accepted a position in Chicopee and Miss Merchant has given up teaching and these positions are not yet filled.

Death of Charles F. Coolidge.

Charles F. Coolidge, 33, died at his home on Mechanic street Sunday morning at 10 30, after several-months' illness with tuberculosis. He was born in Troy, N. H Two years ago he was married to Miss Leonora Stiles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stiles of this town. They have since resided in Hardwick, Vt., and Newark, N. J., coming to Monson to live about nine months ago. He was an architectural draftsman and had been employed by the W. N. Flynt Granite Co. He was a member of the Troy, N. H., lodge of Odd Fellows. He is survived by a widow, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Coolidge; one sister, Miss Bertha Coolidge, and one brotber, Henry Coolidge, all of Troy, N H. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. G. A. Andrews officiating Burial was in the Stiles family lot in No. 1 cemetery.

Surprise Visit.

Mr. and Mrs. William Holdsworth were pleasantly surprised at their home on South Main street Saturday evening by about 35 friends and employes of the Ricksttn & Shaw mill. Mr. Holdsworth has been employed for 10 years as foreman of the finishing department in the mill and resigned his position Saturday night to accept a similar one in Guild, N. H. He was presented with a purse, the presentation being made by Claude Duncan. The guests enjoyed themselves with games, music and dancing Mr. Holdsworth left for his new position Monday.

Actress Injured During Performance.

Miss Maud Mortimer, who played the part of Little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in Memorial Hall Wednesday evening, was injured during the last act. An overhead frame which held 25 drop lights gave away and struck her on the head. She was taken unconscious to her dressing room and Dr J. S. McQuaid was called. She was found to have had a bad scalp wound but not serious. The last scenes were omitted.

It has been killed previously by the conservative element. This week it has gone through the House unanimously, without debate. Does that mean anything?

Take the bill to provide for instructions to Legislators from their constituents upon measures of public policy. Not long ago it was killed in the Legislature by the activity of the Republican state committee, generally credited with being inspired from Washington. This week there has been a roll call vote in the House of 132 yeas to 66 nays on the bill, even after a committee report had been made against it. That was precisely two to one. Again, remembering that the total Democratic membership is 112, how about the Republican vote? The bill for peaceful persuasion during strikes has completed its final stage in the House without a word of debate, so strong was the support. The bill for trial by jury in cases of contempt of court, which has been fought tooth and nail by the lawyers of the House and Senate and has doubtless had the moral opposition of the judiciary, has gone through both branches flying, has been signed by Gov. Foss and is now law. Yet, before this year, that has been impossible.

Take the sober second thought of the House on the biennial elections amendment. It had 156 votes to 63 on being substituted for an adverse committee report. To be sure, as was said at the time, this was an unthinking vote. But Gov. Foss favors biennials. His message on the subject, however, showed that, like most business men who take that side, he was not familar with the depth and complications, nor how closely a reasonable attention to the public business is necessary for the welfare of the people. If the vote had been forced on the measure it would have certainly have been killed and the governor's recommendation that it be joined with the initiative, the referendum and the recall is not likely to save it. But how must such a recommendation look in the eyes of the conservative voters of the state who regard elections and sessions as a mere treadmill routine and not as constant and rapid progress.

Again, the direct nominations bill is on the docket, but it is sure to go through in some form. Its critics are hoping to attach a general referendum to the voters at the coming state election and thereby to stave off its effect for one year further But how does the entire system fit into the conservative and hitherto accepted ideas as to the right way of conducting state elections? Now, take in the situation at a broad view. Is it not evident that we are living in a real revolution? See how the small local issues are swallowed up by the larger measures of state and national progress. See how the member who comes here with only the local views of his town or his district, fails miserably to rise to the height of the situation. See how minor matters are completely lost in the large questions, and then say whether any voter, any district, any paper, or any official can worthily close the eyes to the situation and imagine that we are living under the conditions of only 10 years ago We are in a ferment of political growth and just in an era when public concerns demand our constant and thoughtful attention more than ever.

Right here let it be said that some of the people and papers who have not yet got their hearings are condemning this Legislature as the worst yet. It is true that the time for judgment has not come. It is true that this Legislature is more radical than any predecessor But it is fresh from the people. It is true that the moral reputation of this Legislature is yet unsullied It is true that it is a better working body than the Legislature of 1910 It is for the constituents to watch and criticise when necessary. But it is also only common sense to realize that the past is forever dead and buried

Very quickly this noon the report spread through the state house that State Treasurer Stevens had got much the best of Harvey S. Chase, Gov. Foss's financial expert, in the matter of Chase's criticism of the treasurer's policy, especially in the matter of having sinking funds instead of issuing serial bonds. The present practice of the state is to have serial bonds, and the sinking funds are the remains of the former policy. Mr. Chase reported that too much financial strength was put into the funds and that money could be saved to the state by taking more, but safe risks. He did not stand up well under Steven's explanations, even in the opinion of Democratic members of the committee

At the time of writing the Senate, after several hours of debate, is still discussing the United States income tax constitutional amendment, with the prospect that the discussion will continue several hours longer. The vote is expected to be close, and the funds of the amendment cannot yet figure out how it can get the necessary majority, although the large House majority shows the popular sentiment upon the subject.

The railroad committee has reported against the petition of Herbert F. Keith that the state buy the property and franchise of the Boston Holding Company. Keith does not represent as much capital as the forces he is bucking against, and his proposition has never stood any show from the start of favorable action.

The popular election of United States senators will be discussed in the Senate to-morrow, and the prospect is that the vote will be largely in its favor, the same as in the House. LANDON

Doings of the Legislature.

BOSTON, May 3, 1911.

By this time in the session is it not fitting for some of our good rock-ribbed conservatives to look over the situation? Is it not time for them to ask themselves whether the former Massachusetts has not gone by forever? Is it not time for them, and for the people generally, to ask whether we are not in a new epoch? Have not the good old days of the Home Market Club apotheosis gone by forever? Yet the height of glory for that organization was in the McKinley administration, and it is not yet 10 years since he departed from this life. Even after he left us Mark Hanna and his methods survived and the conservative power was not then shaken perceptibly.

But look at the recent acts of the Massachusetts Legislature, even yesterday, and see what is being done. These things would make the men in power 10 years ago feel as if the eternal foundations were being overthrown. It is not only Democrats, but Republicans, and a great many of them, who are doing this. Take yesterday's House vote on the 54-hour bill for women and minors in factories and workshops. Hitherto the labor men have fought, step by step, against the strongest conservative opposition, till they have reduced the hours for these weaker persons to 56 per week. Then, this year, came the struggle to make it 54. But the conservatives controlled the committee and a compromise bill for 55 hours was reported in the Senate. Now, the Senate is our conservative body. But they amended that 55-hour bill and made it 54 by an overwhelming majority and sent it to the House. There Mr. Ellis of Newton, one of the most conservative members, moved to make it 55 hours, and he repeated, with all the solemn force of a man deeply impressed with the vital truth of his words, the familiar predictions of dire disaster to our Massachusetts manufacturers If this reduction in hours were made less, because our manufacturers will then not be able to compete with those in other states where the hours are longer. How did the House size up his appeal? The voice vote was so loud against him that he did not even ask for a count. Then they voted for the bill by a a roll call of 172 to 30 Let it be remembered that the entire Democratic membership in the House is only 112, and then see where the votes came from.

Take the Senate vote yesterday on the eight hour bill for public employes. Gov. Bates vetoed it. Gov. Draper has vetoed it twice. The House passed it by a majority so large that the opposition was ridiculously small. Yesterday the Senate acted upon it without a word of debate. But Senator Malley of Hampden thought best to put them on record by roll call. There were 29 votes for the bill and only eight against. There are only 14 Democrats in the Senate Can there be any doubt that Gov. Foss will reflect popular sentiment if he signs the bill?

Take the bill to allow labor unions to fine their members as a matter of discipline.

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. You will find Chamberlain's Liniment wonderfully effective. One application will convince you of its merits. Try it. For sale by all dealers.

Presented With Silver Tea Service.

E. E. Orrell was presented with a sterling silver tea service of five pieces last Friday evening in the office of the Otis Company, at which time Mr Orrell ended his long service in the employ of the company. He had been for many years superintendent of the cloth department, where fully 100 hands are employed, and the gift was presented by Peter J King, one of the foremen of the department, as a token of regard from the overseers and foremen in the cloth department and from the office force in the counting room. Mr. Orrell responded. He and Mrs. Orrell left Saturday morning for their new home in Greenville, N C., where he is to be superintendent of a large cotton plant.

Pastor Resigns.

Rev. Frederic W. Smith has asked to be relieved of his duties as pastor of the Unitarian church, basing his request upon a recurrence of a throat trouble that makes it necessary for him to give up public speaking for an indefinite period of time. He asked to be relieved June 1, and his resignation was accepted with regret by the committee. Mr Smith was called to the pastorate of the church in December, and began his duties January 1. In this brief period he has greatly endeared himself to the members of the society and there is universal regret that the ties must be severed.

WARE.

House Entered and Preserves Taken.

Complaint was made to Chief B. W. Buckley Friday that the home of Charles Davis in Ware Center had been broken into Sunday, April 23, and a quantity of preserves, several gallons of cider and some valuable household articles taken. A description of some men seen around the place was given to the officer and as a result John Nowak, Raymond Mudnra, Lawrence Murdza and Michael Medzwiadek were arrested Saturday evening and appeared in the district court Monday morning Nowak was tried on a charge of breaking and entering and his three companions on the charge of receiving and concealing property stolen by Nowak. Nowak admitted going to the Davis place, but said he was looking for rabbits, which he had been told were there. His quest being unsuccessful, he entered the house and took one jar of preserves. He later admitted to the judge having eaten one and carried one home. While court was in session Nowak's room on Water street was searched and four jars of preserves found there which were found to be the property of Mrs. Davis. Judge Davis bound Nowak over to the grand jury under $200 bonds, which Nowak furnished. In the cases of Mudnra, Murdza and Niedwiadek he postponed action until to-morrow

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Palmer People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in this locality.

Hugh Cregan, 11 West Main St., Ware, Mass., says: "I think that hard work and heavy lifting weakened my kidneys and was really the cause of all my suffering. I was never free from a dull ache in my back and could not move at times on account of the sharp twinges through my loins. I was suffering from these troubles when I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box from Person's Pharmacy. It required only a few doses of this remedy to drive my trouble away and I am now free from kidney diseases."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

The Art of Cooking

Many women pride themselves on their cooking. Some are good with pastry, while others specialize on meats.

No reason why you should not be able to cook both. The most essential help is an easily regulated fire, without which the best chef or cook is a failure.

The new improved oil, gas or gasolene stoves shown in our stove department can be adjusted to produce any desired heat. Have one set up now and avoid the dread of cooking in the hot stuffy kitchen.

AFTER 7 YEARS SUFFERING

I Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Waurika, Okla.—"I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and in a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well." Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R.F.D., No. 3, Box 31, Waurika, Okla.

Another Grateful Woman.

Huntington, Mass.—"I was in a nervous, run down condition and for three years could find no help.

"I owe my present good health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier which I believe saved my life.

"My doctor knows what helped me and does not say one word against it." —Mrs. MARY JANETTE BATES, Box 131, Huntington, Mass.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, and nervous prostration.

A Welcome Change

Smoke curling up from the farmhouse chimney as the men are coming in from the fields, gives a pretty suggestion of a good supper and a comfortable home. But it also means a hot, tired woman, working hard over a blazing fire.

Your wife can escape this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

A New Perfection keeps a kitchen many degrees cooler than any other range, yet it does all a coal or wood range can do. It saves time, labor and fuel. No wood to cut; no coal to carry; no ashes; no soot. With the New Perfection oven it is the best cooking device you can find anywhere.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

Beginning May 1, the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company INCREASED TO FIVE MINUTES THE INITIAL PERIOD ON ALL TEN CENT TOLL CALLS.

For the benefit of those not accustomed to making such calls, attention is called to the following points to be observed in calling these places:

CALLS MUST BE MADE BY NUMBER ONLY. Calls for particular persons cannot be accepted. If the number cannot be found in the directory, the information operator will give it.

CALLS SHOULD BE GIVEN DIRECTLY TO THE LOCAL OPERATOR IN THE SAME MANNER AS WHEN A LOCAL CONNECTION IS DESIRED.

THE RECEIVER SHOULD BE HELD TO THE EAR UNTIL THE CALLED NUMBER ANSWERS OR A REPORT IS RECEIVED FROM THE OPERATOR.

Toll calls handled under the new method will be completed with almost the same promptness as local calls.

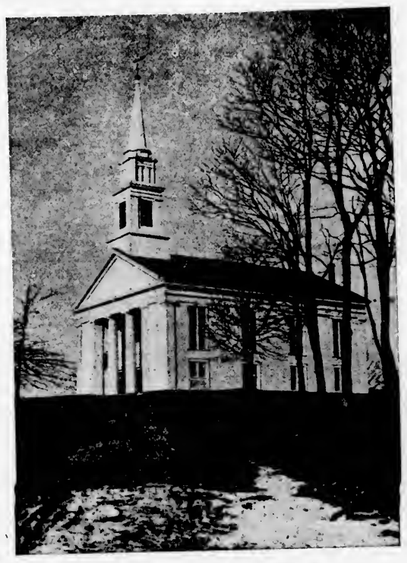
WOMEN HELPED

By Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for Kidneys and Liver.

Disorders of women are the result of general bodily weakness. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is a strength builder and for women it has proved of great value. Thousands testify to this. A sick woman almost always has kidney trouble, which causes pain in the back, headache, nervousness and other distressing symptoms. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy helps the Kidneys and Liver to act properly, purifies the blood and gently moves the bowels, striking at the cause of Kidney, Liver, Blood and Bladder troubles.

For over 35 years it has enjoyed steady and merited success, for it is an honest remedy and has stood the test of time. Write Dr. David Kennedy Co., Rondout, N. Y. for a free sample bottle and valuable medical booklet. Large bottle $1.00 at all druggists.

HAMPDEN CHURCHES MEET.



Annual Conference Held with Church in Brimfield.

AN UNUSUALLY LARGE ATTENDANCE

The Association May Be Divided Another Year. Interesting Reports and Addresses.

The annual spring conference of the Hampden association of Congregational churches was held in the Congregational church in Brimfield Wednesday with a large attendance of ministers, delegates and visitors.

The meeting was called to order at 10 a. m. by Rev. F. S. Brewer of Palmer, as moderator. A short praise service was led by Rev. W. L. Jennings of the Brimfield church, after which devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. G. A. Andrews.

Brimfield Congregational Church.

Rev. A. H. Bradford of Springfield was elected assistant scribe for the day.

The statistical report was given by Rev. Seelye Bryant of Springfield, scribe for the past year. The number of churches in the conference is 46; membership, 12,506, a gain of 185 over last year and 30 per cent of the net gain in the state; 9650 families in the parishes, a gain of 367; total number of Sunday school members, 9855, a loss of 371; number of home departments, 23, a gain of eight; three churches have mission schools, 13 have no Christian Endeavor societies; present membership of the Endeavor societies is 1814, a loss of 151; there are 25 men's organizations; six churches are without pastors and 14 have no parsonages; 10 of the latter are in Springfield; $33,820 had been received in benevolences, against $34,644 apportioned. The trial of the apportionment plan has resulted in larger and more systematic giving, with a gain of about 34 per cent. The gain in the state has been 26 per cent. The resignation of Rev. Seelye Bryant as scribe was accepted on account of his removal from the county.

Rev. C. B. McDuffee of Three Rivers gave the first address of the morning. He took for his subject "The problem of the average church," and said in part: The church has many problems. I have chosen three which lie nearly at the source of all: First, the instability of the relation of minister to people. The length of the average pastorate is three years. The ministry is regarded as a profession rather than a divine calling. The shifting population cause a lack of attachment to the local churches by its members; opportunity for advancement causes the pastors to move on. The people also want a change A man until his third year can stay in almost any field. Then he passes his Waterloo. There can be no successful grappling with problems under these conditions. Second, the problem of efficient workers. If a man's business was run as that of our average church is it would not survive a week. We have plenty of business talent. Why is it not used? God needs our best. Why do people go at his work as if it were of no account? Third, What is the church for? People stay at home from service for flimsy reasons. If the church is for a definite purpose, people do not think it worth while, or it is not understood. Why does a man hear the call of the world and not hear the call of God and dedicate his best talents to God's service? We have made salvation so easy that we have almost pushed men into the Kingdom. Result: They are satisfied with their own righteousness.

He was followed by Rev. Rufus W. Stimson of Northhampton, who took for his subject "Church and community." He said in part: There is still room for improvement on the part of ministers and church organizations, especially in rural communities. The Grange is somewhat religious, fraternal, undenominational, working for civic betterment. The church should encourage this movement Where churches have joined with other organizations for public betterment the churches themselves have gained. Ministers can do good work in helping boys and girls decide upon their vocation and inspiring them to obtain higher education.

During the noon intermission the ministers played their usual game of ball.

Rev. W. L. Jennings lead the devotional exercises in the afternoon. A business session followed, Rev. E. W. Gant being chosen a delegate to the State Association which meets in Haverhill next week, with Rev T. J McAllister alternate. Rev. C. B. Bliss of Hampden was elected scribe to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. Seelye Bryant. After the report of the fellowship committee the credentials of Rev. W. L Jennings of Brimfield and Rev. Dr. Neil McPherson of Springfield were presented and they were elected members of the association. Rev. William Ganley was dismissed to the Middlesex South Association, and Rev. Walter Collins to the Norfolk Association. On the motion of Rev. John L. Kilbon, it was voted that the churches discuss the question of dividing the association in two parts and to send delegates instructed to vote on the matter to the fall meeting.

Rev. F. S. Brewer, Moderator.

The first address of the afternoon was delivered by Rev. Richard Peters, his subject being "Life a calling" He said in part: In the book divine life is recognized as a call. God has breathed in us the breath of life and made a distinction between man and animal. Man is a part of the great body of mankind, and he that loses his life for others shall gain it. The next speaker was Rev. Dr. Newton M. Hall, his subject being "The teaching function of the church." The modern church underestimates the teaching function, he said. Our zeal for members has ontrun our ability to instruct them. We should oblige a child to lay a good foundation of essential facts in Bible history. We should not study the letter without the life. One who loves the Bible should make others love it through a great and overmastering enthusiasm. We must study it so that the magic of not only its literary but its spiritual reality shall get into the blood. We should study the history of the church in the Middle Ages. How shall we find teachers? Appeal to the young people to prepare themselves for such teaching in connection with their school or college work. I believe there will come a time when such opportunities for service will be sought.

The last speaker was Rev. Henry F. Burden, who took for his subject, "The minister as a prophet." He said: "With the increase of other tasks the main function of the ministry is almost forgotten. The foundation of his work is the spirit of the prophet. Inspiration means God, man and a mediator. The prophet by consecration and meditation becomes the bearer of a message. Humanity outgrows its priest but never its prophet. The prophetic side should be emphasized more to-day, first, for its effect on minister and people, and second, because of the great opportunities. No such field, white for the harvest, ever lay before God's prophet as it does to-day. The man who has a message from God is in demand, the world wants men of vision, who can answer the cry, "Lord, show us the Father."

Firemen Have Busy Week.

Numerous Calls and Some Hard Work in Fights Against Brush Fires.

The firemen have had another busy week fighting grass and brush fires, having been called out nearly every day and sometimes several times a day.

The most serious blaze was Monday, when the railroad set fire to the grass in a field near the "Deacon Brainerd" farm near West Brimfield. The flames spread rapidly across the meadow to the cider mill at the side of the road and this was soon beyond help. From the barn the fire communicated to the house near by, and although men were sent from Palmer nothing could be done to save the structure. The place has been untenanted for some time and it is understood was uninsured. It is owned by Oliver L. Green of Wilbraham. The house was one of the historic places of the town and its history is fully told in another column.

The trouble began last Saturday afternoon when the men were called about 3 30 to a fire on the east side of Mt. Dumplin, They had to make another visit to the same place about 9 o'clock Sunday afternoon about 2 there was a fire on the "Hancock" place at Blanchardville, owned by H. W. Brainerd, though no serious damage was done. About 4 30 in the afternoon the men hustled over into the Mason district in the northeast part of the town and extinguished a forest fire which burned over about 60 acres. About 9 o'clock at night on a report from the Ware fire warden, a gang of men was sent to a blaze along the Ware and Palmer line above Ware.

Monday forenoon there was a fire in the Red Bridge district, and also at the Brainerd farm, as noted above. In the afternoon at 3 the men were called to fight a blaze near Thompson's pond in the Palmer Center district. Tuesday afternoon two fires in the Forest Lake district were successfully handled by Deputy Fire Warden A. F. Bennett.

Wednesday afternoon about 1.15 box 66 was pulled for a fire which started on the bank of the railroad cut in the rear of Thompson's blacksmith shop on South Main street. It climbed the banking and got into the fence which connected with the buildings, and was crawling rapidly along when the alarm was pulled in. The firemen made an unusually quick response and the danger was soon over.

THREE MONTHS FOR KIDD.

Stiff Sentence for Assault on Car Conductor.

CRIME COMMITTED TWO MONTHS AGO

Trip From Springfield Results in Capture. Gathered in On Car Last Saturday.

Arraigned under the name of George S. Kidd and pleading guilty, the man who assaulted Conductor Alonzo Hancock of the street railway on his car between North Wilbraham and Ludlow on the evening of March 4, was on Monday sent to the house of correction for three months. It was the intention of Superintendent Atkins of the street railway to bring a more serious charge than simple assault against the man, but as he is comparatively a newcomer in town and has had no previous experience with the local court he understood the time of opening to be 9 30, whereas the time is 9 o'clock. When Mr. Atkins reached the court room he found that Kidd had been arraigned, had pleaded guilty and been sentenced to three months.

Kidd was gathered in Saturday by Officer Crimmins, who was tipped off by Springfield officers that he was on his way by trolley to visit friends between Ludlow and Palmer. Officer Crimmins went to Ludlow and took the car toward Palmer with Kidd, arresting him when he got within the officer's jurisdiction.

The assault for which Kidd is doing time was committed on the car leaving Palmer at 6 15 on the evening of Saturday, March 4 Kidd boarded a car at Springfield for Palmer, and was put off the car at the Bliss switch in North Wilbraham. He boarded the Springfield car which arrived in a few moments. When Conductor Hancock asked for his fare he knocked the conductor down; the motorman stopped the car and came to the conductor's assistance, whereupon Kidd jumped from the car and disappeared.

WILBRAHAM.

Dr. S. W. Scott of Troy, N. Y., spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs J. H Starr.

Dr. and Mrs. John Flagg of Worcester have been spending a few days in town with his mother, Mrs. N. M. Flagg.

Deacon A. A. Phelps, Miss Carrie Moody and Miss Allis represented the Congregational church at the conference in Brimfield Wednesday.

Body Found in River.

Man Drowned January 15 While Pursuing Deer on Ice Near Bondsville

The body of Stanislaus Dabolek, 26, who was drowned in the Swift river near the Moynahan farm in Bondsville on January 15, was taken from the Swift river Sunday afternoon.

Dabolek was drowned while pursuing a deer on the ice. The ice broke and both the deer and Dabolek fell through. He had lived with his brother-in-law, John Skava, who was nearly drowned in attempting to save him.

The body was found within 20 feet from where he disappeared. It was first seen by Francis Menard of West Ware, who saw a suspicious looking object floating on the river for two mornings. He told people about it and Skava, the brother-in-law, investigated and made an unsuccessful attempt to bring it to shore. William Powers went out in a boat and was successful in bringing it in. Chief of Police B. W. Buckley of Ware was notified and he later notified Medical Examiner Dr. W. W. Miner. In company with Officer Denis and Undertaker Michael Sullivan he went to the river and secured the body, which was found to be in a badly decomposed condition.

Burial was in St. Anne's cemetery in Three Rivers Sunday afternoon. Dabolek leaves a widow, two children and a mother, Mrs. Anna Daholek, all of Ware.

HAMPDEN.

No One Wants License.

Hampden voted for license at the annual meeting in March, but no application for license was received by the selectmen.

Fire Warden Swenson received a call for help from Stafford Saturday afternoon and responded with 11 men, rendering efficient service in stopping a fire half a mile from the Hampden line.

Carl Gottsche, the five-years-old son of Julius L. Gottsche, stepped into a woodchuck hole Saturday, breaking his right leg above the knee. The bone was set by Dr. Hurd of Somers, Ct.

The following delegates were chosen to represent the Congregational church at the conference in Brimfield Wednesday: Charles A. Burleigh, Miss Esther Burleigh, H. H. Thresher, Mrs. Lucnis Burleigh and Marcus S. Beebe.

The Hampden street railway committee has secured an appointment for a public hearing in the office of the president of the Springfield Street Railway company in the Massachusetts Mutual Life building next Tuesday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. All those interested in the extension of the road from East Longmeadow are requested to attend.

Doings of the Legislature.

BOSTON, May 10, 1911.

One of the sharpest debates of the year in the Senate was over the Henebery bill, which is of general interest, though the temporary issue concerns Worcester especially, over the question whether street railway franchises shall be for a limited term, or unlimited. The Henebery bill, making the term limited, conditionally, was opposed by the railway and capitalist influence and had an adverse vote of 14 yeas to 16 nays, with four pairs. That made an even half of the Senate recorded against it. Mr. Henebery of Worcester, for whom the bill is named, though it is based on a petition of the Worcester city government, said immediately after the vote that he had the Senate with him on the rising vote. Senator Hunt of Worcester, fearing that some senators would not stick to their position later, thought it best to put the Senate on record at once. But, says Mr. Henebery, two of those who stood up for the bill, immediately turned against it when it came to answering to their names on roll call. That makes it very difficult to accomplish anything further. Every senator was recorded but President Treadway and one other. The bill has had very hard sledding from the beginning, for it had an adverse report from the street railways committee and was saved only by virtue of being materially amended.

The railroad committee has reported against the repeal of the Saunders milk transportation law of last year, which made so much trouble for the milk producing interests all through the remainder of the year No action has been taken yet and it remains to be seen how much of a contest the milk producers can develop. Doubtless there will be some very vigorous talk about the matter.

Representative Flanagan of Worcester, whose efforts were at the bottom of the official investigations of the Worcester and Fitchburg jails, with the outcome of establishing the fact of present satisfactory conditions, was before the committee on prisons to-day in support of two bills which were a consequence of his petition for investigation. One of them required outdoor exercise to be given to prisoners in houses of correction as often as practicable, not less than once a day, weather permitting, would give them work raising vegetables, and would have tuberculosis prisoners removed to the Rutland prison camp The other extended the civil service laws to the officers and employes of houses of correction except the masters or keepers. The first bill was opposed by the sheriffs of Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Plymouth and Bristol counties. Chairman Pettigrove of the prison commission opposed both of them. Mr. Flanagan appears to be a well intentioned member, desirous of doing good things, but he has not made much progress on the matters thus far put as his special measures.

By the action of the House this forenoon, in concurrence with the Senate, without a word of debate, both branches have accepted the recommendation of the committee on agriculture that no legislation is necessary on Gov. Foss's message relating to the suppression of the gypsy moth. This was the message in which he attacked the present system as extravagant and inefficient and recommended that the expense be materially reduced. The committee on agriculture thought it had a case against the governor, and not a member challenged their unanimous report.

The committee on agriculture reported to-day in the Senate a bill to extend the provision for suppression of the gypsy and brown-tail moths by official action, amending the present law so that the state superintendent of the work may also take complete control of the suppression in such cities and towns as may, through the proper officials, request it. As the bill was drawn on the recommendation of the state forester, it contained the provision that the work might be done also in such cities and towns as, in the opinion of the superintendent, economy and efficiency require. But this possible invasion of the rights of local self-government was struck out by the committee. The cost of the work is to be certified by the superintendent to the state treasurer and shall be collected by him as an additional state tax upon the city or town where the work is performed, provided that no liability of a city or town shall be more than it would otherwise be liable to under the law. Considering the general fear in the regions hitherto exempt that they will be invaded soon by these pests, and the apparent certainty that those fears will be realized before long, this further effort to strengthen the hands of the officials has local importance everywhere.

Gov. Foss is proceeding to carry out the task imposed upon him a little while ago in regard to bringing all of the state boards and commissions into the state house. The commission announced to-day for the purpose consists of Lawrence Whitcomb of Brookline, architect, chairman, and William Chapman of Quincy and Arthur K. Bowditch of Brookline. They have a hard task to find room in the state house for all the officials who are now outside.

There is a queer mixup over the nominations for the special commission to investigate the matter of providing offices for state officers, boards and commissions. As Gov. Foss gave out the list this afternoon it was headed by Representative Wilton B. Fay of Medford, member of the House committee on ways and means, a Republican. He had not been spoken to by Gov Foss and the first he knew that he had been made chairman was his seeing the list as it came from the governor's office. But he had talked with the governor no less than three times and had been recommended to the governor as the best man to be had. Very soon it was discovered that there is a law which says that no member of the Legislature shall be appointed on a commission which he helped to create, or to fill an office which he voted to establish. That shut out Fay. So the list was pulled back and a new one given out. Now it comes out that the attorney general, whose ruling made the change, did not notice that this board was made an exception to the law, for the very purpose of putting a Legislator on it. So Fay was eligible, after all. There is a hint that the governor may withdraw one name and put Fay on again. The commission must report by June 1, and they will have much to do to plan how to get all the outside boards into the state house.

The Agricultural College interest is sure that it has a good case, in spite of the criticism of Gov. Foss, and there will be an effort to put through the main special appropriations which the committee on agriculture favored from the beginning. It is the plan to have the committee report the bills, have them referred in course to the committee on ways and means, and then have that committee give the college men a hearing upon the appropriations as a matter of state finance. President Butterfield of the college has been here this week and is expected to come down again to help put in the case for the college.

The peaceful persuasion bill finished its passage of the Senate this afternoon, having already made the passage of the House. It is to be expected that the governor will sign it at once.

This fall the people will have an opportunity to vote upon the constitutional amendment to permit the use of voting machines. The amendment finished its required passage of two Legislatures last year, all right, but there was a binnder whereby it failed to be submitted to the people. The action this year is simply to correct that blunder and to put the amendment on the ballot at the state election. It is necessary if we are to have voting by machinery lawful, for the supreme court has ruled that is unconstitutional. Hence the amendment.

A close vote by voice was given for the bill to require railroad engineers and conductors to have had two years' railroad experience before they can be put into those positions. Representative Hardy of Fitchburg moved an amendment to make the law inoperative in time of strike, so that the roads could get men to run their trains, but the House voted it down. The bill comes from the brotherhood of locomotive engineers. The bill to punish railroad officials who issue new stock or make combinations of corporations contrary to law has yet to run the gauntlet of the Senate, though the House has given it strong support, against the argument of Mr. Washburn of Worcester.

PALMER NEWS.

Historic Buildings Burned.

Brainerd Farm Structures, on Warren Road, Destroyed Monday.

The house and outbuildings on the "Deacon Brainerd" farm on the Warren road were totally destroyed by fire on Monday of this week. A passing train set fire to the grass, which soon reached the cider mill and the other buildings in rapid succession.

The passing of this well-known farmhouse removes another of the fast disappearing colonial mansions of Palmer. This farm was one of the earliest settled in town, and was purchased by Samuel Frost in 1728. The first two-story part of the late house was built by Frost about 1763, taking the place of the temporary log house first erected by him. Frost sold the place in 1763 to Jonathan Chapin, by whom it was owned many years and rented by him to various parties. From the records in Springfield we learn that Captain Sylvanus Walker hired the farm and kept a tavern there several years prior to 1776, when he removed to another farm which he had bought in Palmer. He was succeeded as a tenant by a Mr. Bliss as innkeeper. It was during his occupancy that the Hessian prisoners were marched through Palmer and encamped on the night of Nov. 1, 1777, in front of this tavern, in which daughters of Gen. Riessel of the Hessian army and his beautiful wife were entertained, as we learn from the published diary of a Hessian officer. The remains of the old barroom were discernible in the corner front room up to a recent date.

An amusing circumstance was related to the writer by Mr. Loami Blodgett, then 90 years of age, who said that a party of young men came to the house of Mr. Bliss one night to enjoy a frolic, for which purpose they had the use of an upper room. Becoming somewhat boisterous, Bliss went up to quiet them, in return for which they subjected him to a course of pranks never found in the ritual of any order before or since. More dead than alive, he found himself at the foot of the stairs at last, when his wife met him with the question: "Bliss, are your brains knocked out!" "No," said he, "for if I had had any I never would have gone up there."

It is probable that Bliss remained till 1781, when Timothy Brainerd became a tenant of the place. He had served three years in the Revolutionary War in a Connecticut regiment, and having learned the trade of a blacksmith, carried on the business in connection with farming, making scythes and many of the articles in common use, and was very successful. He was married to Sarah Wilson March 27, 1783, and brought his fair bride from Boston on horseback. The farm in the meantime had passed from Chapin to Isaac Bissell, from him to Thomas Dwight in 1786 and of him Timothy Brainerd bought it in 1783. On the death of Timothy Brainerd Sept. 29, 1834, the farm passed into the possession of his son, Deacon Wilson Brainerd, a successful farmer and a most worthy citizen, who came to an untimely end July 23, 1881, while crossing the railroad track on his farm. The property remained in the possession of the family until a few years ago, when it was sold and has for some time been carried on by different tenants. It is now owned by Oliver Green of Wilbraham. O. P. ALLEN.

Annual Meeting of the Palmer Historical Society.

The annual meeting of the Palmer Historical Society was held Tuesday night The curator announced the donation of a copy of Mitchell's Universal Atlas by Mrs. D. L. Bodfish. The work was published 60 years ago and is useful to show by contrast the changed conditions of the world since that date.

The former board of officers was elected, viz: President, David L Bodfish; vice president, Mrs. Abbie M. Wing; secretary, Mrs. Lucy A. Hitchcock; treasurer, Mrs. L E. Carpenter; curator, Orrin P Allen; council, Mrs. W. H. Fuller, Everett W Carpenter, with the officers of the society ex-officio. The society adjourned till October 3 A social hour was enjoyed and light refreshments were served by a special committee consisting of Mrs. M. L Palmer, Mrs. L. M. Shaw, Mrs. G. A Rice, Miss Helen Robinson, Mrs. C. K. Gamwell.

Mothers' Day, a New Observance.

A new observance day—or memorial day—about which little has been made public, is "Mothers' Day," the second Sunday in May. The reason for a lack of knowledge concerning the day and its meaning is that it is only three years old But although young, it is growing with leaps and bounds, and bids fair to spread to all parts of the nation, at least. It was inaugurated by Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, Pa., who conceived the idea in a desire to commemorate the anniversary of her mother's death. A mention of it in a Philadelphia paper caused the idea to break out in spots all over the country, and since the beginning it has spread rapidly. The suggestion of "A white flower for mother's memory, a bright flower for mothers living," is an appeal which few can throw aside carelessly.

Entertainment For District Nursing Fund.

An audience of generous size filled the floor of the opera house Monday evening to see "The district school of Bineberry Corners," presented by Bondsville talent for the benefit of the society for district nursing. The parts were all well taken and the performance greatly pleased and amused the audience. A pleasing feature of the entertainment was a musical program, given between the scenes. There were vocal selections by J. J. Donahne and Mrs. C. W. Williams, selections by the Notterman mandolin club, and a violin solo by Robert J. Wilder, as well as piano solos by Daniel Horgan. The society will net about $30 from the performance.

Sewer Contracts Awarded.

All Go to C. T. Brainerd, Who Has Had Much Experience.

The selectmen at their meeting last evening awarded the contracts for new sewers in Chestnut, Oak and Pleasant streets, and on the Springfield road in the wire mill district, to C. T. Brainerd of Palmer, he being the lowest bidder.

After a spirited opposition the board gave the telephone company leave to withdraw on its petition for two pole locations on Central street near Park street. A location for one pole at the head of Central street was granted. The petition for locations on the Belchertown road in Three Rivers was granted.

It was voted to forbid the dumping of rubbish at the side of the road at the upper end of Thorndike street, where it has been begun recently.

D. B. Leary of Thorndike was granted a bowling license for two alleys.

Celebrated 31st Wedding Anniversary.

Mr and Mrs. George Callahan celebrated the 31st anniversary of their wedding at their home in the carpet mill district Saturday evening. They were the recipients of a large number of remembrances from their friends, including china, table linen, chair, etc. Music and dancing were enjoyed and refreshments were served. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. B. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rothera, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mumford, Mr. and Mrs. George Branford, Mr. and Mrs. L. Chalk, Mr. and Mrs. B. Hodson and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Taylor.

Change in Drug Store Manager.

C. P. Brown, who has been manager of the Bay State Drug Company's two stores here for a short time, resigned his position and ceased his connection with the company with the close of business Sunday. He is succeeded by Harvey H. Bronson, who has been chief clerk for the company here for nearly four years. Mr. Bronson was with Brewer & Co. of Worcester before coming to Palmer, is a registered pharmacist and has made many friends du ing his stay in town. His assistant is Robert Sherry of Fitchburg, who before coming to Palmer was with the Green drug store in Worcester.

Death of Joseph St. John.

Joseph St. John, 86, a well-known farmer living in the northern section of the town, died Wednesday after a long illness. Mr. St. John was a native of Canada, but had spent most of his life in this town. He is survived by three sons, Lewis, who lived with his father, Michael of Palmer and Nelson, who lives on the Warren road, and two daughters, Mrs. Lawrence Bronthers and Mrs. Joseph Barbour, both of Palmer; also 40 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren. The funeral service was held to-day in West Warren, with burial in St. Thomas' cemetery, Thorndike.

Applications For Sunday Store Opening.

The board of license commissioners, at their meeting Wednesday evening, received an application for a license of the sixth class—drugglst—from Harvey Bronson of the Bay State Drug Company. The board is having licenses for the sale of ice cream, fruit, confectionery, etc, on the Lord's Day pointed, and all applications for such licenses must be in the hands of the commissioners by 8 o'clock next Wednesday evening.

Funeral of Albert N. Southwick.

The funeral of Albert N. Southwick, who died in New York last Friday, was held at the home of his sister, Mrs. Maria Sedgwick, Sunday afternoon at 3, Rev. Otto Raspe, pastor of the Universalist church, officiating. Palmer lodge of Odd Fellows escorted the body to Oak Knoll cemetery, where the burial service was performed by the lodge. The bearers were L. R. Holden, O. W. Marcy, Harry Haley, A. I. Howe, E. Sharratt and William Taylor.

The section of the macadam road between the Boston and Albany freight house and the Hancock bridge is being oiled by Worcester men. The machine which they are using to do the work is a new type and not only sprays the hot oil, but also removes the dust from the macadam by a jet of steam instead of the old method of using a sweeper.

Louis Green, the junk dealer, has gone to Bangor, Maine, his native city, on a two or three week business trip. During a portion of the time he will be engaged in buying up the ruins of the recent fire. Mr Green has business interests in Bangor where he keeps three horses at work all the time. He has disposed of the handsome gray horse which he used in his Palmer business, and will bring back two new horses from Maine.

There was a badly scared small boy on Central street yesterday morning. He was something less—apparently—than half a dozen years old, but he had managed in some way to start a fire near the storehouse of J. F. Foley, opposite the Masonic building. The fire was spreading rapidly and the kid was getting a bad case of spasm, for, stamp as he would he couldn't seem to stop the flames, when R E. Cummings happened along and with the assistance of a pail of water extinguished the conflagration.

The continued absence of rain is causing some uneasiness among persons who were obliged to go without water for several weeks last year on account of dry weather, and from present indications it will not be surprising if the supply will be cut off sooner this year unless there is rain soon. In any event it will be prudent for all to use great care and not waste any more than is necessary.

Monson News.

MONSON'S OLDEST MAN.

Asa W. Leonard Observes 85th Birthday and Receives Gold Cane.

Asa W. Leonard of Elm street, who enjoys the distinction of being the oldest resident of the town of Monson, observed his 85th birthday Tuesday. He was at that time presented by the selectmen with the gold headed cane which is to be given the oldest male resident of a town. Mr. Leonard enjoys the best of health and looks fully 10 years younger than the average man of 85 years

Mr. Leonard was born in Shutesbury May 9, 1826. He came to Monson April 5, 1844, and has made his home here since that time He married January 1, 1852, Catherine S. Bliss of this town, who died March 17, 1885 On June 6, 1888, Mr. Leonard married Miss Sarah A. Shaw, his present wife. Mr. Leonard had three brothers, Daniel, Jesse and Louis, who was superintendent of a woolen mill in Rockville and died in middle life of typhoid fever Daniel, who was a very prosperous farmer in Monson for over 40 years, died at the age of 81, and Jesse, who followed the trade of a wool sorter in the woolen mills of the town, was 83 years of age when he died. When Mr. Leonard came to town 67 years ago he came to work for Otis Bradford, who had charge of the wool sorting for the three mills of the Hampden woolen company. These three mills stood where the Somerset woolen company's mill, Ellis & Co's No. 1 mill and the Cushman mill on Cushman street now stand. These in connection with two cotton mills, one where Ellis & Sons' No. 3 mill stands and one at the North Monson village comprised the manufacturing industries of the town at that time. There was a saw and grist mill where the Ricketts & Shaw woolen plant now stands and a wagon works and paint shop on the present site of the Heimann & Lichten straw factory. Even as far back as this the population of the town was nearly 2000, but the people lived principally in the rural sections, the center of the town being very scantily populated. Even Main street had very few houses on it. There were but four houses on the west side of Main street from one end of the town to the other when Mr. Leonard arrived in Monson, the Lyon house now occupied by S. Fred Cushman, the Norcross house occupied by Ex-Senator Norcross, the Bradford house, which has been moved back from the street and is occupied by William Ricketts and the Capt. Newton place, now the Universalist parsonage. There was a stone yard between the Bradford and Newton houses where an average of 400 sheep were kept Back of this on the east side of Main street were large mulberry gardens where a large number of silk worms were kept.

There were at this time but three houses on the east side of Main street, the boarding-house now used as a stock house for the Heimann & Lichten company, the Edward Newton place and the Blodgett place at the corner of Hampden avenue. Mr. Leonard came to town on the old stage coach that ran one trip a day between Palmer and Stafford Springs, Ct., passing through Monson At this time the stage was the only means of conveyance in or out of Monson.

Mr. Leonard recalls vividly the putting through of the Central Vermont railroad, he being one of the many to enjoy the free ride to Palmer given by the company the day that the railroad was completed, August 31, 1850. The only man Mr. Leonard recalls who was a resident of Monson when he arrived, who is now living here, is Edward King on the Wales road.

Academy Team Defeated.

The Academy baseball team lost in a close and exciting game by the score of 1 to 0 to Cushing Academy at Ashburnham Saturday afternoon. It was a pitchers' battle, with Elliot working fine for Monson. In the seventh Cushing got a man on first by an error by Fuste; he stole second and scored the only run of the game on an error on the easiest kind of a chance by Capt. Bowker of the Monson team. Bowker seems to have a habit of losing games on easy chances, this being the third game he has lost for the home team, and unless he braces up Coach French will undoubtedly do some shifting. Monson had a better fielding team than Cushing, but could not solve Ingalls' delivery, 12 of them fanning the air. Smith and Dunsford put up fine ball for Monson and Borgeson proved to be a big improvement over Nye in center field. Score:

Death of Miss Eliza Hirst.

Miss Eliza Hirst, 31, died at her home on Main street Saturday afternoon of pleurisy after an illness of six weeks. She was born in Yorkshire, England, and came to this country 19 years ago, having lived most of the time since in Monson. She was employed for a time in the Ware Dry Goods Store, and while there received an injury which necessitated the amputation of one leg Since then she had lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hirst of this town. She leaves besides her parents four brothers and two sisters, all of this town. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock Rev J. M Gage officiated and burial was in No. 1 cemetery

Annual Meeting of Fire Department.

The annual meeting of the Monson fire department was held in No 1 engine house Monday evening. The reports of the officers and different committees were read and accepted. The foremen were elected as follows: Chemical No. 1, Alfred B. Norcross; chemical No. 2, B. F. Broadhent; hose No. 1, Henry Nohart; hose N. 2, N. A. Bughee; hose No. 3, William Bedard; hook and ladder, Carl Stewart. It was voted to have their clam chowder on Flynt's Park on Labor Day, and to hold their annual concert and ball some time in January.

No Contest Over Will.

In the probate court last Friday the will of George H. Munsell, late of Monson, Freelon Q. Ball administrator, was allowed by Judge Long. Mr. Munsell left his entire estate, valued at abont $750, to his housekeeper, Mrs. Mary M. Cook, and his two nephews, Pearl Munsell of Athol and Anson Pratt of Orange, at first signified their intention of opposing the will, but they finally agreed to its terms and did not appear.

Monson Academy 23, Deerfield Academy 6

In a very loosely played game Wednesday Monson Academy defeated Deerfield Academy by the score of 23 to 6. After a lead of seven runs in the second luning the home team played in an indifferent manner. Each team made 11 errors. There was considerable excitement on Main street Sunday morning, when a horse dashed down Bank street, turning into Main street, and then up North, where it was captured. The animal belonged to Harry Tucker, who was delivering cream on Cottage street, when the horse became frightened and started to run. The wagon struck a fence near the residence of H W. Sibley and tore down part of it The horse became detached from the wagon then and went on alone. Mr. Tucker procured another wagon after the horse was caught and continued on his journey.

DANGER IN DELAY.

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Palmer People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in this locality.

Hugh Cregan, 11 West Main St., Ware, Mass., says: "I think that hard work and heavy lifting weakened my kidneys and was really the cause of all my suffering. I was never free from a dull ache in my back and could not move at times on account of the sharp twinges through my loins. I was suffering from these troubles when I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box from Person's Pharmacy. It required only a few doses of this remedy to drive my trouble away and I am now free from kidney diseases."

Grange Celebrates Anniversary.

Warren Grange celebrated Friday evening the 20th anniversary of the local order, about 200 being present. The program was in charge of a committee of past masters, including William E Patrick, a member of the Massachusetts board of agriculture, as chairman, and S. Newell Cutler, Herbert N Shepard, Albert B Patrick, Alfred A Warriner, Calvin Bliss, William L Day, Fred N. Lawrence, C. M. Sylvester and Madison Weaver. It was much enjoyed. It was followed by the banquet, which was served by the women's auxiliary of the Grange, in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. Herbert N Shepard, Mrs. Calvin Bliss, Mrs. Everett E. Williams, Mrs John Sarty, Miss Jennie Rice, Mrs. John Williams and Mrs. Nettie Ward. Senator Walter B Mellen, master of the Brookfield Grange, spoke at the close of the banquet.

At a meeting of the selectmen Saturday morning, the following common victualers' licenses were granted: William Downey in the basement of Marcy's block, Mary Capeccio in the Lombard block on Main street, and Michael Zulacki in the Polish hall block on Main street. They also granted a pool table license to William Downey for two tables, to be exercised on the same premises as his common victualers' license.

At a meeting of the Camp Rio Clnb Friday evening, at the home of Frank F Phinney, the following officers were elected: President, Carl M Blair; secretary and treasurer, Charles E. Comins; executive committee, Carl M. Blair, Frank F. Phinney, George H. Burbank, Botsford R Clark and Charles E. Comins. It was decided to open camp about the 20th. L. G. Gibbs and John W. Keith were elected to a yearly membership.

A meeting of the sub-committee on teachers was held Saturday and certain changes in the teaching force of the schools were decided upon. Superintendent W. E Nims announced that Miss Etta E Sylvester had been granted a leave of absence for the rest of the school year and that Miss Edna H. Steele of Boston, a graduate of the Texas normal school and the Emerson school of oratory, had been engaged for a supply in grades seven and eight. Miss Eva Hines, who has been a teacher in grades three and four, has been transferred to grades seven and eight to take the place of Miss Kathryn Cunningham, who has accepted a similar position in the Springfield schools Miss Rebecca Holbrook of Great Barrington has been engaged to fill the vacancy in grades three and four for the rest of the year. All of these are in the high school building.

Sedgwick of Palmer Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs Sedgwick.

BELCHERTOWN.

Receives Serious Injuries.

L W. Dillon, proprietor of the grist mill on Main street in Belchertown, was seriously injured last Friday afternoon while at work. Something went wrong with the machinery and Mr. Dillon went to the basement to investigate. While making an examination of the shafting and belting one sleeve was caught by the revolving parts and he was pulled upward with such force that the clothing was torn from his body and he was terribly cut and bruised. He called for help and M. W. Thayer, who was at work on the floor above, ran to his aid. He was helped to the upper floor and Dr. J. L. Collard sent for. He found upon examination that the injuries were confined to cuts and bruises and two broken ribs. There were also several lacerations on the chest He is resting comfortably, but it will be some time before he recovers. Mr Dillon was formerly proprietor of the Park View hotel. The family was planning to move to Springfield, with Mr. Dillon retaining his business in Belchertown, going back and forth.

A Learned Russian Baby.

William Lyon Phelps tells this story about Robert Louis Stevenson as illustrating the cosmopolitanism of Russian character, which Professor Phelps says is unaccountable in a measure for the international effect and influence of Russian novels. Stevenson, writing from Mentone to his mother, Jan. 7, 1874, said: "We have two little Russian girls, with the youngest of whom, a little polyglot lution of a three-year-old, I had the most laughable little scene at lunch today. She said something in Italian which made everybody laugh very much. After some examination she announced emphatically to the whole table in German that I was a madchen. This hasty conclusion as to my sex she was led afterward to revise, but her new opinion was announced in a language quite unknown to me and probably Russian. To complete the scroll of her accomplishments she said goodby to me in very commendable English." Three days later Stevenson added: "The little Russian kid is only two and a half. She speaks six languages."

"A Right and Lawful Rood."

An example of the old rough and ready methods of arriving at a measurement is the Elizabethan way of getting the "feet." Falenth Leigh, who wrote on surveying, records that after service on Sunday sixteen men were stopped at the church door, just as they happened to come out, and drawn up in line, left foot to left foot. The length thus obtained was taken as "a right and lawful rood to measure and survey the land with," and a sixteenth part of it as "a right and lawful foot." Although big and little men were thus roughly averaged against each other, the results naturally varied to some extent. Hence it is, as Shaw Sparrow notes in treating of this "rood" as the architectural "bay" which gives us the "bay window," that a bay is sometimes found to be rather less than sixteen feet of twelve inches.—London Chronicle.

The Shepherd and His Flock.

A certain good bishop was in Italy for his health, and while walking in the country one day he met a small girl who was tending some pigs. The animals were giving her a great deal of trouble, and the good bishop offered to stay and watch the ones that were grunting and rooting in a ditch while the little shepherdess went to catch two runaways that had strayed from the fold. When she came back the reverend gentleman stroked the unkempt curly head of the child and asked her how much she earned by her hard work and was told that she received 4 soldi a day.

"Do you know," said he, "that I, too, am a shepherd? But I earn much more than you."

"Ah yes," answered the little peasant, "but no doubt you tend many more pigs than I do."

Impaling the Wild Boar.

In Germany the boar hunt occurs annually. Trained hounds are held in leash until the lair of the boars is sniffed, and then they are let go. Off rush the bristling beasts. They run fast, and the faster they skip along the wilder and "maddder" they get. Sometimes they are shot, but the correct style of killing is to use a long spear or a short swordlike knife. The hunter spies his boarship speeding along in an almost straight line, blinded with rage and ferocity. Bending over sideways to the earth, the sportsman thrusts his spear dull end downward in the soil and the sharp point slanting upward and turned directly to the boar's path. Straight on the wild hog rushes, and with all the impetus of his long flight he plunges upon the spear point and there, impaled dies a bloody death.

BASEBALL.

Opening Game To-Morrow.

The Palmer town league will open the season in Palmer to-morrow afternoon on the driving park, when the Palmer team will play Three Rivers. This will be one of the best games of the season, as both teams are out to win the first game and get a good start for the pennant. The Palmer team will be stronger than ever this year, as they have four new players. Paul of Southbridge will be the pitcher. He is a giant in size, weighing 225 pounds and standing six feet two inches high. Durkin, the catcher, is nearly as big, standing six feet and weighing 210 pounds. Edward Faulkner of Monson will play third base and it is thought he will be able to hold his own as he is considered the best third baseman around this part of the state. Towson, the other new man, will play short stop and he can hold his own with any of them. "Bill" Drexler will be on first and Provost on second, and with the new man Palmer ought not to worry about the infield. The outfield will consist of P Bronillette left field, D. Fortier center field and W. St. John right field. Three Rivers will have a strong team with McInerney and Welch of Amherst College as the battery. Mcfuerney is the pitcher who won the pennant for Bondsville last year. The other members of the Three Rivers team are Rogers, first base; T. Cole, second base; I. Cole, third base; Fournier, short stop; LeFebre, left field; Poitras, center field; Barber, right field. The grounds have been fixed up and if the baseball fans of Palmer want to see a good game this will be a fine opportunity.

Bondsville To Play Thorndike.

The Bondsville baseball team, champions of the Palmer Town League last season, will raise the pennant Saturday in the opening game with Thorndike. Batteries for Bondsville will be Connor and Sullivan, while Manley and Hurley for Thorndike will try to down the champions. A fast game is promised.

Palmer High Wins Again.

Palmer High won another victory Tuesday, when they defeated Warren High 11 to 5.

Wedding Gifts

This establishment features the present time as the opening of the season for the purchase of wedding gifts with completed and perfected displays of merchandise of unusual character and superior worth—things that cannot be bought elsewhere on this continent.

Our buyer searches Europe every year for things that do not find their way into the ordinary shops of America—Italy yields rare pieces of antique furniture, pottery of uncommon designs and colorings and the meritorious productions of modern woodworking artisans. Our buyer has hunted out little visited towns in Germany, Austria and Hungary where small almost unknown associations of peasant workers are turning out glassware, pottery and needlework that is marvelous for its quaint artistic designs and skill in the making.

From Germany, whose designers are decades ahead of the rest of the world, advance examples of their skill have been secured through avenues of approach not open to the average buyer.

This collection of rare and beautiful objects presents a unique opportunity to people who seek Gifts that cannot be duplicated.

Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The inexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases. m

The best way to carry Ashes is in a Hod!

Crawford Ranges

Have an Ash Hod in the base into which all the ashes fall far below the fire. They can't bank against the grates and warp them, and they can be emptied easily without spilling.

The Coal Hod is alongside the Ash Hod—out of the way. This feature is a wonderful labor and trouble saver and is patented.

Another trouble-saver of the Crawford is the patented Single Damper. One motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check" —the range does the rest. No damper mistakes.

The Oven has cup-joint heat flues that heat it alike in all parts.

Ask the Crawford agent to show you and write us for circular.

IS LAND HELD ILLEGALLY?

Has B. and A. Right to Main Street Property?

MAY HAVE TO SELL TO INDIVIDUALS

Decision of the Supreme Court Seems to Apply to Situation in Palmer.

The question which has often been asked and never answered to the satisfaction of many Palmer people — the legality of the Boston and Albany's occupancy of the land between Main street and its tracks — is again brought up by a decision of the supreme court Tuesday in connection with the Park Square station property in Boston. There the New Haven road started to transfer the property to a realty company for improvement, but the supreme court rules — in effect — that the railroad cannot go into the real estate business on those lines; that while the property came to the railroad legitimately it must be used for railroad purposes or sold and the proceeds devoted to railroad purposes.

Those who know the history of the Palmer strip of land alluded to above will see at once how this decision, if applicable to the Palmer situation, and there seems no good reason why it is not, will mean much to the town of Palmer from a business standpoint. If the decision applies to Palmer the land in question must be sold, in which case it would pass into the hands of persons who would probably erect permanent and substantial buildings thereon, and business would be more evenly divided between the two sides of the street.

The land in question comprises the strip between Main street and the tracks of the Boston and Albany railroad between Bridge street and the easterly line of the Flynt Company's office. It is occupied by Caryl's block, Armour's block, Fillmore's grain store block, Stone & Son's grocery block, Eager's block, and the office of the Flynt Building and Construction Company. The railroad claims ownership in the land and the owners of the buildings are tenants at will, being able to obtain leases of only one year's duration.

The land was given, prior to 1840, to the Western railroad by John Shaw and John Watson, on condition that it should remain the property of the railroad company as long as a building for the receipt and discharge of freight was maintained upon it. The company built such a house, and one still stands on the west end of the tract; it is many years however since it was used for freight purposes, and there is no way of reaching it with a team if a freight business were installed there. The tract of land remained open for years, but when the new passenger station was built years ago it was fenced off. Later leases of lots were given and buildings were erected for business purposes. Something like a dozen years ago heirs of the grantors employed an attorney to determine whether, with the closing of the freighthouse, the railroad had not forfeited its right to the land. He decided that as the building had been so closed for over 20 years without protest from the heirs, they had no cause for action. Now comes the decision of the supreme court that the railroads cannot hold land in this way, but must use it for railroad purposes or turn it into money and use the money. Whether any move will be made in the Palmer matter remains to be seen.

There can be no question but the forcing of the railroad to dispose of the land would be a great benefit to the town of Palmer. Its Main street has always been one-sided, nearly all of the business being on the north side. Retail dealers have been loath to establish themselves on the south side until within a comparative recent time; they have found it possible to do a good business there however, and the objection to that side has gradually died out. But there was the one-year lease condition to contend with, and that was a great discourager to any who might contemplate the erection of business property. If the land could be disposed of to individuals there is little question but that business blocks of handsome design and permanent construction would fill the space within a few years.

Killed in Freight Wreck.

Ware Young Man Meets Death in Collision on B. and M.

Roscoe L. Webber, 22, of Ware was killed near White River Junction, Vt., early Sunday morning in a freight wreck, in which three others were killed and three seriously injured. The trains, which were going in opposite directions, were a Central Vermont local freight, bound from White River Junction for Springfield, and a north-bound Boston and Maine freight with consignments from Springfield for White River Junction. The wreckage caught fire and several of the bodies were badly burned. Overlapping of orders by which both trains are said to have received official word to continue in opposite directions over the single track is declared by the engineers to have been the cause of the collision.

Roscoe L. Webber, who was the fireman on the Boston and Maine freight, was the son of Henry A. Webber of Cottage street in Ware. His father is an engineer on the Massachusetts Central division of the Boston and Maine road. He leaves besides his father, a mother and three sisters, Eva M., Mildred N. and Sarah I. Webber, all of Ware. Mr. Webber went to White River Junction and brought the body to Ware Monday morning. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at 2, Rev. F. W. Smith, pastor of the Unitarian church officiating. Burial was Wednesday in Lexington Rev. O J Fairfield of Littleton, formerly of Ware, officiated at the grave.

Hearing on North Wilbraham Road.

A public hearing was held in the selectmen's room in North Wilbraham Tuesday in regard to laying out a public highway from the state road through property of the Collins estate and Manchonis Club, between the clubhouse and Nine Mile Pond, to the so-called island owned by H. A. Northrop in Wilbraham. Mr. Northrop owns several summer houses on the Island and has another in process of construction. A petition with about 40 names has been presented to the selectmen by him. A misunderstanding in the date of the hearing resulted in a small attendance and little was done in laying out the proposed new road. Mr. Potter, a representative of the club, argued that a public road between the clubhouse and the pond would be a damage to the club which would claim a damage of $2000. Other arguments pro and con were listened to by those present and it is probable the matter will be brought up in the next town-meeting.

Pomona Grange Meeting.

Interesting Program at Brimfield Wednesday; Large Attendance.

Quaboag Pomona Grange held its monthly meeting in Brimfield Wednesday. The literary program was furnished by the Brimfield Grange and the exercises were open to all Grange members in the fourth degree. The out-of-town Granges represented in the attendance were those of New Braintree, West Brookfield, Warren, Southbridge, Sturbridge, North Brookfield and Spencer. Among the officers present were Master Edwin L. Havens of New Braintree, Overseer John H. Webb of West Brookfield, Lecturer Mrs. Bertie A. Barnes of Brimfield, Secretary Mrs. Carrie E Webb of West Brookfield.

The morning program was opened by words of welcome by Worthy Master Albert R. Brown of the Brimfield Grange, who was responded to by A. A. Warriner of Warren. Mrs. George W. Sherman sang a solo, after which Rev. William Jennings gave a paper on "Colonial education." Dinner was served by the local grange in the town hall dining-room to about 80 people, after which the assembly was photographed under the trees of the church common. The exercises of the afternoon were opened by a vocal duet by Mrs. George W. Sherman and Rev. William Jennings, after which Mr. Jennings sang a solo. A farce, "The Greatest Plague in Life," was then presented by Mrs. Albert Brown, Miss Dunsmore, Mrs. Barnes, Mrs Hitchcock, Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. Stowell, Mrs. Clarence Brown. Next came a xylophone solo by Mrs. George F. Kenney This was followed by remarks on the value of the Pomona Grange by W. E. Patrick of Warren, Pomona state deputy, after which Mrs. Kenney played a piano solo, Rev. William Jennings sang and Mrs. Kenney gave a short recitation, after which Principal G. F. Kenney of the Hitchcock Free Academy played a 'cello solo, and responded to an encore. The exercises closed with remarks by W. H. Eccleston of Southbridge, master of the Worcester Southwest Pomona Grange.

Hampden Wants Trolley.

Citizens Are Anxious to Have Line Built There From Springfield.

That the people of Hampden are anxious for a trolly line was evidenced at a conference held Tuesday with L. S. Storrs, president of the Springfield Street Railway company in Springfield, regarding an extension of the railway to that town. The project has been advocated by the citizens for some time, and their representatives brought to the office of Mr Storrs facts and figures to show that the extension would be of benefit not only to the town but also to the street railway company. Mr. Storrs stated after the conference that nothing definite had been decided, but the matter would be taken under consideration.

The plan is to extend the present East Longmeadow line by way of Scantic, which would make a distance of five miles to Hampden. It is not thought it would be necessary to keep closely to the highway all the distance, but short cuts could be made that would not only lessen the distance but add to the beauty of the ride in the summer. So desirous are the people of Hampden for the line that the question of land damages would be an insignificant factor in the undertaking.

The arguments were used that the street railway would have no competition with any other railway line and it needs only connection by rail with the outside world to set the town on the boom. It has fine water power that can be developed and the growth of the town in a short time would soon make the extension a paying investment.

Three Days of Palmer Fair.

Directors Decide to Try Experiment of an Additional Day.

The growing success of the Palmer Fair, resulting in an increase of attendance each year, has brought from many sources the suggestion of a three-days' fair instead of two. After considering the proposition for two or three years the directors decided that this would be a good year in which to try the experiment. Application was accordingly made to the State Board of Agriculture for permission to hold a fair three days instead of two. The request was granted and accordingly the fair will begin on Thursday, October 4, instead of Friday, the 5th, and continue through the week. The program for Friday and Saturday will be practically the same as in the past, but several new features will be added for Thursday, the opening day. The executive committee is at work on the details, which will probably be announced within a few days.

The committee on speed classes has three stake races, as follows:

2.27 trot,	Purse, $600
2.23 trot, 2.25 pace,	Purse, 600
2.15 trot, 2.18 pace,	Purse, 600

The payments are $10 June 3, $10 July 1 and $10 August 1; horses to be named July 1. The reputation which the Palmer Fair has earned of generous treatment for the horsemen should ensure a large list of entries and starters in each class. The class races have not been determined yet, but will be announced later.

Holland Pastor Installed.

A Pleasing Service in This Rural Town Last Week Thursday.

Rev. Martin Lovering was installed as pastor of the Congregational church in Holland last week Thursday. In response to letters sent by the church to several churches of the Brookfield conference, a council assembled to ordain the pastor. The council was called to order by Rev. Mr. Rowell of Southbridge. Rev. Mr. Hall of Southbridge was elected scribe.

The ordination service was appointed for 2 p. m. The council composed of delegates and invited guests, then repaired to the parsonage, where the women of the church had prepared a collation and a pleasant time was enjoyed.

The program was as follows: Invocation by Rev. Mr. Powell; scripture reading by Rev. Mr. McClennon; ordination sermon by Rev. P. A. Job of Carlisle; ordaining prayer by Rev. Mr. Hall; right hand of fellowship by Rev. Mr. Tolman. The choir rendered several hymns, Mrs. Lovering, wife of the pastor, presiding at the organ.

Mr. Lovering is a graduate of Phillips Academy, Andover, and also of Yale college. He taught for 17 years, as instructor in private school, as principal, superintendent and dean of Talladega college.

HAMPDEN.

W. J. Sessions has moved into the house on his new fruit farm.

Miss Hazel Pease was pleasantly surprised by a party of friends one evening recently and presented with a locket and chain.

In the district court Tuesday morning, Paul Tybnski of Thorndike was found guilty of assault and paid a fine of $5.

AFTER AUTO SPEEDERS.

Officers Work North Main Street Trap on Sunday.

ONE DRIVER SUMMONED INTO COURT

Traveled 25 Miles an Hour, But is Discharged; New Ruling of the Supreme Court.

Auto speeding through the streets of Palmer was given attention by the officers last Sunday, and a number of pleasure riders had the enjoyment of an otherwise perfect day marred by the suggestion that they might be required to appear in court later on a charge of overspeeding. The numbers of several machines were taken, but so far only one owner has been summoned to appear, so presumably the others were just within the speed required by law, or so near it that complaint was not deemed necessary.

The one man summoned to appear was Edward R. Smith of Brookline, and the time set was Tuesday morning. Mr. Smith did not show up. In his stead came his counsel, who announced that his client would enter a plea of guilty. But Judge Kenefick said nix. He announced that the District Court of Eastern Hampden had not yet reached a stage where defendants were tried by proxy, and declined to begin such a custom. He stated that he had not heard the evidence, and did not propose to do so until the defendant was in court. The case was continued until this morning, when counsel for the defendant promised to have his client appear

Mr. Smith was in court this morning, represented by counsel. The charge against him was for "operating an automobile on a public highway at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic and the use of said public way and the safety of the public."

It was shown that Smith traveled a measured eighth of a mile on North Main street from Squier street east at a rate of 25 miles an hour. There were no other vehicles in the highway except a single carriage going west on the opposite side of the street, with ample space between. Mr. Smith slowed his car to make the turn into Thorndike street, and when a photo was taken of the car asked if he couldn't settle the matter there.

Counsel for Smith called attention to a decision of the supreme court made yesterday in automobile cases, and submitted that it had not been shown that the car was operated at a speed dangerous to traffic of occupancy of the highway. In this Judge Kenefick agreed and discharged the defendant.

The decision of the supreme court, alluded to in the case, is, that there is no absolute or fixed limit at which automobiles may be operated in Massachusetts. The court decided that if a jury finds that the rate of speed was reasonable and proper, having regard to traffic, use of the way and safety of the public, it should find for a defendant no matter at what rate of speed he operated the machine.

BASEBALL.

Palmer League Season Opens.

The Palmer Town League season opened last Saturday with games between Palmer and Three Rivers at Palmer, and Bondsville and Thordike at Bondsville, Palmer and Bondsville winning.

The game at Palmer was close. The Palmer catcher, Durkin, injured his ankle in the sixth while sliding to home and was replaced by St. John, who caught a good game. The game was saved for Palmer by Lawson's catch of a hot liner from T. Cole in the ninth. The score:

Ware high defeated the Emmanuels of Springfield in Ware Saturday afternoon by the score of 17 to 14.

The Palmer league games to-morrow will be: Palmer and Three Rivers, at Three Rivers, Bondsville and Thorndike at Thorndike.

Wesleyan Academy defeated Worcester South high school, 13 to 1, at Wilbraham Saturday afternoon. The game was too one-sided to be exciting, but there was some good playing.

BRIMFIELD.

Miss Lydia Hitchcock has been visiting friends in Ware.

Mrs. Augusta Moore of Springfield, formerly of Brimfield, has been visiting at the home of George Webster.

Among the guests at the hotel last week were Miss Keneran of Boston of the adoption department of the state board of charities, Mrs. M. B. Bixley of Thompson, Ct., Mr. B. W. Chamberlain of Worcester and Mrs. Caroline Hitchcock of Meriden, Ct.

Mrs. Minerva Walker Parker of Chicopee, a former resident of Brimfield, spent last week at the home of George M. Hitchcock. Mrs. Parker was a member of the first class that entered Hitchcock Free Academy and was associated with Principal Joseph Scott as an assistant in that institution.

Doings of the Legislature.

The Scrap Over the Treasurer's Accounts—Attempt to Shorten Sessions—Taxation Problems—Are Railway Employes Intimidated?—Farmers Against Their Own Interests—Moth and Agricultural College Appropriations.

BOSTON, May 17, 1911.

Each of the chief combatants who have occupied the center of the stage this week, —Treasurer Stevens and Expert Chase,—is absolutely confident in his own mind that he has completely chewed up the other. Mr. Treasurer Stevens said to me this morning: "I did not leave that fellow a leg to stand on. He changed his table from what it was when he presented it to me. He got completely mixed up and we left absolutely nothing of him." On the other hand, Expert Chase has continued to hurl his epithets at Stevens with profuseness, sharpness and persistence, as if an epithet were a fact and an assertion were equal to a demonstration. Each is doubtless correct as to the matter of fact which he states. It is when they come to the expressions of personal opinions about each other that they become interesting. Mr. Chase says that he found four serious errors, involving $100,000, in Treasurer Stevens's accounts. Stevens admits the four errors, but, what of it. One was due to the misplacing of the decimal point and the others were merely a transportation of figures such as are liable to occur in any accountant's work and which do not show anything wrong in the administration of the office. On the other hand, Stevens points out that the methods proposed by Chase as improvements in the way of keeping the accounts and paying the interest on the bonds for whose redemption sinking funds are established, are wholly outside of the law and that he could not follow such methods without new legislation. There has been large public interest in these personal collisions, judging by the crowd at the hearings, and Representative White of Brookline, attacking Chase, is always an interesting figure. We are not nearly through this expert business yet, and the prospect is that legislation will be delayed on account of the investigation.

There was an interesting hearing this forenoon before the committee to investigate and report upon the shortening of the legislative session. Senator Bennett of Essex is chairman and the other senator is Senator Barnes of Norfolk. The House members are Messrs. Haigis of Montague, Wells of Haverhill and Conway of Boston. It was an instructive opening in the fact that the only member of the committee to be on hand at the time when the hearing was advertised to begin was Mr. Haigis of Montague, and he barely arrived in time. There was more delay than there ought to have been in beginning, and this is the very thing which prolongs the session. It is easy enough for an observer of experience to see how time might be saved all along the line and still serve the public better than now. First of all things, the members ought to saw wood, persistently and faithfully. That will shorten the sessions more than any other device which they can invent. Some improved methods are imperative if the Legislature is to keep up with the constant annual and inevitable increase of necessary and important business which the people bring as our organic state life becomes more complicated, rapid, and approaches the ideal of popular government to which we are evidently tending. If methods were followed now which were in force 25 years ago, the session would never end before August. Improvement has been made all along the line, and it must be made constantly in the future. Only thus will the end come in the first half of the year. Great need exists of a higher public spirit, and the people ought to keep close watch of their representatives. Our legislation and our Legislatures are improving, in spite of popular impressions to the contrary, but the demand is urgent for better standards still.

This has been a day when taxation problems have come to the front. Take Gov. Foss's long message with recommendations for two constitutional amendments to permit a personal property income tax and for the promotion of forestry, the large vote in the House for the bill to distribute the non-resident corporation excise tax to the cities and towns where the industrial plants are situated, thereby taking some $550,000 out of the state treasury in a year which must be made up by general taxation, and Speaker Walker's constitutional amendment for an income tax, regardless of the source whence the income is derived, and it is clear that the taxation problem is coming to the front in larger importance than ever. At the same time, it is clear, also, that this subject is one on which there is as little intelligent public opinion as on any public issue before the people. Sentiment is strongly against tax-dodging, but sentiment does not make a good taxation system, or, to put it otherwise, sentiment does not supply brains, and that is the need of the times on the taxation. Moreover, thorough grasps of taxation problems is not to be gained by sitting on the bleachers at baseball games, and as long as the popular diversion of the voters is at ball games, rather than in studying out practicable and just systems of taxation, just so long are the tax laws likely to be a mere jumble because of lack of popular intelligence to make better. Gov. Foss puts some food for reflection upon the legislative plate, and so has Speaker Walker. Now the question is whether the voters will assimilate it. For 25 years they have turned against it, and always to their own hurt.

A practical question, in estimating the demands for industrial reform before the Legislature, is how far the corporations intimidate their employees so as to make the situation seem different from what it really is. Important testimony upon the attitude of street railway corporations was brought out in the debate in the House this afternoon on the bill for nine hours in a consecutive bill as a day's work for conductors and motormen. It was said against the bill that the railway men themselves did not want it because it would cause so much loss of wages to so many of them if they were deprived of the right to work as long as they wanted to. But it was said that a secret canvass had been made of the employes of the Boston elevated railway company and it was found that a majority of the men do want the bill. One of the Republican members, Mr. Greenwood of Everett, said that he had tried to talk with the men, but found difficulty until they were assured that could talk to him in confidence and safety. Then he got their real feelings, which were in favor of the bill. It was brought out in the debate that the member who put in the first bill of the sort was a member from South Boston, who was a railway employe and he lost his position because he did it. The mem-

Barbed Wire Barricade

Being Built by B. and A. Railroad to Prevent Crossing Tracks.

The Boston and Albany railroad is making a strenuous effort to prevent people from climbing the fence between the Eager block and the Flynt Company's office on Main street and by this means crossing the tracks to the passenger station. Ever since the office of the Flynt company was built and the fence preventing crossing put up—about 25 or 30 years ago—the road has had trouble with those who wished to make a short cut to the station by this route. Boards would disappear from the tight high board fence along the railroad line, leaving a convenient hole, and when these were replaced and a barbed wire run along the top an opening was made in a new place. Barbed wire was run along the top of the picket fence between the Eager block and the Flynt office, but a passageway on the east side of the former made it easy to climb over the wires, and in time some of them were cut and disappeared. This week the railroad has instaled higher posts and fastened on them four strands of new barbed wire, which appears to be so placed that it will be inconvenient at least to get through or over it. What the result will be remains to be seen.

Water Reservoir Not Low.

Plenty There at Present, In Spite of Reports to Contrary.

A report has been in circulation during the past week or two that the water in the reservoirs of the Palmer Water Company was at a very low point. One report went so far as to say that it was nearly all gone in the storage reservoir. Such reports are decidedly unfair and misleading, as both reservoirs are practically full to the brim at the present time. The shutting off of the railroads last fall is saving at least 150,000 gallons a day for local consumption, and that is a lot of water. At the same time, in view of the long-continued drought—continuing over the last two years—water takers will do well to use the finid carefully and economically. While there is plenty of it, apparently, on hand at the present time, there is no knowing how long it will be before there are rains sufficient to swell the streams and springs, and Palmer's supply is dependant on one small brook and a few comparatively insignificant springs. However, there is little doubt but that with care there will be sufficient water for all needs during the coming summer.

Sunday School Convention.

Westfield Baptist Association to Meet in Palmer Next Week.

The seventy-eighth convention of the Bible schools of the Westfield Baptist Association will be held with the Baptist church in Palmer next Wednesday, beginning at 10 o'clock. After devotional exercises there will be an address on "Personal responsibility of the teacher," by Rev. W. W. Weeks D. D. of Springfield, and one on "The word in the heart" by Rev. H. E. Horr of Newton Center. Dinner will be served at 12.15. At 2 in the afternoon will be opened a discussion on "Teacher's preparation." "The boy problem" will be the subject of an address at 3 o'clock by Ernest E. Butler of Malden, and Secretary W. W. Main will speak on "Our state work," to be followed by Rev. Newton M. Hall D. D. of Springfield on "The advance class." The sessions are open to the public, and all are cordially invited.

Lively Runaway—No One Hurt.

There was a lively runaway on Main street Wednesday afternoon, and for a moment there was every indication that the services of a surgeon would be needed immediately, but fortunately no hurts were suffered by anyone. A horse owned by Joseph Belanger of Three Rivers and attached to a road cart became frightened near the foot of Wainut street and, by a quick turn left his driver on the paving. The animal then started west on a keen run. At Ellithorpe's hardware store it took to the sidewalk and started for the street railway waiting room, where were numerons passengers just off the cars, the cart turning up on one wheel and dragging along in that position. Everybody "ducked" and, arriving at the waiting room the horse took to the paving again, the cart righting itself. The animal then started west at a derby-winning clip, but west of the Point of Rocks dodged around a house and left the cart hanging on the front piazza; a run of a quarter of a mile further brought it to the stable of the Wright Wire Company, and it concinded to stop there for further orders. The greatest damage was to the feelings of the driver, with slight injuries to the cart and harness.

To Mitigate Smoke Nuisance.

Numerous complaints have been made of late to the officials of the Boston and Albany railroad "higher up" of the smoke and noise nuisance attendant on the roundhouse on North Main street. The smoke has been unusually disagreeable at times this spring, and persons living in that immediate vicinity have been obliged to close the windows of their rooms at night. The complaints have borne fruit to this extent, that the officials have delegated a man to make a thorough investigation of the conditions and the matters complained of, and do all possible to remedy the trouble. He is now "on the job" and results are expected in the near future.

Sick Man Found.

Charles Kyz, a native of Poland, was found in the street railway waiting room yesterday morning lying on one of the settees in an enfeebled condition unable to rise. The overseers of the poor were notified and removed him. He was injured about three months ago in one of the Thorndike Company's mills, and being a state charge was sent to Tewksbury, from which he was released last week as cured. How he came to Palmer and when he reached the waiting room is not known. He was returned to Tewksbury.

Auto and Motocycle Collide.

There was a collision on the Warren road Monday between a motocycle and an automobile, but fortunately without serious results to either or those in charge. The motocyclist came to Palmer and remained until Tuesday evening nursing several bruises and places where portions of the epidermis were missing, and in repairing the machine, which was somewhat the worse for the encounter. The auto escaped unhurt.

Hotel Fire Escapes All Right.

The board of engineers of the fire district made a round of the hotels of the town Wednesday, examining the fire escapes, as they are required to do annually in May. At every place the conditions were found to be of the best, with nothing to criticise.

Mrs. S. W. Gardner is spending several weeks with her daughter in Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Julia A. Huntington of Agawam is visiting her sister, Mrs. Eliza Taylor, at the home of Mrs. G. A. Bills on Pleasant street.

Meetings Will Continue.

Evangelistic Services at Advent Chapel Being Well Attended.

Rev. Charles W. Shattuck of Somerville, who has been holding evangelistic services this week in the Advent chapel on Park street, will remain another week at least. The attendance at the meetings has been very encouraging, and a good deal of interest has been manifested. Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mr. Shattuck will speak on "The power and relationship of the church," and in the evening at 7, on "A Heavenly legacy—how obtained." The meetings will be continued every evening but Saturday of next week.

Mrs. H. W. Stimson has been visiting her son at Cornell University, Utica, N. Y., this week.

Leander Rood of Noroton, Ct., is visiting his daughter, Mrs H. P Letters of Pleasant street.

R. J. Fuller of North Attleboro, a former superintendent of schools, has been in town a part of the week.

The Sunday school of St. Mary's Mission will meet Sunday afternoon at 2 15. Service and sermon at 3.15.

Mrs. Theodore Noble of Buffalo, N. Y., and Mrs. C. S. Switzer of New York city are guests of Mrs. Josephine Fay Baker.

Mrs. F. F. Marcy has returned from a trip to Mt. Vernon, N. Y., where she has been visiting the family of W. E. Breckenridge.

The contract for installing the new heating apparatus in the fire engine house has been awarded to the E. Brown Company of Palmer.

Miss Laura Arentzen and Miss Frances Chandler of North Main street are spending a few days at the home of the former in Hyde Park.

Miss Edna Lavene, who has been visiting the family of W. F. Fillmore of Knox street, has returned to her home in Nashua, N. H.

Mrs. D. F. Dillon and son, William, have returned from a two-weeks' visit in Springfield with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Simpson.

Dr. J. P. Schneider left yesterday for an absence from town of about a month, during which time his practice will be cared for by Dr. W. A. Chase of Boston.

Members of the Grand Army post, Woman's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans will attend service in a body at the Union church in Three Rivers Sunday evening at 5.30.

Rev. F. S. Brewer has been in Haverhill this week, attending the meeting of the state association of Congregational churches as delegate from the Palmer church.

Rev. F. S. Brewer and Theodore A. Norman attended the state association of Congregational churches at Haverhill Tuesday as delegates from the Congregational church.

J. J. Donahue and J. T. Maloney, who are delegates from Court Palmer, F. of A., have been in Holyoke this week, attending the annual convention of the grand court of Foresters of America.

Mrs. Carrie Holbrook is adding another building to the collection at "Oak Point," Forest Lake, which has been occupied as a camping ground by the Holbrook and Fish families for about 20 years or more.

The Gordon Bible class of the Baptist church held a social in the church vestry Monday evening, when E B. Taylor gave a talk on his recent trip to Jamaica, illustrating it with views shown by aid of the reflectroscope.

The E G. Woods property on the southerly side of School street, the equity in which was owned by Worcester parties, was sold under foreclosure Monday afternoon by the Ware Savings bank for $2100 to George A. and Harriett Branford.

A grass fire started on the railroad banking back of Whitcomb Bros.' store on South Main street Wednesday afternoon, from a spark from a locomotive, and spread to the fence, which was damaged to some extent. The blaze was put out by railroad employes.

The firemen were called out about 6 30 Sunday evening for a brush fire on the road from the carpet mill to Palmer Center. The blaze was in young growth and burned fiercely for a time, but the men managed by hard work to get it under control and out.

The selectmen have begun preparations for the construction of the new permanent road in Bondsville, voted by the town at the annual meeting in March. W. H. Brainerd is doing the engineering work, and it is expected that plans and specifications will be ready for bidders in about two weeks.

Rev. George S. Rollins, D. D., pastor of the Hope Congregational church of Springfield, will exchange with the pastor of the Congregational church Sunday morning. Sunday school at 12, Christian Endeavor at 6; subject, "Grown into larger work." Evening service at 7, with sermon by the pastor.

Rev. H S. Foster of Willimansett will preach at the Baptist church next Sunday morning in exchange with the pastor. Bible school at 12, Y. P. S. C. E. at 6 15, evening worship at 7 The pastor will preach the third sermon in the series on Jacob, subject "Jacob's flight from home." All are invited.

Mrs. H. E. Ware, who has been spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. D L Bodfish of Central street, started last week for her home in North Anson, Me. She stopped over night at the Young Woman's Christian Association in Portland, Me., and in descending the stairs Monday fell and dislocated her shoulder. Mrs. Bodfish left Monday to care for her.

There was a brave attempt at a thunder storm last Friday evening about 9 o'clock, but that was all. Rain fell for about two minutes, but not enough to lay the dust. There was a good deal of sharp lightning, but it was at a distance. The storm passed to the northwest of Palmer. A church was struck at Indian Orchard, and in the vicinity of North Adams much damage was done.

The play "Messmates" was presented in the opera house Wednesday evening by the Y. P. C. U. of St. Paul's church to an audience which filled every seat in the house. All the parts were unusually well taken, and the presentation was greatly enjoyed. The cast was trained by Dr. G. A. Moore, to whom is due a large measure of credit for the smoothness of the production.

Mrs. T. J. Tipper, Mrs. L. E. Chandler and Mrs. F. S. Gordon represented the Palmer Woman's Club at a neighborhood meeting held by the Ludlow woman's club at that place Wednesday. The meeting was held at the farm of E. N. Fisher, about two and a half miles from the center. Teams met the delegates at the electric cars, and a dainty lunch was served after the program.

The crew of the electric car reaching Palmer from Springfield at 1 15 Sunday morning had a peculiar and novel experience, in that they chased deer through the street for upward of a mile. As the car approached the Point of Rocks on North Main street the motorman saw two small deer in the street, having apparently come from the woods on the hill. Probably bewildered by the glare of the headlight, they started along Main street ahead of the car, continuing to the business section, where the car stopped. When the car came to a standstill the deer stopped in the center of the street some distance ahead, and turned to look at the car, and while standing there were seen by several people. When the car started for the car barn the deer ran through Main street to the bridge over the Boston and Albany tracks, crossed this into South Main street, and when the car reached that point had disappeared.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
HAMPDEN, ss. Springfield, May 16, 1911.

By virtue of an execution which issued on a judgment recovered in the Superior Court holden at Springfield within and for our County of Hampden, on the first day of May, A. D. 1911, in favor of Peter McCarthy and Mary F. McCarthy, both of East Longmeadow, in said County of Hampden, and against Thomas A. Kennedy of New York, in the County and State of New York, I have this day seized and taken all the right, title and interest which the said Thomas A. Kennedy had on the twenty-fourth day of February, A. D. 1911, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, being the time the same was specially attached on mesne process, in and to the fowing described parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in East Longmeadow, said County, and bounded and described as follows, to wit:—

A certain tract or parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in East Longmeadow, in said County, being Lot No. 48 on plan of lots recorded in the Registry of Deeds for said County of Hampden, Book 453, Page 600, on the southerly side of Fifth street, and beginning at a point one hundred thirty-two (132) feet westerly of Edmund street; thence running southerly one hundred thirty-two (132) feet; thence westerly sixty-six (66) feet; thence northerly one hundred thirty-two (132) feet; thence easterly sixty-six (66) feet to the place of beginning.

And on Saturday, the seventeenth day of June, 1911, at twelve o'clock noon, at entrance to Court House on Elm street, in said Springfield, I shall offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder said right, title and interest in and to said real estate, to satisfy said execution and all fees and charges of sale.

Principal Dewing of the Academy has received notification from the New England Certificate Board that Monson Academy has been granted the certificate privilege for three years, until January 1, 1915. This certificate privilege is granted upon the new course of study as instituted last year.

Representatives of the St. Valerian Minstrels have been in town the past week securing local coloring for their jokes. They promise that no prominent or popular townsman will be slighted in their friendly notices. The tickets are meeting with a ready sale, and an evening of old time minstrelsy promises a good time to all who attend.

Tree Warden Johnson, who has had the town spraying machine ont working for private families for the past week, started in Tuesday spraying the elm trees of the town. Last fall it was thought that a parasite had exterminated the elm beetles but they seem as numerous as ever this spring. This year the selectmen are determined to be very thorough in this work and will have the elm trees sprayed as soon as they leave out.

The selectmen have fonnd it necessary to postpone the work on the building of the Mill street sidewalk for which money was appropriated at the last annual town meeting. In looking over the town records it is found that the street has never been properly laid out. They show that the street was partially laid out in the early 40's, but the records are so vague as to be practically worthless. The county commissioners will probably be petitioned to relocate the street. The residents of Thompson street, which runs parallel with Mill street, will also ask to have that street properly laid out at the same time.

G. Cantwell, teacher of music, in the public schools, has charge of the entertainment.

The Academy baseball team annexed two more games to the winning column during the past week. Chicopee high school was found an easy victim last Friday afternoon, the home team winning hy the score of 5 to 0, and last Wednesday they easily defeated the Springfield Training School second team 6 to 1. Elliot pitched both of these games and showing excellent form. Dunsford is showing a great improvement in his throwing, not a man stealing a base on him in the last two games. Capt. Bowker is playing a more snappy game than any of the other infielders, and leads the team in hase running. To-morrow the Academy team will play the Hartford high school team on the Washington street grounds.

On their arrival they decided npon an immediate operation, which was successfully performed at Miss McGnigan's home by Dr. Boucher, assisted by the two Hartford doctors.

Pottery Work In China.

The Chinese are pioneers in the art of pottery, the rapidity with which they construct pots being marvelous. One man will mold two ten-inch pots in three minutes. The potter's wheel is the essential part of the equipment. The workman's left hand is gently thrust into the center of the clay, while his right hand is slightly pressing on the outside to keep the whole together, but it is from the inside that most of the shaping is done. Meanwhile the "wheel" is made to turn more quickly. Then, by keeping both hands opposite each other—i. e., one inside and one outside—together moving slowly up from the wheel, pressure by both hands is exerted, and the shapeless mass of clay assumes the shape of a pot with astonishing rapidity. A thin piece of wood is used to flatten the rim, and usually the same piece is used to measure the pot to see if it is the correct size.

A Smart Man.

"He seems to he very clever."

"Yes, indeed. He can even do the problems that his children have to work out in school." — Detroit Free Press.

Wanted It Realistic.

A certain New York theatrical manager is noted for the exquisite beauty of his stage settings. One day, rehearsing a moonlight scene, he found fault with the moon. First the moon was too bright, then it was too dull. Now its beams were too yellow and now they were too pale. Finally, after holding up the rehearsal for twenty minutes, the manager tore out in a great rage to arrange the moon himself. On the stage a pause ensued. During the pause the lending lady said wearily to the villain:

"Oh, dear! What are we waiting for now?"

"Nothing much," the villain answered. "The boss wants a real moon, and he's gone to fetch it, that's all."

Willing to Tell It.

The check which the comely young German woman handed in at the window of a Walnut street savings fund bank the other day was made payable to Gretchen H. Schmidt, and she had indorsed it simply Gretchen Schmidt. The man at the receiving teller's window called her back to rectify the mistake just as she was turning away.

"You don't deposit this quite this way," he explained. "See, you have forgotten the H."

The young woman looked at her check and blushed a rosy red.

"Ach, so I haf," she murmured and wrote hurriedly:

"Age twenty-three." — Philadelphia Times.

Knocking Out the Sentiment.

The man who found a girl's name and address on an egg sent a sentimental note to the writer in which he said he had put the egg aside and meant to save it until he heard from her.

"Better not save it any longer," the girl wrote back. "The egg must have been a half dozen years old when I wrote on it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No More Getaways.

"Wardens of state prisons are cogitating the proposition to hold a convention."

"What's the prop?"

"To put hobble trousers on prisoners and do awny with the lockstep."

GOOD AND EVIL.

The best gifts, those that we should covet above all others if we understood their value, are not those which may or may not chance to come to us, but those which must inevitably follow us when we are good and true, faithful and wise. The worst calamities are not those which may come upon us unawares, but those which follow from conscious wrongdoing.

HAPPY RESULTS.

Have Made Many Palmer Residents Enthusiastic.

No wonder scores of Palmer citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make anyone happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Palmer by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. M. Barton, 307 South Main St., Palmer Mass., says: "My faith in Doan's Kidney Pills is just as strong to-day as it was when I publicly recommended them in 1898. For a long time I was troubled a great deal by severe pains through my loins when going up or down stairs. If I sat in one position for any length of time or did any extra work, my suffering was acute. I finally began using Doan's Kidney Pills and received great relief from the first. I continued taking them and it was not long before all the symptoms of kidney trouble had disappeared."

BONDSVILLE.

THOMAS—FENTON.

Miss Lena Thomas Bride of Three Rivers Man.

A very pretty wedding took place Monday morning at the residence of Rev. Fr. Thomas Kennedy, when Miss Lena Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thomas, became the bride of Albert Fenton of Three Rivers. The ceremony was performed by Rev Thomas Kennedy. It was also the 54th anniversary of the bride's parents. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary Sullivan, and the best man was a nephew of the bride, Richard Thomas of Springfield. The bride wore a gown of cream serge and carried bride roses. The bridesmaid was dressed in white mull, and she carried white carnations. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a ruby ring, and the groom's gift to the best man was a ruby stick pin, the ruby being the birthstone of both. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents dinner being served from 1 o'clock to 3 30 After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Fenton left for a wedding tour to New York and Boston; on their return they will be at their new home, Ruggles Corner in Three Rivers, to receive their friends after May 21. Guests were present from Boston, Northampton, Springfield, Hartford, Chicopee Falls and Three Rivers. Mr. and Mrs. Fenton received many valuable gifts among which were a dining room set from Mr. Fenton's brother and sister; dinner set from the groom's parents; library table from Mr. Fenton's aunt; cut glass from friends; check for $100 from Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thomas; two fancy rockers from Miss Katherine Thomas; two dining room pictures from Mrs. J. P. Dolphin; toilet set from Katie Flaherty; tablecloth and napkins from Mrs. James Trefew; two parlor pictures from Mrs. Lucy Campbell; silver knives and forks from Mr. and Mrs. Giroux; silver sugar spoon from Elmer Gironx.

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

bers who insisted that there is intimidation of the employe on the part of the railway companies made out an apparently conclusive case that such intimidation does exist. The House gave a large majority for the bill, but it is certain that the opposition will try its best to kill it in the Senate, if it gets there. Other instances of similar intimidation could be given.

The farmers of the state were up in arms against a bill which Representative Howard of Easton has substituted, also without debate, for an adverse committee report, requiring men who cut down trees in woods to clear up their lots so that there shall be no brush or slash within 50 feet of the next man's lot. The purpose of the bill was to prevent the spread of forest fires. Strong testimony was given of the destruction of large amounts of property because of the spread of fires from one man's lot to another, when the loss might have been prevented by such acts as the bill proposed to require. But the amount of work and expense which such a law would put upon the farmers led to a strong effort against the bill, and it was reconsidered and voted down by a large majority of 89 to 126. Representative Avery of Charlemont was the man who worked up the case and turned an adverse rising majority of two to the vote above mentioned.

The House has voted to-day, without a word of debate, for the $150,000 gypsy and brown-tail moth appropriation and for the appropriation of $145,800 for the agricultural college, the latter being a sum which Gov. Foss said in his message he could not approve because it was larger than the running expenses of last year, which was the purpose of this bill. Therefore the question now is what the governor will do when the bill reaches him. There is no doubt that the governor is gaining strength generally with the people, and that the Republican leaders are increasingly anxious about the coming campaign. The governor's mistakes have not been as great or as numerous as expected and hoped for.

LANDON.

BELCHERTOWN.

Frank Wilson has sold his farm on East Hill, where he has lived for more than 30 years.

Miss Mabel Shaw has resigned as manager of the telephone office, which position she has held for the past five years. She is succeeded by Miss Lonise Austin.

At a meeting of the Woman's Relief corps Monday evening, the following committee was appointed to act with the pageant committee for the anniversary celebration: Mrs. H. D. Hoag, Miss Lincoln and Mrs. Cora Burnett.

Invitations have been received in town for the marriage of Miss Katharine Dwight, granddaughter of the late John Dwight of Mt. Morris park, N. Y., and Gordon Lockwood Berry. Miss Dwight has made frequent visits to Belchertown during her grandfather's lifetime when the family summer home was on Mt. Holyoke.

WARREN.

Warren Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, will observe "Children's Night" at the meeting this evening.

Edward J. Boylan and Louis Pichette, delegates from Conrt Warren, F. of A., and William F. Duncan, grand treasurer, attended the convention in Holyoke this week.

Is there anything in all this world that is of more importance to you than good digestion? Food must be eaten to sustain life and must be digested and coverted into blood. When the digestion fails the whole body suffers. Chamberlain's Tablets are a rational and reliable cure for indigestion. They increase the flow of bile, purify the blood, strengthen the stomach, and tone up the whole digestive apparatus to a natural and healthy action. For sale by all dealers.

Health For Sick Women

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or secured so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Almost every woman you meet has either been benefited by it, or knows some one who has.

In the Pinkham Laboratory are files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made exclusively from roots and herbs, and is perfectly harmless.

The reason why it is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the female organism, restoring it to healthy and normal activity.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Coloma, Wisconsin. — "For three years I was troubled with female weakness, irregularities, backache and bearing down pains. I saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking several bottles I found it was helping me, and I must say that I am perfectly well now and can not thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me." — Mrs. John Wentland, R. F. D., No. 3, Box 60, Coloma, Wisconsin.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

The Antalgica
Or Vegetable Pain Reliever

was introduced to the public in 1848, since which time thousands of bottles have been sold each year to an appreciative public, which is a good evidence of its merits. It is adapted to so many ailments it should be in every household, for it cures all kinds of pains both internal and external. For Bronchial affections it is unrivaled by any article in the market. It is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, if taken in season, also for Coughs. It is an effective remedy for rheumatic affections, stiff joints, swelled limbs, sprains, cramps, toothache and many other ills to which the flesh is heir. Try it and it will do you good. It is sold at 25c 50c and $1 00 per bottle by The Bay State Drug Co., Lynde & Gould, and the proprietor,

NOTICE OF SALE OF LAND BY ADMINISTRATOR.

By license of the Probate Court for the County of Hampden, the subscriber, administrator with the will annexed of the estate of Joseph Merriam, late of Palmer, in said County of Hampden, will sell at public auction on the premises on the twelfth day of June, A. D. 1911, at two o'clock in the afternoon, the following real estate hereinafter described:

A certain tract of land, with the buildings thereon, situate in Tenneyville, in said Palmer, bounded and described as follows:—Beginning at corner of land formerly of George [illegible] from Palmer on east line of the highway to Monson, thence southerly on said highway 13 to Monson, thence southerly on said highway 13 rods and 2 feet to land now or formerly of Widow Bradley; thence easterly on last named land 4 rods to land of T. J. Chalk; thence northerly on land of said Chalk 13 rods and 6½ feet to land formerly of said Stone; thence westerly on said land formerly of said Stone about 7 rods to place of beginning; subject to such rights as were conveyed by Mary Jane Craw to M. J Wasser, trustee, by instrument dated November 16, 1901, and recorded with Hampden County Registry of Deeds, book 644, page 39.

Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, including taxes for the year 1911, and fifty dollars will be required to be paid in cash by the purchaser at the time and place of sale as earnest money.

ERNEST E. HOBSON,
Administrator with will annexed. 8-3

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
HAMPDEN, ss. Springfield, May 16, 1911.

By virtue of an execution which issued on a judgment recovered in the Superior Court holden at Springfield within and for our County of Hampden, on the first day of May, A. D. 1911, in favor of Peter McCarthy and Mary F. McCarthy, both of East Longmeadow, in said County of Hampden, and against Thomas A. Kennedy of New York, in the County and State of New York, I have this day seized and taken all the right, title and interest which the said Thomas A. Kennedy had on the twenty-fourth day of February, A. D. 1911, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, being the time the same was specially attached on mesne process, in and to the following described parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in East Longmeadow, said County, and bounded and described as follows, to wit:—

A certain tract or parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in East Longmeadow, in said County, being Lot No. 48 on plan of lots recorded in the Registry of Deeds for said County of Hampden, Book 453, Page 600, on the southerly side of Fifth street, and beginning at a point one hundred thirty-two (132) feet westerly of Edmund street; thence running southerly one hundred thirty-two (132) feet; thence westerly sixty-six (66) feet; thence northerly one hundred thirty-two (132) feet; thence easterly sixty-six (66) feet to the place of beginning.

And on Saturday, the seventeenth day of June 1911, at twelve o'clock noon, at entrance to Court House on Elm street, in said Springfield, I shall offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder said right, title and interest I have and to said real estate, to satisfy said execution and all fees and charges of sale.

WEATHER AGAIN FAVORS VETERANS.

Exercises Much the Same as Usual; of Pleasing Nature; Large Numbers Out.

Cloudy skies greeted the veterans on the morning of Memorial Day, but the rain held off, the clouds disappeared, and the day as a whole was one of comfort and satisfaction. The program of the day for the members of L. L. Merrick Grand Army post was much the same as in recent years. Assembling at their hall on Central street the veterans,—the line showing a smaller num ber year by year,—escorted by the Sons of Veterans and accompanied by town officials and invited guests and led by the Columbian band, marched through Main street to Thorndike street, where special electric cars were taken for the work of the forenoon. The first stop was at Three Rivers where, after a march around the common, the graves of departed comrades in the cemetery were decorated. A quartet composed of Erford Corbin, Francis L. Jones, C. Ralph LeGro and James Summers sang, and prayer was offered by Rev. C. B. McDuffee of Three Rivers. The graves in St. Anne's cemetery, close at hand, were decorated next, and then those in the cemetery at Four Corners. Here prayer was offered by Rev. W. H. Upham of Bondsville and the quartet sang. The procession marched through Thorndike, and then decorated the graves in St. Thomas' cemetery. At Oak Knoll cemetery in Palmer prayer was offered by Rev. C. W. Williams of Palmer, and there was singing by the quartet. After the decoration of the graves here the veterans and guests, with a large number of the townspeople, gathered about the monument and listened to the service to the unknown dead. From here the ronte was back to Memorial Hall, where dinner was served by members of the Woman's Relief Corps.

David L. Bodfish.
Orator of the day.

The memorial services were held at 2 o'clock. There was singing by the quartet, the Grand Army's service for such occasions, readings by Mrs. Ada Mandock Hill of Southbridge, and an address by David L. Bodfish of Palmer on, "The American Volunteer."

The number of graves to be decorated increases with every year, and this year numbered 128, as follows: Oak Knoll cemetery, 50; Palmer Center, one; Three Rivers, two; St. Anne's, four; Four Corners, 45; St. Thomas', 26.

Government Bulletins for Farmers.

Among the farmers' bulletins published recently by the government are a number of especial value to New England farmers, and copies of them can be obtained from Congressman F H Gillett at Washington, who has a large allotment for distribution They include these subjects: Control of blowing soils, forest nurseries for schools, canning peaches on the farm, testing farm seeds at home, cabbages, hog houses, spraying peaches, bee diseases, remedies and preventatives against mosquitos, marketing eggs through the creamery, bees, capons, and red clover.

BELCHERTOWN.

Rev. M. H. Fishburn will sever his connection with the Congregational church the last of June and will leave town at that time. He and Mrs. Fishburn were tendered a pleasant party in the chapel Friday evening and presented with a purse.

Harold Ryder of East Boston has taken possession of the farm he recently bought of Albert Stebbins.

Mrs John P. Stockton Jr and two children of Chicago are at the home of her aunt, Miss Phoebe Beebe.

Albert Stebbins has bought the farm of Mrs Katherine Hess and she and her sons have returned to New York.

The pupils of Miss Dimick in the Center school gave her a party Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs Kenworthy.

Charles S. Ballard and family of Springfield have been spending a few days at their summer home in Hampden.

John Valentine has sold his house on the East Longmeadow road to Henry A. Dean of Springfield, who will take possession June 15th

Rev. R. W. Bennett preached his farewell sermon in the Hampden Baptist church Sunday. He is now located in East Longmeadow.

Reward for Incendiary.

Wright Wire Company Offers $100 For His Arrest and Conviction.

The Wright Wire Company, which is naturally much interested in the prosperity of that section of the town known as Shearer's Corner and the wire mill district, in view of the numerous incendiary fires which have taken place there within the past two years, has sent the selectmen of Palmer the following letter:

May 29, 1911.

Board of Selectmen,
Palmer, Mass.

Gentlemen:—Relating to the recent attempts in the wire mill district to set fire to two buildings, this company herewith offers the sum of $100 for the apprehension and conviction of the guilty parties in this or any other attempt at incendiarism in the neighborhood or immediate neighborhood of the Wire Company's properties in Palmer.

In connection with this reward, to assist in running down the guilty parties, we would add that we believe that it would be a wise move on the part of the town authorities if they would employ a night officer in the locality where the attempts have been made, and we trust that your board will do everything in its power to prevent, if possible, recurrences of this nature.

Yours very truly,
WRIGHT WIRE COMPANY
GEO. M. Wright, Pres.

The Wright Company has been a heavy loser by these fires. Their large rope mill was burned by a fire which was of undoubtedly incendiary origin, and later their barn and three fine horses were destroyed in a similar manner. What action the selectmen will take in the matter is uncertain. The suggestion to employ a night police officer in that section is perhaps a good one, but there is no fund at present from which one could be paid. The only money at the disposal of the selectmen for such a purpose is the contingent fund, and this is never ample enough for expenditures of this magnitude. It will be the wish of all however that something may be done to bring the reign of this firebug to a speedy end.

BOY BUMPED BY AUTO.

Knocked Down on Main Street Saturday Afternoon.

DODGED FROM BEHIND STREET CAR.

Stepped Directly in Front of Auto. Gets Concussion of Brain, But Doing Well.

An automobile driven by Chester N. Juneau of Worcester struck and knocked down a young son of Carlo Aliengeno of Monson on Main street in Palmer Saturday afternoon. The lad received a severe bump on his head by striking the brick pavement, and was carried to the Burns hotel in an unconscious state. Dr. G. A. Moore was summoned, who found a severe concussion of the brain, but was unable to determine how seriously the lad was hurt. He was made as comfortable as possible and his father summoned. On Sunday he was taken to his parents' home in Monson and is reported to be recovering in good shape, not being seriously hurt.

The accident happened opposite the Armour block The lad was crossing the street and stepped from behind an electric car directly in front of the auto. The machine was going slowly and the driver made a quick stop, but was unable to avoid hitting the boy. He proceeded after leaving his name and address with Officer Thomas.

Aviation Meet in Springfield.

Three Days Next Week to be Devoted To This New Sport.

An excellent opportunity for the public to see what wonderful advancement the art of aviation has made will be offered by the Springfield Aeronautical Society on June 8, 9 and 10, at which time an aviation meet will be held in Imperial Park, Springfield Arrangements have been made with the Curtis Company of New York, whereby a number of the most noted birdmen in the country will make flights daily, using the latest type of Curtiss biplane. There will be a varied program each day, including races, altitude contests, quick and slow starting, endurance tests, spiral glides, volplaning, thrilling dips, target shooting while the machines are going at a rapid pace through the air, bomb throwing on a mimic battleship, and passenger carrying.

Just who the aviators will be has not been decided, but Glenn Curtiss has promised to send the best men in his flock as well as his best machines. He, with a number of other prominent aviators, will be present to witness the flights. The park that has been selected by the society for the exhibition is composed of 44 acres of level land with a half-mile track in the center. It is easily reached by trolley cars inside of 15 minutes from Springfield's business center.

Some persons think an aviation meet is a kind of side show or circus, but they usually change their minds when they realize that men can actually leave the ground and soar through the air, dipping down, shooting up, circling and then landing light as a feather just as easy as a man gets into his automobile and drives off. There have been very few accidents with Curtiss machines, which has given them the reputation of being the safest type of flying machine in use to-day. Passengers are carried with as much ease and safety as is the operator alone.

This exhibition is the third one held in the north Atlantic states. The first one was held at Bridgeport, Ct., and then New Haven had one. Both meets were great successes and many thousands attended th m. Students of aviation, who thought they understood the development of aviation from the ground up, were astounded at the wonderful control and possibilities that were brought out by the Curtiss men at these meets.

In setting the dates for the meet, the Aeronautical Society tried to pick the part of the week when the residents of the suburban and rural districts made their weekly trips to this city to do their shopping In the past all the meets have been held only in the large cities, and unless the inhabitants of the smaller towns and cities could take a few days off they could not see the latest sport. This meet, however, offers an excellent opportunity for the people in these remote sections to see the latest stunts in flying without undue neglect of their work. The field is only a 15 minute ride from the Springfield depot, and as most of the flying is done in the afternoon, visitors to the city will have an excellent opportunity to do their trading and see the flights.

Wilbraham Memorial Tablet.

Handsome Boulder Dedicated With Appropriate Exercises Monday.

A memorial tablet and bowlder erected in honor of the sailors and soldiers from Wilbraham and vicinity who gave their lives in the service of their country was unveiled in Glendale Monday. The assembly marched to the chapel at 10 o'clock The church, which was appropriately decorated, was filled with townspeople and many from adjoining towns.

Rev. M. S. Howard of Wilbraham offered prayer, after which Benjamin F Green opened the exercises with appropriate historical remarks relative to soldiers from this vicinity who gave their lives in the country's service. He also told of the association which was formed to procure and place a bowlder for a memorial and how it was moved to its present resting place. The opening hymn was "America," sung by all. Dr. Marshall Cal kins of Springfield, a former resident of Wilbraham, next read an interesting address. Singing by school children, "Wave above them," recitations by Miss Elva Day, "Sleep soldier, sleep," and a duet with organ accompaniment, by A M. Seaver and W. A Mowry, followed. E. S. Keyes, a veteran, was called upon and gave a blackboard description of his experiences in the army which was of much interest to those present. The last of the veterans to speak was Chauncey E Peck of Wilbraham, who gave a most interesting talk on his experiences in the army. Next came singing by the school children, "Silently, peacefully sleeping to-day."

Rev. H. G. Alley, a former pastor of the church, then pronounced the benediction. Flowers were then distributed to the school children, and all marched to the cemetery, where the graves of the soldiers were decorated. The Wilbraham fife and drum corps then led the way to the site of the memorial tablet, followed by the veterans, Sons of Veterans and school children, where the unveiling to took place Just as the stars and stripes were raised from the tablet the "Star Spangled Banner" was sung and the bowlder was decorated with beautiful wreaths and flags The inscription on the tablet reads as follows: "Memorial bowlder placed here by this neighborhood in honor of its soldiers, May 30, 1911." O. E Peck was then called upon and gave a few more interesting remarks. Then the veterans and Sons of Veterans repaired to the church, where a bountiful dinner was served by the Ladies' Society.

Doings of the Legislature.

BOSTON, May 31, 1911.

Western Massachusetts gets quite a large favor by the unanimous report from the committee on roads and bridges of the three bills for a long step in advance for the development of the state highway system. One of these bills carries $75,000 for beginning the construction of a state highway over Hoosac mountain, which has been alluded to already. Here is proposed a genuine enlargement of the system in a district where the state highway commission has said repeatedly that it would not build unless the Legislature required them to. That is, they have said that there were so many other places where the money could be put to better use that they should not recommend construction over Hoosac mountain for the present. But the committee on roads and bridges went out there, saw and was conquered. Generous hospitality made an impression and the bills desired are reported unanimously. What took the committee captive was the magnificent views they saw in the Berkshire hills They admit that the road over the mountain will be costly and steep, but they believe that there will be a great development of automobile travel which will justify the expenditure of the money. The $75 000 given in the beginning, for laying out this year, is only the beginning. The highway commission are expected to supplement this by such further sums as the Legislature may put into their hands. The $10 000 for the road from Greenfield to Shelburne Falls and the $10,000 for improving the highway between Goshen and Dalton are also only starters for the lines in question. Western Massachusetts is looking up and we shall doubtless see a marked increase of summer travel, with profit for hotels, boarding houses and livaries.

For the first time on record for a generation, the House finds that it began forenoon sessions too early for the state of work by the committees. There were nearly 200 matters unreported upon when the last bulletin was issued Committees which were trying to close up their business during the forenoon sessions of the House were called so frequently to the House, either to help make a quorum or to answer to rollcalls that they became much annoyed and said that they could not make much progress in that way. In the meantime, the House has been disposing of its calendar. In consequence, the House has voted to have only afternoon sessions for 10 days, in order to enable House and Senate members to catch up with their committee work There is a current expectation that the session will not end much, if any, before July 1. Something depends upon the redistricting measure. It still remains in the hands of the committee in Washington. The Legislature is powerless to bring it out before the member in charge is ready. It now looks as if the matter might go over to next year. The Democrats in spite of their genuine feeling that they will have the Legislature next year, would rather have the thing off from their minds this year, for they are now sure of the governor, a large majority of the House and a majority of the Senate. They profess to believe that they will carry both House and Senate next year. But it is always good politics to make the best possible trade with the present, and a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. As it is to-day, the governor can veto any bill which is not fair, and there is much fear that that is the very thing which he will be glad to do.

President Treadway's refusal to be a candidate for the second place on the Republican state ticket next fall, owing to the sudden death of his son, has shaken up the politicians more than anything which has occurred to them during the session. It was very sudden as far as they were concerned. This leaves the nomination more of an open question than was supposed at first There is a feeling that the honor should go to Western Massachusetts, considering that that end of the state has not been very much in politics lately. Mention has been made of Robert Luce, and it seems to be true that he is identified with the operations of the state machine for a long time. It comes on good authority of one who has followed him at various places in Maine, that he will probably let it be said of him in the local papers that they are all for him, but that they do not wish to pledge themselves to his support because Western Massachusetts has not yet indicated whom its choice shall be. Luce is not as much of a breaker of precedents as he used to be. Not long ago he seemed to be one of our most progressive man. He had the reputation of bucking against the state machine. But he gets now the credit of not being as independent as he was. Very likely his critics are too hard on him But he is expected to stay with the regular party organization. Luce is better known than almost any former legislator in the state. He stands high and he will be a strong candidate He did not say no to the first newspaper man who got hold of him, and he has not said it since. That is interpreted that he will finally come around and have his name stand as candidate for second place.

It was a vote of 167 yeas to 53 nays in the House this afternoon on the rollcall on passing over the governor's veto the bill for the establishment of medical milk commissions. There was considerable debate on the bill, but it was noticeable that the harshest thing said about the governor during it all was that he must have been misinformed when he said that the effect of the bill would be to give an advantage to rich men over poor in the matter of putting certified milk on the market. It was brought out in the debate that the bill originated with a New Bedford phil

PALMER NEWS.

Heavy Memorial Day Travel.

Street Railway Cars Crowded All Day, But Crowds Well Handled.

The street railway company had one of the busiest days of its history Tuesday, and Manager Atkins,—who came to Palmer last October—had a chance to see what a holiday in this section means in the way of electric car riding, double-header trips and extra cars. Old employes say it was the hardest day they ever knew. Half-hour time was run all day on all the lines except Worcester and the villages, and it was run on the latter after noon. And at that nearly every trip on the Springfield line was double-headed, also on the Ware line to Forest Lake.

The car crew had a particularly hard day of it. They were "on the job" from the time of reporting for work in the morning until late at night, the first crew quitting at 10 15 at night. Superintendent Atkins arranged to have the men fed at various places near the waiting room between trips, but very few of them got more than half an hour for their meals.

With all the extra cars and heavy travel remarkably good time was maintained all day. The worst trouble was on the Springfield line, where the Palmer cars were delayed in getting ont of the city on the return trip, but up to noon none were over five minutes late getting into Palmer. After that there was a slight increase in the tardiness at times, but when this occurred cars were sent out of Palmer on time, passing the tardy incoming cars en route. No accident of any kind was reported during the day, a pretty good record for the number of people carried.

As Others See Him.

A Norwich Opinion of Palmer's New Superintendent of Schools.

The Norwich, Ct., Evening Record of last Friday, in announcing the election of Clifton H. Hobson of that place to the superintendency of the Palmer schools, had the following: Next month Mr. Hobson will have completed five and a half years as principal of the Greenville schools. During his tenure of office he has instituted many improvements, among them being an increase in attendance, discipline, and a general lifting to a higher standard of the work of the entire school. The courses of study have been readjusted during his connection with the district, being amplified and enriched. Since coming to Norwich he has been active in various organizations. He was former president of the Principals' Club, and last year was president of the Eastern Connecticut Teachers' Association. He is now chairman of the finance committee of the Connecticut Teachers' Association. He is a member of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. and conducts a large Bible class at the Greenville Congregational church. Mr. Hobson was one of the prime movers in the successful effort to get free tuition for the town pupils at the Free Academy. That he will ably and satisfactorily fill his new position his many friends here have no doubt, and while regretting that he is to leave town they will wish him the greatest possible success in his new field of labor."

Foresters' Memorial Sunday.

Palmer and Monson Courts to Hold Joint Meeting Next Sunday.

Court Palmer, No. 180, of Palmer, and Court Monson, No. 247, of Monson, Foresters of America, will hold a joint memorial service Sunday afternoon at 2 30 in F. of A. hall in Commercial block, Palmer. All members are requested to meet in the hall at 12.15 and march to the cemeteries to decorate the graves of departed brothers. The public is invited to attend these services. Grand Treasurer William F. Duncan of Warren, one of the best speakers in the executive council, will deliver the memorial address, and Grand Sub-Chief Ranger George F. Janes of Newtonville will also speak. These speakers have been in some of the largest cities in the state lecturing for the order, and the large increase in membership which has been made during the past year is a tribute to their powers as orators. The following program has been arranged, and the meeting will be presided over by Chief Ranger Walter G. St. John of Court Palmer:

Selection.	F. of A. Quartet
Roll Call of members of both courts.
Solo. "Calvary."	A. J. Gould
Memorial Address.	G. T. W. F. Duncan
Solo. "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."	J. J. Donahne
Address.	G. S. C. R. G. F. Janes
Closing Ode.	Audience

W. C. T. U. Convention.

County Gathering to be Held in Palmer Tuesday of Next Week.

The summer convention of the Hampden County Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the Congregational church in Palmer next Tuesday, with morning and afternoon sessions. The morning session will be called to order at 10 15 by Mrs. M. L. Knell, president, of Westfield. After devotional exercises, words of greeting and routine business matters, there will be an address on "Co-operation: the need, the opportunity," by Miss Ella Gilbert Ives, state and national superintendent. This will be followed by a discussion. Lunch will be served at 12.20 Business matters will occupy the first part of the afternoon session at 1 30, but at 3 o'clock there will be an address on "The place of the W. C. T U. in Massachusetts to-day," by Mrs. Katherine L. Stevenson, president of the state organization. The public is cordially invited to attend both sessions.

Parents' Day in Schools Next Week.

Next Friday will be Parents' Day in the schools of the town, when there will be an exhibition of the work done during the past year, including drawing, manual training and sewing. A large amount of time and considerable expense has been put into the preparation of this exhibit, and the committee is hoping that a large number of parents will visit the schools on that day. In addition to the day exhibitions in all schools, the grammar buildings will be open from 7 to 9 in the evening.

Early Car For Brimfield People.

Brimfield people have for some time been importuning Manager Atkins of the street railway company to give them an earlier car to Springfield in the morning, the first car to that city leaving at 8 50. Accordingly an earlier service was begun yesterday as an experiment. A car now leaves Palmer at 7 15 for Brimfield, and leaves that place at 7 59 for Palmer and Springfield. It will be continued for a time, the length of which will depend on the patronage.

Two Runaways—Autos Responsible.

Frightened at the bursting of an auto tire as the car passed them on the road, a pair of horses belonging to J. M. Allen ran away last Saturday afternoon. They were the lead horses of a two-span team, and broke the tug fastenings when the started. They were stopped after a run in a field somewhat cut but not seriously hurt.

Monday morning a horse attached to Coto's laundry wagon took fright at an auto and indulged in a rapid sprint, wrecking the wagon.

Want to Rent Town House.

Polish Catholics Want to Use It For a Parochial School

The selectmen are considering a proposition from the Polish Catholic parish at Four Corners to lease the town house for a parochial school. The proposition is to take a lease of the properly, the parish is to make all changes and any alterations needed to conform to the fire laws regarding schools, and to vacate the premises at any time when the town wishes to use the building for town purposes of any kind. The rental offered is $100 per year. The town house is rented now and then for social functions of various kinds, and was formerly used as a church by the French Catholics of Three Rivers before their church building was erected; the income at present is small however, and the building is used only a few times a year—for caucuses in the spring and fall, for the annual appropriation meeting of the town in March, and for special town meetings when they are necessary. No action has been taken in the matter as yet.

Will Speak on Industrial Education.

Parents who would like to know something of industrial education will do well to attend the lecture in the opera house next Wednesday evening—which will be given free—by Dr. David Snedden, commissioner of education in Massachusetts, on "Education and industry." Dr. Snedden has few equals and no superiors in educational matters; he is a most entertaining speaker and draws the largest of audiences wherever he appears; the school committee of Palmer is unusually fortunate to be able to secure him, and he will be sure to prove both instructive and entertaining. The committee hopes for a large attendance at the lecture.

Sailors' Memorial Sunday.

Next Sunday L L. Merrick, W. R. C., together with the Grand Army and Sons of Veterans, will hold their memorial service for the sailor dead in Memorial Hall at 4 p. m. After the exercises a delegation from the three organizations will go to the river to strew flowers on the water. The clergymen of the town and the public are invited. There will be speaking by children and the male quartet will sing.

Will Move Next Week.

Delays in the preparation of the new quarters for the Journal have prevented the moving of the plant this week as expected. Unless something unforeseen happens, the work will be begun next Monday and the paper will be issued from the new office on Central street next Friday. The present office will not be closed until some time in the latter part of the week.

Doesn't Like "Road Hog" Autoists.

One of Palmer's automobile owners has some thrilling experiences with "road hogs" drivers during the past few weeks, having narrowly escaped collisions in at least half a dozen instances. So close has he come to harm by reckless drivers that it has got on his nerves and, has decided to dispose of his car, and has accordingly offered it for sale after only a few months' ownership.

E. E. Brooks has been spending a part of the week in New York.

Mrs. Josie Fay Baker is quite ill at her home on the Monson road.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Moore of Newton, former residents of Palmer, have been visiting friends in town and this vicinity the past week.

Mrs. H. T. Huntington has returned to her home on Pine street after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Willman in Leominster.

At St. Mary's Mission next Sunday there will be Sunday school at 2 15 and evening prayer and sermon at 3 15, Rev. T. D. Martin officiating.

A regular meeting of the Young Men's Library Association will be held next Monday evening at 7.30 in the reference room of the library.

The body of Miss Lillian Porter of Springfield was brought to Palmer yesterday on a special car for burial in Oak Knoll cemetery. Miss Porter was a niece of Mrs. Sarah Wallace of Pine street.

Chief Engineer Summers of the fire department has had a man at work this week repairing the pumps on the fire steamer, the valves of which had become badly cut ont by the gravel drawn into them in times of use.

Mrs. John P. Sloan and two children, Helen and Todd of Worcester, are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Todd on Pine street. Mr. Sloan spent Memorial Day in town.

The graduation exercises of the grammar schools of the town will be held on the evening of Friday, the 16th, in the opera house, with a program similar to that of recent years. The speaker has not yet been selected.

The subject of the sermon in the Baptist church next Sunday morning will be "Christian Brotherliness." Bible school at 12, Y. P. S. C. E at 6 15, evening worship at 7; sermon subject, "Jacob's Wrestling;" special music, all welcome.

An item in last week's paper stated that Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Andrews of Southbridge announced the marriage of their daughter Gertrude to Arthur Lyon of Elysian, Mich. It should have read the marriage engagement.

A much needed rain came Wednesday afternoon and evening, and into the night. Not that the amount of water which fell was a fractional part of what is needed, but it helped the dry gardens a lot and freshened up the foliage and grass a good bit.

An auction sale of the livery stock and equipment of the Weeks House will be held on Thursday, the 15th. The horses include some very promising young animals which show good speed, several of them with high pedigrees and no marks.

Arthur J. Davis of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League will speak in the Congregational church next Sunday morning. Sunday school will be at 12; Christian Endeavor service at 6, subject, "Lessons from the life of Samuel;" evening service at 7, with preaching by the pastor, subject, "The sense of wonder."

James Holden of the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst, with his parents on State avenue in Monson.

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

His Republican councillors are living evidence on this point, open to all.

Representative Washburn of Worcester does not let up in his criticism of the New Haven railroad and his determination that there shall be no subteringe excused by the Legislature or the state departments. Looking forward to next session, when legislation is expected for the consolidation of the Berkshire and the Springfield street railway companies, in consequence of the refusal of the House to admit the petition this year, he offers an order for a report by the attorney general to the next Legislature how the railroad company has obeyed the decree of the supreme court of 1908 that it must divest itself of its street railway holdings. Washburn is one of the valuable members of the House, and he always commands attention.

At the hearing to-day the governor's message for biennial elections, joined with the recall, the initiative and the referendum, Representative R. A. Wood of Cambridge was the only man to favor biennials. Only three of the committee were present and only one was there for the first half hour. Senator Newhall of Essex, Gamaliel Bradford, E. Gerry Brown, Former Senator James S. Allen of Brockton and John Weaver Sherman, chairman of the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor, were present in opposition.

The new plan for a state milk board is still before the House committee on ways and means. The farming element, represented on the committee on agriculture, favors the bill, although it puts the milk producers under strict supervision by both state and local authorities. It remains to be seen whether there will be any material opposition. The farmers have hitherto been strongly opposed to being under the state board of health. LANDON.

HOLLAND.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was held yesterday. Rev. Mr. Lovering gave a talk on Napoleon. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Childs will spend Sunday with Miss Florence P. Stebbins in Webster. Miss Stebbins is teaching domestic art in the high school.

WILBRAHAM.

Miss Mary Fuller of Monson was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Keyes on Sunday.

Mrs. C. B. Hitchcock entertained the Maple street social club Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Annie Bonney was thrown from a carriage in which she was riding Wednesday morning on Main street near the Monson road, and was badly shaken up. The horse was frightened by an automobile.

WALES.

Mrs. Henry Worth and William Worth of Holyoke spent Saturday and Sunday in town.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Gale and Harlan Gale of Fanueil were in town over Sunday and Memorial Day.

Mrs. Kate Williams is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Worth, in Holyoke.

P. A. Gandette has moved his furniture from Worcester to the house formerly occupied by F. M. Parker, opposite O P. Royce's store.

Mrs. Joseph Gregory has a hen that has laid an egg with a double shell. The outside shell measured eight inches around one way and seven the other. Inside this shell there was a watery substance and a perfect egg of ordinary size.

A special service for the veterans was held at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The church was decorated with bunting and flowers The address was given by Mr. Wheaton, who supplies the pulpit regularly, and a volunteer choir of school children sang several selections.

The Memorial Day service was held in the Baptist church Tuesday morning, beginning at 10 30. There were several selections by the band and singing by the pupils of the Center school. Prayer was offered by Rev. C. T. Holt, and a memorial of the life of Mrs. Mary Nelson and a historical sketch were given by Mr. Walker. This was followed by an able address given by Rev. Albert Squier of Cambridge, in which he called special attention to the hardship endured by the Southern soldier during the Civil War and the bravery which he manifested and which made him so hard a foe to conquer. After this service the cemeteries were visited and the graves decorated, and then about 90 people returned to the church vestry and partook of the dinner which had been prepared by the Ladies' Aid Society.

WARE.

Murphy—Bates.

The marriage of Harry T. Bates of Ware and Miss Mary Murphy of Brooklyn, N. Y., took place yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at the rectory of St. Francis Xavier church in Brooklyn, Rev. J. A. Hickey officiating. Miss Elizabeth Murphy, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Alton Winslow, a nephew of the groom, was best man. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bates went to Atlantic City. Mr. Bates is very well known in Ware, where he has lived since boyhood. He was for several years employed by C. Hitchcock & Co., and for the past two seasons has been manager of Forest Lake park. Miss Murphy, who was a former Ware girl, is a graduate of the local high school and of the convent school of the Ursuline nuns of Brooklyn. For the past few years she has been a teacher in the public schools of New York city.

Death of Jean LaCroix.

Jean LaCroix, 40, died at the home of his brother, Eli LaCroix, on Vigeant street Saturday evening after a long illness with tuberculosis. He was born in Canada, but came to Ware when young and had lived there since He is survived by two brothers, Eli and Noah LaCroix. The funeral was held Tuesday in Mt. Carmel church and burial was in Mt. Carmel cemetery.

Rev. J. H. Murphy, pastor of All Saints' church, left this week for a trip to Ireland.

W. J. Bray, who has conducted a job printing office in Ware for the past eight years, has closed his shop and gone to Holyoke, where he will conduct a sporting goods business.

The school board has reappointed Superintendent George W. Cox and the entire corps of teachers with the exception that Miss Emma L Parker has resigned as teacher of the school in district No. 5 and Miss Theresa Barry has been appointed to the vacancy. Miss Barry is a daughter of Patrick Barry of West street and is a graduate of the local schools. She is at present teaching in Huntington.

WARREN.

Death of Miss Ella E. Makepeace.

Miss Ella E. Makepeace, 66, died early Wednesday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary A. Ramsdell, on Maple street from chronic Bright's disease, complicated with heart failure. She was born in West Brookfield, where she had lived all her life until six months ago, when, on account of poor health, she came to Warren to make her home with her sisters. She had been prominent in the work of the Congregational church at West Brookfield, of which she was a member. She was also active in the Dorcas society, the parish auxiliary and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. She leaves two sisters, Mrs. Mary A. Ramsdell and Miss Abbie G. Makepeace, and many nephews and nieces. Prayers were held at the home of her sisters this afternoon at 1 and the body was taken to West Brookfield, where funeral services were held at the Congregational church at 2 30, with burial in the family lot.

Death of Hiram S. Combs.

Hiram S. Combs, a native of Warren, was buried in Norwalk, Ct., Tuesday. Mr. Combs was a descendant of one of Massachusetts' oldest families, the son of Daniel and Rebecca Parker Combs and nephew of the late Adolphus Parker of Chicopee Falls. He was born in Warren, October 5, 1828, and grew to manhood in his native town. He leaves one son and two daughters. In the '60s he was connected with the Knowles pump works and later was with the same company in Worcester. His whole life was devoted to mechanical invention, especially wire-working machinery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Van Wagner have gone to Saratoga, N. Y., to attend the funeral of their sister, Mrs. Ella McFarland.

Rev. T. C. Richards, pastor of the Congregational church, has received a unanimous call to the Congregational church at Westboro. He has not made his decision yet as to whether he will accept or not. He has been in Warren five years and has done much for the church and town.

At a meeting of Court Camelot, Queens of Avalon, last Friday afternoon, Miss Alice Walker was given a general utility shower. Miss Walker's engagement to Wendell Hodgkins of Boston was announced recently. She been active as queen of the wastelands in organizing the court.

A motocyclist who refused to give his name had a narrow escape Sunday from serious accident near the house of Myron E. Southwick on the West Brookfield road. The handle-bars broke off at the top of the head. He was able to shut off his engine and jump and escaped injury, but the machine was considerably broken. He took the 3 29 express train west and it was understood his home was in Holyoke.

Principal Fred W. Hilton of the high school has announced the class parts for graduation exercises, which are to be held June 29, as follows: Valedictory, Miss Marguerite McKelliget; salntatory, Miss Mary Olmstead; prophecy, Daniel Sullivan; ode, Herbert H. Tarbell; essay, Robert Edson; essay, Miss Marjorie Chase; essay, Harold Marshall. Lloyd Donnell and Robert Harwood receive honorable mention, but as they are preparing for college examinations have been excused from taking part. There are 15 graduates, of whom three only are girls.

How's This for Mud?

Of all the yarns that ever came down the line regarding deep mud, the following should be entitled to the blue ribbon. It happened in the place where mud originated.

A man was walking along the roadside one summer day and noticed a fairly good-looking hat out in the road. Reaching out with his cane, he gave it a cut and was startled to hear a voice exclaim, "Here, what the deuce are you doing?"

Then he made the astonishing discovery that the owner of the headpiece was under the hat, up to his ears in mud.

"Great heavens!" exclaimed the man who had hit the hat. "Is that mud as deep as that?"

"Deep!" cried the victim. "Why, man alive, I'm standing on a load of hay!" —Lippincott's Magazine.

In the Rainy Season.

"I rather flatter myself," said Noah, complacently stroking his patriarchal beard, that I have established my reputation as the biggest weather prophet in the business."

"Yes," snapped Mrs. N., "and a pretty mess you've made of it! The clothes have been in the suds a month and never a chance to dry them. The rooms are moldy and the beds need sunning. Besides with all those animals crowded in there the premises smell worse than the stock yards. I have grounds enough to get a divorce without going to Dakota. I tell you, and if I don't see my lawyer it will be because—"

But fortunately just then a dove flew in with an olive branch, indicating that the water was subsiding, and further trouble was averted.

There is one medicine that every family should be provided with and especially during the summer months, viz.: Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed. It costs but a quarter. Can you afford to be without it? For sale by all dealers.

A CIPHER TELEGRAM

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association. 1911.

Hornby was but twenty-two when he was made secretary of the American legation at Berlin.

Hornby was very popular in society, though not having a fortune, he was rather sought by married women coveting attention than young girls angling for a husband. Among these wives who interested themselves in the young diplomat was Mme. Berthalow, the wife of a Parisian financier. At that time the world was stirred by the Morocco affair, and it was feared there would be a war between France and Germany. M. Berthalow was in Berlin endeavoring to secure the first news in case the emperor decided to go to war for speculative purposes.

One evening at a court ball Mme. Berthalow, seeing Hornby pass her, called him to her on some pretext and later, while hanging on his arm, said to him:

"Mr. Hornby, do you think there will be war?"

"I don't think about such things."

"I am sure if war is declared you will know it before it is made public."

"Why do you think that?"

"Because I have been told that before going to war the emperor must know how the other powers will act, and your government is now one of the powers. The American minister will be able to judge if there is to be war and will inform his government. What he knows you know."

Hornby smiled without making any reply. The lady spoke of other matters and finally said:

"I presume all important dispatches are in cipher."

"They are."

"What is the word for 'war' in your cipher code?"

"Oh, it wouldn't do for me to tell you that."

"Please tell me that one word. I'll not divulge it."

"Well, on your promise, I'll tell you. It is 'woman.'"

"Good gracious! Why was that word chosen?"

"I don't know. I didn't make the code."

"And what is the word for 'peace?'"

"'Man.'"

"Upon my word! I should have supposed those two words would have been reversed."

"Perhaps that's the reason of their use as they are. They are not so easily deciphered."

Mme. Berthalow looked up into the young man's face. It was as guileless as a May morning. She continued her investigations.

"Our family have an old claim against the United States, dating back a hundred years or more, for a vessel owned by my great-grandfather, destroyed by an American privateer. I should like you to advise me concerning it."

"I shall be happy to do so. I am at my office from 11 to 6 every day, where it will be proper for you to call."

This was not satisfactory to Mme. Berthalow. She would have preferred to have the young man call upon her where she could talk with him in secret, but on second thought she considered that there would be an advantage in going to his office. She might light on some information not intended for her. The next day at 12 o'clock she appeared at the legation.

"Ah, madame," Hornby said, "we are very busy today, and I fear I shall have to keep you waiting. If you will go into my private office for awhile I shall be happy to advise you presently concerning your claim."

He ushered her into a cozy room in the center of which stood a table with writing materials and papers scattered about. Mme. Berthalow, being alone in the room, made a hurried examination of the papers. One of them bore evidence of having just been written. It was marked to be sent by cable to the secretary of state at Washington. The lady eagerly seized it and ran her eye over it. There was a jumble of words the meaning of which was unintelligible to her, but she noticed scattered throughout the dispatch the word "woman." It occurred five times. She had all the time she needed for the examination—indeed, more than she wished, for she was anxious to get away that she might impart the information to her husband that there was to be war.

Presently Hornby came in and informed her that he was ready to listen to the matter of her claim. She told him she had left home without having locked up the jewels she had worn the night before and must return at once. Hornby gave her one of his engaging smiles and saw her to her carriage.

When Hornby returned to his office he threw the cipher telegram into the wastebasket and wrote one to a broker in Paris announcing that a prominent financier would probably "sell the market." If so it would break, and the broker was to buy largely for Hornby's account.

Hornby by the operation made a fortune. Some time after this Mme. Berthalow said to him:

"Are you sure that in your cipher code 'woman' stands for 'war?'"

"It does not now. You convinced me that its use thus was ungallant, and I arranged for its being changed to mean 'peace.'"

It is worse than useless to take any medicines internally for muscular or chronic rheumatism. All that is needed is a free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by all dealers.

True.

Madison C. Peters, clergyman and author, was talking to a group of young men.

"Half the wrong things you chaps do," he said, "you do only because they are forbidden. If you didn't know they were forbidden, if you didn't know they were wrong, they would only seem to you disgusting and repugnant.

"I strolled one spring morning in a beautiful park.

"'Look here,' I said to one of the guards, 'why do you have "Keep off the grass," signs all over the park? You don't seem to enforce the rule.'

"'No, sir,' said the guard. 'The object of the signs is to cause the people to more thoroughly enjoy being on the grass.'"

"You say you wish to marry my daughter. But she is only a mere school girl as yet." Count Nocash—"I understand that, sir. I came early to avoid the rush."—Judge.

The uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has made it a favorite everywhere. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all dealers.

MARRIED.

The affair was a decided success.

ACADEMY NOTES.

Monson Academy 4, Conn. Agricultural College 1.

The Academy baseball team won another game on the new athletic field last Saturday, when they defeated the fast Connecticut Agricultural College team by the score of 4 to 1. Elliott, the Monson pitcher, displayed elegant form, striking out 14 of the visitors and allowing but four hits. Dunsmore's catching and throwing was the feature of the game. Capt. Bowker, Kidd and Fusti backed up Elliott in an elegant manner at critical times. Score:

Academy 5, M. A. C. 4.

In the best game of the season the Academy baseball team won an important and exciting game from the Massachusetts Agricultural college freshman in an eleven inning uphill fight Monday by the score of 5 to 4. The visitors started off at a first clip, getting three runs in the first inning. After this Elliot tightened up and the visitors were unable to get another run around until the first of the eleventh. The local players by continued playing tied the score in the eighth and won out in the eleventh. The hitting and base running of Capt. Bowker was responsible for Monson's victory. Score:

A Good Manager.

Homer S. Taylor, president of the National Archery Association, said at an archers' dinner in Chicago:

"An archer must be very skillful and calm and cool to succeed. He must handle his bow as Mrs. Porack of Michigan avenue handles her husband.

"Mr. Porack came home very late the other night from an important political meeting. In the hall he kicked up rather a row, growling and swearing to himself till his wife called to him upstairs:

" 'What's the mattor, my dear?'

" 'Matter—hic—is.' Mr. Porack shouted, 'that there's two hatracks here and I dunno which one to hang my hat on.'

"But you've got two hats, haven't you?' said Mrs. Porack, soothingly. 'Hang one on each rack and come up to bed. You're tired.' " —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Worthless Money.

Gen. St. Clair Mulholland, veteran and historian of the Civil War, tells an incident showing the utter worthlessness of Confederate paper money at the close of the war.

"Shortly after Lee's surrender," says the general, "I was a short distance from Richmond. The Confederate soldiers were going home to become men of peace again, and were thinking about their farms.

"One had a lame, broken-down horse which he viewed with pride. 'Wish I had him, Jim,' said the other. 'What'll you take for him? I'll give you $20,000 for him.'

" 'No,' said Jim.

" 'Give you $50,000.'

" 'No,' said Jim.

" 'Give you $100,000,' his friend said.

" 'Not much,' replied Jim. 'I just gave $120,000 to have him shod.' " —Philadelphia Times.

A Jump In the Dark

Being a Story of a Mysterious Disappearance

By R. W. KEENAN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Amnesia, a sudden loss of memory, is a much more common disease than is supposed and one of the principal causes of those mysterious disappearances that from time to time puzzle the police. If a person dies the body is not self moving, but one whose memory has been obliterated can wander far from those who would recognize him.

When one loses himself from this cause he steps, as it were, from one existence into another. One circle of connections are blotted out—a new circle is formed. It has happened to me to be one of those persons to receive an amnesia patient, as it were, coming from another world.

I had been married and had the misfortune to lose my wife. It is hard to lose a beloved partner, but to be left with two little children, as I was, I esteem the greatest of domestic afflictions. The care of a boy of six and a girl of four devolved upon me. There was no woman relative on either side of the family whom I could call on to come in and relieve me of the burden.

I was leaning on my gate one spring evening after having endeavored to keep my children with me while at work during the day and having found working and taking care of them incompatible. Looking up to the heavens, wherein the stars were beginning to twinkle, I cried out in my distress:

"O God, send me a woman to take care of these motherless babes!"

I stood gazing up into the starry firmament until I was recalled to myself by a voice saying:

"Please, sir, do tell me who I am."

Lowering my eyes, I saw a woman walking toward me. She stopped and peered at me with a troubled look on her face. My first impression was that she was insane.

"Tell who you are!" I said. "Don't you know who you are?"

"I have no remembrance of anything since half an hour ago, when I found myself in a railroad train. Not knowing how I came to be there nor where I was going, I got off at the next station. I went up into the village and have followed this road."

I had heard of cases of amnesia, but had never thought much about them. This appeared to me to be such a case. I began to think of ways of restoring the wanderer to her friends.

"To what point was your ticket?"

"I had no ticket."

"Then the conductor must have taken it up."

"I suppose so."

I thought a moment, then suddenly remembered my prayer.

"Come into the house," I said, "and I will see if I can find a clew."

She followed me, and the first thing that attracted her attention was my two children lying asleep with their little fat arms around each other's neck. They had kicked off the covers, and their pink toes were exposed. For the moment the woman's attention was diverted from her trouble to the children. She bent down and touched her lips to the round cheek of each. I offered a seat, and she sank into it.

I questioned her and made a note of her replies, but the only information to be derived in the matter I knew, while she did not. The train she was on must have come from the west, but I did not see how this would help us. She might have come clear around the world. Presently I thought of getting her something to eat and, going to the cupboard, took out cold ment, with bread and butter, and made her a cup of tea. She ate a little and drank the tea, all the while vainly trying to recall the past.

"Well," I said at last, "you'll have to stay here tonight; tomorrow I'll report your case to the police. Your friends have doubtless notified the police of your disappearance, and in this way we may establish communication with them."

I gave her the room in which my wife had slept with one of the children—the other child had slept with me—and told her she would find articles of apparel and toilet there, the room not having been changed in any way since my wife's death. She retired to it, and somehow I hoped she would never return to her past existence.

In the morning when the children awakened I sent them in their nighties into her room. They came out with wonder on their faces, the boy exclaiming:

"Oh, papa, God has sent us a new mamma."

I took them up in my arms and said, "I sincerely hope he has."

Leaving my find with the children, I took a train for the city and on arrival went straight to the superintendent of police. There were notes of a great many disappearances on his books that had occurred in different places, but none covering this case. I left a description of the woman who had come to me, with her dress and apparent station in life, stating that she was probably country bred. Then I returned to my home, which for the first time since my wife's death looked like home. I found the woman with both children in her lap, telling them stories.

Every day one or more inquiries came from the police, and a number of persons visited us to have a look at the newcomer with a view to discovering if she was this or that missing person, but she did not tally with any of them. Thinking all the while that she would be claimed, we did not change our status, but after a time we began to consider the propriety of her remaining with me. She could not do so without exciting comment except as my wife. If on this ground she left me where should she go? My children needed her and insisted on calling her "mamma." Since we did not know her name I soon fell to calling her by the same name as the children.

None of those coming to investigate her found that she was the person they were looking for. Her stay, which was expected to end any moment, was prolonged from week to week, from month to month. Then one day some gossip about us was repeated to me, and I decided to submit to her the question of marriage.

Therein lay a puzzle. How did we know but that she had a husband, even children of her own? And suppose she married me one day and was restored to a former home the next? What a terrible complication!

The "mystery," as I shall call her, was no more puzzled as to the best course to pursue than I. If we married and afterward she was torn away from me and my children would not I and they be the sufferers? For months we could come to no decision. But, strange to say, she as well as I began to dread that her identity might be discovered, and for two reasons—first, the discovery would break up what was becoming a happy home, and, second, her own real status might be an unhappy one.

It was necessary for at least one of us to determine to take the risk of marriage, and I arrived at this inevitable conclusion first. Indeed, I was a long while persuading her to my view. Had it not been that women are prone to heed providential interposition I doubt if I should ever have succeeded in my suit. That I had asked to be sent a woman to take care of my children and she believed that my prayer had been answered not by fate, but by Providence, was her chief reason for at last consenting.

And here again another difficulty was met. My bride's name was not known. She chose Mary, a very common but very beautiful one. Under this name she insisted on being baptized, arguing that if she had been baptized before the second baptism would be void, but if she had not been baptized a baptism before her marriage would hold good.

And so we were married. Some women held up their hands in horror at her marrying when she might be leaving a mourning husband and children elsewhere. But none of them could predict what would be their own decision were they called upon to act in a similar position.

Years passed, during which my little ones were charmed at the appearance from time to time of baby brothers or sisters. I prospered, and there was nothing to be desired in our family circle. My wife did not in all this time show any signs whatever of a returning memory. If there was a shadow upon our happiness it was that it might come back or that those to whom she had belonged might get some clew by which they would find her.

But when my children grew older my expenses naturally increased. There were six or eight boys and girls to educate, and it was difficult to make ends meet, especially as most of the oldest boys and girls wished to go to college. My limited income was not sufficient for the purpose, and I was obliged to deny them.

One morning I was awakened with a shake. My wife was looking at me with a singular expression, but with a happy one.

"It has all come back to me," she said.

"Great heavens!" I exclaimed.

"It's all right. I am Sarah Deane. I was brought up in Missouri. I am the oldest of six children. I determined to relieve my father and mother of the necessity"—

"You were not married?"

"No."

"Thank God!"

"I was going east to study typewriting and stenography. I was to have lived with an aunt in New York who was childless and wished me to make my home with her."

"Do you remember your aunt's name?"

"Certainly—Amelia Cook."

"And your father and mother?"

A pained expression passed over her face.

"They are both doubtless dead since they were quite old when I left them. How they must have suffered on my account!"

A great load was lifted from our shoulders. The older children knew of our secret, and they were as happy as I at the revelation.

My wife immediately took a train for New York, resuming a journey that had been interrupted for fifteen years. She found that her aunt, as well as both her parents, was dead. She also discovered that her aunt, who had a little property, had left it to her in case she should ever return. The lady had been confident that her niece would some day return and had made no other provision for her bequest; consequently no one could touch it and, the income having accumulated, the total amount was now quite a fortune.

My wife proved her identity, received her inheritance and insisted on spending a portion of it on her stepson and daughter, whom she sent to college. We are now not only a happy and contented family, but no cloud hangs over us.

At the Pop Concert.

The orchestra was playing the moonlight sonata.

"Sweetheart," he cried passionately, "I have loved you ever since you were a child I have longed for the sweet companionship of such a woman as you ever since—"

"Shut up, will you!" came a roar from the seats in the rear, "We want to hear the music."

"Shut up yourself," retorted the young man. "They advertise this as a pop concert, and I'm going to pop or bust."

Then turning to the fair maiden at his side he began again.—Harper's Weekly.

Obliging.

They were a very young and obviously bride-and-bridegroomish couple. On entering the tea shop the maid tactfully led them to a little side room which chanced to be unoccupied.

Tea was ordered and served. As the waitress was leaving the room the young man discovered an important fault in the service.

"Oh, waitress," he said, "may we have a spoon?"

"Oh, yes," said the girl. "I won't come back for 10 minutes, and I quite think you will be able to have the room all to yourselves."—Scraps.

At the Postoffice.

A young woman called at the postoffice in a country town and bashfully inquired if there was a letter for her.

"Business or love letter?" jokingly inquired the clerk.

"Business," was the reply, accompanied by a blush of the deepest crimson.

As there was no such letter to be found the young woman took her departure.

She came back, however, after a little while, and said, in faltering accents, "Please would you mind looking among the love letters?"—Omaha Bee.

A Good Answer.

Hetty's uncle, who was a school teacher, met her on the street one day and asked her if she was going with the picnic party.

"No, I ain't going."

"Oh, my little dear," said her uncle, "you must not say 'I ain't going,'" and he proceeded to give her a little lesson in grammar. "You are not going. He is not going. We are not going. You are not going. They are not going. Now can you say all that, Hetty?"

"Yes, I can," she replied, making a courtesy. "There ain't nobody going."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES.

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Palmer women know how the aches and pains that come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headache, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles, all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of diabetes, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills permanently cure all these disorders. Here's proof of it in a Palmer woman's words:

Mrs. W. H. King, Main St., Palmer, Mass., says: "I suffered from kidney disease for years and was constantly growing worse. I was never free from a dull, bearing-down pain in my back and the passages of the kidney secretions were too frequent. My head ached and I was subject to dizzy spells. To-day my kidneys are normal, the pains have lost their severeness and my back is strong. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Lynde & Gould's Drug Store, deserve the credit for bringing about this change and I am very grateful to them for the benefit they brought. I am pleased to recommend this remedy to other kidney sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

How I Became an Archaeologist

By ARNOLD L. TINKAM

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When I was a boy and studied Latin I read stories about ancient Rome that gave me an unconquerable desire to see the Eternal City. I wished to visit the chasm, or at least the place where it was, into which Quintus Curtius leaped on horseback, the remaining pillars of the temple erected to the two beautiful strangers, Castor and Pollux, who watered their horses in the forum after the battle of Lake Regillus, and the bridge that Horatius defended so valiantly. There was no prospect of my ever visiting Italy, for I had not the means even to take me to college.

But I was a good deal of a dreamer, and, my fancy getting fixed on my object, I couldn't turn it upon anything else. The only practical result was a resolve to "save up," as children put it, with a view to getting enough money to take me to Rome, keep me there long enough to get a hurried view of what I wished to see and bring me back to America.

By the time I was eighteen years old I had acquired this amount. I suppose I should have spent it in starting me upon a college education, but I did not. I bought a second class ticket on a ship crossing the Atlantic and proceeding through the Mediterranean to Naples. I remained at Naples long enough to visit Pompeii, then went by rail to Rome.

At first I was disappointed in getting into a modern commercial city, but when I struck some of the landmarks of ancient Rome—the Pantheon, the arches of Constantine and Titus, the Coliseum—I was not long in forgetting the modern in my rapture over the ancient. When I had exhausted Rome itself I was seized with a desire to visit its environs. I had read of the Campagna as it was when covered with farms and villas.

But by the time I had seen Rome itself my money was all gone. I hadn't enough even to buy a return trip ticket to America. I was stranded in a foreign country. What could I do? What did I do? I followed the genius of archaeology that was strong within me. Reading a notice in a newspaper that an excavating party was to make a search for the ruins of a certain villa some fifty miles from the city, I hired myself as a digger to the archaeologist in charge, went with him and dug with the rest. In his reading he had hit upon a description of the site, but could only confirm his views by burrowing in the ground. In other words, he must hunt for that for which he was looking.

We dug three days, at the end of which time my employer gave up the search. During this time I put in my spade here and there on my own account, with no result. When the party went back to Rome I asked for my pay, a few lira, and they returned without me. I had seen a stone projecting from the soil at some distance from where we were digging that seemed to me to have been artificially shaped, and I wished to investigate it.

As soon as the party were gone I began to dig about this stone. I found that it rested on another, to which it was fixed by mortar. This in turn rested on another. Then I came to a wall. I followed the wall for a dozen feet and came to an angle. The top of the wall was five or six feet from the surface, and I was not likely to find anything of value at a less depth. I dug all day, and as the evening was coming on, some ten feet below the surface, my spade struck something hard. I shuddered, for by this time I knew that I was liable to ruin a treasure. These villas were ornamented with statues—some of them very beautiful—and every year they are found. I had with me a scoop and, throwing down my spade, began to dig about the hard substance with the smaller implement. It was round. In a few minutes I uncovered a marble head.

Had I discovered a mine of inexhaustible gold I could not have been more delighted. I scooped away enough earth to tell me that I had found a statue. But it was by this time too late to look any further. I threw back the loose earth, marked the spot with a stake and hurried away from the fever stricken Campagna that I might not be caught there after nightfall.

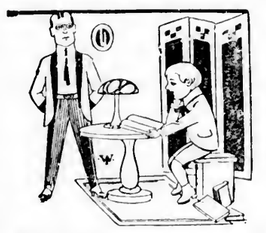
The next morning I went to the archaeologist who had conducted the search and told him of my find. It would have been illegal for me to remove the statue myself, and I preferred to proceed under his superintendence. He was as much delighted at my luck as I was myself. We started at once for the hole I had dug, removed the loose earth and exposed the marble. We could tell nothing about it except that the face was very beautiful.

We dug about the statue till we could see that it was the figure of a woman, the drapery being ancient Roman.

The archaeologist before leaving Rome had left word for workmen to follow, and when they arrived the statue was removed. It proved to be of great value. I had struck the site of the villa for which we had searched, and other articles were found in it, though none in as good condition as this. I received a remuneration for my find, but what I valued more was being taken as a student by the man who had employed me to dig for him. I spent a number of years under his tuition and by my own efforts have contributed to the contents of the museums in no small degree.

A Munchausen Yarn.

Baron Munchausen when hunting for deer upon one occasion encountered a magnificent animal, but found himself without shot. Speedily gathering together a handful of cherry stones, he loaded his gun with them and fired at the deer, hitting him squarely between the eyes, not killing him, however. The deer managed to escape, but some time later the baron encountered him again and was surprised to see a beautiful cherry tree growing out of the animal's forehead, covered with blossoms and fruit.



The Dwarf Palm of Algeria.

The dwarf palm, which furnishes considerable quantities of fiber, grows in great profusion in Algeria and is one of the principal obstacles to the clearing of the land, so thickly does it grow and so difficult is it to pull up. Its roots, in shape resembling carrots, penetrate into the ground to the depth of a yard or more, and when its stem only is cut it sprouts out again almost immediately. As its name indicates, this palm is very small and can only attain a certain height when protected, as in the Arab cemeteries, for example.

A Red Light.

On a clear night a red light of one candle power is visible a mile and one of three candle power two miles.

Vicarious.

Frankie (studying his lessons)—Say, pop, where does the Hudson rise?

Pop (hesitating)—Blest if I know.

Frankie—Then I'll get licked like blazes tomorrow on account of your ignorance.

Information.

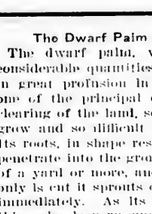
They had been talking about "Vogue," "The Suance River" and others, when she asked, "Do you know 'Maggie Murphy's Home?'"

"No," he replied, "I didn't know she had been away."

Answered.

A drummer approached a girl in charge of a soda fountain and before giving his order asked, "How is the milkmaid tonight?"

"Milk isn't made; it comes from cows, you fool," was the retort.—Exchange.



Dry and Moist Air.

A cubic foot of dry air weighs more than a cubic foot of moist air at the same temperature and pressure. The addition of vapor to a cubic foot of dry air enlarges the volume of the mixture if the air is free to expand, as in the atmosphere, and as the vapor has only about two thirds the density of dry air at the same temperature and pressure the density of the mixture is less than that of dry air.

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Erie, Pa. — "I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. Endlich, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory, from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

Without trying it no woman ought to say this medicine will not help her case. m

June Undermuslin Sale

An Event Notable in Importance and Whose Prestige Stands Unexcelled Either in Value-Giving or Extent of Its Offerings

We've offered, before, dainty Undermuslins at a tithe of their true value. In fact, it's a sale occasion we hold twice yearly, events that thousands of women hereabouts expectantly await. But great as were preceding values, these are greater yet. It's the outcome of months of preparation, careful selection and wise buying. By placing large orders during the manufacturers' dull season, we've secured values that at any other time would have been impossible. Price, however, is not the only concession we secured, but garments as well, specially designed and made for us. So that we offer you now Undermuslins that for style, fit, workmanship and exclusiveness rival even those creations of the most skilled seamstress. Then, too, they're all garments made of the best materials and daintiest laces, and—

Offered at Prices a Full Third Less Than Actual Selling Price at Any Other Time

At 25c

25 styles in Drawers with plain and cambric tucked ruffle, and a special number has four-inch embroidered ruffle and finished with tuckings.

50 models in Corset Covers of French and Filet cross-barred materials, nainsooks and lawns. The trimmings are Convent edges, val. and torchon laces, with embroidered yokes.

Short Skirts, too, in a wide variety of styles.

At 98c

Our showing of Gowns, Combinations and Long Skirts at this price is truly remarkable. The styles, materials and trimmings are equal to any $1 50 garment.

50 styles in Long Skirts—about 35 styles in Combinations in both Skirt and Drawers, and an equal number of styles in Gowns and Chemise.

Some of the Gowns are elaborately trimmed with cluny laces and fine embroideries, other dainty styles have motifs and are finished with Convent edging. An empire model with allover embroidered bodice, lace sleeves, and other models are lavishly trimmed with dainty embroideries.

At this price, too, are Combination Garments with Japanese drawers, together with many other styles, trimmed with val. laces, fine embroideries, motifs and medallions.

More simple styles are those with Convent edging and French veinings run with wash ribbon.

The more conservative styles have deep flouncings of fine hand machine embroideries. The Chemise garments are in large assortment—most of them have semi-fitted backs, with effective trimmings. Materials are of fine lingerie cloth.

At 79c

Special Combinations and beautifully fashioned Gowns.

Combinations of excellent materials, trimmed with cluny and val. laces of the coffee bean pattern. Bodice finished with laces and trimmed flounce.

Dainty new models in Gowns with medallions and val. lace yokes, and a variety of Empire effects.

At $1.49

Chiefly Combinations, Gowns and Long Skirts. Really it's a display surpassing all previous offerings at this price. Princess and French Combinations trimmed in an array of beautiful laces, butterfly beading and motif yokes—all in all embodying the most exquisite of materials.

Long Skirts with all-lace circular flounces—also a 20-inch flounce Skirt with embroideries. Other models in eyelet and conventional designs. Golf Skirts—garments that fit close to the hips and most desirable for present-day fashions.

Gowns in a most tempting display—Persian Lawns, Dotted Swisses with linen laces in cluny patterns, that appear like real lace; floral patterns—embroidered with the same design to match in the lace, make up our showing in one group, while one-piece Gowns with all-lace sleeve, Empire effects and many conservative styles complete the assortment.

At 50c

Gowns, Long Skirts, Combinations, Corset Covers and Drawers.

Gowns in Chemise and Buttoned Models, round and square neck, trimmed with motif yokes, val and torchon laces, together with a variance of embroideries.

Long Skirts with 20-inch flounces, embroidery trimmed.

Drawers of the circular medallion styles with lace insertings

Garter Drawers with blind embroidered flounce and numerous other styles. The materials are of nainsook, Swiss embroideries, val. and linen laces.

Short Skirts with 5 inch Swiss embroideries, while others are trimmed with val. laces.

At $1.98

At this price our assortment depicts in full accord the results of weeks of untiring effort in assembling this showing. Here you'll find Long Skirts in exclusive patterns, in Rose, Chrysanthemum, Eyelet and Swiss Embroideries. Some with all-lace flouncings and heavy linen laces. These garments are all $3 values.

One-Piece Garments and Boudoir Gowns with lace flouncings—circular and all-lace sleeves. Materials are of silk finished nainsook, having wide bands of linen lace. They're all adaptations of higher priced models.

Combination Garments in a display of large proportions. It's a garment that's fast winning popular favor and the styles we offer you here make up an offering of rare magnitude. Sheer and soft materials fashioned in the most beautiful styles—we'd say 25—all trimmed with floral designs in laces, embroideries and beading. Then, too, there's new models of chemise drawers and Princess Slips in profusion.

COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHERS.

A Welcome Change

Smoke curling up from the farmhouse chimney as the men are coming in from the fields, gives a pretty suggestion of a good supper and a comfortable home. But it also means a hot, tired woman, working hard over a blazing fire.

Your wife can escape this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

A New Perfection keeps a kitchen many degrees cooler than any other range, yet it does all a coal or wood range can do. It saves time, labor and fuel. No wood to cut; no coal to carry; no ashes; no soot. With the New Perfection oven it is the best cooking device you can find anywhere.

NOTICE OF SALE OF LAND BY ADMINISTRATOR.

By license of the Probate Court for the County of Hampden, the subscriber, administrator with the will annexed of the estate of Joseph Merriam, late of Palmer, in said County of Hampden, will sell at public auction on the premises on the twelfth day of June, A. D. 1911, at two o'clock in the afternoon, the following real estate hereinafter described:

A certain tract of land, with the buildings thereon, situate in Tenneyville, in said Palmer, bounded and described as follows:—Beginning at corner of land formerly of George N. Stone on east line of the highway leading from Palmer to Monson, thence southerly on said highway 13 rods and 2 feet to land now or formerly of Widow Bradley; thence easterly on last named land 4 rods to land of E. J. Chalk; thence northerly on land of said Chalk 13 rods and 6½ feet to land formerly of said Stone; thence westerly on said land formerly of said Stone about 4 rods to place of beginning; subject to such rights as were conveyed by Mary Jane Craw to M. J Warner, trustee, by instrument dated November 16, 1901, and recorded with Hampden County Registry of Deeds, book 644, page 39.

Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, including taxes for the year 1911, and fifty dollars will be required to be paid in cash by the purchaser at the time and place of sale as earnest money. 8-3

ERNEST E. HOBSON,
Administrator with will annexed.

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF THE COUNTY OF HAMPDEN.

The undersigned citizens and legal voters of the Town of Monson respectfully represent, That the boundary lines of Mill Street in Monson running westerly from Main street to Mechanic street and of Thompson street running westerly from Main street to Granite street are poorly defined and because of the destruction of former boundary marks it is now impossible to determine the proper boundaries of said streets. We therefore pray your Honorable Board to view and relocate the above named streets and take such further action in the matter as your Honorable Board may deem proper.

SELECTMEN OF MONSON AND OTHERS, PETITIONERS.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

HAMPDEN, ss. At a meeting of the County Commissioners holden at Springfield, within and for said county, on the seventh day of June in the year of our Lord, 1911.

And now upon the petition aforesaid, the County Commissioners, deeming a view of the premises expedient and proper, give notice that they will meet for the purpose of said view, and hearing all parties interested, at the corner of Main and Mill streets in Monson on Tuesday the eleventh day of July next at 10.30 o'clock a. m.; and it is ordered by the County Commissioners that a copy of said petition be served by the Sheriff of said county, or his Deputy, upon the Clerk of the town of Monson, in said county, thirty days at least before the said eleventh day of July, and that all other persons and corporations interested therein be notified, by publishing a copy of said petition and this order thereon, once a week, in the Palmer Journal, a public newspaper printed in said county, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the time of said view and hearings. And it is further ordered by the Commissioners, that copies of said petition, or abstracts containing the substance thereof and this order, be posted by said Sheriff or Deputy, in two public places in the town of Monson fourteen days before said eleventh day of July, and that notice be given in manner aforesaid to all persons and corporations interested, that the County Commissioners deem a view of the premises expedient and proper, and that a view of the same will be taken by them at the time and place aforesaid, and that they will hear the parties interested at the time of said view.

ROBERT O. MORRIS, Clerk.

True copy of the petition and order of the County Commissioners thereon.
Attest, ROBERT O. MORRIS, Clerk.

SCHOOL WORK EXHIBITION.

Palmer Schools Hold Open House Day and Evening.

MANY PARENTS AND FRIENDS VISIT.

A Very Interesting Display of Work Done in All Classes of Grade Instruction.

The exhibition of grammar school work presented for the inspection of the citizens of Palmer all day Friday and Friday evening of last week was a creditable one. A large number of people took advantage of the opportunity to see the work of the children during the year.

The manual training work especially was viewed with great interest and called forth many expressions of surprise at the general character and excellent quality of the work. The work of the boys in designing the articles to be made was clearly shown by the detailed plan exhibited with the finished article. In work of this kind the pupil must have a mental picture of what is desired and then transcribe and express it upon paper in definite and precise dimensions The work on the article itself is then begun and is not haphazard, but is carried forward with a definite object in view and under the limitations imposed by the plan. The mind, hand and eye are called upon to exercise their functions in unison and the pupil sees his efforts take shape in tangible form before him and develops a self-interest that is carried into other studies Anything that will tend to develop interest in school work on the part of our boys is to be commended.

The work of the girls in manual training was looked upon with even more interest than had been the work of the boys, as the general character of this work was very useful and the execution of it called for general approval. The mothers especially viewed with pleasure the work of mending, darning, the making of button holes, the sewing on of buttons, the working caps, the working aprons and other articles of feminine apparel, and expressed regret that work of this character had not been taught in their school days.

The specimens exhibited in the work in penmanship presented tangible evidence of the improvement that is being made in this study. Many expressions were heard to the effect that it would be very gratifying if more specimens of the work of each pupil of the different grades at the beginning and at the close of the year were given a prominent place, with the view of presenting evidence of the progress made in this study.

The specimens of the work in arithmetic did not occupy a prominent place in the exhibition, and were generally to be found on the tables in an inconspicuous position. It is hoped that evidence of the pupils' knowledge in this study, whether it be much or little, will occupy a prominent place at future exhibitions.

The general character of the work in spelling could have been shown to good advantage by the exhibition of papers showing the result of a written test from dictation. A few papers of this kind from each pupil in the different grades, showing their progress in this study throughout the year and placed in a prominent position, would add very much to the general interest and give an excellent idea of the character of the work obtained in this study.

The skill exhibited in the drawing was excellent and was varied enough to please all. This work is undoubtedly of great benefit to the pupils in the training of the mind, the hand, the eye, and the development of good taste and judgment. The excellent character of the work as well as the space given to the exhibition of it clearly indicated that the pupils are proficient in this study, and that those in charge of the work not only know it, but are anxious to present evidence of this proficiency.

The quality of the work in music could be observed only by a visit to the class rooms, where excellent work was done The question naturally arises in the mind of the interested visitor, "Is the excellent quality of the work in both the drawing and the music due to the unusual ability of the teachers in these studies, or is not the excellent work obtained in these studies rather due to the assistance these specialists give to the teachers and the constant and intelligent supervision of the work?" It is hoped that the employment of a superintendent will result in placing all the studies in the grammar schools on the same plane of excellence as that occupied by the drawing and the music.

As our children are the most valuable assets of the town and a large sum of money is spent each year in educating them with the view of raising the general standard of intelligence and qualifying them for the important duties of citizenship, the citizens of Palmer have the right to ask and ought to know, "What is the standard of efficiency in our schools as compared with the work obtained elsewhere?" It is hoped that those in charge of the educational department of the town will be able to produce at each yearly exhibit a sufficient quantity of work of the different studies to satisfactorily answer this question.

Telephone Rate Reductions.

Will Take Effect August 1. House and Business Rates Drop.

The telephone company announces a change in rates—a reduction in the charge for two-party business lines, one-party and two-party residence lines to take effect August 1 in Palmer. The same reduction is to apply to other places in sections of the company's territory outside the Boston and Suburban district, and while voluntary on the part of the telephone company, is in line with the recommendations of the Highway Commission for the Boston districts.

The benefits which will accrue to subscribers in this district, in the application of the new rates, will be in the reduction in the two-party flat business rate from $30 to $27, in the one-party flat rate for residence service from $30 to $27, and in the reduction in the two-party flat rate for residence service from $25 to $21.

Although the reductions do not seem especially striking when applied to the individual rate, they become impressively significant when it is stated, that the total will represent a loss of approximately $200,000 to the company; this in addition to an estimated loss of between $300 000 and $400,000 in consequence of the revision of rates in and about Boston.

In consequence of the necessary changes in switchboards and other equipment, the new rates will not go into effect until August 1. On and after July 1 no new contracts will be taken except at the new rates, but existing rates that are not reduced will not be disturbed.

Monson Academy's 107th Commencement.

Largest Number of Alumni Ever in Attendance Except Centennial Year. New Era of Prosperity Seems to be Established.

The 107th annual commencement of Monson Academy at Monson has been held the past week. Although the weather conditions were not what were desired, there was a large attendance at all the exercises of this ancient but modern institution.

Principal Henry F. Dewing.

The class-day exercises, which were to have been held on the campus Monday, had to be held in the chapel because of the damp weather. The ivy oration and the planting of the ivy took place on the campus at 7 45; Norman Chester Cushman delivered the oration, and the rest of the program was as follows:

Senior President's Welcome. Albert E. Dunsford
Grinds. Mildred Munsell
Class History. Anna Savage
Prophecies—One Act Farce.
Scene, Alumni Reunion, 1921.
Edmund R. Dewing, Neldon Kidd
Class Oration. John H. Leahy
Statistics. Marion Sullivan
Class Will. Robert K. Squier
Presentions. Lena McCray
School Song. School

The class motto is, "Scientia Potestas Est."

The graduation exercises were held in Memorial hall Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, every seat in the hall being taken. Music was furnished by Orcutt's orchestra. The stage decorations were of wild flowers and evergreen, and were very attractive; they were arranged under the direction of Earl Taylor. The exercises opened with selections by the orchestra, followed by the invocation by Rev. Charles A. Dinsmore of Waterbury, Ct. The next on the program was a selection by the school chorus, the entire student body consisting of 150 voices. The remainder of the program was carried out as follows:

Salutatory, with essay, Reclaiming the abandoned farm. Hannah Elizabeth Foley.
Oration, Music and Civilization. Ralph Taylor Entwistle.
Essay, Tendencies in modern education. Viola Evelyn McPherson.
Essay, The home. Carol Belle Beckwith.
School Chorus.
Oration. The era of concrete construction. Robert George Taylor.
Essay, with valedictory addresses, Pageants. Edith Louise Cassidy.
Presentation of diplomas.
School Chorus.

The members of the graduation class and their courses are as follows:

Hannah Elizabeth Foley,
Salutatorian.

Robert Keep Squier, Monson, Mass.
Robert George Taylor Monson, Mass.

The alumni dinner was held at 12 30 in the Holmes Gymnasium, which was very prettily decorated under the direction of Henry N Flynt. Besides the members of the graduating class and the faculty, there were 186 members of the Alumni Association present, all that could be accommodated,—it being the largest number present at any alumni dinner with the exception of the centennial celebration in 1904.

Rev. Charles A. Dinsmore, president of the association and one of the trustees, was toastmaster, and called the assemblage to order with a very interesting address as follows:

"I suppose that the prosperity of this institution is due to the brains of the faculty and those of the graduating class. It is claimed that after-dinner oratory came in the decline of negro minstrels, so at our graduation it seems to be necessary to have something of the spiritual, something of the mental and something of the physical. We have had the spiritual in the remarkable baccalaureate sermon which was preached Sunday evening; exhibition of the mental in the graduating exercises this morning; the physical will be in the baseball game this afternoon, and now comes the fun which will be furnished by the speakers. Monson Academy is the great beautifier of the people of this community. Thomas Carlisle says that he and Sterling agreed in everything except their opinions, but we all know the opinion of everyone of Monson Academy. We are one in our loyalty and one in our opinion of the greatness of this institution. We believe in the equality of sex—Monson Academy is a co-educational institution; therefore there will be addresses by the ladies."

He then introduced Miss Julia Smith, a graduate and former teacher, as one of the most honored members of the alumni. She related the conditions which existed when she was a student and later on as a teacher. In 1887, while a teacher, six Japanese students who came to the school were turned over to her for instruction and education. At that time the teachers were required to teach eight hours each day She spoke with much respect of Mrs. James Tufts, who at that time was preceptress at the school and who had much ability to influence young women for their own good She urged the members of the graduating class to always pursue the policy of honesty and integrity, and closed her remarks by reading the names of 13 members of the alumni who had passed away, five of whom were former teachers.

Thaddeus L. Cushman, treasurer of the Alumni Association, announced that the George L Newton fund, which is for the aid of needy students, had just come into the hands of the trustees; also that the sum of $1000, known as the Sarah M. Newton fund, given to the school by the late George L. Newton, had been turned over to the trustees. He also read the following letter from E D. and R. P Cushman.

To the trustees of Monson Academy: In order that the institution of which we have both former students may have an athletic field been suitable for all school sports, we desire to present to your board the inclosed deed. This deed covers eight acres of land situated on Washington street, and it is our wish that the field be called Cushman field in memory of our children, Grace Sedgwick Cushman, class of 1896, and Francis Chapin Cushman, class of 1904.

EDWARD D. CUSHMAN,
RUFUS P. CUSHMAN.

Harry L. Oldfield, '06, spoke in part as follows: "What a wonderful institution Monson Academy might be if everyone who had graduated was as eager to aid in the building up of the school each year as they were when they attended.

Edith Louise Cassidy, Valedictorian.

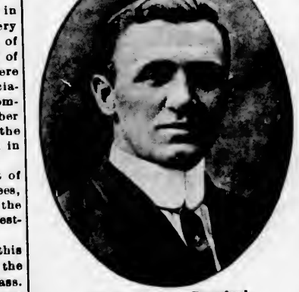
If everyone had it on their minds there is no reason why it could not be one of the greatest institutions of its kind in the country." He congratulated the class on their opportunity of graduating this year, one of the most prosperous and remarkable the Academy has ever known.

Rev. Charles Ricketts of the class of '91 gave a very interesting talk on the success of athletics during the past year, and some good advice on the policy of athletics in general.



Miss Mary Hynes, '08, gave a short but well-delivered talk which impressed upon the gathering the loyalty and sincerity of her classmates to the honored institution.

E. J. Foskit, of the class of '86, the last class to graduate from the old building, spoke of the duty of each to make of his life as great a success as possible which could be obtained only by the best of efforts.

Mrs. Mabel Watson Moulton, '96, spoke of the impossibility of her classmates attending because of their wide absence from Monson. She alluded to the death of one member of the class,—Grace Sedgwick Cushman,—in whose memory the new athletic field has been presented.

Lawyer Dennis McCarthy of Rockville, Ct., '94 proved one of the most interesting speakers of the day telling many amusing stories. He had much to say in praise of Monson, even after visiting many other schools of similar character. Mr. McCarthy was president of the Western Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association at the time when Monson permanently won the banner which has since adorned her walls.

John H. Leahy spoke for the graduating class. Not excepting the sincere loyalty of former members, he doubted if there were any who had more respect for the dear old school than the members of the class of '11. They had always found the rules and regulations wise and proper and the members of the faculty the best of friends.

The class of '01 was represented by Esther Beckwith Buffington, 22 of the class being present for their reunion.

George S. Miller spoke for the faculty. When he came to Monson two years ago he had never heard of the school or its traditions. The old school spirit, an absolute necessity for success, was never more in evidence in any school than in Monson now. If the institution continues to grow it will soon have to go beyond the limits of the town. By outside support the students are able to get from Monson Academy what they could not have if entirely dependent on the resources of the town. Last June there were nine boarding

THORNDIKE BOY KILLED.

Victim of Grade Crossing Accident in Connecticut.

DANIEL CREAN STRUCK BY FREIGHT.

Funeral Held in Thorndike Yesterday. Was Formerly Conductor on Street Railway.

Daniel Crean, son of James Crean of Thorndike, was killed at Torrington, Ct., Tuesday as a result of being struck by the cars while crossing the tracks. He was employed as a clerk in a store and went to the railroad station to get some strawberries A freight train suddenly backed down, killing him as he started to cross the track. He is survived by a father and two brothers, James of Torrington, Ct., and John of Thorndike.

The body was brought to Thorndike Tuesday evening and the funeral was held from St. Mary's church yesterday morning, when a mass of requiem was sung by the pastor, Rev. Thomas S. Donoghue. Miss Nellie Crowley rendered the solo, "Face to Face." Burial was in St. Thomas's cemetery.

The deceased was employed for a time as conductor on the Springfield and Eastern street railway and was well known in this vicinity. The news of his death came as a great shock to his many friends.

Auto Driver Fined $200.

Springfield Man Who Killed Woman at Ware on Joy Ride in May.

In the criminal session of the superior court in Northampton Tuesday, Gilbert N. Leete of Springfield, the driver of the automobile which ran into and killed Mrs. Eliza A. Miller in Ware, May 19, 1910, was found guilty of violating the automobile laws and fined $200.

Leete, who was an employe of the Knox Automobile Company of Springfield, took an automobile for a joy ride to Ware on the above named evening, taking a man friend with him. They took three Ware girls to Gilbertville. On their return in going around a dangerous curve in the road at a rapid rate they ran into Mrs. Miller, knocking her down and causing injuries from which she died Leete stopped the machine and let the girls out, then returned to Springfield, where he was arrested two days later through evidence that came through the number of his machine.

The district attorney stated that there was evidence that Mrs. Miller had taken at least one drink that evening and that it was possible that she was under the influence of liquor. He said that Leete was tried for manslaughter at the last session of the superior court and the jury disagreed, six being in favor of acquittal and six for conviction. He did not believe he could find a jury that would convict Leete of manslaughter. He suggested that the maximum fine be imposed. Judge Sanderson stated that he was reluctant to do this, for he felt that the crime demanded imprisonment; it, however, the district attorney would assume responsibility the judge said he would impose a fine, and this was done.

Lake Opening Next Week.

Performance Twice Daily in the Fine New Covered Theatre.

The theatre season at Forest Lake will open next week, and thereafter until Labor Day there will be two shows daily, at 3 15 and 8 15 p m, rain or shine, the new cover to the theatre making this possible. Manager Rohan has gone to a large expense to make the place attractive to patrons, and not the least pleasing improvement is the cover to the theatre. This extends over the entire seating capacity, is open on the side to permit free access of air, and by a clever arrangement in the roof there is also an exit there for the heated air which rises, making the place delightfully cool even in the hottest days The excluding of sun and rain cannot fail to prove pleasing to patrons of the theatre. In the matter of attractions Mr Rohan aims to put on a better line than ever seen there before, believing that the better the shows the larger the crowds. The attraction next week will be Crimmins and Gore in a rousing musical comedy entitled, "A Warm Match," which is said to be built on entirely new lines, causing no end of amusement and loads of harmless fun. Miss Gore's tough girl is said to be one of the best caricatures on the stage, and her change from Dry Dock Liz to a swell Boston belle in forty seconds is unique. Mr. Crimmins is a little of everything, comedian, acrobat, dancer, and all.

Dancing is an attraction three evenings each week, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

Thought He Had Killed Man.

But No Remains Can Be Found and Engineer Was Probably Mistaken.

The engineer of the Twentieth Century limited reported upon the arrival of the train at West Warren Saturday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock that a man had been run into about 300 yards east of the No. 4 mill in Warren and the body was hurled into the river. The river was dragged Sunday, but no trace of any body could be found. It was thought it might possibly have been a Polish workman, but a careful inquiry was made about the mill tenements and boarding houses and no one was found missing. The search was given up Sunday night and it is now the general opinion that some inanimate object was struck by the train and on account of the speed it was possible that this may have been mistaken for a human body.

More Pay For Postmasters.

Three Rivers and Bondsville Officials Each Get $1000 More.

The annual revision of postmasters' salaries, which is based on the amount of business done in the offices, has just been made by the post office department, and several officials in this section are rejoicing over a boost in their remuneration. Miss Twiss at Three Rivers and L. R. Holden at Bondsville will each get $100 more, the former being raised from $1200 to $1300, and the latter from $1000 to $1100. Other raises hereabouts are: Belchertown from $1100 to $1200; Ware from $2300 to $2400; West Warren from $1000 to $1100.

Summer Change on B. and A.

Through New York Express to Stop for First Time in 15 Years.

A peculiarity of the summer time table which will go into effect on the Boston and Albany road next Sunday is the stopping at Palmer of a through train from Boston for New York, at 11.22 in the forenoon. This train formerly made the stop, as did also the noon train out of Boston, reaching Palmer just before 2. The former train was rushed by a good many years ago, and the latter was pushed past later; it is several years since Palmer people have been able to take a train for New York without changing in Springfield, and the innovation will be very welcome. The changes in the regular schedule are few. Going east, the morning accommodation will leave at 7.22 instead of 7.28 and the express at 8 29 instead of 8.23; the present 4 45 p. m. accommodation will be changed to 4.48, and the express from 6.18 to 6.20. Going west the early morning accommodation is set forward from 7 16 to 7.11, and the new train will stop at 11 22. A new train is an express from Boston, reaching Palmer at 6.23 in the evening, and on account of this, the train which now stops at 6.58 will be sent through without stopping.

July Fourth Noise Limited.

Selectmen Pass Order Last Night. Other Important Actions.

The selectmen last evening voted to limit the times within which fireworks may be sold and used in connection with the celebration of the Fourth of July. The restrictions are practically the same as in previous years and will be published soon.

Application was received from the telephone company for permission to set two poles on Park street near Pearl and three on Pearl, in order to run a line up Pearl street. A hearing will be held later. Notices of condemnation were served on the owners of private land through which the carpet mill sewer is to run after leaving the highway until reaching the river. The Polish society at Four Corners asked and received permission to hold a picnic on the Romaioe farm on July 4.

Bids for the reconstruction of the macadam road at Bondsville will be opened next Monday.

Wire Must Come Down.

Tree Warden Keith Hands Out Ultimatum to Telephone Company.

In his capacity as tree warden Charles H. Keith is waging war on all wires which are fastened to the trees within the limits of the highway. In the course of his investigations he some time ago discovered a guy wire belonging to the telephone company which is attached to a shade tree on Pine street. The company was notified to remove the wire, but without result. Another official of the company was then notified, but still there was nothing doing. After several other notifications Mr. Keith became disgusted and this morning notified a representative of the company that if the wire is on the tree next Monday he proposes to cut it off himself.

Firemen Called to Burning Tree.

A telephone call to the fire department about 1 o'clock Tuesday morning — in a pouring rain — requested immediate attendance on a burning tree in the rear of the Kerigan house on East Park street, opposite the Boston and Albany freight house. The tree was reported as having fallen between two houses, which were in danger. The men found the tree — an immense old oak hollow the entire length — still standing and blazing merrily inside. It had evidently been struck by lightning, and had been on fire for several hours. The contents of a few chemicals soon left the tree dark and cheerless, and the firemen drifted back to sleep and pleasant dreams.

Firemen's Memorial Sunday.

The members of the fire department and invited guests met at the engine house Sunday afternoon to do honor to the memory of formers members who have passed away. The St. Thomas cemetery was first visited and the graves decorated and then the Oak Knoll cemetery in Palmer. Here there was singing by a quartet, the graves were decorated, and Auditor Charles E. Fish of the fire district gave a short address.

Prisoner Takes Leg Bail.

Makes Lively Sprint For Liberty This Morning, in Spite of Shots.

A Pole from Wilbraham made a sensational get away from Deputy Sheriff Bills about 10 30 this morning. The officer had arrested the man in Wilbraham last evening for assault: in court this morning the witnesses failed to appear and the case was continued until to-morrow. The prisoner thought his brother would go bail for him, and the officer started to take him to the cooler pending an attempt to secure bail. At the foot of the stairs leading from the court room the prisoner, who was not handcuffed to the officer, made a sudden twist and sprinted down Church street to Pleasant. Mr. Bills followed as fast as possible and fired his revolver twice to scare the fellow; it evidently did that, but not along the lines hoped for by the officer, for the fellow quickened his speed at each shot, turned the corner into Pearl street and the last seen of him was when he disappeared in the underbrush at the top of the hill.

Parents to be Consulted.

High School Course of Study to be Explained at Meeting Next Week.

Superintendent Lee T. Gray of the public schools is to inaugurate a new departure next week, when he will issue a detailed schedule of the several courses of study which the high school provides, and invites the parents of the gradnating ninth grade pupils, who will constitute the entering class of the high school next fall, to meet in the high school assembly hall next Friday evening and bear a talk on just what the courses provide and mean. He does not believe that the average pupil is fitted to judge for himself what course is best to take up, and takes this method of bringing the matter directly before the parents, in order that they may select the studies they wish their children to pursue through the high school.

Peony Over 90 Years Old.

Owned by O. W. Studley, Formerly of Palmer, Now of Springfield.

While plants — at least most plants — are not supposed to be long-lived, now and then one with a record for longevity is to be found. Such a one is a peony owned by Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. Orillus W. Studley of Springfield, formerly of Palmer and very well known here. It is healthy and vigorous at their home on Yale street, in spite of its advanced age — between 80 and 90 years — and numerous transplanting. It was first owned by Mr. Studley's grandmother in Union, Ct., and since then has been transplanted to Union and Willington, Ct., to Warren and Palmer, Mass., and lastly to Springfield. This year it had 13 blossoms. Mrs. Studley also has a day lily which is over 40 years old, that was taken from the old "Major Morgan" place in Palmer.

School Teachers Appointed.

Committee Retains Entire Present Force At Tuesday's Meeting.

At the regular meeting of the school committee Tuesday evening the present force of teachers was reappointed with the exception of Miss Anna D. McAuliffe, teacher of drawing and manual training, and Miss Joanna V. Cantwell, supervisor of music, who will be appointed at the next meeting. Lee T. Grey was appointed principal of the high school. The resignation of Miss Marion Whitelaw, teacher in the wire mill school, was accepted, she having secured a position in Springfield. The present tenant officers were reappointed, and William Smith, janitor of the Three Rivers building, was added to the list. It was voted to adopt Appleton's arithmetic and the Alexander speller, which have been on trial the past year.

Suggest Teacher's Pension.

School Board to Bring Question Before Voters Next Year.

The school committee, at its meeting Tuesday evening, voted to bring before the voters of the town for their consideration the question of granting a pension to Mrs. Mary E. Murdock of Thorndike at such time as she may elect to leave the ranks of school teachers. There is no suggestion of Mrs. Murdock's retirement, nor any wish to dispense with her services, as she is considered one of the town's most valuable teachers. But she has been teaching in Palmer continuously for 37 years—since 1874 — and the committee feels that some recognition is due her long and efficient service when she decides to retire, and that the time to decide the matter is while she is yet in service.

More Needed Moisture Comes.

Two Rainy Days, With Gentle Showers and Heavy Thunder Shower.

Owners of pastures and all who have growing crops were glad to see the rain which began Monday morning and continued nearly all day and well into the night, with a continuation into Tuesday. The rainfall was of the kind which does the most good, coming gently and soaking into the earth, with the exception of a hard shower about 10 Monday evening, when there was an abundance of sharp lightning and heavy thunder, and a heavy fall of rain for a time. No damage from lightning has been reported, however.

Poisoned Cattle Found Dead.

Two Animals Owned by John Trumble in North Part of the Town.

Two animals — a cow and a three-years-old heifer — owned by John Trumble in the north part of the town were found dead Sunday in a pasture on "Hog Hill." They were at some distance from each other and had apparently been dead a week. The indications were that death was due to poison, although they had been dead too long to determine accurately. Mr. Trumble had not seen the animals since Memorial Day. There were a number of other animals in the pasture, but they appeared not to have been effected.

Forte—Tucker.

Miss Eva Sophia Forte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Forte of Springfield, formerly of this town, and Atherton Howe Tucker of Ilion, N. Y, were married in New York city Wednesday afternoon by Rev. G. L. Forte of Rockland, brother of the bride. The bride is an instructor at the normal college of the City of New York, a graduate of the Palmer High school in the class of 1895, of Smith College '99 and of Radcliffe College '08. The groom is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, '98 and is with the Library Bureau of New York City. The wedding was a quiet home affair, only relatives and intimate friends being present. The bride wore a white lace dress over messaline, and veil, and carried white roses and maiden-hair fern. There were no attendants. The house was prettily decorated and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Tucker will spend their honeymoon in the White Mountains. Their home will be in Ilion, N. Y.

Nurses' Graduation Next Tuesday.

The eleventh annual graduation and Nurses' Night of the Monson State Hospital will be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend. Teams will be sent to Palmer to meet the 7 45 and 8 15 cars, and will return to Palmer at 10 45 There will be dancing until 12, and refreshments will be served.

Will Kill Unlicensed Dogs.

Deputy Sheriff George A. Bills has been given the dog warrant, and will soon be gunning for unlicensed canines. Heretofore officers have been allowed no compensation for shooting such purps, but now they are allowed one dollar each. There are supposed to be between 40 and 50 unlicensed dogs in town, in addition to 352 which are legally entitled to exist. The officer is supposed to shoot every unlicensed dog and summon the owner into court.

Miss Susan Barlow was the guest over Sunday of relatives in Greenwich and Enfield.

The annual meeting of the Masonic Hall Association will be held next Tuesday evening.

Esther, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Holbrook of North Main street, is sick with measles.

An addition is being built to the No. 3 mill of the Wright Wire Company on Bridge street.

Mrs. Charles S. Robinson of Ware is a guest of Mrs. Mary L. Robinson of Pleasant street.

Thomas Edmunds is building an addition to his bakery in the rear of his restaurant on Main street.

The grammar and district schools of the town closed this afternoon for the summer vacation.

Mrs. H. S. Hobson and Mrs G. P. Fuller spent Wednesday at Silver Street with Mrs. Linns Hatch.

Court Palmer, F. of A., will meet next Tuesday evening, at which there will be election of officers.

Mrs. J. C. Sullivan and children will leave next Monday for their summer home at Ocean Beach, Ct.

Miss Ruth Connor of Mount Holyoke College is visiting her sister, Mrs. E C. Gonld of Pleasant street.

Mrs. Ida Churchill and Mrs. C. A. Guild of Morrisville, Vt., were guests of Rev. and Mrs Otto Raspe over Sunday.

The house at Tenneyville owned by the late Joseph Merriam was sold at auction Monday to T. J. Chalk for $1060.

John P. Sloan of Worcester was the guest over Sunday of his family at the home of J. J. Todd on Pine street.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barlow and daughter Esther of Worcester were guests Monday of Mrs. Susan Hunt on Pine street.

J. F. Foley has bought the cottage at Forest Lake formerly owned by J. F. Duryea and G. W. Parsons of Springfield.

The street railway company has paved the highway crossings at Tenneyville, an improvement which has long been needed.

Mrs. A. O. Berry and daughter of Elkhart, Ind., are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Converse of Park street.

A large number of flags were displayed about town on Wednesday, "Flag Day," the 134th anniversary of the Stars and Stripes.

The whist party scheduled for the Quaboag Country clubhouse Wednesday afternoon of this week was postponed for one week.

Merrick—Banford.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merrick on Main street Wednesday afternoon, when their daughter, Greta, was united in marriage to Richard David Banford of East Longmeadow. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G A. Andrews of the Congregational church, the single ring service being used. The house was very prettily decorated for the occasion with laurel and peonies. The only attendant was Charles Cobb of Winchendon, a nephew of the bride, who was ring bearer. The bridal party entered the room to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, Miss Lucy Woodward of Hartford, Ct., presiding at the piano. The bride was dressed in a traveling suit of old rose shantung and wore a hat to match and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. The bride is a well-known young lady of this town and is a granddaughter of the late C. H. Merrick, the pioneer hat manufacturer of Monson. She was educated in the public schools of the town and in Monson Academy. For the past few years she has devoted much time to the study of music The groom is the son of the late Cyrus Banford of Stafford Springs, a well-known hardware and lumber dealer, and is now employed by the Knox Automobile Co. in Springfield. Guests were present from Springfield, Hatfield, Stafford, Amherst, Winchendon, Willimantic, Ct., and Vernon, Vt. Many valuable presents were received, including cut glass, silverware, china, linen and pictures. After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Banford will reside with the bride's parents in Monson.

Special Town Meeting.

A special town meeting was held in Memorial Town Hall last Saturday afternoon, with a large attendance of the voters. The meeting was called by the selectmen to see what action the town would take on appropriating money for a new bridge on State street to take the place of the old wooden one, and to designate what material would be used in the construction. C. M. Gage was elected moderator. The first speaker was J. P. Herlihy, chairman of the board of selectmen, who stated that the board thought it advisable to put in a 36-feet span bridge, either of concrete or granite. He thought that a bridge of this material 36 feet wide would be sufficient to take the place of the old 42-feet wooden bridge. M. F. Moore, superintendent of the W. N. Flynt Granite Company, was asked for bids on a 42 feet bridge after R. P. Cushman had informed the voters that a narrow bridge in times of high water would be more liable to damage. Mr. Moore gave the estimated price of construction of a 42-feet concrete bridge at $2000 and on the motion of Mr. Cushman it was voted to raise and appropriate $2000 and the material used to be decided by the selectmen.

ACADEMY NOTES.

Mass. Agl. College 7, Monson Academy 3.

The Academy baseball team was defeated for the first time on Cnshman field last Saturday afternoon by the Massachusetts Agricultnral freshmen by the score of 7 to 3. The local team defeated the visitors 5 to 4 Memorial Day, hnt they were dissatisfied, and Manager Dewing gave them this date nnder the conditions that they bring the same team. They overlooked this and bronght along two varsity men and after objecting strennonsly the home team in a sportsmanlike manner allowed the varsity men to play. It was anyone's game np to the seventh, when the local team went to pieces. Elliott, the local pitcher, pitched gilt-edged ball, bnt errors were costly. Had Fusti played short stop the score wonld have been different, hnt his playing in center field was the best seen this season. Sherman and Davies, the two varsity men, excelled for the visitors. Monson 13, Worcester 6.

The Academy team closed its season with a victory over the Worcester South high school on Cnshman field Tnesday afternoon by the score of 13 to 6. The locals started off with a rush and got eight runs in the first inning and four in the second. The weather was bad for baseball, which accounts for the loose playing of the visitors. Fusti, the midget Cnhan, was back in short stop and played a clever game. It is sincerely hoped that he will retnrn to school next fall, as he is considered the most valnable man on the local team. PALMER TOWN LEAGUE

Palmer Trims Thorndike.

The Palmer team had things pretty much their own way at Thorndike last Saturday and came near shutting out the home team. They landed on Manley in the first inning and finished with three runs to the good, then gathered in two more later. Thorndike was given a run in the fifth on two hits and a wild throw. The game was called after five innings, on account of rain. The score:

Two of these received final papers and three petitioned with witnesses for their final papers. This session of the superior court was the result of the Schoonmaker bill, which gave Ware two sittings of the superior conrt each year for naturalization purposes.

WARREN.

Resignation of Rev. T. C. Richards.

At the morning service in the Congregational church Snnday Rev. T. C. Richards read his resignation. Mr. Richards has just completed five years of one of the most successful pastorates of the Warren church. During this time about 70 have been added to the church membership and a larger proportion than nsual of these have been young men Mr. Richards has been greatly respected and won the esteem not only of his parishioners hut also of the townspeople in general and his resignation is deeply regretted A meeting of the church was called last evening to consider his resignation. Mr. Richards asked to be dismissed August 31st. Of the former pastors of the church the four who are living to-day are filling responsible positions. Rev Dr. Jesse F. Forbes has recently celebrated his 25 h anniversary as pastor of the Adams Memorial Presbyterian church of New York city. Rev. Harris G. Hale is pastor of Leyden church in Brookline, where he has been for 15 years. Rev. Shepard; entertainment committee, Mrs H. R. Burroughs, Miss Esther Gage, Mrs. D. L. K. Hathaway and Mrs. A. S. Tucker.

Nativity of Foods.

It is surprising from whence come the most common articles of food. The onion, leek, garlic and pea were favorites in Egypt. rye and parsley in Siberia, the citron and currants in Greece, and radishes hail from China and Japan. The horse chestnut is a native of Tibet, the Forbidden Land, and the mulberry tree, walnut and peach traveled westward from Persia. Very few consider that oats originated in North Africa at a time when Egypt was the granary of the world. The chestnut came from Italy, celery from Germany, spinach from Arabia, the sunflower from Peru and cucumber from India. Tobacco is a native of Virginia.—Chicago Journal.

TROUBLES AND JOYS.

The trouble with most of us is that our joys seem to sink out of sight in some inner quagmire and our pains seem to take root on the thinnest soil and flourish like the proverbial bay tree. What is the matter with us that a little irritation today can wipe out in a moment all the recollection of yesterday's glory?

Paper Money In Mexico.

In Mexico and other Latin American countries there is no law against the reproduction of the paper money of the country for use as advertising, but in the United States this is a felony, and any one so doing would be prosecuted under the laws of the land for counterfeiting the national currency. In Mexico imitation bills can be seen at all times used for advertising purposes, and, strange to say, they deceive no one, and the users of them do not intend any deceit, though it would seem to be an easy matter to pass them on unlettered persons. Can it be that Mexicans are more intelligent or simply that few of the illiterate ever gain possession of paper money? —Argonaut.

Epictetus.

The "Discourses of Epictetus" were written not by the philosopher himself, but by his faithful pupil Arrian, afterward the historian of Alexander the Great. Arrian tells us that he took down the sayings of his master at the time they were delivered, and thus we may rely upon the substantial correctness of the discourses. Epictetus wrote nothing, and but for the thoughtfulness of his affectionate disciple we would have known nothing of his wonderful teachings—teachings which have inspired many of the greatest men who have lived during the past 2,000 years.

Swelled the Collection.

A Peebles minister got a confrere to preach for him, and, meeting this confrere the next month, he said:

"Man, I'll ha'e to get ye to preach again at my kirk. We never had such a big collection as we had the Sunday you preached for us."

"Well, now, I'm glad to hear that," said the other in a gratified tone. "How much was the collection, if I may ask?"

"Ninepence," was the reply, "and nsually it's only twopence. It's never been over threepence yet."

"Well," said the other minister, "they can't think much of my eloquence, after all, then, for I put in sixpence myself."

Made Dumas Retract.

The elder Dumas was once sued for stealing in one of his novels, "La Route de Varennes," that the capture of Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette at Varennes by the revolutionaries was due to the action of the Chevalier de Prefontaine in shutting the door of his house on the fugitives.

A grandson of the chevalier considered this an aspersion on his ancestor's chivalry and proved in court that the statement was untrue. An order was issued compelling Dumas' publisher to call in all copies of the novel and to issue within one month a fresh edition with a note that the Chevalier de Prefontaine placed his house at the disposal of the royal fugitives.

Mrs. Albert Sherman, Fox Ave., Palmer, Mass., says: "It would be hard to describe how intensely I suffered from kidney disease. I believe that I had nearly all the annoyances which nsually accompany a bad case of this complaint. I was never free from a dnll, bearing-down pain in my back and was snbject to attacks of dizziness. My back ached intensely and I had a feeling of lassitnde and loss of appetite. I finally saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and procured a box from Lynde and Gould's Drug Store. The first dose relieved me and I continued taking this remedy nntil I was cnred."

Parents' Day was observed last Friday in the schools in this village. The work of the pupils, including manual training which is a new feature this year, was on exhibition. Much credit is due the teachers and pupils for the excellent work done. The exhibition was especially interesting, and was well attended.

Mrs. Mary Winchell, 71, widow of the late George W. Winchell, formerly of Three Rivers, died in Duluth, Minn., June 4th, after a long illness. The body was brought East and buried at her old home in Chicopee last Friday. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Alice R. Thayer of Duluth, and Mrs. H. S. Robbins of Boston; also a son and grandson in California.

W. J. Cole of High street has resigned his position as master mechanic in the Palmer Mill. He came here from Manchang about three years ago. Mr Cole is an active member of the Men's League, also assistant superintendent of the Union church Sunday school. Mr. Cole and his family have made many friends here who will regret their departure from town.

At the Union church next Sunday there will be a preaching service at 10 45 a. m., Sunday school at 11 45, Junior Christian Endeavor meeting in the church vestry at 3 o'clock; evening service at 7; Y. P. S. C. E. will meet in the vestry at 8 o'clock, subject, "Grace for Common Duties." Eph. 4 : 25, 26; 5 : 1, 2. Leader, Herbert E. Cole.

The Cercle Canadien of this place held a bazar last Friday and Saturday evenings in their new hall on Main street. Saturday evening the attendance was large, many out of town people being present, including members of societies from Holyoke, Indian Orchard and Ware, who joined in the parade, which took place about 7 30. Music was furnished by the Ware drum corps.

BONDSVILLE.

Mrs. O. A. Parent spent Tuesday in Northampton.

The elm trees of this village were sprayed Friday.

John T. Heys of Hoosic Falls spent Sunday with his family.

Christopher Magee Jr. of Springfield was a guest of his parents over Sunday.

Mrs. Samuel Stewart entertained the guild yesterday at her home in this village.

Daniel Quirk and sister, Miss Anna, of Ware were guests of relatives here Saturday.

James Smith and son of Ware visited with Mrs. Margaret Donovan and family Sunday.

Winfield Marsan of Springfield spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adalard Marsan.

Owing to the telephone rates being raised, it is understood at least four are soon to be removed.

Miss Alice Banister has accepted the position as assistant stenographer in the Boston Duck Co's. office.

Mrs. Ina Cullen returned Tuesday from a visit with relatives in Worcester, East Jeffries and Greenville, Vt.

Mrs. Ragett of Athol, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Harry Randall, went Tuesday to her home.

Patrick Callahan of Springfield was a guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Callahan over Sunday.

Mrs. Charles Shumway and daughter, Mrs. Charles Kempton of Palmer, called on old friends and neighbors Friday.

George Fitzpatrick of the Fiberloid Co., Indian Orchard, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick.

Dr. Joseph P. Kennedy, district superintendent, will hold the first quarterly conference next Thursday evening in the church vestry.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Waterhouse and daughter Violet took an automobile trip to Lowell Saturday. They visited friends there and returned Sunday.

Miss Viola Marsan, who has been taking a three-weeks' vacation from her post as stenographer of the Boston Duck Co., returned home Sunday. She spent her vacation in Lynn and East Harwich.

Mr. Matthews, who moved his family here nearly a year ago from Palmer and has been employed by the company, has decided to return to Palmer and accepted a position with S. W. Lyon & Co.

The exhibition of school work which was held in the school building last Friday and also during the evening was much enjoyed by a large number of parents and friends of the pupils of the several grades.

Miss Catherine Shea, who has been employed in Michael Sullivan's store, finished her work there Saturday. Miss Emily Hayes has accepted the position and will commence work there Monday.

The time for those employed by T. D. Potter has been changed from 7 o'clock until 6 30, and in the afternoon from 1 until 12.45. This gives a half day holiday on Saturday, which will be much appreciated by those employed.

Miss Mary Quirk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Quirk, and Miss Mae Fitzgerald, daughter of Patrick Fitzgerald, will be graduated next Tuesday, June 20, from the Westfield normal school, where they have been students for the past two years.

Rev. W. H. Upham will take for his subject next Sunday morning at 10 45, "The Three Rules." Sunday school will meet at 11 45, Epworth League at 6 o'clock; subject, "The Development and Best Use of Spiritual Gifts." Rom. 12:6–8; 1 Peter 4:10–11. The evening service of praise will be held at 7 o'clock. All of these services will be held in the vestry of the M. E. church.

At a meeting of the school committee in Palmer Tuesday evening the following teachers were re-appointed to teach the coming year in this village: Grammar school, Jennie C. Twiss, principal, grades 8 and 9; Lucy Fitzgerald, 6 and 7; Marie West, 4 and 5; Cora B. Clark, 3 and 4; Georgia Burroughs, 1 and 2; Rena Hemingway, grade 1. John F. Mansfield was re-elected truant officer.

The Ladies' Aid Society met Wednesday with Mrs. William Taylor with 11 present. The next meeting will be next week Wednesday with Mrs. Charles Banister and Mrs. E. J. Loy, and will be held on the lawn. As it is to be the annual meeting it is hoped all members will be present. The election of officers will take place at this meeting. These ladies will serve: Mrs. C. D. Holden, Mrs. E. J. Loy, Mrs. Adalard Marsan, Mrs. W. H. McVickar and Mrs. Henry Morgan. It was voted at the meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society to hold a food sale in C. D. Holden's store this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The card party and dance for members of the Bondsville Country Club, which was held at the clubhouse Tuesday evening, was attended by 35, and proved a most enjoyable occasion. The house committee had the affair in charge. Mrs. F. S. Gordon, Mrs. Michael Sullivan and Miss Mildred Hartwell had charge of the dancing part, and Mrs. Samuel Stewart and Mrs. F. E. Albro had the card part to attend to. Miss May Dillon of Palmer presided at the piano. There were four tables at cards, Mrs. E. E. Woolard and F. E. Albro took first prize, while Mrs. C. D. Holden and Alex Gowen took the consolation prizes.

The grammar school boys are much pleased at winning the pennant. A league was formed several weeks ago among the several grammar schools in the villages of Palmer, Thorndike, Three Rivers and Bondsville. Twelve games were played and resulted in a tie between Bondsville and Thorndike; two extra games were played and both were won by Bondsville boys. Of the 12 games played, 10 of them were won by the Bondsville boys. Amie Belisle, who greatly assisted at the commencing of the season, was obliged to give up as circumstances prevented him continuing with the team. The line up follows: Wesley Magee, 3b; Harold Albro, 1b; George Gironard, p; Daniel Quirk, c; Elton Matthews, c. f.; John Moriarty, 2b; Charles Langelier, ss; Noe Monat, l. f.; George Belisle, r. f.

A CHASE

By ELLA WHEATON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Mrs. Greatorix was a stepmother. Not all stepmothers, any more than all mothers-in-law, are bad, but Mrs. Greatorix was at least avaricious. She had no children of her own, but a stepdaughter. Moreover, the husband and father had died, leaving $100,000 to his widow and $200,000 to his daughter, Alice.

Alice was fifteen years old when her father died and, having no other home, remained with her stepmother. She feared her father's widow and would have been glad to get away from her, but she was too young to lay plans for such a purpose.

There was a clause in the Greatorix will that if Alice was not married by the time she was eighteen $50,000 of her fortune was to go to her stepmother. If she had no children at twenty-five another $50,000 was to go to her stepmother. Why Mr. Greatorix threw such a temptation in the way of his wife to keep his daughter unmarried does not appear. The most probable solution is that it was the result of a compromise—that the wife was claiming more and finally got this stipulation out of him.

Unfortunately for the stepmother's plans Alice must go to school. At the high school when she was seventeen she met a youth of eighteen, and between them there sprang up an attachment. Roger Ashurst called occasionally on Alice, but it didn't take him long to discover that he was obnoxious to the stepmother. Opposition is an excellent incentive to love, and Roger as soon as he left the high school and went into business began to lay plans to possess the girl he found so much difficulty in courting. Besides, Alice had told him of the whys and wherefores of the case, and he saw plainly that in order to help Alice he must obtain the legal rights of a husband.

As the girl approached the age of eighteen her stepmother began to watch her very closely—so closely, indeed, that she was unable to communicate with her lover, Mrs. Greatorix intercepting all her letters. Two weeks before Alice's eighteenth birthday she was locked up in her room. But one night as she was going to bed, hearing shot thrown against her window, she opened it, and a stone was thrown in to which was attached a note from Roger stating that he would watch for her aunt to go out and when she did he would enter the house and take her away.

A couple of days after this Alice was not especially surprised at her bedroom door being kicked open, and there stood Roger. Hastily putting on her hat and wraps, she went with him downstairs, got into an automobile and was starting when Mrs. Greatorix appeared, hurrying home.

A garage was located around the corner, and thither the stepmother ran, hired an auto and made chase. The fugitives had taken a broad avenue which was the most feasible outlet, and into this avenue Mrs. Greatorix ordered her chauffeur to proceed. She saw the auto in which her daughter was eloping—she recognized it by its color—just turning into a side street. For several minutes it was lost to her, but on turning into the side street she herself caught sight of it trying to pass a cab that stood in the way. While she looked the auto chugged past the hack and darted on at full pace.

When Mrs. Greatorix reached the vehicle that had blocked the way her chauffeur endeavored to pass it on the right, but at the moment the hack swerved to that side of the narrow street. The chauffeur moved to the left, and the hack also turned to that side.

"Run him down!" cried Mrs. Greatorix. "He's in league with the elopers."

But when the chauffeur tried again to make a passage the hack drew out of the way and let him pass. The pursuing auto soon turned into another avenue, and Mrs. Greatorix, looking first in one direction, then in the other, saw the fugitive auto moving southward.

"There it is!" she cried. "Put on all your power."

They followed the auto twenty miles into the country, when it stopped suddenly.

"Now's your chance," she said to her chauffeur. "Don't let them get away."

But the chauffeur was obliged to slow up for the reason that the driver of the other machine got out to fix something. When Mrs. Greatorix pulled up beside him he was working with a monkey wrench. His auto was empty.

Mrs. Greatorix was so mad that she abused the fellow for lending her on a wild goose chase. He looked at her innocently, apparently not knowing what she was talking about. Then, not waiting for a rejoinder, she ordered her chauffeur to turn about and go back to the city.

Meanwhile the lovers had been married.

Mrs. Greatorix never knew their method of escape. Ashurst had not counted on her returning so soon. Expecting that she would follow, he directed his chauffeur to turn into a side street, and, seeing a hack standing by the curb, he got Alice out of the auto and into the hack only a moment before her stepmother turned into the street and offered the driver a ten dollar bill to drive him wherever he wished to go. When the pursuing auto came up he ordered the driver to stand in its way in order to throw the pursuers off the track.

Her Heavyweight.

Mrs. Shortfeidt—I took your prescription, doctor, but it did no good.

"Did you disguise it in orange, as I told you?"

"No; it was too late to send out for orange, and I used a slice of homemade fruit cake."

IN THE RAJAH'S SERVICE

By EDWIN D. TROUSDALE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

This story was told me by an Englishman who had grown old in the civil service in India. We were sitting in the smoking room of a liner between Southampton and New York:

The people of India are the most sensitive as well as the most merciless people of the world. An Indian will treat one he wishes to destroy with the most flattering attention while he is planning to kill him. He always strikes in the dark—that is, when he kills with steel. But it is with poison that Indians do their most artistic murderous work. They have studied the science of poison for ages. They have poison rings, poison perfumes, poison flowers. But the strangest of all is a poison human being. They will feed a person on a certain poison till he has absorbed so much of it that his very breath is noxious to one unused to what the poison person is saturated with.

I had a narrow escape from death when I was in India. It was when I first went out there as a youngster and had no idea of the secret dangers to be incurred. That which an Indian is most jealous of is a woman. Any European who attempts the slightest familiarity with one of them is in imminent danger of his life. If they would give a fellow a chance it wouldn't be quite so terrible, but they won't. He is either murdered in the dark or poisoned.

I was just twenty years old when I landed in Calcutta to take position in a British house dealing in opium and the goods of the country. Later I was sent into the interior to buy curios, two of us being sent together for greater safety. Bob Britton, not much older than myself, was my companion.

In one of the towns we heard of a rajah whose brother or some other relative had died childless, and the rajah had inherited his effects. Not caring to keep duplicates, he had offered to sell many articles. Bob and I called on him, and he exhibited his wares, treating us at the same time royally. While we were bargaining he feasted us in the room occupied by the women, which was a great honor. Unfortunately for Bob and me we drank too much wine.

Being permitted to roam where we pleased, we devoted ourselves each to a pretty Indian girl. Presently I missed Bob. He and the girl he was with had strolled away into a sort of inclosed summer garden. I invited my companion to go off in the same way, but she gave me a look that was all the warning I needed. I contented myself with remaining with the others.

Bob and the girl he was with remained away from the rest of us for some time. When he returned he appeared to be quite proud of himself, though the girl's face wore a frightened look. As soon as we were alone he told me that he had taken the sweetest kiss he had ever tasted. I asked him if he was sure he was unobserved, and he said he saw no one about, but while his lips touched the girl's she had uttered a suppressed scream. It was immediately after this that the two returned.

When we rejoined the rajah he expressed a hope that we had enjoyed ourselves. He was very effusive in his offers of hospitality and friendship. He asked us how we were pleased with the ladies, and when we expressed ourselves delighted he said that we had not seen the most beautiful. He clapped his hands, a servant appeared, he gave an order in a tongue we did not understand, the servant withdrew, and in a few minutes our host led us into another room where were assembled several of the handsomest Indian women I have ever seen. The rajah introduced us, then left us, saying that he would take a nap.

One of the women, apparently with the consent of the others, took Bob under her especial care, another took me, and it wasn't long before, under pretense of showing us some of the rajah's most valuable curios, they led us into a suit of rooms filled with enough rare articles to stock a museum. Bob and I soon got into separate rooms. My companion and I seated ourselves on a divan and were chatting about the curios when I noticed that she had been using some strange perfume. She gradually drew nearer to me, and I noticed a deathly sickness coming over me. An instinct of self preservation, I suppose, led me to get up from the divan. My next idea was to find Bob. I staggered into another room. There was Bob with his lips glued to those of the girl he was with. Seeing me, she unwound her arms from about him, and he fell to the floor. I went to him, bent over him and knew that he was dead.

There was a door near by opening into a garden. I managed to get to it and passed out. The fresh air revived me, and, regaining the strength of my legs, I ran like a deer anywhere to get away from the horrible death I had barely escaped.

I returned to Calcutta and told my story. Nothing could be done in the matter; it is not the policy of the British government to punish Indians who take revenge on Europeans for such offenses. Britton's sudden death received no official notice whatever. I was considered to have made a lucky escape.

There has never been any doubt in my mind that the two girls who affected Bob and me had been fed on a poison and were in the rajah's service as secret executioners.

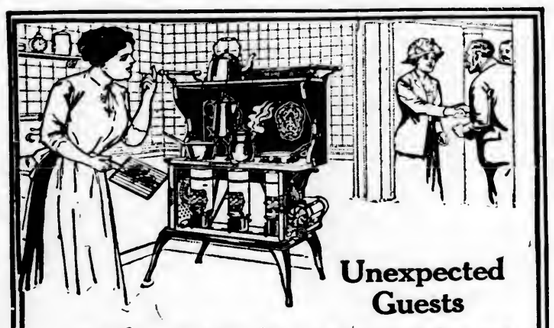
SHE GOT WHAT SHE WANTED

This Woman Had to Insist Strongly, but it Paid

Chicago, Ill. "I suffered from a female weakness and stomach trouble, and I went to the store to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but the clerk did not want to let me have it—he said it was no good and wanted me to try something else, but knowing all about it I insisted and finally got it, and I am so glad I did, for it has cured me.



"I know of so many cases where women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I can say to every suffering woman if that medicine does not help her, there is nothing that will."—Mrs. JANETZKI, 2963 Arch St., Chicago, Ill.

This is the age of substitution, and women who want a cure should insist upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound just as this woman did, and not accept something else on which the druggist can make a little more profit.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF THE COUNTY OF HAMPDEN.

The undersigned citizens and legal voters of the Town of Monson respectfully represent, That the boundary lines of Mill Street in Monson running westerly from Main street to Mechanic street and of Thompson street running westerly from Main street to Granite street are poorly defined and because of the destruction of former boundary marks it is now impossible to determine the proper boundaries of said streets. We therefore pray your Honorable Board to view and relocate the above named streets and take such further action in the matter as your Honorable Board may deem proper.

SELECTMEN OF MONSON AND OTHERS, PETITIONERS.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

HAMPDEN, ss. At a meeting of the County Commissioners holden at Springfield, within and for said county, on the seventh day of June in the year of our Lord, 1911.

And now upon the petition aforesaid, the County Commissioners, deeming a view of the premises expedient and proper, give notice that they will meet for the purpose of said view, and hearing all parties interested, at the corner of Main and Mill streets in Monson on Tuesday the eleventh day of July next at 10.30 o'clock a. m; and it is ordered by the County Commissioners that a copy of said petition be served by the Sheriff of said county, or his Deputy, upon the Clerk of the town of Monson, in said county, thirty days at least before the said eleventh day of July, and that all other persons and corporations interested therein be notified, by publishing a copy of said petition and this order thereon, once a week, in the Palmer Journal, a public newspaper printed in said county, three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the time of said view and hearing. And it is further ordered by the Commissioners, that copies of said petition, or abstracts containing the substance thereof and this order, be posted by said Sheriff or Deputy, in two public places in the town of Monson fourteen days before said eleventh day of July, and that notice be given in manner aforesaid to all persons and corporations interested, that the County Commissioners deem a view of the premises expedient and proper, and that a view of the same will be taken by them at the time and place aforesaid, and that they will hear the parties interested at the time of said view.

ROBERT O. MORRIS, Clerk.

True copy of the petition and order of the County Commissioners thereon.

Attest, ROBERT O. MORRIS, Clork.

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES.

Varied List From Which Pupils May Make Selection.

FINE COMMERCIAL COURSE OFFERED.

Parents Invited to Meet Superintendent Gray This Evening and Make Selections.

Superintendent of Schools Gray will meet the parents of this year's grammar school graduates in the high school assembly hall this evening to talk over and explain the different courses in the high school, so that they may have a better knowledge of what the school offers and select just what they wish their children to study. It has been found that pupils entering the high school often make selections of courses without consulting their parents, and do not always get what is best for them or just what their parents desire; the plan adopted this year is intended to obviate these matters as much as possible. Printed copies of the conrse will be ready for all, and any who have an interest in the work of the school are invited to attend.

The courses as prepared are:

First year.

Baseball Notes.

Gilbertville defeated Wheelwright in a loosely played game in the latter place Saturday, 12 to 2.

The Ware nine met its first defeat at Ware Saturday in a Ware league game, when they were defeated by South Barre 10 to 7.

The game between the Palmer High school and the Hardwick team, scheduled for the Palmer park Wednesday afternoon, was not played, owing to the failure of the Hardwick team to put in an appearance.

The Palmer Town League games to-morrow will be Bondsville at Thorndike and Three Rivers at Palmer. The latter game is likely to be a hot one. Palmer now heads the league and Three Rivers will try hard to win and tie for first place.

Men Hear Speaker Walker.

Gives Entertaining Talk to Men's League Tuesday Evening.

A large audience of men assembled in the Congregational church Tuesday evening on invitation of the Men's League to hear Speaker Walker of the Massachusetts Legislature, a considerable number coming from Monson. President Phillips introduced Ernest E. Hobson, who presided. After singing Mr. Walker was introduced and gave a most entertaining and instructive talk, after which there was more singing and all were invited to shake hands with the guest of the evening. Mr Walker's address was in part as follows:

Our forefathers established here in America free government, but free government does not always mean good government. It is nothing less than base to accept the privileges of American citizenship and then neglect its duties. The duty to vote should be considered by every patriotic American as a duty to be performed. One-half the problems of good government would be solved if men voted regularly and seriously regarded that as their first and most important duty.

It is imperative that we build up in the community a sound, sane public sentiment. A sentiment that should demand that public servants measure up to a certain standard. Too often the public will tolerate lack of ability, lack of character and lack of understanding of the problems with which its representatives have to deal. This too often the people do not understand. Most of the men who go to the Massachusetts Legislature mean to serve the Commonwealth well.

If we are to have a large, stable government here in America, it must be carried on by great political parties. It is essential that we keep these political parties in as healthy and proper condition as the Legislature itself. Party government has in recent years fallen into disrepute and party politics has become a term of reproach. This is because the public do not distinguish between different groups of men. The true political party is a party organized with principles and policies designed for the public good. Its victory means the carrying out of its principles. Political organization for public ends is honorable, for private gain it is dishonorable. A political party never ends in itself, its true end is in doing the public good.

The speaker alluded to the great movement in favor of direct nominations that had swept over the country, a movement having as its aim the bringing of the government nearer to the people. In judging of this movement he thought it wise to go back and get the viewpoint of our ancestors and quoted from Samuel and John Adams, Madison and others in favor of the form of government adopted by the forefathers. He thought it wise to go slowly to insure protection by the laws made before we took away the checks. He said he believed it best for every community to select men to represent it in whom the people have full confidence, then they will not so strongly favor direct nominations. The manner of electing people to public office, said the speaker, should be as simple as possible. He then called attention to the law recently enacted providing for direct nominations.

NURSES' GRADUATION.

Interesting Exercises at Monson State Hospital.

ELEVENTH ANNUAL CLASS GOES OUT.

Pleasing Program Rendered; Address by Dr. G. A. Moore; Refreshments; Dancing.

The eleventh annual graduation and nurses' night of the Monson State Hospital was held Tuesday evening at the institution. The exercises were public and a large number from both Palmer and Monson attended. Carriages were sent to the car station at Palmer to convey the guests to the hospital.

The program began with instrumental music by Orcutt's orchestra of Monson, which was followed by various demonstrations by the graduates: Bandaging, (a) Velpeau's bandage, Miss Alice Cox; (b) spica of shoulder, Miss Gertrude Tapley; (c) gauntlet of hand, Miss Ruth Turner; (d) capeline bandage, Miss Alice Small; (e) figure of 8, Miss Ivy Corey; essay, "Emergencies," Miss Alice Cox; demonstration, topographical anatomy, (a) heart, Miss Gertrude Tapley; (b) stomach, Miss Ivy Corey; (c) kidneys, Miss Alice Small; essay, "Diet in fevers," Miss Ruth Turner These were followed by music, and Dr. G. A Moore of Palmer delivered an address to the graduates, speaking in part as follows:

It is always a pleasure to me to come to this hospital, where for years I have enjoyed some of my best friends. Knowing the splendid administrative body of this hospital and the happy personnel comprising it and the generous and cordial welcome always extended to those who take interest enough to visit this institution, I feel sometimes that we in Palmer are a little remiss in the matter of visiting this institution, which we as a town may be glad to have near us, and of which we as citizens of our great state of Massachusetts must be proud, evidencing as it does concretely the very advanced stand taken by our state in the matter of properly caring for our sisters and brothers who are unfortunate.

We may be proud, too, that in this hospital we have such an excellent training school for nurses, and that the excellence of the teaching and training and the intelligence and earnestness of the candidates make for such results as have been attained in this class. We have all enjoyed the exposition of method, and the essays this evening, and it is not only interesting, but comforting, to note the skill and knowledge, and it seems to me that we must surely all feel that an illness is now a very much less desperate thing than we would have considered it an hour ago, before entering this hall. These young women, however, feel more deeply on this matter than we do, and it is entirely natural that they should. This is an epoch in their lives. They have had a long period of work, anxiety and study, three years of it.

This proficiency that we have witnessed to-night does not become resident in them simply through virtue of donning a cap and gown or uniform. It has to be fairly wrung out of the great general resistance. They have, however, endured all that was necessary. They have performed the required work and study, and to-night we are here with them, to be glad with them, to see their diplomas, their reward.

What, then, is a reward? The common acceptance of the word is that of meaning some good return or compensation, and in this case it is good. But a careful analysis of the word will show that it is a peculiarly fitting name for the diploma which each member of this class receives to-night. Reward is defined by an authority as a return or compensation, either good or evil. This diploma is a reward, and it is good or evil, according to one's view. From the selfish standpoint it is unquestionably an evil return, as it is simply a passport to a life of remitting hardship, toil and self-sacrifice. From the altruistic standpoint, however, it is a priceless gift that one receives when given a diploma in nursing.

The business man seeks reward in the patronage of his customers and their satisfaction. The athlete seeks reward in the plaudits of the multitude on the field. The professional man in his clientele, the soldier on the field of battle in fame and glory. But what is your reward to be? Gratitude? Yes, sometimes: but the world is not too grateful. So do not be disappointed if you receive no gratitude. Be pleased if you get it, of course, but school yourself not to expect it. Remember the title and significance of the old German legend, "Ingratitude is the world's reward."

Money? Yes, a little, but not much. Enough to support you, but never enough to attract as a business proposition, because for every dollar received must be given an equivalent many times over and something besides which has no money translation. Self-satisfaction? Gladness in the thought that you are an important and useful unit in the social fabric and economy? The thought of helping humanity? The consciousness that you are giving something for which mere money cannot pay or requite? Yes! That is reward.

Distribution of diplomas to the graduates followed. At the close of the exercises refreshments were served, and there was dancing until midnight.

Electrics Direct to Lake.

Cars From All Points Run Through to Theatre Every Evening.

Patrons of the Forest Lake theatre are now being given a service which they have never had before and which is extremely gratifying to them, especially those in Springfield, Monson and the villages. Under a new schedule put in operation Monday by Manager Atkins the cars leaving Springfield at 6 45 in the evening, Monson at 7.15, Bondsville at 7.15 and Three Rivers at 7 40, all run through to Forest Lake without change. This makes it very pleasant for patrons from these places who have formerly had to change cars between points, and will doubtless increase materially the patronage of the lake.

C. V. Change of Time Next Sunday.

The summer change of time will go into effect on the Central Vermont railroad next Sunday, when trains will leave Palmer as follows: Going south, at 7.27 and 9.55 a m, 1 25 and 6.30 p. m.; going north, at 7 30 and 11 59 a. m., and 5 30 p m.; another train will arrive from New London at 7 35 in the evening, but will not go farther north; passengers for the north will take the Boston and Albany to Springfield, connecting there with the 8.25 Boston and Maine train for all points north.

BRIMFIELD.

At the annual meeting of the Hitchcock Free Academy Alumni Association, these officers were chosen: President, Earle Doyle; vice president, Clinton E. Brown; secretary, Miss Bessie C. Shanley; treasurer, Principal George F. Kenney. Bernard S. Maloney, 1912, was re-elected as a member of the advisory board, and Leroy F. Jarrett, 1912, was elected in place of Stanley Hicks of the graduating class.

Doings of the Legislature.

The Agricultural College Appropriations—Saunders Milk Law Stands—Candidates for Officers—New Vinegar Bill—No Flying Machine Legislation.

BOSTON June 21, 1911

It looks as if it were a touch of politics which led to the recommitment of the agricultural college bills, rather than an effort to pass them over the veto. The regular and the special bills for the benefit of the college, both of which had features objectionable to the governor, were in danger. Their special resolve, carrying large amounts for improvements, was apparently doomed The veto was written and was read to a senator and representative who called upon the governor to see if they could save the interests of the college. The resolve was actually in the Senate chamber, ready to be the subject of a motion to reconsider. Senator Mellen of the Worcester-Hampden district objected and that was sufficient to prevent action. That was Monday Tuesday the friends of the bill again went to the governor. The middle of the forenoon Representative Ellis of Newton, who is one of the trustees of the college, felt sure that they would pass the bill over the veto, just as it stood. But later there was a weakening. The friends of the bill were ready to concede something The governor was willing and so the bill, by reconsideration without objection—Senator Mellen remaining silent,—was sent back to the Senate committee on ways and means. It seems probable, now that the incident is ended, that the friends of the college were not as sure at noon as they were earlier that they could pass the bill over the veto. The reason was the belief on the part of some friends of the bill who are also friends of the governor, that an effort was being made to play politics and put the governor in a hole, thus tending to alienate the farmers from him. Suspecting this, some of his friends, who would have been glad to vote the money to the college, made it clear that they would not take part in discrediting him by helping to put the bill over the veto. If the appropriation were to fail, then the college would suffer. Hence sober second thought led to the unanimous recommittal.

On the same day came in the report of the House committee on ways and means on the governor's message about the college. It is a notable incident that the report was signed by Norman H. White, who is candidate for the Republican nomination for governor and, if he gets the prize, he will be the rival against Gov. Foss for the favor of the voters in November. Therefore, in the vigorous sentences criticising the governor it does not require a vivid imagination to see the work of a political antagonist. White is doing a large amount of work in a very quiet way, getting support. A minister told me yesterday that he had been seen by a worker for White and asked to put his name to an indorsement of his candidacy. The list was already long and strong, he said. One of the members of the House tells about his going to church the other Sunday and hearing the minister introduce into his sermon a plea for White, saying that there was a measure of large importance before the Legislature, that to forbid the spending of public money for sectarian purposes, and that one member was doing what he could against the bill, — Norman H. White of Brookline. He recommended his congregation to support White in this effort and said that there were cards in the vestibule which they could sign and send to White, supporting him in his work. When this member afterward picked up one of the cards in the vestibule, he found that it was the regular campaign card which White has been distributing for months, the signer of which promises to do what he can for the election of White for governor.

For this year the fight over the Saunders milk law of last year is ended, but the debate was sharp in both Senate and House. Mr. Washburn of Worcester, for the unanimous railroad committee, reported against the petition for the repeal of the law. In both Senate and House strenuous efforts were made to substitute a repeal bill for the report of the committee, but it was voted down by a large majority. One queer feature of the debate was the way the farmers were played on both sides of the game. Friends of the law said that it was for the benefit of farmers and milk consumers. It was said on the floor of the House that in Worcester county independent milk operators are getting business away from contractors and sending fresh milk to the Boston market, which does not have to be boiled in order to kill the bacteria and to conceal the dirt. It was urged that the contractors and the railroads are the prime workers for the repeal. But, on the other hand, it was said that hundreds of farmers in the western part of the state have asked for the repeal. This was answered by saying that those farmers were misled. Mr. Saunders of Clinton, who gives the name to the bill and is now the chairman of the House judiciary committee, opposed the repeal because the law is working all right for the producers and the public. There seemed to be a general feeling that at any rate the law ought to be given longer trial, and therefore the adverse report was accepted.

Severe criticism of candidates for speaker who announced their intentions early in the session has led them to suspend their canvassing. Nothing is heard of the coming contest and the candidates realize that it will hurt them more than it will help them to push their plans. At the same time, the hour is not far distant when these candidacies will burst forth. Since President Treadway has taken himself out of the way for the Senate chair next year, that office has been thrown into the scramble. So that there is a formidable array of candidates standing at the line, ready to jump into action at the drop of the hat, and that drop will be the prorogation of the Legislature, which may yet be two or three weeks ahead. Then the field will include Gov. Foss, Lieut. Gov. Frothingham, Speaker Walker, Norman H. White, Robert Luce, Thomas P. Riley, Senators Greenwood, Bennett, Barnes and Blanchard, Representatives Underhill, Haigis, Cavanagh, Cushing, Walcott, Thomas and Washburn, plus the entire outfit in each party for senators, representatives, county officers and political committees. We shall be under a law whose applications we only half understand and remember and whose operation we shall all watch closely. Therefore there will be no vacation for this summer, but there will be so much anxiety about the new rules of the game the candidates will have no time to rest. How will the people stand it, and how much better will it be than the convention system? That will be the practical question, and the issue, for one thing, will be whether there is any chance for anybody but a millionaire

Perfect in Attendance.

School Pupils Who Have Been Neither Absent Nor Tardy For a Year.

At the graduating exercises of the grammar schools in the opera house last Friday evening Superintendent Gray read a list of pupils in the several schools of the town which have been neither absent nor tardy during the past year. To these are added several names of pupils who have been perfect in attendance for two years, and of two who have been perfect for three years. It remains for a high school pupil to break all records however — Miss May Fillmore having been absolutely perfect in attendance through the four years just closing. Two other members of the high school have been perfect for the past year, Miss Mildred Bates and Miss Alice Turkington. The names of those perfect in the other schools are:

Big Press Takes a Ride.

Unusual Sight of Heavy Printing Machine Moved Entire on Truck.

The work of transferring the plant of the Palmer Journal to its new quarters on Central street has been in progress for the last two weeks. It's no small matter to pull up and transfer a plant which has been in one location for something like two decades or more, but the hardest problem is the machinery, and the greatest problem of the lot is the big cylinder press. It's no light combination of steel and iron, and the usual way is to have press machinists come and take one down, move it and set it up in the new location, the operation taking several days. The proprietors of the Journal decided to do differently however, although they had no precedent for their plan. This was to move the press entire, on a truck, and the scheme was successfully carried out. The press went into the office on Main street in pieces; when it went out it was through the side of the building, which had been cut away. It was run out on a platform, then jacked up about four feet to get it on the truck, after which it was hauled to its new home on Central street. Here the front of the building was removed and the press quickly rolled into position. So satisfactorily was the job done that, on being connected with the power the press started off as though it has always been located there. The job was done by the Palmer Trucking Company with three men. The work was begun at 7.30 in the morning, and at 4 in the afternoon everything was completed. The unusual sight of the big press traveling through Main street high on a truck wagon attracted the attention of all who happened to be in that locality at the time.

Unger—Ferry.

A pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Luther H. Gager on Foster street Wednesday evening at 6, when their daughter Ruth became the wife of Oliver Needham Ferry of Providence, R. I. Rev. Frank Sherman Brewer, pastor of the Congregational church, performed the ceremony, the two-ring service being used. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Alice Gager, and the best man was J. Russell Ferry, brother of the groom. The bride wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with rose point duchesse lace, braid and seed pearls, with train. She wore a veil of tulle, trimmed with duchesse lace and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the valley. The bridesmaid wore flowered gauze-lisse, with a green sash, and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas tied with pink chiffon. Before the ceremony Mrs. F. S. Keith played selections on the piano and as the bridal party entered the parlor, she played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." The house was decorated with laurel and roses by Miss Delia Hastings. Only relatives and intimate friends were present. The bride has spent most of her life in Palmer. She is a graduate of Palmer high school in the class of 1899, and of Mount Holyoke College, class of 1904. Since her graduation she has been actively engaged in church and benevolent work and has a large circle of friends who wish her every happiness in her new life. Mr. Ferry is the son of Harry E. Ferry, for many years a resident of Palmer, where he was connected with the Wright Wire Company as superintendent. He is a graduate of Holyoke high school and the Rhode Island State College, and is now connected with the Maxwell, Briscoe Motor Company of Providence, R. I. Mr. and Mrs. Ferry left on the 9.41 for the east and after a short wedding trip will reside at 217 Sackett street, Providence, R. I.

Grammar School Graduation.

Almost every seat in the opera house was filled last Friday evening at the graduating exercises of the grammar schools of the town, showing the large interest which the citizens take in the town's school system. The members of the four classes, the committee and the speaker of the evening occupied the stage, the front of which was prettily trimmed with greens. After singing by the graduates Dr. A. E. Winship of Boston delivered the address. His topic was the specialization which is to-day necessary for the boy or girl who expects to make a success of life — whether in teaching, business, farming or any other occupation. It was a most excellent talk, plain and to the point, with numerous amusing illustrations which served the better to drive home the points the speaker wished to make. The certificates were presented by J. C. Sullivan, chairman of the school committee.

New Drug Store Opened.

The Kinsley Pharmacy in the Holden block was opened for business yesterday morning. The stock is new and fresh, and presents an attractive appearance. The proprietor is Granger C. Kinsley, who has been a resident of the town for some time and is a registered pharmacist of experience.

Refrigerators Raided.

By Man or Ostrich? If the Former, He's Surely a Wonder.

Two Central street families who retired last evening secure in the satisfaction of well-filled refrigerators, woke this morning to a scene of desolation and emptiness—on the part of the refrigerators. From the tracks on the piazzas, occasioned by the heavy dew causing sand to stick to the visitor's feet, one would be perfectly justified in believing that the work was that of a man; but when the evidences of the raid were viewed there was much to warrant belief that an ostrich or something of even greater capacity and less discrimination as to diet had paid the call. Here's the list of what was missing: One quart cold string beans; one cantaloupe; one pint maple syrup; one bottle olives; one pint cream; two pint Appollinaris; one glass jelly; one pint port wine with raisins in. Against the suggestion that some of the stuff might have been carried away is the fact that all the receptacles which had contained the missing articles were neatly stacked on the top of the refrigerator; an attempt had even been made to return the Apollinaris corks to their places. There is at present no clue to the guilty party, but the physicians have been asked to notify the police of any suspicious cases of stomach trouble or indigestion to which they may be called within the next two or three days.

Priest Goes to Worcester.

Rev. Thomas S. Donoghue of Thorndike is Given Promotion.

Friends of Rev. Thomas S. Donoghue of Thorndike,—and there are many in all parts of the town, of all denominations—will regret that he is to leave that place, while at the same time they will rejoice that he has been given deserved promotion. He has been sent to St. John's church in Worcester, the largest parish in that city. It has several missions and Father Donoghue will have several assistants under him. Father Donoghue went to Worcester this morning, but will return to Thorndike for next Sunday, which will be his last as pastor of St. Mary's church of that place. Father Donoghue's first acquaintance with Palmer was as curate under Rev. William H. Hart of St. Thomas' church in Palmer; later he was transferred to Worcester, and later to Thorndike on the death of Rev. Francis J. Lynch.

Forest Lake Shows.

"A Warm Match," presented by Crimmons and Gore, has been the attraction at Forest Lake this week and has drawn good crowds and given general satisfaction. For Sunday a sacred concert is announced for afternoon and evening, with free hand concert in the afternoon by the Stevens band of Chicopee. Several reels of moving pictures will be shown in the evening in the theatre. Manager Rohan will serve his usual shore dinner from 12 to 5. Next week the attraction will be Tom Killeen and his whirly girly girls, presenting "A Busy Day" the first three days of the week, and "The Illionaire and the Girl" the last three.

Page—Worth.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Barber on South Main street Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Anna M. Page, was united in marriage to Walter H. Worth. Rev. Otto S. Raspe performed the ceremony in the presence of about 50 guests. The bride was attended by Miss Etta Blodgett of Ware, while the best man was Fred Barber of New London, a brother of the bride. A reception followed the ceremony and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Worth left in the evening for a trip to New York, and on their return will make their home at 286 Main street.

Another Old Peony.

The mention in last week's Journal of a peony over 90 years old, owned by Mrs. O. W. Stndley of Springfield, formerly of Palmer, has brought out the fact that there is one growing in this village which has equal claims to distinction on account of age. It is owned by Mrs. J. Austin Hawkes of Knox street, and is supposed to be about 90 years old; it is at least 78, for James Knox remembers it as a plant of good size that long ago. It first lived on the Col. Cyrus Knox place, where the Loomis block now stands, and was transplanted from there to its present location.

Pictures of Raising the Maine.

Everyone is of course interested in the work of raising the battleship Maine, which was sunk in Havana Harbor in 1898. The Journal gives on the fourth page this week a half-tone picture of a portion of the work, and has arranged to have others each week as long as the work lasts.

District Nursing Society to Meet.

A meeting of the Palmer Society for District Nursing has been called for next Wednesday evening at 7.30 in the reference room of the public library, when it is expected that the committee appointed some time ago to recommend amendments to the by laws will report.

First Shoot of the Season.

The Palmer Gun Club held its first shoot of the season Wednesday afternoon on the Tenneyville grounds. There was a good attendance of both Palmer and Monson members. Plans are being perfected for a shoot once in two weeks during the summer and fall.

Highway Commissioner McKelligett has been flushing the sewers of the village this week.

The Sego lunch room has a new manager, J. F. O'Neil, who has had previous experience in other similar establishments.

J. J. Fuller of Westfield will occupy the pulpit of the Advent chapel Sunday afternoon at 3. All are invited. Sunday school at 2.

Associate Justice H. A. McFarland of Wales has been presiding in the district court this week in the absence of Judge Kendick.

Tockwotton tribe of Red Men will hold a regular meeting next Tuesday evening. There will be an election of officers, and balloting for great chiefs.

Miss Blanche Upham of Three Rivers presided at the organ in the Congregational church Sunday in the absence of the regular organist, Miss LeGro.

Willie C., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McDonald of Park street, is suffering from a dislocated shoulder, the result of a fall from a bicycle Wednesday evening.

Rev. T. C. Richards of Warren, who has recently accepted a call to the eastern part of the state, will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church Sunday morning.

Rev. T. D. Martin will celebrate holy communion and preach in Workman Hall in Monson next week at 10.30 a. m. The communicants of St. Mary's of Palmer are invited to attend.

In the district court Monday Joseph Przewozniik paid a fine of $5 for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk. Michael Walchel and Albert Gootz of Thorndike paid fines of $5 each for indulging in an affray.

Elaborate plans are being made for the reception which the junior class of the high school is to give to the seniors in Memorial Hall next Wednesday evening. A large number of invitations have been sent out.

The annual strawberry supper will be held in the Silver Street chapel next Wednesday evening; the price will be 25 cents. Rev. C. B. McDuffee will give an address and there will be music by a Monson orchestra.

The Woman's Relief Corps will follow the usual custom and omit meetings between the first Friday in July and the third Friday in August. The Corps will go next Monday to Warren to attend an exemplification of the work.

The subject of the sermon at the Baptist church next Sunday morning will be "The Lord's Accusation." Bible school at 12, Y. P. S. C. E. at 6.15, evening worship at 7; sermon subject, "Christ's Two Classes of Men, Active Allies or Actual Antagonists." All are invited.

The annual union picnic of St. Mary's Mission of Palmer and St. Andrew's Mission of Ludlow will be held at Forest Lake to-morrow. A special car will leave Ludlow bridge at 9 in the morning, arriving in Palmer about 9.30. Returning it will leave the Lake at 6 o'clock.

Instead of the bridge whist party scheduled for next Wednesday evening at the Quaboag Country Club house, there will be an entertainment in charge of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Flynt, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Dewing, Miss Wingate and Miss Holmes. All members are cordially invited.

Rev. T. C. Richards of Warren will exchange pulpits Sunday morning with Rev. F. S. Brewer of the Congregational church. Sunday school at 12, Christian Endeavor at 6; this is a missionary meeting, with China as the subject. Evening service at 7 with sermon on the subject "The Threshold Grace."

The Hampden Association of Ministers will have a spring outing at the Congregational church Tuesday morning at 10.30. It will be ladies' day with papers by Mrs. E. P. Seymour of Chester Hill and Mrs. Richard Peters of Chicopee. There will be an address by Rev. Dr. Neil McPherson, pastor of the First Congregational church of Springfield.

Next Sunday will be observed as Masonic Sunday in St. Paul's church and all Masonic bodies as well as the members of Revere chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will attend in a body. The pastor, Rev. Otto Raspe, will take for his subject "The three great lights of Masonry." Members of Revere chapter will meet in the reception room in Masonic hall Sunday morning at 10.15.

The Masonic Hall Association held its annual meeting Tuesday evening and elected these officers: President, H. E. W. Clark; vice president, G. A. Rice; secretary and treasurer, C. A. Tabor; board of investment, the above officers and D. L. Bodfish, Byram Woodhead and C. T. Brainerd; auditor, F. N. Carpenter. The report of the treasurer showed the association to be in a healthy financial condition.

At a meeting of Court Palmer, Foresters of America, Tuesday evening, these officers were elected for the ensuing six months: Chief Ranger, David Micott; sub chief ranger, J. P. O'Connor; senior woodward, J. S. Welsh; junior woodward, Joseph Wilder; senior headle, John Harrington; junior beadle, James Smith; recording secretary, J. E. Learned; lecturer, J. M. Maloney. These officers will be installed July 18.

There will be a cradle roll party at St. Paul's church next Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. The kindergarten is invited, as well as all mothers with children on the cradle roll or in the kindergarten. The parish is invited and anyone caring to attend who does not bring a child will be charged an admission of five cents. There will be a short program. The affair is held under the auspices of those in charge of the cradle roll department of the church.

A runaway which created no little excitement and gave all who saw it a severe case of "nerves" took place Wednesday afternoon. The animal belonged to G. E. Buck, and was being taken out by his son, George. With him was his niece, Esther Holbrook, about eight years old. They were preparing to start from Mr. Buck's residence on North Main street; Miss Esther was in the Concord buggy, but before young Buck could get in the animal started. It ran down the drive to North Main street, thence to Thorndike, through that street to Pine, to Knox, down Knox to North Main again, thence to the driveway leading to the barn; half way up this the animal swung to one side and circled the house, approaching the barn from another side. Here it came to a halt at a sharp word of command from young Buck. Several people along the route tried to stop the horse and nearly succeeded. Early in the trip someone called to Miss Esther to lie down in the bottom of the buggy and to hold on, and she did. At the corner of Main and Thorndike streets the horse slipped and fell and a man seized the bridle, but it broke and the animal regained its feet and went on. During a portion of the trip Miss Esther was holding to the horse's tail trying to stop it in that way. By a miracle, almost, the buggy remained upright during the whole trip and no harm was done to anyone.

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

in the expensive field campaigns which will surely be conducted. Where will the corporations come in and how much can they accomplish? That is another puzzler.

One of those rope-pulls which shows that there is money at stake has occurred in Senate and House over the vinegar bill. In each branch there was a long and stubbornly contested argument, with speakers pouring out a lot of facts which showed that they had received their ammunition from some other source than their own ingenuity and public spirit. At the end of the encounter, to-day, the bill has been passed to engrossment in each branch which looks out for the prosperity of the Massachusetts manufacturers of cider vinegar as against the vinegar manufacturers of New York, who were charged with making vinegar from dried apples of a sort very inferior to Massachusetts cider vinegar. In the end the superiority of the Massachusetts product was vindicated and if the public know their rights, they will get the best vinegar, duly labeled with the percentage of acidity it contains.

The House has seen fit to cut down the wings of the governor's aspirations to be the first Massachusetts governor to get flying machine legislation on the book. The bill for the regulation of aviators went through the Senate all right and had a good vote on the first stage in the House, but some fool amendments were offered which unsteadied the House. Then Mr. Langelier of Quincy put in a resolve for investigation by the highway commission and report to the next Legislature, on the ground that there have not been yet enough precedents for action. Finally he got a good majority for the proposition and doubtless the Senate will concur, preferring that to nothing, even if it is not much. This summer will doubtless contribute some instructive accidents for the next Legislature to consider. LANDON

New Bridge Plans—Bridges Inspected.

The selectmen have received plans for both stone-arch and concrete bridges for the structure to be built over the river on State street. The contract has not been awarded. The members of the board have inspected several wooden bridges about the town during the past week. The Academy bridge was found to be in poor condition, several of the planks on top being loose. The Central Vermont railroad was informed and the bridge has been repaired. Repairs will also be made upon Fay's bridge on the boundary between Monson and Palmer.

WARREN.

High School Graduation.

The graduation exercises of the high school will be held in the town hall next Thursday evening. The program will include salutatory, class will by Miss Mary Olmstead, essays by Robert Edson and Miss Marjorie Chase, prophecy by W. D. Sullivan, essay by Harold Marshall, valedictory by Miss Marguerite McKelligett, and the class ode, words by Herbert H. Tarbell. The class this year contains 15 graduates, and of these only three are girls, the first time in the history of the school when the boys have predominated in such a proportion. The graduates are Edward Brown, Chester Buchanan, Miss Marjorie Elizabeth Chase, George Allen Day, Lloyd Hamilton Donnell, Earle Raymond Edson, Robert Adams Edson, Dennis Curran Haley, Harold Robert Harwood, Edward Bartholomew Hines, James Harold Marshall, Miss Marguerite Cecilia McKelligett, Miss Mary Elizabeth Temple Olmstead, Walter Sullivan and Herbert Hitchcock Tarbell.

Death of Mrs. Elizabeth Hellyar.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hellyar, 66, died Saturday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Elder, on Washington street. She had been ill with carcinoma for some time, but in the end sank very suddenly. She was born in England, Feb. 1, 1845, daughter of Richard and Susanna Tague. Her husband, the late Isaac Hellyar, died about two years ago. She is survived by seven children, Mrs Charles T. Waters of New Britain, Ct, Mrs. Lester L Burroughs of Warren, Mrs. Lathrop V Chaffee of Springfield, Mrs George Elder of Warren, Mrs. R. E. Haskell of Springfield, Isaac Hellyar of Warren and Charles Hellyar of Greenfield. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Elder, and the services were conducted by Rev William Hodges of the First Methodist church, of which she was a member. Burial was in the family lot in Pine Grove cemetery.

Pastor's Resignation Accepted.

It was voted at a meeting last week Thursday night to accept the resignation of Rev. T. C. Richards and a committee composed of D. L. K. Hathaway, Dr. O. W. Phelps and Haschal Underwood was chosen to act with a committee from the parish in calling a council of dismissal. Charles H. Walker, Frank E. Gleason and Joseph G. Hastings were chosen a committee to act in behalf of the church in looking up a new pastor.

During the severe storm of Tuesday afternoon the lightning struck and shattered a large oak tree in the rear of the Charles Barnes' house on the Ware road and also killed a fine cow in a nearby field valued at $75 by its owner, Irea McCullis.

Marten Kizer met with a painful accident Tuesday afternoon about 5.30 at the Perkins' machine shop. He was working a radial drill and caught his left hand in the gearing, badly lacerating the second finger. He was taken to the office of Dr. Charles A. DeLand, who found it necessary to amputate the end of the finger.

A meeting of the selectmen was held Monday, when William T. Haley, Joseph St George, James McKelligett, Lewis A. Birdge, Clarence L. Thompson, John Collins, Hormisdas Graveline and Ernest Choquet were appointed special police officers for July 3 and 4. The board granted a victualer's license to Ovid Ladone of West Warren.

These officers were elected Monday evening by Court Warren, F. of A: Chief ranger, Edward J. Boylan; sub-chief ranger, John Ryan; treasurer, Everett P. Sheridan; financial secretary, Lewis F. Mason; recording secretary, Henry Farrant; senior woodward, J. A. Brousset; junior woodward, Ernest Hamel; lecturer, Thomas Cavanangh. The officers will be installed Monday evening, July 3, by Mortimer P Howard and suite of North Brookfield.

There was a narrow escape from a serious fire Monday in the house on Carpenter street owned by Collis Arsenault. During the temporary absence of Mr. and Mrs. Arsenault, it is thought that Ernest Arsenault, six, and Charles Lynch, eight, were playing with matches in an upstairs room, for suddenly Exalon Arsenault, who was sitting outside, saw smoke coming from one of the bedroom windows. Rushing in he found the bed clothes on fire, but quickly threw them out of the window and with a pail of water put out the fire, with a very little loss. A delay of a few minutes would have meant the loss of the entire building and contents.

The annual meeting of the Men's League Monday night was styled "Boys' Night" and each member brought a boy with him as a guest. There was music by a male quartet and short speeches by Harold Davis, William J Runyan, William E Patrick and Charles H. Walker. Before the close of the meeting the president, William E Patrick, in behalf of those present, presented Rev. T. C Richards, with two handsome heavy oak rockers. These officers were elected: President, Charles D. Perkins; vice president, Carl M. Blair secretary, Ralph B. Patrick; treasurer, Joseph G. Hastings; executive committee, C. D. Perkins, C M. Blair, R. B. Patrick, J. G. Hastings, W. E Nims and George E. Tarbell. The next meeting will not be held until fall.

Professor—Got wet, I suppose.

Let Him Stay as He Was.

A well known veterinary surgeon of Lemberg, Austria, was recently called to the telephone, when this conversation followed:

"Hello! Is this Dr. N.?"

"Yes. What do you wish?"

"My horse is standing stock still on his hind legs, with his forefeet in the air, and nothing can make him come down on all fours. Did you ever hear of such a queer case? What shall I do about it?"

"The case is extraordinary," replied the astonished doctor. "I can give no opinion without seeing the animal. Where do you live?"

"Carl-Ludwig strasse."

"And your name?"

"Sobieski."

Here the doctor rang off and swore softly at the wag who had fooled him. The horse in question was the bronze animal which upholds upon its back the fine equestrian statue of John Sobieski, king of Poland, which ornaments the Carl-Ludwig street in Lemberg.

Making the Money Last.

Rosa Bonheur used to say that her youth was one of great poverty. Then she would add some droll stories about the family method of regulating its finance. The studio was a collection of odds and ends, and M. Bonheur knew how to turn that disorder to account. When he received money for his work he would take a handful of coin and throw it at random about the room. Then in times of stress, when there was apparently not a farthing left in the house, the entire family would set to work searching in nooks and corners. Sometimes they would find a five franc piece, and that warded off starvation. To perfect herself in her study of animals young Rosa spent days in a slaughter house. The men were perplexed at seeing a young woman there and sometimes made it disagreeable for her, but good M. Emile, a butcher of great strength, announced that whosoever annoyed her would have to reckon with him. Then she was enabled to work undisturbed.

A Sympathetic Oriental

By EUNICE IDA BLAKE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I am the wife of a United States army officer and have lived a good deal of my time on the Pacific slope, where the only servants to be had are Chinese. There is no doubt but the Chinese make very good servants if they wish to be good, but if they prefer to be bad they can excel at that too.

I married in the infantry and went out with my husband to a station where the Chinese were as thick as blackberries. I had the pride natural to a bride of showing how well I could keep house and appreciated the importance of winning the confidence of my servants, or, rather, at that time my servant, for the wife of a second lieutenant—neither she nor her husband having anything but his pay—is not supposed to keep more than one.

My first Chinese servant was Ti Wang. Ti was the smoothest, softest tongued rascal I ever met. He had enough duplicity in him for an eighteenth century European diplomat. To him words were indeed intended to conceal ideas.

"You velly young wife," he said to me. "You want velly good Chinaman for cook. Muchy Chinamen velly bad. Ti feel solly for Melican lady. Ti be good cook."

All this was spoken with a look of commiseration for a young thing like myself that to one familiar with the man from the Flowery Kingdom would have boded no good. I did not doubt that my servant would be a great comfort to me, it was not long before his true inwardness showed itself. He first made an excuse of having a sick brother who couldn't washy-washy to provide for to wheedle me out of a month's wages in advance. Then he surreptitiously removed under his capacious coat and ample sleeves all the staple kitchen provisions I had bought to last several months. Tea, coffee, sugar and spices disappeared like magic. Then, having received an offer of better wages than I was giving him, he took himself off without so much as saying he was going.

My next servant was Charlie Li. Why so many Chinese are called Charlie I don't know, though Li is an appropriate name for them. Charlie was recommended by the major's wife, who had him in her kitchen for awhile when her regular servant was ill. She told me she would rather have Charlie than the other. I had no fault to find with Charlie except that he stayed with me but a day. He didn't stay long enough to ask for any wages, and since experience had taught me not to pay Chinamen in advance he didn't get any.

After this servants were passing through my kitchen, none staying with me more t[illegible] a week. In vain I refused to em[illegible]te one unless he would agree to sta[illegible] a month. Something must be scarin[illegible] them away. I didn't see how they c[illegible]uld see anything in a young woman o[illegible]nineteen to frighten them, and I was [illegible]e only person with whom they came in contact. One of them, who was about to depart after three days of service, I asked why he left.

"You get Melican cook. Chinaman not velly good in this house."

"Why not?"

"Donno. Chinaman won't stay here."

"Why do you go so soon after coming?"

"I am velly well."

He did not seem to care whether I believed him or not. Indeed, he knew he was lying, and I knew it too. However, I had had such bad luck with Chinese servants—and there were no others to be had—that I made up my mind to do my own cooking for awhile.

Meanwhile my husband, who had been making inquiries for me as to servants from brother officers' wives, began to be considerably vexed that I could not keep any of them. There was no such loss of servants among those who sent me mine, and it appeared that I must either be too exacting or have a frightful temper or some other blemish that prevented a servant from working for me, whereas the truth was that after the earlier ones left I simply gave up everything to those who came later, granting all requests and opposing them in nothing. I didn't even dare criticise the cooking of a single dish. The first tiff I had with my husband was when he ventured to remark that perhaps I didn't give them quite free rein enough. I resented the imputation with a fervor that sent him off to the officers' club and prevented his ever making any such suggestion in future.

One day I put the tin bread box out in the sun, turning it up[illegible] its side and exposing the bottom. I was surprised to see Chinese characters on it. I wondered what they meant. When a woman begins to wonder what is the meaning of anything it is preparatory to making plans to find out. I called the servant of my next door neighbor, who was beating a rug, to come over and translate the characters. He did so as follows:

"This is a very bad woman. She doesn't pay the servants' wages and gives no extras."

That smooth tongued villain Ti Wang, who had pitied my youth and inexperience and had robbed me beside, had chalked a notice on the bread box warning all other servants against me. I waited patiently till my husband came in from his duties and, showing him the characters on the bottom of the box, handed him a translation.

Origin of Mythology.

Myths are the result of the natural and unconquerable desire on man's part to know the "reason why" of things. In the early stages of human society this instinct was as strong as it is today, and when in that faraway time man had his attention called to any phenomenon which had to him no obvious reason or explanation he invented and told a story to account for it, in such way all mythology had its birth, from the crudest stories of the lowest race to the splendid mythology of Greece and Rome.—New York American.

Flogging Petty Criminals.

Flogging, claimed by some to be a survival of barbarism in England, is given credit by others as being the most potent factor in ridding London of petty criminals and assuring public safety. Many criminals become so familiar with the prison routine as to lose all horror of it. In fact, life is so wretched for certain classes of undesirables in London that they would commit petty crimes as a means of gaining entrance to a prison were it not for the wholesome fear of floggings. The cat-o'-nine-tails used for the floggings has been deprived of its knots and is not laid on so strenuously as in the old days, while with young offenders the birch rod is brought into play. A physician is always on hand to stop the flogging should the culprit evince signs of fainting. Although the flogging punishment has thus been mitigated, it does not seem to have lost its effectiveness.—Popular Mechanics.

Might Spare a Few.

It is said that never was there a gentler critic than Dr. McClintock of Dickinson college. One day a young orator presented his speech for Dr. McClintock's approval. He evidently did not anticipate adverse criticism. He received it nevertheless, given in the doctor's gentle, humorous way, which never could offend.

"It's a good speech," he said, "but there is perhaps a little too much of a certain sort of rhetoric. For instance, I find in it two midnight owls, two midnight wolves, three American eagles and four unfurled banners. It seems to me that the supply exceeds the demand."

A Mighty Big Can.

An Irish harvester found himself in a small Scottish town. At the gas works he saw a gasometer for the first time in his life and stopped a countryman who was passing to ask, "What's that big round thing there standing on end?"

The Scotchman scratched his head and replied, "A dinna ken."

"Get out with you," said the Irishman. "You never saw a dinner can as big as that in your life."

NO REASON FOR IT.

When Palmer Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Palmer citizen says:

G. H. Morgan, 61 S. Main St., Palmer, Mass., says: "It is ten years since I used Doan's Kidney Pills, but I have not forgotten the great relief I obtained from this remedy. I had a case of kidney trouble of several years standing and was unable to find anything that would help me. My back ached constantly and I often felt lame all over. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and attended by a burning sensation when being voided. Upon a friend's advice, I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time they cured me. The cure has proven to be a permanent one and consequently I value Doan's Kidney Pills very highly."

A Royal Exile's Reception.

In the memoirs of Princess Murat there is an indignant description of the reception accorded Napoleon III. in England in 1871:

"When the emperor went to Windsor by the queen's invitation, accompanied by the Duc de Bassano and the officers of his suit, he found that only a small pony carriage had been sent to meet him—all that was thought necessary for a fallen sovereign. The empress was loud in expressing her outraged feelings. * * * Lord Granville and Mr. Gladstone were, I know, horrified when they heard of the blunder. I think that an apology was sent to his majesty, blaming some official of the court for the tactless incivility."

Transformation

An Easter Story

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Anne Wilbur walked to the window and looked out at the spring sunshine. Tall, graceful and very lovely, her slender form was silhouetted against the light. There was no one to admire Anne save the little brown eyed secretary across the room, and she looked and adored with all her foolish heart. She thought it must be glorious to be young and rich and lovely and quite her own mistress, as was the case with her employer, but then the little secretary thought of her own large family of brothers and sisters and was immediately very thankful that she was not as lonely as Anne Wilbur, who lived in the stately house with a cold and stiff guardian aunt.

Miss Wilbur looked out at the sunshine and the deep grassy yard behind the dwelling, with its careful grouping of shrubs, its freshly raked brown earth beds where prim rows of tulips, daffodils and crocuses flaunted their gay dresses.

It was merely a city lot, yet money and skill had combined to make it a pleasant retreat from the glaring streets or the stuffiness of the house in midsummer. Sometimes in the early morning Anne walked along the graveled paths, but it was used principally by the servants in the big house, who sought relaxation there after the day's work was done.

At the rear wall of the yard there abutted another lot inclosing a shabby cottage which was sadly in need of fresh paint; the neglected yard surrounding it showed the accumulation of a winter's debris. The charitable mantle of snow which had covered it had now melted, exposing old bottles, tin cans, rags, papers and broken boxes to the searching light of the spring sunshine. In all the yard there was not one tuft of green grass, not a flower nor anything that was beautiful—and yet it was spring.

Anne Wilbur owned this shabby cottage, and a succession of destructive tenants had ravaged the place of its original cozy prettiness. At last, despairing of maintaining it in any semblance to respectability, she had ordered it demolished, only to find that her agent had unwittingly leased the premises to a new tenant. The little secretary had just read this news to her from the agent's letter, and Anne, with an indifferent shrug of her shapely shoulders, had walked to the window that overlooked the cottage.

For a moment there was vexation on her face that her intention had gone awry. The next dissatisfaction disappeared at a sudden remembrance. In a week she was to be married. Her fiance lived in a distant city. She would not be obliged to contemplate from her rear windows the shabby cottage, the tomato cans, the old brooms, bottomless coal scuttles and broken crockery. It would be for others to view this inartistic scene, while she would look upon more inviting objects.

A moving van was backed up before the door of the cottage, and in its cavernous depths Anne could see a pitiful gathering of furniture. The men began to unload the van, and Anne noted that the few pieces, though somewhat shabby and worn, were of handsome quality and in excellent taste. She also saw that the windows of the house had been brightly polished and that crisp, clean muslin curtains hung within.

These things promised a more ambitious occupant for the house. Anne turned to the secretary: "Miss Binns, will you please telephone to Mr. Collins and ask him about the new tenant?"

Presently Miss Binns returned. "Mr. Collins says it is a widow and her little daughter. The mother is employed in a millinery establishment downtown. She seems a quiet, refined young woman, and her name is Rodman, Mrs. Marcia Rodman."

Anne Wilbur dismissed the little secretary and turned once more to the window, pressing her face against the cold glass. The van had gone away and all was silent about the shabby cottage. As she watched with haggard face the back door opened and a woman accompanied by a child came out and looked at the neglected yard.

The woman was small and slight, with a dark, piquant face and sweet lips. There was a flush in her cheeks as she talked to the child, who was a fairylike image of the mother. It was evident that they were discussing the possibilities of improving the yard, and Anne wondered what they could do, for it was plainly to be seen that they were poor. When the mother and child had re-entered the cottage Anne left the window and sat down before the glowing grate fire.

There was a fierce joy in her gray eyes and her fine lips were scarlet with the pressure she exerted to restrain her emotion. It had come her turn at last. Five years before she, Anne Wilbur, a petted daughter of the rich, had lost her lover to the poor woman who now occupied her wretched cottage. The girl had been a nobody, and thriftless Jack Rodman had thrown over friends, position and profession and eloped with the dark eyed beauty. Jack had died afterward penniless, now his widow, struggling for a livelihood, had drifted back to the city and into the cottage owned by the deserted sweetheart.

Again she approached the window and stared at the cottage. The mother and child were gathering the rubbish into a heap, and presently they set fire to it and watched it burn to ashes.

Presently the mother brought a trowel and dug a small bed in the poor soil of the yard, and the child planted some flower seeds with eager muddy little fingers.

When that was done they came to the dividing fence and peeped over into Miss Wilbur's pretty garden. There was a brave showing of crocuses and tulips, and the strangers looked wistfully at the purple and gold of the blooms; then they turned and disappeared within the cottage.

The sun declined, sending long sifting rays of yellow across the yards and finally into Anne Wilbur's thoughtful face, now stern and severe.

Tomorrow's sun would rise on a fair Easter morning; the churches and dwellings would be sweet with blossoms. Her own church was noted for its magnificent floral display, and she knew that in the drawing room her servants were arranging flowering plants from her conservatory.

The barren little yard about the cottage haunted her and blotted out the brighter pictures.

After awhile she strolled into the conservatory and wandered through the green alleys, touching here and there a blooming rose or inhaling the sweetness of a clambering jasmine flower. Her gardener, James, was working among the potted plants in a cooler house.

"How many red geraniums have you now, James?" inquired his mistress.

"About 300 plants, Miss Wilbur."

"And pansy plants—and sweet alyssum?"

"About the same number, ma'am."

"Set aside a hundred plants of the finest of each. Take two men over to the cottage and clean out the yard thoroughly. After that is done report to me."

"It's getting late, Miss Wilbur," hesitated James respectfully.

"You will receive double wages for overtime," she said coolly.

"Yes, ma'am," said James with alacrity.

Anne thrust a bunch of bright eyed pansies into the laces of her bosom and went back to the library. She seated herself at the desk and wrote a brief note to her agent.

"Please have the cottage thoroughly repaired inside as well as out. Consult the new tenant's wishes regarding paint and paper. Try to start the work by next Monday."

Later in the evening James reported the task accomplished and received other orders from his mistress, some of which seemed impossible of accomplishment, but Anne Wilbur possessed a magic tool that could achieve astonishing results, and for the first time she realized the value of the gold which had always been hers and which she had accepted as her natural birthright.

Before Anne retired that Saturday night she peeped once more through the window that overlooked the cottage yard. It was almost midnight, and the little house was dark, but there were shadowy forms moving about the yard, and occasionally there was the clink of a shovel against stone. Anne drew back with a satisfied smile and as she mounted the broad stairs to her room she hummed a little tune under her breath.

"Call me at 6, Marie," she said when she dismissed her maid.

At 6 o'clock on Easter morning Anne looked eagerly from the library window toward the cottage. A strange transformation had taken place over night, for the trusty James had done his work well.

Instead of the squalid disorder of the bare, grassless yard there was a covering of fine green turf. Quantities of rich brown earth had been formed into flower beds all around the house. Beds of glowing red geraniums were massed here and there, while gorgeous pansies filled every available space that was not occupied by snowy sweet alyssum. It was like the transformation scene in a pantomime.

The back door of the cottage opened, and Anne almost heard the cry of amazement that burst from the lips of Marcia Rodman and her little girl. The mother stared with unbelieving eyes, while the child danced with delight among the flowers and then disappeared around the path that led to the front of the cottage

"Oh, mother," Anne heard her cry: "It's splendider in front than it is in back. It's the beautifulest place we ever lived in."

The little mother pressed a handkerchief to her sweet eyes, and Anne saw her approach the fence where James had presented a placidly interested countenance. He had been instructed to say that his mistress wished the grounds to be beautified for Easter and that he was to take care of them.

Anne saw the widow's eyes fill with grateful tears as she turned them toward the big house, and then she knelt down on the dewy grass and buried her face in the fragrant alyssum. Anne knew that she was praying. She was probably asking God's blessing on Anne Wilbur's proud head.

Then a transformation came over Anne Wilbur's heart until it blossomed like the barren cottage garden. Tears filled her gray eyes, and through the tears she seemed to see herself grown stronger, more tolerant, more pitiful. She saw herself making the way smooth for Jack Rodman's wife and child, and the brightness of the Easter sunshine seemed to fall all about her until she was enveloped in a golden flood of happiness.

She Was Too Enthusiastic.

"Teaching to me," said an enthusiastic young schoolmistress, "is a holy calling. To sow in the young mind the seeds of future knowledge and watch them as they grow and develop is a pleasure greater than I can tell. I never weary of my work. My thoughts are only of"—

"I am very sorry," interrupted the young man to whom she was talking, "that you are so devoted to your profession, Miss Clara. I had hoped that some day I might have asked you—in fact, I called tonight—but I hardly dare go on, in the light of what you"—

"You may go on, Mr. Smith," said the young lady softly. "I am a little too enthusiastic at times perhaps."

WOMEN MAY AVOID OPERATIONS

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for seven months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

MASONS HEAR SERMON.

Observance of St. John's Day at St. Paul's Church.

"THE THREE LIGHTS OF MASONRY."

Sermon by Rev. O. S. Raspe. Large Attendance of Masons and Eastern Stars.

Thomas lodge of Masons attended services at St. Paul's Universalist church in a body Sunday morning on invitation of the pastor, Rev. O. S. Raspe. About 60 members gathered at the lodge rooms and marched to the church, accompanied by members of the Eastern Star. The observance of the day is not confined to Masons, but has been adopted by the Knights of Malta and some other organizations. Thomas lodge first observed the day on the Sunday nearest the anniversary in 1897, when it attended the same church as last Sunday and heard a sermon by Rev. O. G. Petrie, the then pastor. It has been observed yearly since. Rev. Mr. Raspe took for his subject "The three lights of Masonry," and said:

In every age, from time immemorial to the present day in the grace of our Lord; among the pagans of antiquity, with their mythological religious, superstitions and idolatry, as well as among the enlightened Christians of a twentieth century nation, the analogy between spiritual forces and light is ever apparent. The sun and the moon and the stars were worshipped as gods. Apollo, the diety of the ancient Greeks and Romans, was designated as the god of light. The Hebrews, faithful followers of the one God Jehovah, attributed to Him the source of all light and life. In the wisdom literature of Solomon the righteous life is characterized as "an effulgence of everlasting light and an unspotted mirror of the energy of God." The psalmist pouring out his soul to the great God of Israel, prays: "O send out thy light and thy truth, let them lead me." It was the prayer of the prophets, of Jesus, of Paul, of all the seekers after truth, that they might be privileged to walk in the light of God's countenance. Light is ever symbolical of the divine. The burning taper signifies holiness. In the flaming bush Moses heard God's voice; angels of light appeared unto the shepherds bearing the good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people; Jesus, when in communion with the Father, was transfigured before his disciples, His rainment glistening with the light of spiritual power; Paul, when brought face to face with his own soul, saw the light of the Christian truth shining in the firmament of his heart like a sun at noonday. The hymns of nations, the litanies of churches, the rituals of fraternities reflect this universal idea of making light analogons with diety, holiness and truth. In every religion, system of ethics, philosophies, theologies, creeds, this same reciprocal relationship between light and life exists. Even to Jesus the thought of an inherent affinity existing between the two master forces of the universe was pregnant with significance. In speaking to the multitude concerning his mission to the children of men he said: "I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." In Him was no darkness, for his life was the light of men.

This immortal correlation of light and spiritual authority is the very foundation of the Masonic superstructure. Every brother, from the initiatory days of burden bearing when he as an Entered Apprentice was first instructed to approach the altar of speculative Masonry, with head erect facing the light of the East; through the constructive period of a Fellowcraft, in which his life is exalted and his work on God's temple is constructed on the mathematical basis of proving the perpendicularss of everyday experiences by the plumb of uprightness, of squaring his character by the square of virtue, and remembering that as he travels day by day on the level of time to "that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns," it behooves him to live according to the dictates of conscience and in harmony with his fellowmen; I say, from this primitive state of temple building, through the more constructive period of the sciences, to the completed days of life's endeavor, when the master builders have found that which was lost amid the rubbish of time, the real keystone of the spiritual tabernacle of their souls, even Christ Jesus, the Headstone of the corner—from first to last, Masons work in the radiancy of the three great lights which adorn every temple of Masonry: the Bible, square and compasses, symbolical of the faith, the square actions and the regulated desires and passions, which interpreted as spiritual communion with God, righteousness, and temperate self-control are in turn the only character-building material that will pass the inspection of the Great Overseer of the Universe.

This triuity of Masonic light bears the same relationship to the moral life of our fraternity that the sunbeams bear to the physical life of the world. The wages of darkness is death. Neither the vegetable, the animal, the moral or the spiritual kingdom can live and grow and prosper, if the king of light be dethroned and his arch enemy, darkness, reign in his stead. Thousands die for the lack of light. Tens of thousands dio a spiritual death because their souls are wandering in the darkness of the valleys, while the light of truth and of love is scintillating its divine beams upon the mountain summit of the soul's transfiguration. The Bible is the beaming luminary that preeminently governs the hours of labor and of refreshment, and every one who has wandered in the outer darkness of the labyrinth of earthly solicitations will find the gloom and the shadows dispersed by the eternal truth, the unfaltering hope, the unswerving faith as revealed by the transcending light of the Holy Scriptures The Bible, blessed book of instruction, is the perpetual light which scintillates its life-giving beams from the altars of Masonry and is the foundation of all temples of worship. And there is light During the darkest era of French history, when that unfortunate country was given over to the rule of atheism and infidelity and the Bible was plied upon dung heaps and burned upon the streets of Lyons and Paris, Masonry stood like a stone wall in defense of the Bible, and it could be seen upon the altar of every Masonic lodge room in the kingdom, and there never was a time when an atheist could become a Mason. But above, and brighter far, than the sun, moon and stars, the Bible, square and compasses, is the light of the Eye that never sleeps, the Eye of the Great Artificer of the Universe, before whom we bow in adoration and praise.

But what are the ministrations of Masonic light? The earth was without form and void; darkness was upon the face of the deep. And God said: "Let there be light; and there was light." The world in all its grandeur was revealed. Without light there could be no flowers, no blue to the skys, no deep green mountain slopes, no verdure to the vales. The light lifted the curtain of darkness and disclosed to man the beauty of its ministration. The panorama that unfolds before us in mystic splendor is but the reflection of the smile on the face of the god of light. The world of nature is revealed as it is, when illuminated by the light of day. The night distorts, disfigures, renders ungainly, and often ghastly, the very finest of God's creations. In the light they glow with nature's perfection. Light is life and in its radiant beams we read the revelation of the seen and the unseen world.

And Masonically we declare let there be light; and there is light—the Bible, the square and the compasses. The builder of character, that spiritual temple not made by hands but eternal in the heavens, but employ in its constructions the laws governing the eternal truth. It is the only way that man can trace his design upon the trestle—board of the future. Truth, faith, hope and charity are building stones found in the spiritual quarries when revealed to the soul by Christ, by the Word of God, by the square actions on our part, by circumscribed motives in our daily walks of life—in short, by the Great Lights which are our guides, charts and working implements. The open door to truth, the path to the temple of happiness, the whole duty of man toward God and his fellow creatures are made manifest when we have discarded the hoodwink of carnal things for the radiancy of spiritual things. The soul of man buds and blossoms when the truth is revealed. It is a divine attribute and the foundation of every virtue. The human commonwealth, the kingdom of the human heart, bears witness to the power of spiritual realities. When truth knocks at the door of your heart, attend the alarm. The way may be rocky, accompanied with imminent danger, but our trust is in God and He will be our rod and our staff. Were our eyes but open we should at once be introduced into a spiritual universe, the Holy of Holies, the Sanctum sanctorum, of our Father's tabernacle, in which the light of spiritual power shines brighter and fairer than we have ever known before. For God is light and in Him is no darkness at all.

Light not only reveals the earth, but fertilizes the soil. Without light there could be no vegetation. Plants, animals, man depend upon the fruitfulness of the soil. Without light all would be barren! Vigorous men work in the light; overhoused children are pale and sickly. Compare the eagle, mighty of wing and beautiful, with the angleworm that exists in the darkness of the ground. Light fertilizes and thereby makes blossoms, fruitage, strength and life abundantly possible.

So, in like manner, the symbolic lights of Masonary teach us to open our hearts for the inpouring of the spirit of righteousness which shall so fertilize our minds and souls that we shall harvest abundantly of the fruitage that sustains our lives. For the man who has laid hold upon health, strength and ambition to do and dare, has indeed reaped of life's blessings abundantly. The lesson of Ruth the gleaner finds its happy place here. It makes known to all proper inquirers the light, knowledge and beauty of the yellow ray, whose golden hue symbolizes constancy. Steadfastness of purpose is the means developed under the light of God which fertilizes the heart and prepares it for the mature fruitage of wisdom, strength and beauty—the three pillars of our lives and which should adorn all great and important undertakings. We must, then, be prepared first of all in our hearts by the kindly rays of moral and spiritual light, so that our heart may be inclined to follow after the truth, be endued with the wisdom of spiritual actualities, with fortitude to bear the vicissitudes of this earth, with constancy and with courage to maintain the precepts of Christ, he who in life and death is altogether lovely.

Light is also a purifier. It is nature's disinfectant. The mold and dampness of the pit are dispelled by the rays of the sun The most deadly acid is charmed to give up its poison by the caress of the sunbeam. Pestilence always walks in darkness. The wise people during the plagne in Italy were never seen out at night. Light is medicinal. Nervous ailments yield readily to the power of sunshine. Pallid faces grow fresh and ruddy beneath its glow. The sun's rays are wonderful in their healing and purifying power.

Under the instruction of the lights of Masonry the venom of sin shall yield up its poison to the purified light of Christian morality and brotherly love. Evils may not lurk in the darkness when the light of holiness has divested our hearts of all the vices and superfluities of the material world, thereby fixing our minds as living stones for that spiritual building of which Christ is the keystone.

Too many of us attempt to escape from the country of God to the Echeopia of unrighteousness. A sin-ridden character is murder against holiness, and the Grand Master of the Universe will give his approbation only when we have detected our crime against the spirit and changed the rough ashlars of our lives, rude and imperfect, to the perfect ashlar of spiritual unity with God by virtuous education and faithfulness unto our trust. You may easily divest yourself of your white leather apron, emblematical of purity and innocency, but of your character never. You must square your lives by the square of virtue. You may find that it does not particularly matter how much the other fellow dabbles in the dirt, you are obligated to keep your hands clean. And it is not a question whether your neighbor is mean or not, but the essential thing which you personally are facing is: "Am I living square?" It is not for you to turn the searchlight unto the other fellow's character, but to scrutinize your own more carefully. We Masons must guard against criticism. Perhaps the very stone which we reject from our Temples may become in time the headstone of the corner. With proper instruction the worst sinner shall be raised from the tomb of corruption, a sinful life, to the chamber of hope; from the dead level of ungodliness to the living perpendicular of righteousness. Let us beware, and look well to our ballot, for know ye not that the trowel is the working tool of our profession, which admonishes us throughout life to spread the cement of brotherly love and affection, that cement which unites us into one sacred band of friends and brothers? For, behold how good and pleasaut it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

The three great lights are upon us; the light of the Master Light is in His Universe. Shall we not make the Bible the rule of our life, the square to square our action and the compasses to keep us in due bounds with all mankind? And Christ, the headstone of the corner, knocks at the door of your hearts. Who will attend to the alarm? REV. OTTO S. RASPE.

TWO RECENT BURGLARIES.

North Wilbraham Mill, Wales Post Office.

SAFE BLOWN WITH NITROGLYCERIN.

About $600 Secured In Former Place, But Only Small Sum In Latter. No Clues.

Two burglaries, very similar in methods, occurred Wednesday night, one in Wales and the other in North Wilbraham. In the latter place the office of the Collins Manufacturing Company was broken into and about $600 in cash was secured after the combination of the safe had been blown off by the use of nitroglycerin. In Wales the post office, in the store of E. & E. Lanphear, was broken into, but only a small amount of change was secured from the safe. It is the custom of the postmaster, Miss Edna Lanphear, to take the supply of stamps out of the safe at night and to leave the safe unlocked, and for this reason it was not blown open. In both Wales and North Wilbraham the burglars broke into blacksmith shops, to secure the tools with which to break into the buildings.

The break at North Wilbraham was discovered yesterday morning by Edward Carney, the office boy, who did not leave the office Wednesday night until after 9 30, so it is thought that the break probably occurred after midnight. Entrance was probably gained at a point near the river bridge, as several pickets were knocked off the fence at this place. Of the $600 secured, $200 belonged to the superintendent of the mill, H. B. Whiting. It is believed that the work was done by professionals and more than one man had a hand in it. It is also believed that the burglars knew that Thursday was pay day at the mill and that the money for the pay roll is brought to the mill on Wednesday and they expected to find this money in the safe. It happened, however, that the employes were paid this week on Wednesday on account of inventory. The police in the surrounding towns were notified, but no clews were found yesterday.

It is known that the break in Wales happened after 10 o'clock, for it was not until that time that L. H. Thompson closed his store, which adjoins the Lanphear store in which the post office is located. The break was not discovered until yesterday morning. Entrance was gained to the store by forcing the front door. The thieves secured a small amount of change from the safe, another small amount from the cash drawer of the store, but overlooked a handbag hanging near the safe, which contained a pocketbook in which there was a large sum of cash. One pair of shoes was taken from the stock in the store, but nothing else was taken.

Will Repair State Road.

Strip West of North Wilbraham, New Last Year, in Bad Shape.

All who have occasion to use the state highway between North Wilbraham and the Springfield line will be "tickled to death" to learn that it is to be rebuilt. All the spring it has been cordially damned by everybody who has passed over it, and many autoists have chosen the longer route through Wilbraham than brave the terrors of the road from Nine-mile pond west to the Springfield line.

This strip of state highway was "fixed" last year, being entirely rebuilt with what was supposed to be the very best of construction. A coating of gravel was spread over the old road, and this, after being rolled, was given a coat of bituminous oil. When the work was being done there were many laymen who expressed the opinion that the gravel was too thick. This seems to have been the case, for the heavy automobile travel over the road has broken through the surface in many places, "squashed out" the gravel underneath and left the surface full of ruts. In some places it has been worse than a country road in springtime when the mud was drying up.

Now the road is to be thoroughly rebuilt, and a new surface laid. Just what will be done with it is not known, but the state highway commissioners are determined to make an effort to better the conditions. The work will be done under the direction of Supt. D. L. Bodfish of Palmer.

Doings of the Legislature.

Scramble for the Auditorship—Also for Secretary of State—West End Elevated and Labor Matters—Referendum Killed—Long Session—Speakership Politics.

BOSTON, June 28, 1911.

This forenoon there was a report on the floor of the House of Representatives that State Auditor Turner had died this morning. Inquiry established the fact that the report was untrue. But it is true that the auditor is in an unconscious state, from which his physician does not believe he will ever emerge. The end is only a question of hours, apparently. Then will come the political consideration, just as, in the case of the late secretary of the Commonwealth, there were anticipatory moves even before the breath left the body. Already candidates have sought to establish mortgages upon the office. It has been the understanding, ever since the election of Representative Langtry of Springfield to be secretary of state, considering that he was at first a candidate for auditor, that Senator John E. White of the Cape district should be the Republican nominee for auditor. But Former Representative Herbert W. Burr of Boston is already in the field for the office, under the direct nomination act. The nomination papers were available for distribution Monday forenoon, for the first time, and it was not long before it was given out that Burr had taken out his papers. Of course the field is open. If the Legislature shall have to elect an auditor at this session, as now seems inevitable, then the new incumbent will have the benefit of that recognition and it will be probably the decisive factor in the campaign for nomination. The chances therefore favor White greatly. He is a present member of the Senate and no other candidate on the Republican side has come into sight. It is not to be supposed that the Democrats will be permitted to elect their candidate, as they might have done with Frank J. Donahue for secretary of state, if the Republicans had not compelled the use of an open vote in order to hold their men in line. No Democratic candidate is in the field yet, but, of course, the Democrats will go into caucus, since they have such numerical strength, and make a straight party nominee.

Mr. Donahue was one of the first, on Monday, to take out his nomination papers for secretary of state and says to-day that he is having no difficulty in getting the necessary 1000 signers of his papers, of whom 250 must be in at least each of four different counties. Donahue showed much strength in the vote for secretary of state against Langtry, and that will tend to give him a good start before the people this fall, for the candidate who had the unanimous support of the party in the Legislature secured a backing which no rival can get. Candidates all along the line will take out papers very soon where they have not done it already, judging by what is heard here. Senator Hunt of Worcester says that he is considering whether he shall appear as a Democrat and a Democratic Progressive. The Democratic Progressives are now a recognized legal party, and although it is said at the office of the secretary of state that the formal notification by their state committee that they will not put a state ticket in the field relieves them from the necessity of printing a set of ballots for them, yet there remains the question whether a man in Hunt's situation has not a right to run as straight Democrat and as a Democratic Progressive, if he can get both nominations. If he does not take both, then there is the possibility that some opponent might run as a Democratic Progressive and thereby win just enough votes from him to give a Republican the election. Hunt does not believe that this could be done. But there is the further consideration that some Republicans might vote for a Democratic Progressive who would not vote for a straight Democrat. Therefore, in both his district and in every other district in the state, it would seem to be good policy for the Democratic candidates to run also as Democratic Progressives. This cannot be done in any other year, for the Democratic Progressives have already served notice that they will not run a candidate for governor and it is their votes for a candidate for governor that a party's standing as official or not is determined.

Report has it that the published compromise on the West End Elevated consolidation bill is not yet an assured success in spite of the publication this morning of the statement that it is. Therefore there must be further waiting. The opposition to monopoly seems to have gained strength by waiting, contrary to the usual fate of anti-corporation efforts. Therefore, with the popular current on their side, the opposition can seemingly afford to wait as hopefully as the corporations. The real issue is whether the people of Boston and suburbs shall be tied hand and foot for 50 years and delivered over to a transportation monopoly which may pay at least 7½ per cent dividends.

It is not certain yet that the Saunders-Park workmen's compensation act will have the support of all friends of the measure. Questions are asked whether or not the matter has been discussed as long as it ought to be. This question comes from friends of laboring men. At the same time, the labor leaders have been urgent for these two years that something be done promptly. They did not like, at first, the commission which was given charge of the work last year and did not accept it till they were forced to. Therefore, however much individual members may want further light, it is more probable that the labor demand will force some sort of action this session.

The referendum constitutional amendment is done to death for this session. Yesterday's vote of 125 yeas to 75 nays on roll call proved, although there was a large majority, that they could not get a two-thirds' vote for the amendment. Mr. Crane of Cambridge, who had it in charge, tries again to-day. He got his reconsideration, after some trouble, but, on the recurring roll call on agreeing to the article of amendment, there were 117 yeas to 79 nays. That was worse than yesterday's vote and ends the matter for this session, yet the fact of a large majority for the amendment will certainly tempt members to put it in next year. The fact that every citizen in the state can put in a petition to the Legislature and receive respectful consideration, joined with the fact that we have elections every year, makes a recall rather unnecessary and brings about a political status in which the rights of the original voter are protected about as completely as possible under any system of laws.

Representative White of Brookline, who is the chairman of the House ways and means committee, is becoming pessimistic about an adjournment soon. He says that there are appropriation bills involving some $5,000,000 yet to be passed upon and

PALMER NEWS.

Clergymen in Conference.

Hampden Association of Congregational Ministers Meet in Palmer.

The Hampden Association of Congregational Ministers held its summer meeting in the Congregational church Tuesday. Rev. Oliver W. Means was moderator, and Rev. Walter Rice, scribe. An address on "The function of the Church" was given by the Rev. Neil MacPherson, D. D., of the First Church of Springfield. He said in part:

"The church loses its power because those who are leading and those who are following do not have the right conception of the function of the church. The pocket knife does not cut well because it has gold rivets, nor does the church perform its function because it has adornments; both are useful as they do their work Truth does not need to be buttressed and the preacher of Christ ought not to be apologetic. Nor should the church be controversial, nor chiefly institutional. The church ought not to be a factory, a play-house, or a club, although some of these features may be present. The church should not be sociological nor political. This is a day of specialists; the minister must not dabble in external things, for the minister is a specialist and the church as a church has the business of a specialist. The business of the church of Christ is first the business of Christ, and the business of Christ was to be about his Father's business. God's purpose is redemptive. The great men are the sufferers for others in their redemption. We make a mistake when we try to give the church some great idea thinking that ideas alone save. The church should have the spirit of Jesus, bringing men into his own life. For this purpose the church itself must have a great experience. The note of sin has been dropped out of much preaching. Mere knowledge will not save a people, but the new heart and the new life. Formerly sin was hold, blatant; today it is cunning, insidious. It is easier to fight a lion than to fight bacteria. The worst sins of to-day are indifference and the mis-use of power. The church has talked too much and worked too little. It is the hand-picked fruit that count most—the men reached one by one rather than the crowds of a revival. Bringing men into the church is bringing them into touch with the love of Christ. Jesus is superhuman, no man can lift you up unless he is bigger than you. Therefore the supreme business of the church is to reveal Christ as their Saviour, Friend and Lord."

The discussion which followed the address showed how helpful it had been and how well appreciated. Mrs. E. T. Seymour gave a paper, "Seen from the Window of the Manse." Mrs. Richard Peters was unable to be present, but sent her paper, "Seen from the Minister's Pew," which was read by Mrs. G. S. Wood.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Gates, Wilbraham; Mr. and Mrs. Hannum, Holyoke; Mr. and Mrs. Wight, Chicopee; Dr. and Mrs. Lee, Dr. MacPherson, Dr. Means, Dr. and Mrs. Trask, H. A. Campbell, Mr. Sanderson and Mrs. Mallary of Springfield; Mr. Bailey, Longmeadow; Mr. Bliss, Hampden; Mr. and Mrs. Child, East Brimfield; Mr. and Mrs. Jennings, Brimfield; Mr. McDuffie, Three Rivers; Mr. Curtis, Ludlow; Mr. Lewis, Huntington; Mr. and Mrs. Seymour, Chester Hill; Mr. and Mrs. Wood, Blandford.; Mr. Love, West Springfield; Mr Andrews, Monson; Mr. Rice, Agawam; Mr and Mrs. Monroe, Mr. Nichols, Southwick; Mr. and Mrs. Brewer, Palmer.

Beloved Priest Leaves Town.

Fr. Donoghue of Thorndike Has Permanent Position in Worcester.

Rev. Thomas S Donoghue, who has been pastor of St. Mary's church in Thorndike since the death of Rev. Francis J. Lynch about two years ago, left yesterday for his new home in Worcester, where he has been appointed pastor of St. John's church, the parish of which comprises nearly 9000 souls and is the largest in the Springfield diocese. On Sunday Fr. Donoghue bade farewell to his parishioners in Thorndike, and the parting was an affecting one on both sides. At both masses — 8 and 10 o'clock — men, women and children gave way to their sorrow, and tears and sobs emanated from strong men as well as women and children. Fr. Donoghue won the hearts of his congregation from his first duties as pastor of St. Mary's, and the parting was with genuine sorrow. Kind-hearted, whole-souled, patient, gentle and charitable at all times, a daily visitor among the people of his flock, he won not only their love but the respect and esteem of every member of the community to a marked degree. Especially was he loved by the children, in whom he took a deep interest.

Fr. Donoghue's work as pastor of St. Mary's has been marked with success in every particular, particularly financially, as the statement he gave out last Sunday shows. There was a debt of $2000 on the parish when he went there, which has been reduced to $1000, with about $400 in bank, leaving a net debt of only $600. His flock has been ready to follow him in everything which he suggested, which accounts for the good showing made.

Father Donoghue's appointment to his new position—which, by the way, is a permanent one—is the result on a competitive examination, which is usual where permanent positions are to be filled. Fr. Donoghue was appointed a member of the examinating board, but could not serve as he took the examination, which was held in Springfield on Wednesday of last week.

Forest Lake Show Next Week.

For the next two weeks the theatre performances at Forest Lake will take on a new phase. Instead of the usual vaudeville stunts there will be a variety of plays by the Myrkle-Harder Stock Company. This organization comes from a tour of the larger cities and is said to be of unusual merit. Four plays will be produced, that of the opening being "One Girl in a Thousand," accompanion play to "Way Down East," said by those who have seen it to be the best of the kind ever written The others will be announced later The soubrette of the company is Miss Frankie McCoy, and the entire company is announced as maintaining a high standard of excellence.

Fireworks Regulations.

The selectmen have posted cards on which are printed the fireworks regulations promulgated by them. The sale of fireworks is permitted on the third and fourth days of July, between the hours of 4 a. m. and 11 p. m., and they may be used on the Fourth only, between 4 a. m. and 11 p. m. It is also ordered that no explosives of any kind shall be placed on the tracks of the Springfield and Eastern street railway company.

Fire District Tax Rate.

The assessors have completed their work to an extent that they are able to announce the tax rate for the fire district, which will be $2 10.

They are unable to state the town rate, as the amount of the state tax has not yet been determined, but enough is known to make it certain that the rate will be between $21 and $22 on $1000, estimating the state tax to be about what it was last year.

Diplomas Given Graduates.

Palmer High School Closes Wednesday, Sending Out Class of 23.

The high school closed for the year Wednesday noon, and during the session the members of the senior class received their diplomas. Because of the Washington visit of the class, which has in recent years come to take the place of a public graduation, there were only simple exercises. The school was gathered in the assembly hall, with parents and invited guests, there was music, and Superintendent Gray briefly addressed those present, then presenting the diplomas. The class numbers 23, as follows, the names being given in the order of their standing: Four years' course — Daniel Horgan, Lillian Jones, May Fillmore, Ruth Backus, Mary Hartnett, Kathleen Quirk, Anna Bothwell, Elizabeth Moulton, Mabel Camp, John Brown, Edna Atkins, Agnes Sullivan, Agnes Carmody, Benjamin Emery, George Buck, Harry Hart; three years' course — Marie Dullahan, Harold Hitchcock, Cornelius Harrington, Lillian Mahoney, Susan Barlow, Frances Freeman, Alta Burgess The class originally numbered 44, of whom six graduated last year in the three years' course. Of the 23 who left the school this week one will go to Holy Cross College at Worcester, two will enter Bridgewater Normal school and four will go to Westfield Normal.

Early Morning Suicide.

Man Dives In Front of Electric Car Near North Wilbraham.

An unknown man, apparently between 60 and 70 years of age, dressed in the clothes of a workingman, committed suicide at 7 10 this morning on the track of the Springfield and Eastern Street Railway Company between North Wilbraham and the "Moran" bridge, deliberately throwing himself in front of a car. The car passed over the middle of his body, and in addition one leg was nearly severed below the knee.

The car was the 6 45 out of Palmer, Springfield bound, in charge of Motorman Myers and Conductor Monahan. There was a fair number of passengers, some of whom, including ladies, occupied the seat next the motorman. After leaving North Wilbraham and passing the Lane turnout, the car was making usual time along the straight strip of track on the "Plains." Just west of the Simons house, about half way to the Moran bridge, a man was seen standing in the middle of the road, looking at the car as it approached. When it came within a few feet of him he placed his hands palms together and deliberately dove in front of the car as a diver enters the water. It was all over before the motorman even had time to shut off the power, and the car had gone some distance past the body before it could be stopped.

Associate Medical Examiner Theodore S. Bacon of Springfield was called and ordered the body removed to Springfield, where an examination was made, nothing toward identification being attempted previously. There was no question of the man's intention, as the deliberate act was plainly seen by most of the passengers on the car.

Honors For Palmer Boy.

Word has been received this week from Francis Barton, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Barton of North Main street, who has been studying in Paris, that after a public examination he was awarded the degree of Doctor of the University of Paris (college of letters) with honorable mention. His thesis, on "The literary influence of Sterne in France during the 18th century," written in French, was published the same day by Hackett & Co. in both Paris and London. Mr. Barton has been studying for two years at the University of Paris and at the Ecole des Hautes Etudes, and is now studying in Spain. He has been appointed instructor in French at Williams College, and expects to return home about the first of August.

Suffering From Ivy Poison.

John B. Lovell was arraigned in the district court Monday morning on a charge of vagrancy. He had applied to Officer Crimmins Sunday night for lodging, and under the law had to be taken into court. He was found to be suffering from ivy poison, and after his discharge by the court was turned over to the overseers of the poor, who took him to the town farm, as he had no means of securing medical attendance. He was a laboring man out of work, and was so ill Sunday night that application for aid from some source was imperative.

O W. Marcy has had a garage built at the rear of his home on Pine street.

The Major Morgan veteran firemen have voted to attend the muster at Ludlow in August.

As next Tuesday is the Fourth of July, the overseers of the poor will postpone their meeting until Wednesday evening.

A concrete sidewalk is being built on the north side of North Main street from Holbrook street toward the Point of Rocks.

An auction sale of furniture, etc., will be held at the home of W. H. Laird on North Main street Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

There will be an auction sale of real estate and furniture, the property of John S. Holt, at Shearer's corner Monday afternoon.

The loose gravel which was placed on North Main street last winter to preserve the surface of the road is being removed this week.

A number of the merchants have signed an agreement to close their stores Thursday afternoons during July and August, beginning next week.

There will be evening prayer and sermon at St. Mary's mission Sunday at 3 15. The Sunday school will be resumed on the second Sunday in September.

Rev. A. C. Johnson of the Westfield A. C. church will preach in the Advent chapel Sunday at 3 o'clock. All are invited. Sunday school as usual at 2.

Robert Barton, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Barton of North Main street, has been graduated from the Maine State College with the degree of Bachelor of Science

On account of illness in the neighborhood, the town clock has been stopped striking for the present. The clock, however, is still running and keeping excellent time.

A new fence has been placed around the old cemetery at Three Rivers by the board of cemetery commissioners. The cemetery is very little used, and has not had much attention in recent years.

There was a chimney fire in the Kurtz estate house on the corner of South Main and Vail streets last evening about 7 o'clock, but it was extinguished without damage and without ringing an alarm.

There was a large attendance Wednesday evening at the reception and dance given by the junior class of the high school to the seniors in Memorial Hall, and the occasion was greatly enjoyed by all.

The selectmen will give a hearing in their room next Thursday evening on the petition of the Standard Oil Company for permission to erect an additional tank for the storage of oil on its property on Water street.

The subject of the sermon in the Baptist church next Sunday morning will be "The Cause of Silence of Christians." Bible school at 12, evening worship at 7; sermon subject, "The Way to True Manhood." All are invited.

The committee in charge of the awards made at the close of the bazar in Three Rivers last Saturday would like to locate the holder of ticket No. 102 on a buffet. They will be glad to turn over the article to the holder of this ticket.

The special electric cars every evening from the villages direct to Forest Lake have been discontinued, and instead will run only on Tuesday and Friday evenings. They will be run from the lake direct to the villages on these nights after the show.

Supt. Bodfish of the state highway department reports about a dozen young ash trees set out this spring along the state highway on the Palmer road east of the Monson line near Wilbraham have been broken off by someone, evidently maliciously.

The morning service at the Congregational church will be a communion service with reception of new members; sermon subject, "Remember the word" Sunday school at 12, Christian Endeavor at 6; this will be a patriotic service. Evening sermon at 7.

Tockwotton tribe of Red Men elected these officers Tuesday evening: Sachem, George F. Emmons; senior sagamore, R. H. Paine; junior sagamore, H. W. Thompson; prophet, Grover C. Goodes; representatives, George A. Branford and Freeman A. Smith; alternates, Everett W. Carpenter and Edwin A. Buck.

Tockwotton tribe of Red Men will attend service in a body at St. Paul's church Sunday morning. The pastor, Rev. Otto Raspe, will take for his subject, "The Evolution of the American Citizen." This will be a patriotic sermon, appropriate to the Fourth of July. A cordial invitation is extended to the tribe to be present.

The first excursion of the season to New London and Ocean Beach will be run over the Central Vermont railroad next Tuesday, July 4. A special train will leave Palmer at 8 50 a. m., and returning will leave New London at 4 45 p. m. Fare for the round trip will be $1 Ocean Beach is the popular pleasure resort of New London, being a 30-minutes' ride on the trolleys.

About 30 parents and friends of the public schools met Superintendent Gray in high school assembly hall last Friday evening to discuss the courses available for high school pupils. Many questions were asked, and the various matters were thoroughly explained and discussed. Those present obtained a more thorough insight into the workings of the Palmer schools than they have heretofore had, and the plan will be continued in the future.

The Springfield street railway officials have ordered that, on account of the parade in that city next Tuesday morning, the Fourth, no cars shall move on State street beyond the track of the New England railroad after 9 o'clock until 20 minutes after the parade shall have passed that point. Cars from the east will be turned back at that point however, and the service maintained up to that point. The first Palmer car to be affected will be the 8 15; persons wishing to get into the city without walking will do well to take cars earlier than that.

There was a birthday party in the Polish quarter at Three Rivers Saturday night, with the attendant flow of beer and a mixup later. Joseph Wiskeiski emerged from the fracas with a head which required the attention of a physician, for which he thought someone ought to be punished. In the district court Wednesday morning the evidence seemed to indicate that Frank Baczkowski, Sylvester Jannlewicz, Adam Sussikies and Stephen Baczkowski knew something about the mixup, and the first three were assessed $25 each and the latter $10, all of which was paid.

Selections by Caruso, Tettrazzini, Scotti and other grand opera singers, as well as by Sousa's and other of the great military bands, given on the new Victor anx-e-to-phone, will be a free attraction in the pavilion at Forest Lake next Sunday. Tom Killen and his company will appear in the theatre, and an extra attraction will be Teddy Lorraine, late of the Mme. Sherry company, in character songs. In the evening there will be moving pictures, and illustrated songs by Miss Agnes Roach of Ware and Miss Elizabeth Riddle of Three Rivers. On the Fourth there will be three shows in the theatre, and dancing afternoon and evening.

While smoking may be on the increase among women they are seldom seen indulging in public, at least in this vicinity. And yet there was an exhibition on Main street one day recently which disgusted all who saw it. A woman who was sitting in an auto which had been left standing in the street for a time, called a bystander to her and asked if there were any cigars in the town. He replied, "Sure; do you want a quarter's worth?" She expressed a desire for a whole box and handed out a $5 bill with which to pay the score. When he brought back the box she told him to "keep the change," and lighting up a cigar in the regulation style sat there and puffed away in the most nonchalant manner.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Boyle—Foy.

The marriage of Miss Mary Jane Boyle and William H. Foy of Springfield took place Wednesday morning in St. Cecelia's church, Rev. M. O'Connell performing the ceremony. The bridesmaid was Miss May Foy and the best man was James Boyle. The bride wore a champagne colored traveling suit and a picture hat. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride to relatives and a few friends Many beautiful gifts were received. McKENNA—HEFFERNAN.

Young People Wed in St. Patrick's Church Wednesday Morning.

A very pretty Jnne wedding took place at St. Patrick's church Wednesday morning, when Miss Mary Anna McKenna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs John McKenna of Bridge street, became the bride of Edmnnd T. Heffernan of this town. Rev. M J. Carey performed the ceremony, which was followed by a nuptial mass. Miss Nellie G. Carroll of Ware presided at the organ. The altar was handsomely decorated with ferns and laurel, interwoven with carnations and roses, the decorating being in charge of Miss Amanda Chevalier. Miss Jennie McKenna, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and James Carter, a cousin of the groom, was best man. The bride's gown was of champagne silk, and she wore a white picture hat. The bridesmaid's gown was of pink messaline with pearl trimmings; she wore a white picture hat and carried a bonquet of sweet peas Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home The presents were numerous and valuable. The bride was given a large rosewood divan and chair by the members of St. Patrick's church choir, and a library table and picture by the Wide Awake Whist Club. The other presents incinded silverware, cut glass, china, linen and furnitnre. The bride is a graduate of Monson Academy, class of '05, and a graduate of the New Eugland conservatory of music '07, since which time she has been organist in St. Patrick's church. Mr Heffernan is also a native of this town and was employed for several years by the American Bell Telephone Co., Cincinnati, O , but for the past two years has been employed by the New England Telephone Co in Palmer, being transferred to a more responsible position in South Framingham four months ago. The bride's traveling gown was of olive blne chiffon panama, and she wore a large black picture hat. After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs Heffernan will reside in South Framingham.

PLEASING ENTERTAINMENT.

Golf Club Members Given Change in Program Wednesday Evening.

When announcement was made that bridge would he tabooed at the Wednesday evening entertainment at the Quaboag Country Clnb's house, and that an entertainment would be substituted, it was a guarantee of a large attendance, for the nature of the entertainment was not even hinted at. The clnb members however felt certain that the committee in charge — Mr. and Mrs. L C. Flynt, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Dewing, Miss Wingate and Miss Holmes — would provide something well worth seeing And in this the large company which assembled were not disappointed. The entertainment consisted of a program of readings by Miss Knapp of Boston, and was most thoronghly enjoyed. Many of the selections were in dialect and given in costume, and Miss Knapp seemed to have full control of voice and featnres in keeping with each character. Added to this was an unnsual feature, in that nearly every selection was new to the audience So pleasing were the entertainer's renditions that she was obliged to respond to nnmerous encores. After the completion of the program refreshments were served and a social hour followed, all voting the evening one of the most enjoyable the clnb had ever known.

Straw Workers' Annual Reunion.

The annnal reunion of the Merrick & Fay straw workers was held in Memorial Hall Wednesday. A dinner was served in the Methodist church, after which a business meeting was held in Memorial Hall. It was voted to hold the next reunion on the last Saturday in June in 1912. Following the business meeting a social entertainment was enjoyed, including a dnet by Miss Gladys Lull and James Kimber, a solo by Miss Freida Rand and a solo by Miss Anna Kranse, reading by Miss Hazel Moore and a piano solo by Miss Gladys Lull. The annnal poem was written by Mrs. Nettie Aldrich and read by Mrs. E. E. Thompson.

Elm Trees Dying.

The fact that many of the heantiful elm trees on Main street are dying has caused Chairman J. P. Herlihy of the board of selectmen to communicate with State Forester Rane. Mr. Herlihy has suggested that an expert he sent to Monson to determine if possible the canse of the trouble. It has been snggested that the gas is responsible, bnt the trees where there are no gas mains are in the same condition. The drouth is the probable canse, but the selectmen are going to do all in their power to preserve the trees.

Dr. Harriet Kenney of Cohoes, N Y., a graduate of the Academy in the class of 1892, has been the guest of friends in town this week.

A joint committee, consisting of committees of the grange, the Christian Endeavor society, the Ladies' Benevolent Society, and the Sunday school met Tuesday night to arrange for a picnic on the common with sports and lawn games for the Fourth.

The gradnating exercises of the Hitchcock Free Academy were held last Friday in the Congregational church, which was effectively decorated for the occasion with the class colors, green and gold The members of the gradnating class were: President, Charles Abner Burleigh; vice president, Herman Harold Spratt; secretary, Inez May Elder; treasurer, Anna May Hitchcock; Madeline Frances Adams, Stanley Cutler Hicks, Anna Genevieve Hynes, Walter Russell Rourke, Eleanor Spratt, Blanche Ellen Hawkins, Maud Ida Hitchcock, Maud Locke, Winona Steele Shaw, Raymond Cyril Walker, Jennie Frances Whittemore. There was a reception in the evening to the graduates, alumni and invited guests, music being furnished by the Philharmonic orchestra of Springfield. The reception committee were Charles S Tarbell, Orrus E. Parker and George M. Hitchcock.

Spoke Their Minds.

The original woman's rights woman of the modern era, according to a contributor to the Paris Figaro, was Olympe de Gonges, a Frenchwoman who was beheaded, but not before she had wittily pointed out the gulf, fixed by custom, between woman's inherent and her civic rights. In 1791, in a manifesto which had no precedent whatever and which contained an article which has kept suffragists going ever since, the intrepid Olympe de Gonges declared. "Woman has the right to mount the scaffold; she should also have the right to mount the tribune."

Another way of expressing the same idea is credited to Mme. Condorcet. It is said that Bonaparte when consul remarked to Mme. Condorcet:

"I don't like to have women mix up in politics."

"In a country where their heads are cut off," the wife of the philosopher returned without hesitation, "it is natural that they should want to know the reason why."

Stopping a Steamship.

M. Bertin, chief engineer of naval construction in the French navy, figured out from elaborate calculations in how short a distance a steamship can stop He demonstrates that a 50,000 ton transatlantic liner, going twenty-nine knots an hour, simply by stopping the engines will come to a stop in one hour and thirteen minutes and will in that time have traveled 4.78 statute miles. The same vessel with reciprocating engines, if these be reversed, will stop in twice its own length and if the engines be turbines in four times its own length. These theoretical calculations are verified by actual experiment. The French minister of marine made the test with some torpedo boats and has on several occasions stopped one by reversing its engine to 600 yards and when the engines were of the turbine type in 273.4 yards.—New York World.

Obeyed the Judge.

A little colored girl, deeply insulted by her playmate, who had pushed her "off'n de stoop," took her case before the justice of the peace. He inquired into the circumstances and said, turning to the injured one, "The plaintiff is allowed to ask the defendant a question in regard to the assault."

"Wha's dat yo' say, sah?"

"I say that you may ask the defendant a question."

"Wh-what'll Ah ask her, sah?"

"Any question you like."

The child studied the floor a moment; then, with the politest of smiles, she inquired, "Sally, am yo' mamma well?"—Everybody's.

AN ESCAPED LUNATIC

By MARTHA V. PEASLEY

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

My brother Henry wrote me that he was going to bring his friend ont to our country place for the week end "He's a jim dandy, Edith," wrote Henry, "and I'm bringing him out purposely to introduce him to you."

About a mile from our place was the state insane asylum. Its proximity was a great disadvantage in that I was in constant dread lest some maniac should escape, come to our house and murder us all. An escaped lunatic had once come there when no one but a maid was in the house and had frightened her out of her senses.

About 5 o'clock one afternoon when I was just ready to go downstairs and out on to the piazza there came a ring at the telephone. I answered the call myself. It was from the asylum and was an inquiry as to whether we had seen or heard of one of the inmates who had left the grounds and gone in our direction. He had passed out with a suit case in his hand, telling the gatekeeper that he had been discharged and was going home. He was one of the most dangerous patients in the institution.

I replied that we had seen nothing of him and sincerely hoped we would not. Then I went out on the piazza and tried to think of something else. But I was unable to fix my thoughts on anything save a madman coming down on us. Every man who passed on the road a short distance from where I sat looked to me like a raving maniac. Finally I saw a man coming carrying a suit case. My heart went right up into my throat. I muttered a silent prayer that he might pass the gate. He did not. He stopped and looked up at our house. "He's the escaped patient," I moaned. "He's deliberating whether he'll come here or go on farther. Heavens, he's coming in!"

There was no man in the house, and I simply must meet him. I sat perfectly still while he came up the walk, my heart wildly beating. I had read stories of persons turning away insane persons by coolness and strategy, but I didn't find any coolness in myself, and, as for strategy, I was incapable of carrying on even an ordinary conversation with the man. By the time he reached the piazza I saw a wild eyed creature with fiery red hair and atmospheric disturbances similar to heat waves emanating from his finger ends. Indeed, had I looked at him through dancing water or an imperfect window pane he couldn't have appeared more terrible. He said something to me, but I had no idea what it was, except that it was a question.

"Go on." I said—"oh, go on! They're after you! I just had a telephone from them asking if we had seen you. As you value your freedom, go!"

He stood looking at me. Was he going to spring upon me or would he with that cunning often to be found in persons of his kind attempt to outwit me so that he could effect an entrance into the house and murder us all without our being able to call for help?

"You can't come in!" I continued excitedly. "Oh, go on! Don't stop a moment. You'll be captured. Please go."

The man turned and, without a word, retraced his steps. I maintained my position until I had seen him out of the gate, then I staggered into the house, sank on a lounge, and that's the last I knew till I saw the maid sprinkling my face with water.

Ashamed of my weakness, I soon arose and by keeping smelling salts continually at my nostrils managed to get upstairs to my room. In the course of an hour the maid knocked at my door and said my brother had come I was surprised at this, for he had written that he would be with us on Saturday afternoon, and it was now Friday. I was so ashamed of my terror at the approach of the lunatic—Henry had no respect for my timidity—that I resolved not to say anything about it. With the smelling salts in my hand, I went down into the living room.

Oh, my goodness gracious! Am I mad, or are my eyes askew? There beside Henry, stands the maniac!

"What the dickens did you mean, Edith, by treating Mr. Trask as you did awhile ago? I missed the train, and he came on without me, only to be turned away by you. Were you crazy?"

"N-n-o, b-but I thought he was."

Henry was very angry, but his friend soothingly said that I doubtless had an explanation. I gave it. A sickly smile gradually overspread the features of both the men, and, as for me, I ran up to my room and locked the door, and they didn't get me out of it till the next morning. When I came down to breakfast Henry and Mr. Trask were waiting for me. Henry, who was still mortified at my reception of his friend, said by way of introduction, just as if we hadn't met before:

"Edith, this is Mr. Trask, whom I wrote you I would bring up with me this week. I assure you he is in his right mind and has no intention of murdering you."

"Yes, I have," said the other. "I'm going to pluck her heart out of her."

Now, wasn't that nice of him?

Indeed, he turned the whole matter into a joke, getting Henry into good humor and making me feel less uncomfortable.

And he kept his word about plucking my heart out of me.

Queer Lawsuit.

Perhaps the most remarkable suit ever brought is on the records of the court of the exchequer in England. It was filed on Oct. 3, 1725, and it sets forth very clearly that John Everit and Joseph Williams were highway robbers. In its succinct legal phrases the complaint says that the men formed a partnership for the purpose of carrying on business as highwaymen. It was mighty profitable, as was shown by the fact that Everit sued Williams for the equivalent of $5,000, "being for moneys wrongfully appropriated to defendant's private purse." This was the amount in dispute after the partnership had lasted only a year. Then Everit claimed that he discovered that his partner had not made a fair division of the spoils. The action was adjudged to be a gross contempt of court, and the plaintiff was ordered to pay all costs, while the solicitors who served the writ were fined. One of the solicitors, a man named Wreathcock, refused to pay the fine and was sent to prison for six months. Both plaintiff and defendant to the action were subsequently hanged, one at Tyburn and the other at Maidstone.

Gave Him a Tip.

"Did they give you a tip?" asked a restaurant proprietor of a new waiter who had just served his first customers.

"Yes, sorr," was the reply. "They told me I had bettber go and carry a hod!"

NO REASON FOR IT.

When Palmer Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Palmer citizen says:

G. H. Morgan, 61 S. Main St., Palmer, Mass., says: "It is ten years since I used Doan's Kidney Pills, but I have not forgotten the great relief I obtained from this remedy. I had a case of kidney trouble of several years standing and was unable to find anything that would help me. My back ached constantly and I often felt lame all over. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and attended by a burning sensation when being voided. Upon a friend's advice, I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time they cured me. The cure has proven to be a permanent one and consequently I value Doan's Kidney Pills very highly."

NOW A COLLEGE PROFESSOR.

Albert Jenks Gets Appointment Amherst Agricultural College.

Several relatives and friends of Albert Jenks of this village attended commencement exercises at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, last week. The graduating class numbered 43, and their guests filled the college church. The commencement address was given by Prof. Eugene Davenport, Dean of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Taking for his theme "The Function of the Agricultural College," he said in part:

"The chief work of the agricultural institution is not to equip the young men who come there with a training that will give them an advantage over all others engaged in a like work, but to fit them for an unselfish service, to train them and then send them out to impart information, to help, to inspire, to lift up the agricultural life of the nation to a higher plane. Their own welfare, their own personal success should be merely an incident, not their chief purpose." He said the agricultural college is rightly becoming a public service institution. The evidence of this was the extension work which is being inaugurated to carry the results of experiment in laboratory and field out into the farming districts, that the benefit of scientific investigation may reach as far as possible.

At the close of the address President Butterfield spoke a few words to the members of the graduating class, reminding them that they were going out from the college with the advantage of a four-years' training; but that very training and the advantage it gave them put them under a correspondingly greater responsibility to render service where it was needed, and to advance the welfare of the people. The ideal was high, and such an institution under such leadership as that of President Butterfield and his associates in the work cannot fail of a profound influence for good over the agricultural life of the state.

The friends of Mr. Jenks were delighted to know of his appointment to an assistant professorship in the college. His work has been crowned with a justly-earned success. He has steadily grown in the esteem of the college authorities, as his appointment indicates, and he has the best wishes of the many who have watched his progress. He has now gone to the Pacific coast, where he will study the methods of fruit harvesting and packing used by the Western fruitgrowers. He is planning to return about September 1, and shortly after take up his duties as a member of the faculty of the Massachusetts Agricultural College. He will probably spend a part of his time in extension work which the college is mapping out, and which will probably reach every village in the state. It was begun two years ago with the farming train that passed over the state demonstrating in the different departments of agriculture.

Charlie R. Holden went Monday to Stafford to spend the week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bray.

Mrs. John Redhead and two daughters, Lillian and Mona, went Wednesday to Nova Scotia to spend some time with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Knowlton and two children of Springfield spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Knowlton.

Miss Lucy Ryther returned to her home in Enfield Saturday after spending a week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgan.

Monica Kelliher, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kelliher of Springfield, died Saturday morning of spinal meningitis at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Griffin. The funeral was held Sunday in the Thorndike cemetry.

Children's Day was observed Sunday. The pastor, Rev. W. H. Upham, preached a sermon appropriate to the day in the morning. At 5 o'clock an interesting children's day concert was held. The young people rendered their parts most creditably. There was a good attendance and the church was prettily decorated. There was singing by the choir and several exercises. The exercise of "The Garden of the Heart" was especially pleasing. Great credit is due Mrs. W. H. Upham for the success of the concert.

The Epworth League held its last meeting Tuesday evening in the vestry of the M. E church. The first part of the evening was given over to business. The following officers were elected: President, William Magee; first vice president, Joseph Bowie; second vice president, Rev. W. H. Upham; third vice president, Miss Lillian McCall; fourth vice president, Miss Pearl Lamb; secretary, Mrs. W. H. Upham; treasurer, Miss Gladys Morse. One new member joined. After the election of officers a social time was enjoyed. The meetings will be omitted during July and August.

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

it will take some time to get them in and put them through. First Deputy Auditor William D Haley says that the session is likely to run beyond the middle of July because the state tax bill, which is a very long one, cannot be engrossed until the appropriations have been made or are absolutely known in advance. That is not the condition to-day and the facts will not be known soon enough for the early engrossment of the bill.

Speakership politics begin to move once more, as the session approaches its end. Mr. Underhill of Somerville had some 40 members at dinner last evening. He took pains to invite Messrs. Washburn of Worcester, Cushing of Boston and Haigle of Montague, who are all rival candidates. They did not accept, but he also invited an additional representative of each of these three, so that, as he put it, those candidates should know from their friends just what was being done by him. Speaker Walker has called Underhill to the chair more than he has any other member, and he is supposed to stand nearer to the speaker in his policy. But Walker cannot deliver any appreciable number of votes to Underhill, neither can any other member of the House, from what can be seen here to-day. In the Senate, too, there will be active work very soon, and the other candidacies for November are coming forward rapidly. LANDON

Uncovering the Wreck of the Battleship Maine Sunk In Havana Harbor Thirteen Years Ago.

This remarkable photograph shows the barnacle incrusted wreck of the battleship Maine being brought to view in Havana harbor, where she was sunk in 1898. After it has been determined just what caused the explosion which sank the battleship and cost 259 lives the remains probably will be given a sea burial. The sinking of the Maine will be generally remembered as having directly caused the war with Spain because of the suspicion that the battleship was blown up by a mine. Whether this was the case or whether the disaster was caused by an interior explosion will now soon be known. At the right in the picture is shown a portion of the cofferdam, from which an idea may be got as to the amount of water already pumped out from around the wreck.

Self Condemned

By MARGARET C. DEVEAUX

Copyright by American Press Association. 1911.

M. le Judge Curier was dispensing justice on the bench during the French revolution. The justice he was dispensing was between classes, not individuals. The nobles had tyrannized over the common people for centuries. Now the common people were endeavoring to extirpate the nobles from the face of the earth. Judge Curier was sending a batch of them to the guillotine.

"Who is this?" he asked, seeing a girl, a mere child, brought before him.

"Citizeness Elise Bellair," replied the officer of the guard.

"Who ordered her brought here? She is not old enough—to understand the difference between patriotism and tyranny."

"She was included in a list furnished by M. Marat."

"Indeed," said the judge, frowning.

"M. Marat is accustomed to make inquiries if all those on his lists have been—taken care of."

"But this one—did he know that she is a child?"

The officer shook his head. M. Marat's brain was not open to him to look into.

The judge pondered a few moments. There was something wrong in this case. Possibly a list had been made out and presented to some one in authority who had signed the warrants accompanying it while thinking of something else. Nevertheless the judge did not dare disobey the order he had received to sentence every one sent before him.

"Take her away with the others," he said reluctantly.

He was looking down into the child's face pityingly. She saw the expression on the judge's face. Children are quick to recognize their friends, and the marquise, not understanding that the judge had sent her to the guillotine, smiled at him. Then a soldier took her little hand in his and led her away with the others.

The judge asked one standing by something about her and was told that she was the Marquise de Bellair, and since she alone represented the Bellairs and since the revolutionary committee was anxious that no member of the family should be left alive the child had been marked for execution. When the deed had been done it would be put down to an error.

The judge went home that evening, and his own little daughter, about the age of the child he had condemned, sat upon his lap, put her arms about his neck and kissed him.

"How hot your face is, papa!" she said.

He unwound her arms, gently put her away, and called for a glass of wine. He had stood up under the grim duties required of him till the matter of the little marquise had required his attention. He did not eat his dinner and went to bed feverish. The smile he had received from the little marquise had unnerved him. All night he lay in bed, two sights coming up alternately before his mental vision—the one the marquise's smile, the other her little figure lying on the guillotine, the drop of the knife and her little curly head dropping into the basket.

In the morning Judge Curier looked as if he had passed through a fit of sickness. He ate nothing, spoke not a word. When he went out after breakfast his little daughter put up her arms, as was her custom, for her morning hug and kiss. Her father put her away and left her standing with tears in her eyes in the hallway.

The judge turned into a boulevard and after following it for awhile entered a street that led him to the Place de la Revolution, now the Place de la Concorde. It is one of the most spacious plazas in the world, lying as it does between the Champs d'Elysees and the gardens of the Tuileries. Carriages drive through it, but few who ride or walk past its fountains and its obelisk think of the work that was going on there more than a hundred years ago.

A crowd was collecting about the guillotine, and a tumbrel was driven up loaded with condemned persons. As is passed the judge he caught sight of a little figure about half the height of the others and saw a little hand waving to him. He walked on and joined the party at the guillotine. At the moment an officer began to call names from a list he had in his hand.

"Citizeness Elise Bellair!"

The judge approached, took the child by the hand and said:

"I condemned this child by mistake."

He was recognized by the officials and permitted to lead the little marquise away.

She was never seen again in Paris till long after the revolution. She returned a middle aged woman.

When the judge went home that evening he seemed to have the seal of death upon his brow. He took his little daughter in his arms, while tears rolled down his cheeks.

In the middle of the night there was a knock at his door. The judge went downstairs and met an officer, who told him he was under arrest for being in conspiracy with the emigres. The visit was not unexpected, and the prisoner went with the soldiers without a word of protest.

A week later a tumbrel drove up to the guillotine in the Place de la Revolution, and among those who stepped out was Judge Curier. He died on the engine of death from which he had saved the Marquise de Bellair.

IMPRISONED JOYS.

Peculiarity of Sea Otter Fur.

"This collar," said a furrier, "is sea otter skin, the costliest fur known. Silver fox, beside sea otter, is cheap. Where you would pay $1,000 for a silver fox skin you'd pay $2,000 for a sea otter. It is only the Russians, the world's greatest fur lovers, who go in for this most precious of all furs. They use it exclusively for coat collars. Why? For a strange reason, an almost incredible reason. Sea otter is the only fur on which the breath won't freeze."—Cincinnati Enquirer

The Collector's Wife

She Was a Very Quiet Body, but Had a Head on Her Shoulders.

By ELINOR STEWART CATON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

News came that cholera had overstepped the boundary between Asia and Europe and had gained a foothold in Italy. Orders were issued to the medical officers along the American coast to quarantine every ship arriving from Mediterranean ports and to permit no sick person to enter the country without submitting the patient to a thorough test for the dreaded disease.

One autumn day, when a storm was sweeping the coast of New Hampshire, Jeremiah Whipple, newly appointed collector of a little port of New Hampshire, opened the window of his bedroom to more clearly examine a vessel that had just cast anchor in the harbor. She was a small steamer, and at her peak was the United States flag, upside down, which Whipple knew to be a signal of distress. Taking up a spyglass, he brought it to bear on the vessel and saw a group of persons standing amidships uncovered.

Then suddenly the group scattered, several of them going to a boat that hung on its davits, lowering it and manning it. The next move was the lowering of an oblong box into the boat, where it was reverently received by the crew. Lastly, a man, evidently an officer, took his place in the stern of the boat, grasped the tiller ropes, and the boat moved away from the ship.

"Patience," said the collector to his wife, "I guess they's got the cholera on board that vessel. They's put up a distress signal, and there, too, goes up a yellow sick flag."

"You're not going to let any of 'em land, be you?" asked the wife, blanching.

"Not till a medical officer comes. They were to send one today."

The boat pointed straight for the shore, at one moment its bow shooting up toward the sky, the next diving down toward the bottom of the bay. When it came within half a mile of the shore, Whipple, armed with his badge of authority, went down to the dock to warn them to keep off. He had never before been in a position of trust, and he felt that the keeping out of an epidemic which might sweep away thousands of his countrymen rested upon his shoulders. As soon as the party came within hearing he shouted:

"You can't land here!"

A tall, thin man rose in the bow of the boat, took out a bandanna handkerchief, wiped his eyes and said:

"We do not desire to remain ashore longer than to bury the body contained in this box. My wife was taken down with cholera six days out of Naples. Fearing that she would die, she exacted from me a promise that I would not permit her to be buried at sea. Both the officers and crew of the ship have respected her wish, and I now beg that you will permit me to inter the remains here on the shore."

Even if the collector had been more familiar with the duties of his office it is questionable if he would have felt any certainty with regard to the disposition of this case. He felt a dread of cholera and was anxious to get rid of the party as soon as possible. There could be no violation, so far as he could see, in either the revenue or quarantine laws. The party need not be searched since none of them asked to be permitted to remain ashore. It was possible that if allowed to land they might make a break for the interior, but this in the case of a burial party was not to be considered.

"I guess you can bury it up on that little knoll there," said Jeremiah, "if you'll be quick about it."

The thin man wept tears of thankfulness at the permission, the party brought the box ashore and, bearing it to the designated spot, dug a grave. Then, all standing uncovered, it was lowered to its last resting place, after which the party filed back to the dock, where the mourner again tearfully thanked the collector for his kindness and, waving a last farewell to the grave on the knoll, was pulled away to the ship.

During the scene Patience Whipple was looking out of the window watching the landing, the burial and the departure of the party. When Jeremiah returned to the house he sat down before the fire, feeling a sad comfort in having permitted a fellow being to carry out a promise to his dying wife. Patience was doing her morning duties and made no comment on what had passed. Then Jeremiah went to his little custom house on the dock, where he sat reading a newspaper, for since few, if any, goods ever came into the port he had no great weight on his shoulders. When he returned to his home for the noon meal his wife said to him:

"Jerry, if these men had been smugglers and had run away from the coast with diamonds in their pockets and the government found it out, what would they do with you?"

"Give me the grand bounce."

"And what would they do with you if you'd let in the cholera?"

"It would 'a' been the same grand bounce."

"You took a risk out o' the kindness of your heart, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"With nothin' to gain and all to lose."

"Yes."

"But suppose you'd 'a' caught 'em with something valuable on 'em."

"The goods would have been confiscated by the government."

"And you wouldn't get any of it?"

"No."

"That's a kind of a heads I lose, tails you win business, isn't it?"

"Mebbe so."

That night Patience Whipple said that little Billy seemed croupy and she would sleep with him in a room by themselves, while the father slept in the room with the little girl. Jeremiah awoke in the morning, evidently feeling very comfortable.

"Wife," he said, "how good it makes a man feel to do a kind act. I went to sleep last night thinkin' o' that poor feller that I let land, his wife, and I was thankful that I'd taken the risk and given him the satisfaction o' keepin' his promise."

"You surely took a big risk, Jerry," replied the wife with a yawn.

"Didn't you sleep well last night?" he asked.

"Not very. Billy was breathin' hard and coughin' all night."

"Sorry," remarked the boy hoarsely.

SEVERE ELECTRICAL STORM.

Miniature Cyclone Sweeps Over Wide Section.

OLD CHURCH AT WILBRAHAM BURNED

Many Trees Uprooted or Broken. Street Railway Has Much Trouble On Its Lines.

After four days of high temperature such as the oldest inhabitant has no recollection of ever experiencing—the mercury standing at 95 to 104 Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—the section between Palmer and Ludlow was visited by an electrical storm of unusual severity about 4 30 Wednesday afternoon. In the west thunder heads had been gathering and the thundering had been muttering for more than an hour before the storm broke. The rain began to fall about 4 30, accompanied by a high wind, with a generous allowance of thunder and lightning. Rain fell plentifully for about a half hour, then tapered off gradually and stopped about 7. The wind did some damage to trees, breaking off limbs in all sections of the village, but Palmer was evidently on the edge of the miniature cyclone which swept over the town of Wilbraham, and no serious damage was done. The house of A. W. Holbrook on North Main street was struck by lightning about 8 in the evening, the bolt making a neat hole in the roof and passing down to the dining room, thence out by way of a porcelain bowl, blacking things up but doing no serious damage.

The storm seriously affected the street railway, electric light and telephone service. Damage to the power station stalled all cars from about 5 until 6 30 Toward Wilbraham, where the storm was the worst, quantities of sand were washed on the tracks, which were also strewn with limbs and trunks of trees, the latter especially on the Butler Hill, where it took a lot of hard work chopping to clear the rails. Near the Auto Inn at North Wilbraham a considerable section of track was washed out on a fill, necessitating trestleing up in order to get cars over.

There were no electric lights until about 9.30, and then only in the business section and a few of the residences close by.

The telephone service out of town was badly crippled, not a line being available until late in the evening, and only one to Springfield being in commission at that.

The First Congregational church at Wilbraham Center was struck about 5 o'clock when the storm was at the height of its fury. The bolt struck the spire of the belfry tower, instantly igniting the tower and quickly spreading to the body of the church. As soon as the fire was discovered nearby residents formed a bucket brigade, but finding the fire was beyond their control a message was sent to the Springfield fire department asking for assistance. They were unable to respond, however, because of the damage that the same storm laid upon that city. Vice President Wright of the Knox Automobile Company ordered their new six-cylinder auto pump to go to Wilbraham. The truck made the trip in 22 minutes and aided in fighting the flames, but the fire had gained such headway, that the building could not be saved. Some of the furniture was saved, as were the sheds back of the church and F. W. Green's livery stable, which is close by. This is the second time in the history of the First Congregational parish that the church building has been destroyed by fire, the first occurring in June, 1877.

Wilbraham Congregational Church. Burned Wednesday.

Over 65 trees were uprooted and destroyed along the road leading from North Wilbraham to the Center, fences were torn down and numerous houses and barns struck. About midway between the Center and North Wilbraham the wind blew off a section 30 feet square from Barrett's large barn on Wilbraham road, causing about $1500 damage. The Stevens home along the same road was struck by lightning and slightly damaged, while the Day home, also in that locality, was struck and the parlor was badly damaged. Besides the Bartlett barn, the barn of Mr. Green, the stage driver, was struck and damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars. A peculiar freak of the lightning was the damage done to a section of iron fence in front of the academy grounds. A section about 30 feet long was struck, and after being twisted into every conceivable shape, landed in the street near by. About 10 rods nearer the Academy, two large trees, an elm and an oak over 70 feet high and 30 inches in diameter, were completely uprooted.

The damage at North Wilbraham was also great, windows being blown out of several houses and many fine trees being destroyed. Postmaster Baldwin suffered the greatest loss, five large maples in front of his home being completely ripped to shreds; his house was also damaged.

Yesterday was fully as hot as the previous days, and another thunder storm broke about 7 last evening. There was a hard rain for nearly an hour, and the lightning was incessant and vivid. During the storm the judges' stand on the driving park was struck; the grandstand was also struck, but the fire was extinguished. The barn of Mrs. E G. Hastings on North Main street was struck, but beyond broken glass and some splintered timbers no damage was done. In Dunhamtown in Brimfield the large comparatively new barn of John St. George was struck and burned, together with one cow and four or five tons of hay.

The M. J. Whittall Co. have a large gang of men cleaning out the pond which they use in connection with the dye house, the work being done under the direction of the Flynt Building and Construction Co.

DEATH ON ELECTRIC TRACK.

Wilfred C. Eaton of Palmer Killed Tuesday Morning.

STEPPED OUT OF BRUSH TO TRACK.

Only Ten Feet From Car. Had Been Returning Cattle to Pasture; Was On Way Home.

Wilfred C. Eaton, 44, owner of the Overlook farm about a mile and a half west of this village on the Springfield road, was struck by an electric car near his home early Tuesday morning, receiving injuries from which he died within a short time.

The car by which he was hurt was the 8.15 into Palmer from Springfield, and was in charge of Motorman Michael McIntyre and Conductor Fred Reimers. The car had crossed the old road near the Overlook farm and was on its way down the grade to the river. It had slowed up at the crossing on account of a number of cows on the track, but had cleared them and was proceeding at a rate of about 12 or 15 miles an hour. The track runs through private land there; there is also a considerable cut, with bushes growing close to the track on the side. The car had not gone far into the private way when Mr. Eaton stepped from the bushes onto the track only about ten feet in front of the car. The motorman tried to stop, but it was impossible before the man was struck. He was thrown to one side and was also struck by the running board. He received a bad fracture of the skull at the back, five ribs were broken at the back, the small bone in the left leg was broken, and there were internal injuries besides numerous small cuts and bruises. The body was taken to the waiting room in Palmer, and Medical Examiner J. P. Schneider called. He recommended removal to a Springfield hospital, but later saw that the man could not live and ordered him taken to his home, but he died before it was reached.

A peculiarly sad feature of the fatality was that Mr. Eaton was just about beginning the celebration of the Fourth with his family when called away on an errand which resulted in his death. He had finished his milk route in this village and had provided fireworks and other means of celebration, and the fun was about to commence when Mr. Eaton was notified that his cows were out of the pasture and went to drive them in. He is survived by a widow and four children, one son and three daughters. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at 2 30, Rev. E. C. Bridgeham of Springfield officiating. Burial was in Oak Knoll cemetery.

No Opposition to Railroad.

Apparently Everyone Wants the Springfield-Bondsville Line.

The county commissioners held a hearing in Springfield Wednesday on the petition of the Hampden Railroad Company for permission to build a line between Springfield and Bondsville, as announced some time ago. There was no opposition from any source.

Suit Against Town of Ware.

In the superior court in Northampton Monday Rose Belanger of Ware entered suit against the town of Ware to recover for injuries alleged to have been caused by a defect in East Main street, near Knox avenue, in Ware. Joseph Belanger sues the town of Ware to recover because of the loss of the assistance of his wife, Rose Belanger, who is alleged to have been hurt on East Main street in Ware. Patrick Downey of Ware sues William H. Downey of Peabody to recover $2405 alleged to be the amount due on a note and interest. The note was made jointly according to the plaintiff's allegation by himself and the defendant for $4000 for benefit of the defendandant's father, James Downey, and was payable to the Ware National bank. Minnie L Shaw of Belchertown sues the New York Central and Hudson River railroad to recover $5000 because of injuries alleged to have been received in an automobile accident at a grade crossing in Three Rivers. Herbert F. Shaw of Belchertown sues the New York Central and Hudson River railroad to recover $15,000 because of injuries alleged to have been received in an automobile accident at a grade crossing in Three Rivers.

Ware Wants New Station.

Boston and Albany Petitioned to Give Better Accommodations.

The people of Ware have become tired of the make-shift railroad station, which has been in service since the construction of the Ware River Railroad many years ago, and have petitioned the Boston & Albany—lessees of the Ware River—to give them something different and in keeping with the business proportions and dignity of the town. A big petition was mailed with the request last Saturday.

WEST WARREN.

Was Found Dead.

John Tattersall, 60, was found dead on the state highway Wednesday afternoon at 2, as the result of being overcome by the heat. The body was removed to O'Leary's undertaking rooms, where it was later buried by Medical Examiner Norwood. Mr. Tattersall had in his younger years held some important positions in various cotton mills in Three Rivers, among which was the Fiskdale mills. He had been employed at times as a loomfixer in the Warren cotton mills. About four months ago he was arrested in West Warren on a charge of vagrancy, and had just been discharged from Worcester jail. He had not lived with any of his family for many years, but it is understood that he leaves a widow and son, William R. Tattersall, living in South Carolina, and a daughter, Mrs. Maggie Savage, living in Geers, Tex., and Mrs. Daniel Sheehan of West Warren is a sister-in-law.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lyman have gone to Revere Beach for a visit.

Mrs. Octadie Brodeur Dumas, 58, wife of Oliver Dumas, died at her home Sunday evening. She leaves her husband and two sons, Oliver Jr. and Edward J., both of West Warren.

BOY SHOT THROUGH LUNG.

Careless Handling of Revolver At Fourth Picnic.

WAS LOADED WITH BALL CARTRIDGES

Gun Picked Up By Musician, Who Fired at Random, Supposing Loads Were Blanks.

Michael Miga of Bondsville, seven years old, was shot through the left lung at a picnic of the Polish people on the "Sikes" place, between the Burleigh crossing and the Four Corners, Tuesday afternoon during a celebration of the Fourth. The ball went clear through the lad near the shoulder, and the result is yet uncertain, depending on whether internal hemorrhages occur or not.

A large number of Polish people had gathered for the day, the picnic being under the auspices of the St. Peter and St. Paul society, with games for the children, dancing for the older folks, and a concert. Joseph Dudajek of Bondsville had a revolver with which he had been celebrating, and after a time laid it down. One of the musicians, John Pisarcezka of Ware, picked it up, and supposing it to be filled with blank cartridges, leveled it and pulled the trigger. Instead of blanks Dudajek had been shooting ball cartridges, and young Miga happened to be in the way of the shot. He fell at once. Dr S. R Carsley of Palmer was summoned and dressed the wound, after which the lad was taken to his home in Bondsville.

In the district court in Palmer Wednesday Pisarczka was arraigned on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, and was held in $500 bonds for the 15th to await the outcome of the victim's wound; Dudajek was held in $200 bonds for carrying a loaded revolver without a permit, and secured cash bail.

Left Foot Cut Off.

Accident Monday to Railroad Employe at North Wilbraham.

Daniel Sweeney Sr. of North Wilbraham was run over by a work train and severely injured Monday afternoon soon after 4, his left leg being run over just above the ankle.

Mr. Sweeney was walking west along the side track just beyond the cross-over switch west of the station. It is not known just how the accident happened, as no one witnessed it, but it is supposed that the work train, which is continually passing to and fro between the side track and the place east of the station where the trap rock is being used in grading, came up behind Mr. Sweeney, who was not aware of its approach. The train crew did not know that anyone was hurt until a passerby pointed out Mr. Sweeney, who had crawled to the top of the bank beside the track in an endeavor to get help.

Mr. Sweeney was taken to his home, from which he was later removed to the hospital.

HAMPDEN.

Runaway Accident.

Ralph Lyons, clerk for A. G Corey, had an exciting experience Monday morning about 7. He hitched a spirited horse of Mr. Corey's into a concord buggy and started out. While driving out of the yard the shafts broke and fell about the heels of the horse, which tore itself free from the buggy and all of the harness except the bridle and headed toward Springfield at a lively rate. Lyons was thrown out, but escaped injury with the exception of a few scratches on one arm. He then mounted a bicycle and started in pursuit of the horse, which was captured near the Allen house.

DROWNED AT FOREST LAKE.

Bather Meets Death There Last Sunday Afternoon.

YOUNG MAN RECENTLY FROM CANADA

Could Not Swim, But Started to Follow Companions Into Deep Water. Never Rose.

William Smith, 18, of Ware was drowned in Forest Lake last Sunday afternoon at 2.30 while bathing near the southeast shore.

The young man, who was a poor swimmer, was in the water with several companions, when he was apparently seized with a cramp and sank from sight. The young men who were with him attempted to rescue him, but his violent struggles made it difficult as well as dangerous. Young Smith succeeded in getting hold of James Mulvany by the legs, and only after a hard struggle was Mulvaney able to free himself. He again attempted to rescue Smith, trying to keep him afloat, holding him by the hair. Smith, however, fought against him, so that he was forced to release his hold in order to save himself. After this Smith disappeared for the last time.

An unsuccessful attempt was made by his companions to recover the body. Chief B. W. Buckley of Ware, who is an expert swimmer, was summoned and he pulled the body from the water with grappling irons at 4.20. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner J. P. Schneider of Palmer, who ordered the body removed to Ware.

Smith came to Ware last November from Micaville, Can. He had made many friends, who were greatly shocked to learn of his death. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Smith of Micaville, Can. Besides them, he leaves three sisters and six brothers. In Ware he ad lived with a cousin, Michael J. Smith of School street, in whose blacksmith shop he was employed.

Freight Demolishes Hand Car.

But Three Men It Carried Manage to Escape With Their Lives.

The only approach to a serious accident on the Fourth—and that was in no way due to the celebration of the day—was that which happened to three men near the Burleigh Crossing on the road to Three Rivers. They were employes of the Central Vermont railroad and were on their way to Three Rivers with a handcar. At the Burleigh bridge curve the car was struck by a south-bound freight and completely demolished. The men saw the freight coming and had time to jump, only one, John Fitzgerald, being in any way hurt, and his injuries being confined to a blow on one leg by a piece of flying wood.

WARREN.

Store Broken Into.

The W. B. Smith dry goods store in the new Ramsdell block on Maple street was broken into last week Thursday night and about $25 worth of goods taken. Entrance was gained by forcing a window on the south side and breaking a catch. The break was not discovered until Friday morning by Mr. Smith, who called in Constable Joseph St George. The thief took some red currants which were on the front counter and had dropped some of them after leaving the building. He was traced by these currants down back of Mrs. Ramsdell's property and almost to a house occupied by Charles Mix, and on the strength of this evidence Mr. Mix's house was searched upon a warrant sworn out by Constables St George and W. T. Haley and Officer James McKelligett. Nothing was found in the house however.

Death of Mrs. Miranda Baldwin.

PALMER NEWS.

Firemen Called Out.

Fight Fires Wednesday in Intense Heat. Little Damage Results.

The firemen had insult added to injury Wednesday, when, in addition to the sweltering heat from the sun they were called upon about 11 a. m. to fight a brush and grass fire near the home of Miss Maggie O'Neil, just east of the electric plant on the Boston road. The auto truck took down a load of the boys and proved its worth, for, without its speed and the many chemicals which it carried there would have been no saving of Miss O'Neil's property. As it was, both big tanks and all the 20 small extinguishers were used before the fire was stopped witbin a few feet of the barn. The boys had just finished filling the extinguishers at the engine house when there came a telephone message that the flames had secured another start, and they made another quick trip, equally successful with the first. They had just got ready for another call when it came, this time for a blaze on the roof of Chief Summers' blacksmith shop on Thorndike street. The boys had a chemical stream on it in just four minutes, and the damage was not very much. M. S. French, one of the men who made all three trips, was partially overcome by the heat at the Summers' blaze and was sent to his home, where he was attended by Dr. J. P. Schneider. He will be all right in a day or two.

Runaway Accident.

State Boy in Three Rivers Thrown From Team and Badly Injured.

Frederick Quinn, 12, a boy in the care of the state, was badly hnrt in a rnnaway accident at Three Rivers yesterday morning. Both lower and npper jaw were broken, as was also his nose, in addition to which he sustained severe bruises.

The accident was caused by the horse behind which the boy was riding becoming frightened at a hand car. F. A. Upham was driving from his snmmer home on the Belchertown road to the village of Three Rivers, and overtook the boy, whom he knew. He gave the lad a ride and all went well nutil the track of the Athol railroad was reached. There a hand car carrying several men was moving along, at which the horse became frightened and ran. He proceeded along the track toward the house of Charles Darling, near which there is a hnge rock. The horse swerved and the carriage struck the rock Yonng Quinn was thrown out and landed on his face on the rock, with Mr. Upham on top of him: the latter was not much hurt. Dr. S. R. Carsley of Palmer was called and dressed the lad's wounds, after which he was taken to the Springfield hospital.

Good Work of Officers.

They Restrict Noise of "Night Before" and Let People Sleep.

Much of the credit for the "safe and sane" Fourth—or at least that portion of it which pertained to a lack of noise on the night before the Fourth, is due to the vigilance of four local officers—Night Officer T. J. Crimmius, Deputy Sheriffs G. A. Bills and H. A. Northrop, and Special Officer C. B. Thomas. They concluded that the citizens had lost enongh sleep from the heat and started in to permit them to get all the weather would permit. And in the attempt they were eminently successful. Not in years bas there been so little disturbance on the night of the third, and it was a grateful change. About the only racket of any acconnt was that cansed by the explosion of torpedoes placed on the street railway track on Main street. It took a bunch of hard work on the part of the officers however, and the employment of a good deal of leg muscle and shoe leather. There was a hunch of youngsters out for a "racket," and the officers were kept on the go a good share of the night, but they kept the noise down to a negligible minimmm.

One Death From Heat.

Aged Woman Succumbs. Railroad Fireman Also in Serious Condition.

Mrs. Lydia A. Record, 75, mother of Lewis S. Record, died about 9 o'clock last evening of heat prostration at the home of her son on Pine street. She seemed as well as usnal until about 4 yesterday afternoon, when she was overcome. Mrs Record's home for the past 39 years had heen in Worcester, hnt abont a month ago she came to Palmer to live with her son. She had heen a sufferer from rhenmatism for some time, but had heen able to be up and abont the house. She leaves one son.

A Central Vermont fireman named Bagley was overcome by the heat on his train at Stafford yesterday afternoon and was brought to Palmer, where he was cared for by Dr. W. C. Chase at the Weeks House. He was in a serious condition.

Communion Plates Stolen From Church.

The communion plates, which were recently presented to the Congregational church, were stolen some time last week. The loss was not discovered until Snnday. Des. C. W. Bennett went to the church previous to the morning service to arrange the articles nsed as it was communion Sunday. He found that someone had unscrewed the hasp on the box containing the communion set and had carried off the four silver plates. The coverings had been removed from the silver filler and the individual cnp trays. The latter are of alnminum, with a silver-plated cover. Evidently the thief thought that only the plates were of sufficient value to remove, as nothing else was taken. It is uncertain when the plates were taken. The church was nnlocked Friday and it may have heen entered at that time. The work was evidently that of someone acquainted with the church and the exact location of the silver. Nothing else was distnrbed. The plates were not solid, bnt were of heavy plate, and were presented by the King's Daughters at the time the new church was built.

A Lot of Cradle Roll Babies.

The cradle roll party of the Congregational Sunday school on the lawn of the church last Friday afternoon brought ont thirty-three babies and their mothers and other attendants. A large rng was spread on the ground for the nse of the little people, and playthings for all old enough to nse them were provided. Later they were served a lunch of crackers and milk, while the "children of an older growth" had orangeade and cake. A picture of the group was taken. The affair was in charge of Miss Jennie Brainerd and several assistants.

The warrant for a special town meeting will be found in another column.

The carpet mill closed Saturday and did not resnme work until Wednesday.

The merchants of the village began their Thursday afternoon closing schednle yesterday.

A truck team loaded with furniture dropped a wheel into a washout at Shearer's Corner last evening and the owner, Mr. Hooper of Sonth Hadley Center, received a sprained shoulder in the tnmble which he got.

Tokens of Appreciation.

Gifts From Pupils and Teachers For Retiring Superintendent.

That Clifton H. Hobson, the Palmer yonng man just entering on the superintendency of the schools of his native town, is held in high esteem by those with whom he has heen associated during the past few years, is evidenced by the tokens of esteem presented him on his departure. Mr. Hobson has been supervising principal of the grade schools in the Greenville district in the town of Norwich, Ct., the schools in that section being managed by districts, much the same as are fro districts with us. At the annual meeting of Mr. Hobson's district a few days ago he was given a rising vote of appreciation by the voters assembled. On behalf of the hoard of education the following was presented Mr. Hobson, beantifully engrossed on parchment:

June 11, 1911.

It is with regret that the board of education of the Greenville school district received the resignation of Mr. Clifton H. Hobson. During his five and one-half years as principal he has been a faithful and energetic worker for the best interests of the school. His discipline has been excellent and his executive ability has been such as to accomplish his aims, at the same time maintaining the friendship of the scholars and teachers. He leaves the school in exceptionally good condition, and we believe that the larger field into which he goes is to be congratulated upon securing his services.

(Signed)
CHARLES C. MURPHY, President.
SHEPARD B. PALMER, Secretary.

On severing his connection with the schools the grades one to seven, inclusive, clubbed together and gave Mr. Hobson a handsome watch foh, the fob being a seal of Browu University, from which Mr. Hobson graduated, and a fine diamond stick-pin. The senior class presented a magnificently bound volume of Longfellow's works, the class of 1910 gave a ruby scarf pin and the class of 1909 a silk umbrella; the teachers' gift was a handsome desk set of lacquered brass. Mr. Hobson had for some time tanght a large class of men in the Sunday school, and they presented him with a hand-chased topaz ring of considerable valne.

Sewell Buzzell of Foxboro has taken a posltion as clerk in the Bay State Drng Store.

The services at St. Mary's Mission Sunday will be: Holy communion at 8 in the morning, with evening prayer and sermon at 3.15.

Anson Williams, an inmate of the Monson state hospital for epileptics, fell from a ledge in the glen to the ditch near the Boston and Albany tracks Saturday He was brought to the nnion station by railroad men and was attended by Dr J. P. Schnelder. It was found that his head was cnt and he was somewhat injured in the back and ribs.

Many Kinds of Monkeys.

The ordinary reader hardly realizes how many varieties of monkeys exist. We hear of monkeys in the Indies with reddish brown bodies, black heads and faces of a sky blne. There are monkeys with white eyelids and green monkeys to be found on the African continent and Cape de Verde islands. The howlers, which inhabit South America, are large and fierce, and travelers describe their yells as absolutely appalling. So dreadful is the sound of their roarings that one would imagine that all the beasts of the forests had gathered together for a battle. These creatures are so fierce that even the most skillful and adventurous trainer is unwilling to teach them tricks.

Curious Bibles.

Among the curious Bibles is the "Persecuting Printer's Bible, containing the phrase, "Printers have persecuted me without cause" (Psalm cxix, 161). The substitution of the word "printers" for "princes" is responsible for the giving of this name to this Bible. All we know of this edition is stated by Stevens in his catalogne of the Caxton exhibition of Bibles. This authority tells us that these words were put into a Bible printed before 1702.

There is also the "Ears to Ear" Bible, in which occurs the expression "Whoso hath ears to ear, let him hear" (Matthew xli, 43). This adaptation to cockney usage is found in an octavio Bible published by the Oxford Press in 1810.

Natural Gas.

The natural gas of Pennsylvania is odorless. Its presence cannot be detected by smell. That is the explanation of many of the disastrous explosions which occur. The gradual leakage from a natnral gas pipe may fill a cellar or a room. This leakage may occur directly from the pipe or the gas may travel some distance through a sewer pipe. Then when a light is brought into the cellar or room a terrific explosion occurs, often destroying the building and sometimes tearing up the street in front. — Philadelphia North American.

My Invisible Client

I Began to Serve Her by an Illegal Proceeding

By R. Forsythe Emery

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I am an attorney. One summer evening—I was twenty-seven years old at the time—while it was still daylight I was sauntering on a thoroughfare lined with dwellings. Passing under a window situated but a few feet above my head I heard a woman's voice pronounce my name in a tone almost inaudible. I stopped and looked up. From between the slats came the words:

"I want a lawyer."

All being dark within, I could see nothing.

"How do you know that I am a lawyer?" I asked. "How can I serve you?"

There was no reply. I listened, but could hear nothing more. There was but one interpretation. Some one must have entered the room whose presence put an end to the conversation. I waited a few moments; then, thinking that my lurking there under the window might compromise my invisible client, I walked on.

The next evening and the next for several days I strolled by the house at the same hour and even loitered a few moments under the window, but not a whisper came from behind the blinds.

I formed many theories as to what had occurred. It was evident that some one—the voice seemed to belong to a young woman—was detained unwillingly. But why? To this there was one that caused me to doubt the expediency of pursuing the matter any further. The person might be feeble minded—perhaps insane. If this were true I would make a mistake, doing great injury to my client as well as myself, by an interference.

I am a methodical man and determined to begin methodically at the beginning. I must learn from the outside who occupied the house, then something about the occupants. I hired a boy to watch the premises at that hour in the morning when tradesmen deliver provisions, note the names on the wagons calling and make a list of them. In this way I easily secured several firm names, one of a grocer of whom I bought my own supplies, and he gave me the name of the person to whom he sent goods at the premises in question. It was Miss Elizabeth Markley, a rich lady about fifty years old.

My next move was to obtain permission of the grocer to go on his wagon and deliver goods myself. Putting on old clothes, I did so, took a basket of provisions into the kitchen and by chatting with the cook learned that the occupants were Miss Markley and her niece, Miss Irene Benham, a girl between seventeen and eighteen. This was all the information I could secure, but it was enough for a beginning. If Miss Markley was rich I might be able to find something through records of her property—that is, if it were real estate. I went to the offices of the receiver of taxes, but the name Elizabeth Markley was not on his list. It occurred to me to look for the name of Benham, and I found "the estate of Adoniram Benham, deceased." Here was a pointer. If Irene Benham was heir to this property it was possible that her aunt was holding her a prisoner while she was attempting to get her estate into her own hands. At the court of chancery I was shown the will of Adoniram Benham, and the case was plain. Irene Benham was heir to property worth about half a million.

If Miss Markley were wicked enough to fulfill the theory I had formed of her it would be necessary to fight her with fire. I dare not make any open move whatever lest she should remove her niece to some hiding place where she could not be found. I must get into clandestine communication with Miss Benham.

I bought a book suitable for a present to a young lady, prettily illustrated, and sent it to her through the mail. I sent no note of explanation with it nor wrote anything on the flyleaf, but the book itself contained a communication. By a delicate underscoring of words I informed her who I was, my address, how she could reach me, what I had learned about her and my suspicion. I was doubtful of the success of this maneuver, for if her aunt were watching her she would examine the book closely before allowing her niece to have it. For this reason I did not begin my message before the fifteenth page and made my interlineations so faint that no one except one reading the book would notice them.

I waited a week for a result to my expedient. When it came I was sure no ordinary message could leave the Markley home without being carefully inspected. The reply was an advertising card of a secondhand bookstore. I should not have thought of its being a reply to my message had not the name of the firm been underscored in pencil. I went to the bookstore and asked if they had any communication for me. They said they had not. I went away disappointed, and while walking along thinking of a possible explanation of the problem it occurred to me that the book I had sent Miss Markley might have been sold to the firm in question. Returning to the store, I asked for the book and was delighted to be offered the very copy I had sent. I bought it and as I walked away looked for a cipher message in it. I was not long in finding dots under certain words and without difficulty read the message.

My theory was correct. The girl's aunt, her father's sister, was holding her a prisoner. The writer did not know why. All she knew was that her aunt was watching her always. She was never permitted to go out alone and felt assured that any letter she received or sent was opened before reaching or leaving her. She might possibly run away, but she knew not where to go. Suspecting that this surveillance had something to do with property she had inherited from her father, she had desired to get into communication with an attorney in order to learn something about that property and the terms of the will.

All was now pretty clear to me. By the terms of the instrument Miss Markley was to be her niece's guardian till she was eighteen years of age, when the girl was to be free to act for herself and to receive her property. But if the heiress at the time should be incapacitated by illness, be feeble minded or in any way unfitted to care for her estate, she should remain under her aunt's guardianship and the property pass to Miss Markley for life, after which other disposition should be made of it. The heiress would come of age in a few weeks.

It was evident to me that Miss Markley's object was to keep her ward in the background till after she was eighteen, and she was doubtless hatching a plan to prove her feeble minded.

It was my part to concoct a plan to outwit this scheme. My weakness lay in the fact that at the slightest demonstration on my part Miss Benham would likely be spirited away, that till she came of age her aunt was her legal guardian and that I had nothing to show that I had been retained as the young lady's counsel. Besides this, I had never seen her and had no evidence that she was of sound mind. Should I apply to the courts my interference would at once become public property, and no judge would order Miss Benham brought before him on such scant evidence as I might furnish. I could do nothing that was legal; therefore I must break the law, at the same time getting such advantage as would protect both me and my client.

Realizing the fact that "possession is nine points in the law," I resolved to transfer the keeping of Miss Benham to some other person than her aunt. This must either be done by kidnaping her or giving her an opportunity to come of her own accord under the care of a new keeper.

Having opened communication with her surreptitiously, it was to be expected that she would look for a meaning in anything I would send her. I dare not bribe any of the servants in the employ of her aunt, for it was to be supposed that she controlled them. I concluded to use a method of the same kind as the first I had tried. I sent her a magazine marked "Sample Copy." Under certain words that embodied my message I pricked pin holes. I felt more confidence in her noticing this device than the first, though it was not as plain. I told her what was necessary for her to do and why, advising her to send me word when it would be possible for her to leave her aunt that I might meet her and take her to a place where she would be out of her aunt's reach and secure the benefit of the law. I also suggested a method of reply. On a certain day and hour she was to drop from a window one or more papers with figures denoting, first, the day of the month; second, the hour (one to twenty-four) that she expected to be able to leave the house. The letter "F" was to stand for front and "R" for rear. The letters "A," "B" and "C" would denote the story from which she would leave or must be taken.

It was between light and dark of the day appointed for her to drop the paper that I strolled by the house. She must have been watching for me, for I saw something white flutter from an upper window. I kept my eyes fixed on it and when it reached the sidewalk picked it up. On it was "8. 23-24. R. B." which I knew meant the eighth day of the month between 11 and 12 o'clock at night, from a second story rear room. This, of course, threw upon me the responsibility of providing a means of descent from an upper story, besides a method of flight. Had the paper fallen into the hands of a watcher there would have been nothing intelligible in it.

I made an examination of the rear of the house and found that there was an alley there. The yard was inclosed in a high fence, the door of which was kept locked. I provided a ladder long enough to reach the second story and a circular saw in order to burglarize the door.

On the appointed night, repairing to the alley, I cut a hole in the door and removed the lock. Then I watched till about half past 11 o'clock, when there was the flash at a certain window on the second story, probably of an electric hand light. Understanding this to be a signal, I raised the ladder. The window was noiselessly opened, and a figure descended. I removed the ladder and led the way to a carriage waiting on the nearest street. At the door I saw by a street lamp for the first time the features of my client. I was well satisfied with the sight.

I put her in a carriage and told the driver to take her to the house of an elderly lady with whom I had arranged for her reception.

I secured Miss Benham's fortune to her, and when she paid my bill she threw in her own sweet self.

TOWN WARRANT.
COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
County of Hampden, ss. Town of Palmer.

To either of the Constables of the Town of Palmer, in said County. Greeting:

In the name of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, you are hereby required to notify and warn all the inhabitants of the Town of Palmer, qualified to vote in town affairs, to meet at the Town House at Four Corners, in said Palmer, on Saturday, the 15th day of July, A. D. 1911, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, then and there to act on the following articles, viz:

ARTICLE 1. To choose a Moderator to preside at said meeting.

ART. 2. To hear the reports of committees and act thereon.

ART. 3. To see if the town will authorize the Selectmen to use any part of the contingent fund, for repairs and maintenance of the clock located in the tower of the Universalist church, in Depot Village, and how much, or take any other action in reference thereto.

ART. 4. To see if the town will authorize its Treasurer, with the approval of the Selectmen, to borrow during the present municipal year, in addition to the sum of Thirty Thousand dollars heretofore authorized, in anticipation of the collection of taxes of said year, such sums of money as may be necessary for the current expenses of the town, but not exceeding (including the sums heretofore authorized) the total levy for said year, giving the notes of the town therefor. All debts incurred under authority hereof to be paid from taxes of the present municipal year.

ART. 5. To see if the town will authorize the Selectmen to expend the entire sum raised and appropriated at the last annual meeting, under Article 44 of the warrant for said meeting, in the construction of a macadam road between the present terminus of the macadam on North Main street in the Depot Village and the intersection of said North Main street with the highway running to Three Rivers.

ART. 6. To see if the town will appropriate an additional sum of Four Hundred dollars, to be used in the construction of the macadam road heretofore authorized on North Main street, between the present terminus of the macadam on said street and the intersection of said street with the road running to Three Rivers.

ART. 7. To see if the town will authorize its Treasurer, by and with the approval of the Selectmen, to borrow a sum of money, not exceeding Four Hundred dollars, to be used in the construction of macadam road on North Main street, in the Depot Village, between the present terminus of the macadam on said street and the intersection of said street with the road running to Three Rivers, payable in one year from date of borrowing, at a rate of interest not exceeding 4½ per cent per annum, and issue a note or bond of the town therefor.

ART. 8. To see if the town will accept and allow a common sewer, extending from the southerly side of the highway leading from the Depot Village to Warren, known as the Boston Road, southerly to the Quaboag river, as laid by the Selectmen, a report of which has heretofore been filed with the Town Clerk.

And you are hereby directed to serve this warrant by posting up attested copies thereof at the different public places designated by the vote of the town, seven days at least before the holding of said meeting, and cause this warrant to be printed in the Palmer Journal at least two issues before the holding of said meeting.

Hereof fail not and make due return of this warrant, with your doings thereon, to the Town Clerk, on or before the holding of said meeting.

WEDDED IN THEIR HOME.

Moulton—Pelton Nuptial Takes Place in Newly-furnished House.

Miss Bessie Moulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Moulton, and Guy Pelton, both of this town, were married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. J. M. Gage of Chicopee Falls in their newly-furnished house on Green street, a large number of relatives and friends attending.

The ceremony was performed in the parlor beneath an arch of smilax and red roses with which the room was also decorated the dining-room was decorated with yellow daises and pink roses. Music was furnished by Miss Catherine Parsons of Springfield, and the ushers were Marshall Moulton, a brother of the bride, and A. M. Walker, both of this town.

Arthur Pelton, a brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Mildred Moulton, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The bride wore a gown of white inlaid net over white messaline, and a veil with orange blossoms. The maid of honor wore white chiffon over lavender The bride carried a bouquet of white sweet peas, and the maid of honor lavender sweet peas.

The groom's gift to the bride was a string of gold beads, and to the maid of honor a gold veil pin; his gift to the best man was a gold stickpin, and to the ushers gold sleeve links After the wedding a reception was held and refreshments were served After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Pelton will be at home after August 1

SPINAL MENINGITIS FATAL.

James Barry Succumbs To That Disease Sunday Night.

James W. Barry, 28, died Sunday night at 12 o'clock at the home of his father, John Barry, on Bridge street, of spinal meningitis. He had been in poor health about a year, but had been confined to his bed only about a week. He had been employed as clerk at the Mansion House for two years, previous to which he had been employed as clerk in the Converse House in Palmer. Besides his father he is survived by three sisters, Miss Nellie Barry and Mrs. James F. Dunn of this town, and Mrs James Farrell of West Springfield. The funeral was held from his late home Wednesday morning at 8:30, with a requiem mass in St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock, Rev Thomas O'Keefe officiating; burial was in the Pearl street cemetery.

House Destroyed by Fire.

The home of Levi Peck in Cedar Swamp in the south part of the town was burned to the ground Monday evening. When the fire was discovered it had gained much headway and as the nearest neighbors are more than a mile away it was impossible to get any assistance in time. The fire alarm was pulled in at 9:15 but before the firemen could arrive on the scene the fire was beyond control. The blacksmith shop and barn, which are quite near, were saved The cause of the fire is supposed to be a defective chimney The loss is estimated between $2,000 and $2500, and is partly covered by insurance. Mr. Peck sustained a severe shock as a result of the fire and is in a serious condition.

Severe Electrical Storm.

One of the worst electrical storms in some years broke about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and crippled the electric light, telephone and electric car service. Large trees were blown across the street, breaking down wires and blocking the electric car tracks. Toll service over the telephone was not restored until Thursday morning Another storm broke at 7:45 o'clock last night, and although there was little wind, the lightning was severe and did damage to the homes of O. E. Bradway and Wilbur Holdridge on East hill. Although considerable damage was done no blaze started. Out of the 250 telephone subscribers in town more than 100 have been without service since Wednesday afternoon.

The Bondsville golf club team will play the Quaboag country golf club team on the links at North Monson to-morrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ballard, who have been visiting friends in town, have returned to their home in Springfield.

Misses Alice and and Edith Carpenter, who have been visiting friends in town, have returned to their home in Springfield.

Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Coleman of Boston are visiting at the home of Mrs. Coleman's father, John Gavin on North Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy, who have been visiting relatives in town, have returned to their home in Windsor Locks, Ct.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Peck and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fenton have gone on a week's auto trip to Providence and Narragansett, R. I.

James McConnell, who has been visiting his brother, Rev. Mr. McConnell on Green street, has returned to his home in Boston.

William F. Cahill, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Cahill on Granite street, has returned to Lakeville, Ct.

Miss Lillian Meecham of Mme. Lea's school in New York city is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs William Meechan of South Monson. Her aunt, Mrs. Harriet Shaw, accompanied her from New York.

Owing to the epidemic of measles about town and also to the extreme heat, it has been decided to discontinue the sessions of the primary department of the Congregational church Sunday school during the months of July and August.

A bridge whist party was held at the Quaboag Country Club house Wednesday afternoon, and was in charge of Mrs. A. D. Ellis, Mrs. E. D. Cushman, Mrs. C. T. Peck and Miss Hattie Cushman. In the evening there was a large attendance at the social dance for the members of the club and their friends. Music was furnished by Orcutt's orchestra. The affair was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. George Ellis, Miss Margaret Cushman, Miss Esther Flynt and Henry N. Flynt.

A safe and sane Fourth struck Monson with full force and the celebration of Independence Day was the quietest ever. Few people were seen on the street the night before after 11 o'clock, and the people wishing to sleep were not disturbed as there was very little booming of cannon or fire crackers. At 2 o'clock, however, some malicious person pulled in a false alarm from box 24 at the corner of Pleasant street and Flynt avenue. The fire department responded only to find that there was no fire. Many went to the excursion to Ocean Beach at New London, while some attended the celebration in Springfield, and many of the younger people spent the afternoon and evening at Forest Lake. Not a doctor reported an accident of any description.

Pickled Steel.

"To keep the iron and steel used in building big ships from rusting," said an engineer, "is a matter of supreme importance. The Admiralty is very particular that every piece shall be painted the moment it is ready for building purposes. But the steel plates form a hard black surface, called 'mill scale,' in the process of manufacture. This clings tenaciously to the plate, and if it is covered with paint and afterward the plate gets damaged then the scale peels off, taking the paint with it, and leaving the steel bare. The plate is then liable to rust corrosion, a serious danger to the ship.

"We therefore remove every trace of scale before painting the steel plate. It is put into a bath of dilute hydrochloric acid for a few hours, which loosens the scale. The plate is then brushed with wire brushes and washed with a hose. This is what we call 'pickling steel.'"—London Answers.

The One That Chose to Pay.

Three men had been out on a spree, and on the way home late at night they made a wager that the one who did not do as his wife told him should pay for a champagne supper the following night.

The first one returned home, and his wife greeted him thus:

"Hello, you beauty! That's right—knock all the ornaments off the mantelpiece!"

He knocked them all off.

The second returned and on going into his house fell against the piano, whereupon his wife said:

"Go on; get a chopper and smash it up!"

He did so.

The third returned, and on going upstairs his wife said:

"You miserable wretch, fall downstairs and break your neck!"

Needless to say, he paid for the supper.—London Spare Moments.

The Antiquity of Man.

It has been known during a long time that in western Europe man existed during the glacial epoch. We now know that the great ice age consisted of different glacial times separated by interglacial times. In glacial times the snow line dropped 3,000 or 4,000 feet below its present level in the Alps, whereas in interglacial times it lay about 1,000 feet higher than at present. Thus the temperature seems to have been higher in the interglacial periods than it is now. There is abundant evidence, in the opinion of Penck, that man existed during the beginning of the last glacial epoch. There is some reason for thinking that at least 20,000 years have elapsed since the last glaciation and that the man whose jawbone was found in 1909 near Heidelberg lived 200,000 years ago.—Scientific American.

Improving on Shakespeare.

"In a Jacksonville court," said a Florida congressman, "a lawyer quoted Shakespeare—'Who steals my purse steals trash'—to a deaf judge.

"'What's that?' the judge demanded.

"'"Who steals my purse steals trash,"' the lawyer repeated. '"'Twas something, nothing; 'twas mine, 'tis his and has been slave"'—

"'Louder! I can't hear you!' said the judge irritably.

"'"Who steals my purse,"' repeated the unfortunate lawyer, '"steals trash. 'Twas"'—

"'Can't you speak up?' growled the deaf judge.

"At this point the crier thought it time to interfere. He bent over the judge and shouted in his ear:

"'He just says, sir, that anybody what steals his pocketbook won't get nothing.'"

Cromwell and the Specter.

The stories of the "white lady" that periodically visits the German royal family and of the "little red man" that frequently paid his respects to the great Napoleon are tolerably well known, especially that of the former. But few perhaps are familiar with the story of Cromwell's "giant specter." It appeared to him one night when he was wide awake, and quietly resting on his couch. In appearance the apparition was a woman of gigantic proportions. Approaching him, she announced in tones like thunder, "Within the year you, my son, will be recognized as the greatest man in Britain."

Insects That Use Rubber.

When para trees are tapped after the gum has run into receptacles and stiffened a species of large black ant is accustomed to cut out pieces of the rubber and carry them away. Bees also find uses for india rubber, and some species in South America actually cut the bark of trees that produce resinous substances in order to cause a flow of the sap. The gum is employed by the bees as a ready made wax for their nests.—Harper's Weekly.

The Gilded Man.

At the headquarters of the Orinoco Spanish traditions located the land of El Dorado, "the gilded man," a potentate whose country was so rich in gold dust that he had his body anointed with oil and sprinkled with gold every morning, so that he shone in the sun as though gilded.

The Raddason Robbery

Story of a Novel Entertainment

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"A very neat job," commented Detective Fenn as he finished his inspection of the Raddason house after the robbery.

"A cleanup for me," grunted Hiram Raddason. "After this careful inspection of the premises I suppose you have some theory to advance, Mr. Fenn."

The detective frowned at the millionaire victim of the jewel robbery, and then his frown changed to a smile, for it would never do to antagonize this man who had employed him and who had promised him a personal reward of a thousand dollars, besides his professional fee, if he recovered the stolen jewels. Nevertheless Detective Fenn was reluctant to confide his theories to any one.

"Well, sir," he said patiently, "to sum up what I have gathered, you say you retired last night about 11:30 and that the jewels were placed for safe keeping under your pillow. You were all alone in the house for the reason that your wife and family are at your country home and you merely stopped here for the night, as you were in town for the purpose of getting the jewels from the bank to take to Mrs. Raddason. You say you found the caretaker absent and decided to remain here all night, as you were too tired to go on to a hotel.

"You went to bed after assuring yourself that the house was without any other occupant than yourself. You are quite sure that you did not miss some closet in your search?"

Mr. Raddason shook his head positively. "I tell you, Fenn, I did not leave a corner uninvestigated. I began at the wine cellar and went up to the garret, and there was not a recess or closet, a curtained doorway or a piece of furniture that I did not peer behind or under or poke at with my cane. Can't fool me on that. I'll swear there wasn't a human soul in this house last night save myself when I went to bed."

"And you heard no unusual sound during the night?" asked Mr. Fenn.

"Not a sound from the time I dropped off to sleep until I awoke at 7 to find the jewel case gone from under my pillow."

"Didn't feel dull or stupid as if a drug of some sort had been used to keep you quiet?" pursued the detective.

"Never felt brighter in my life," assured Raddason. "Put my hand under my pillow for my watch, looked at it and then recollected the jewel case. It was gone."

"Can't understand why they didn't take the watch, too," mused Detective Fenn.

"That's another funny kink in the matter. Every door and window in the house locked as snug as you please, and yet the jewels disappeared. Chain up on the front door and the other doors locked on the inside. What do you make of it?" Mr. Raddason looked down at the thin, wiry little man before him with skeptical eyes.

"There isn't a clew to hang a theory on," declared the detective frankly, "nothing except the trapdoor to the roof. You noticed that the hook was unfastened on the underside?"

"Yes, but this is a detached house, and there is no way a thief could make a getaway from the roof."

"Thieves used to go about their business on Shank's mares, didn't they, Mr. Raddason? And after automobiles came into fashion you read about them going off into the country and making their getaway in a motorcar. Well, what would you expect of the thief of today, eh? The latest thing in transportation, of course." The detective smiled at his employer knowingly.

"An acroplane, by Jove!" ejaculated Mr. Raddason.

"That is my idea," admitted the detective modestly.

"And a very clever theory, too," admitted Raddason genially. "Now, Mr. Fenn, if you have no objection just give me an outline of how you believe the robbery was accomplished."

"It's soon explained, sir. The crook knew of your intention to get the jewels from the bank, possibly trailed you from your country place, where he might have had a pal in your employ; was sure you had 'em in the house, waited till you got to bed and asleep, lit on the roof with his machine, came down and got the jewels, skipped up through the skylight and into his flying machine and so away."

"My dear fellow, that's a pretty theory, but how many crooks would risk discovery by turning off a job in such a conspicuous thing as an aeroplane? How many men of that class could afford to even hire one of the machines, much less find a mechanician to operate it for him. You're dreaming, Fenn. Five—ten years from now and I'll believe that."

"Very well, Mr. Raddason," said the detective without displeasure. "I'll just stay around the house today and chase up a few clews. You'll be her yourself?"

"Until 4 o'clock. I have to catch a train to Redmount then. Investigate all you want to. You'll find me in the library."

"Very good, sir."

From cellars to kitchens and servants' quarters, all through the drawing rooms, shrouded in summer coverings, prowling around on his hands and knees, poking into dusty corners, peering into the most unsuspected places, went Detective Fenn.

It was a baffling case. Detective Fenn admitted that to himself as he sat on the side of the banker's bed to rest from his labors. If he could discover the thief he would receive the $1,000 reward, and that $1,000 would purchase the little home in the country which he and his wife had long planned for. James Fenn was a private detective, and the news of the robbery had not yet gone forth to the newspapers.

"I've simply got to earn that thousand," groaned Detective Fenn. "But how?" He glanced wildly around the room in which he had not discovered the slightest clew so far, and his eyes fell on a pair of bedroom slippers near his feet. They were large slippers and apparently the property of Mr. Raddason; an elaborate pattern was embroidered in beads on the velvet slippers, but some of the threads were broken and the beads were slipping off. In fact, Fenn noted here and there on the light carpet some of the rose colored beads that formed the flowers, and farther on near the hall door there were some green beads.

Interested now, he slipped to his hands and knees and followed the trail of the dropped beads. He brought his light and his magnifying glass into constant play as he moved slowly down the length of the velvet carpeted hall to the foot of the stairway that led to another floor of bedchambers.

Now and then he came upon a dropped bead, sometimes green or white or pink, on a stair and along corridors, sufficiently numerous to give him a definite clew to follow. Up a second flight of stairs he followed the trail of the beads until a group of several brought him to a standstill at the foot of the ladder leading to the trapdoor in the roof.

"That was the weak point in my theory of the flying machine," he murmured to himself as he climbed the ladder. "I couldn't understand how the dickens that chap knew the trapdoor would be unhooked from within. It's clear enough now!" He chuckled softly as he pushed up the trap and emerged to the red painted tin roof.

The noon sun glistened on something bright, and he bent to discover another bead.

"Ah!" smiled Detective Fenn, shading his eyes with his hand and looking away off to the blue haze which marked the rural district where he had planned to have a home some day. "Looks as if that home isn't so far off, Eliza!"

One, two, three, four, five, six, seven beads led Fenn in a zigzag line to the foot of one of the four chimneys of the house. This chimney, unlike the others, was topped with a large galvanized iron hood that effectually prevented any drafts from entering the unused flues. A little hinged door on either end made it possible to occasionally use the chimney without removing the iron hood, but now these little doors were closed.

Detective Fenn's penknife pried open the nearest door, and the sunshine fell inside the opening and lighted up the sooty cap of the chimney. There resting on the narrow brick ledge was a paper wrapped parcel which unfolded in Fenn's hands into the Raddason jewel case. The jewels were safe inside.

With a long drawn sigh of relief and a parting wave of his hand at the distant country, Detective Fenn scurried down the stairs and stopped before the library door to regain his breath and to appear as nonchalant and cool as a detective is supposed to feel at critical moments. Then he pushed the door open and entered the room.

Mr. Raddason looked up with a slight smile that broadened to laughing dismay when he saw the parcel that Fenn carried.

"Caught me, eh?" he chuckled, holding out his hand for the jewel case. "Well done, Fenn. I thought I had you fairly puzzled. I used to read detective stories until I got tired of their plots, so I invent 'em myself now and watch some sleuth like you work 'em out before my eyes. It's worth a thousand easily to me. Tell me why you abandoned your flying machine theory."

"It really wasn't a theory, Mr. Raddason. I just mentioned it because I couldn't think of anything else at the moment. You did it very cleverly, sir. You did leave a patch of soot on the sleeve of your pajamas which I could not understand until I found the beads that you lost from your slippers. By the way, sir, you did wear the slippers last night when you went up on the roof to conceal the jewels?"

Mr. Raddason nodded. "I didn't know the beads were being scattered. So I left a trail of evidence as I went along, eh, straight to the chimney?"

"Yes, sir."

The millionaire wrote a check for an amount that covered a generous fee as well as the thousand dollars special reward and gave it to the detective. "I'll confess I ought to have found a better hiding place, Fenn," he said ruefully. "The next time I set you a problem it'll be one that keeps you guessing for awhile! Come out now and have some luncheon with me."

"Thanks, Mr. Raddason, but I've got to meet Mrs. Fenn. We're going to look at a little place in the country we're thinking of buying." And as the detective hurried away he looked far happier than the millionaire who had planned this fictitious jewel robbery to afford himself some hours of amusement.

Held Bible and Rudder.

Some years ago Japan was neither so free nor so friendly with other nations as she is today. In those old days when a foreign ship entered the Japanese ports the captain was obliged to place his Bible and rudder in charge of the chief officer of the port and leave them there until he was ready to sail. Of course he wouldn't sail without either, and the Japs could easily keep tabs on the movements of all ships in their harbors.

The Seven Sleepers.

The seven sleepers of Ephesus, a favorite subject in medieval art, were seven Christians who to escape the persecution of Decius concealed themselves in a cave whose mouth was closed by their enemies. The cave was rediscovered 200 years afterward, when the sleepers awoke youthful and in perfect health.

Both Wrong.

"You have deceived me," she complained. "You gave me to understand that you were rich."

"Well, you deceived me, too," he replied. "You caused me to believe that you would be brave and cheerful if it ever became necessary for us to get along on a small income."—Judge.

Like the Egg.

"He always was a bad egg, but nobody seemed to notice it while he was rich."

"Yes; he was all right until he was broke."

A Wedding.

A little girl of three and a half years defined a wedding as "it's when a lady goes into church with a curtain on her head and comes out with a man."

It is not by sitting on the fence and counting the weeds in our neighbor's field that we obtain a better harvest.

Deep Mourning.

The manager of the theater racked his brain in vain.

"We must do something," he repeated bitterly. "People will expect us to do something to show respect to the proprietor now that he is dead."

"Shall we close for the night of the funeral?" suggested the assistant stage manager.

"With this business? You're a fool, laddie, a fool. No; put the chorus in black stockings."

And it was even so.—Sporting Times.

WHEN I WAS YOUNG

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When I was young, having procured an outfit of several camels, which I owned, and a score of blacks, whom I hired, I started southward from Tripoli to do a little exploring of the great desert of Sahara. I certainly couldn't explore much of it, for it is larger in area than the United States and only parts are ordinarily traversed. I chose to make an expedition straight south to the Sudan, along the route of caravans trading with that region. It is an ocean of sand, with billows of land except in spots where there are oases.

On the route we fell in with an Arab wanderer named Mohammed. Not all orientals are named Mohammed, but a large number are. He said he was a trader, but one of my men said that the way he traded was one sided. He gave nothing—unless bullets—for something. In other words, he was a robber.

But, like most of these people, he was very smooth spoken. He pretended to take a great fancy to me; said that he had heard that America was the greatest country in the world, and he was quite sure I was the greatest American. To prove his admiration for and confidence in me, he invited me to his camp and introduced me to his wives. There was one young and quite pretty (for an Arab) woman among them who, it seemed to me, was especially cordial to me. I could only judge by the looks she gave me, for she did not know my language nor I hers. Salam, my chief man, remarked to me that he had noticed the woman's preference for me. But, having no desire to get myself murdered on account of an Arab's wife, I did not propose to encourage the lady.

Mohammed journeyed beside us for several days, camping when we camped and moving when we moved. Had it not been for Salam I would have considered that the man had conceived a great regard for me, so naturally did he feign it. Salam said that he was familiarizing himself with our strength, our arms and the value of the loot to be acquired in case of a successful attack. Salam also ventured the opinion that the wife who was so favorably disposed toward me was probably intending, by her husband's order, to lure me into some position by which I could be put out of the way. Then my belongings would easily fall into Mohammed's hands. This view of the case did not favor the conceit of a man of twenty-two, and I did not believe him.

One evening my Bedouin admirer came to my camp to announce the fact that the next morning at dawn he would separate from us, going off to the east toward Marzuk, my intention being to proceed on my way to Ghat. He invited me to sup with him. Being young—as I have said before—I had a fancy to see once more the woman who had apparently conceived a regard for me. I desired to form an opinion as to whether Salam or I was right as to the genuineness of her demonstrations. I supped with her husband, but he kept his wives out of the way. This seemed to me to prove that there was nothing in Salam's theory. The trader feasted me royally and when I left embraced me with tears in his eyes.

"Whoever says," I remarked to Salam when I returned to my camp, "that an Arab is incapable of friendship doesn't know your race."

Salam made no reply, but did not seem especially impressed with my appreciation of the guileless natures of his brother Bedouins.

Two days after this we encamped one evening on the desert. It was a lonely spot, though no more lonely than all other spots on the Sahara. I was standing after dark admiring the bright stars above, contrasting with the monotonous scene below, when I heard the faintest kind of a sound within a few feet of me. It was like a spent bullet hitting soft earth Turning, I saw an object a few feet from me. Going to it, I found an arrow sticking in the sand. Taking it up, I discovered a bit of wood tied to it. Taking it into my tent, where I had a light, I saw Arabic writing on one side. I called Salam and asked him to interpret it. He read it to himself and looked up at me with fear in his face.

"What is it?" I asked.

"It says, 'Make the fonduk,'"

The fondnk is a caravansary where caravans may get food, water and, what is often more desirable, safety.

"From whom did it come?" I asked.

"There is no one near us."

"Mohammed is near. I suspect that he intends to fall upon us tonight. He will probably kill you, then give the rest of us baksheesh to keep silent."

"But who could have sent this warning?"

"I think I have been wrong. The woman who saw you has really been captivated. It is she."

I told Salam to break camp, load the camels, and we would proceed on our journey.

While the preparations were being made I went out again to be alone with the sky and the desert. A new feeling had entered my breast. For the first time in my life I was conscious that a woman loved me. But I knew at the same time that our paths would be as wide apart as those of the great desert.

Before day dawned we made the fonduk.

Narrow Escapes.

An Edinburgh minister rolled a thousand feet down the steeps of Ben Nevis and lived to tell the tale. Admiral Sir Novell Salmon was clean shot through at Lucknow and returned as dead, but came up smiling soon afterward. Similar was Lord Wolseley's experience in the Crimea; but, though pretty well riddled with shot and shell and deprived of the sight of an eye, he was able soon after to enjoy a laugh over his own obituary. Not long ago there was a girl up on trial in a London police court who had twice attempted to commit suicide, but two trains had passed over her and left her absolutely unscathed.—London Telegraph.

A Sure Hit.

"My boy," said Hamlet Fatt, "you can play the fiddle a little bit and you are enough of an acrobat to stand on your head."

"But I can't do either well enough to get an engagement," admitted Yorick Hamm.

"Precisely. What you want to do is to combine the two. Then you'll have a prime act."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A DISGRUNTLED DETECTIVE

By TOM BROWNELL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911

Being ambitious after reading sundry detective stories to enter the profession, I went to an office and asked for employment. It happened that a man was wanted to go among a gang of footpads and burglars disguised as one of their kind with a view to learning certain facts concerning them. It was so dangerous a job that no regular detective would undertake it. These men know their own sort and would easily recognize a spy. I, being filled with the romance of detective work without having had any experience, tumbled to an offer of the job at once.

About 11 o'clock at night, disguised as a tough, I reeled into a saloon where my men were supposed to be. I found them there and invited them to drink. I treated several times and thought I was getting in with them when suddenly there was a hammering at the door, and the barkeeper cried: "Police! Git!" The lights went out, and we were all left in the dark, scattering like so many rats. The doors were broken down, and the police rushed in. When the lights were turned on it was found that the barkeeper and I were the only captives. How the rest got away I don't know.

I was taken to a station, and on the way I made myself known to the cop who walked beside me. He gave a broad grin and said that was the most beautiful device of all that were practiced in the criminal profession. I told him he would learn more about that in time. I slept in a filthy cell for the rest of the night and the next day sent word to the detective agency that I would like to have them come and get me out. They sent one of the employees, who had never seen me. Of course the police officers were not going to discharge me on any such evidence, or, rather, want of it, and I told the man to go back and tell the one who had hired me to come and vouch for me.

He didn't come till late in the afternoon, and when he did he didn't recognize me. I told him I was the man he had sent to the saloon for information, but he looked at me contemptuously and said that the man he had sent had likely met with foul play and I was trying to get out of a bad scrape by personating him. He hadn't seen me made up, and my disguise was so perfect that he believed me to be a veritable villain. He went away without being convinced as to my identity, and I was obliged to spend another night in a cell.

A week passed, and I was still a prisoner. Then one day I was indicted as one of the men in the saloon when the police made the raid, who had made away with the detective that the agency had sent out. In other words, I was charged with being my own murderer Upon inquiry I learned that the man who had thus been sent out on a mission had disappeared, and it was supposed he had been dispatched by the gang.

Here was a pretty how-de-do. I called again for the man who had sent me out, but he refused to come to see me, and I couldn't go to see him. I doubted if it would do any good if he came. He had never seen me but once, and then but for a moment. How could he be expected to recognize me in my rough garb, especially as in the saloon sentile I had been very badly mauled?

I sent for a lawyer and told him my story. He appeared to believe me, but said there would be no use in putting such a story before a jury. It was so palpably false that it would prejudice my case. He said he would try to get up a defense that would seem more probable. I asked him if there was anything more probable than that a man could not have murdered himself and be alive. He replied that I would have to prove my identity, which was impossible. He would try to think of some method of defense that would be easier to prove than the truth. "We lawyers don't care anything," he said, "for the truth. What we want is something we can prove. An alibi affords the best chance."

When I came to be tried for being implicated in my own murder there was no proof against me except that I was known to have gone to the saloon from which I had disappeared and was one of the gang of rascals which was raided. This was considered prima facie evidence that I, probably with others, had killed myself. It was evident that I would get a long term on general principles.

My lawyer's method was very ingenious. Having entered my claim to be another person than myself, John Borland, he brought John Borland's mother into court to swear that her son on the night of the supposed murder was at home and in bed. Another witness, who lived in the same house, swore to the same thing. Then my lawyer called upon the policeman who had arrested me to swear that I had been found in and taken from the saloon. The lawyer so badgered the policeman that he was not sure of me. Thus an alibi was established.

I was acquitted. But I didn't continue the detective business. I had had all of that romantic occupation I wanted. Detectives are all right in novels and in plays, but when it comes to the real thing they don't lead an easy life. Joe Petrosino, for instance, was one of the cleverest and most daring, but they got him.

A Curious New Zealand Bird.

The Maoris of New Zealand hunt the huia for its feathers, and the bird is in danger of extinction. The huia is a jet black bird with a white band at the extreme end of its tail feathers. The birds are hatched in pairs. The male has a short, strong beak and the female a long, slender, incurved beak. The male breaks the bark off dead trees, and the female then dips her beak into the holes of the big grubs which attack dead timber. She presents one grub to her spouse and then has one herself, alternating most conscientiously. The Maoris say that when one dies the other must necessarily die of starvation, because nature has so arranged that each is dependent on the other.

REFORM.

Reform, like charity, must begin at home. Once well at home, how it will radiate outward, irrepressible, into all that we touch and handle, speak and work, kindling ever new light by incalculable contagion, spreading far and wide, doing good only wherever it spreads and not evil.

A Blustering King.

Of King George IV. Thomas Creevey, who lived in the early part of the nineteenth century, tells this story:

"The king had appointed the bishop of Winchester to administer to him the sacrament on one of the Sundays about Easter. The bishop was not punctual to his time, and when he arrived the king, in a great passion at having been kept waiting, abused and even swore at him in the most indecent manner, on which the bishop very coolly said he must be permitted to withdraw, as he perceived his majesty was not then in a fit state of mind to receive the sacrament, and should be ready to attend on some future day, when he hoped to find his majesty in a better state of preparation

John Wesley's Wife.

John Wesley married a widow, Mrs. Vizelle, who grew tired of his restlessly laborious life and complained. He paid no attention, and from complaint she went on to jealousy, thence to fury. He rebuked her sternly: "Do not any longer contend for mastery, for power, money or praise. Be content to be a private, insignificant person. Of what importance is your character to mankind? If you were buried just now or had never lived, what loss would it be to the cause of God?" She left him, taking with her a large number of his private papers, and he dismissed the subject by writing in his journal: "I did not forsake her. I did not dismiss her. I shall not call her back."

Eyes With Double Pupils.

Cicero says that "the glance of all women with the double pupil in the eye is noxious, blighting and withering." Cadmus tells us that such persons would not drown. Still others say that if they did drown the body would never sink, neither would it decay. They could cure the disease of the chest—consumption—by rubbing their perspiration on the affected parts of the individual, and in case the double pupils were red instead of black they could cure the lepers and the blind. So thought the ancients.

NO REASON FOR IT.

When Palmer Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Palmer citizen says:

G. H. Morgan, 61 S. Main St., Palmer, Mass., says: "It is ten years since I used Doan's Kidney Pills, but I have not forgotten the great relief I obtained from this remedy. I had a case of kidney trouble of several years standing and was unable to find anything that would help me. My back ached constantly and I often felt lame all over. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and attended by a burning sensation when being voided. Upon a friend's advice, I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and in a short time they cured me. The cure has proven to be a permanent one and consequently I value Doan's Kidney Pills very highly."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Never leave home on a journey without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed and cannot be obtained when on board the cars or steamships. For sale by all dealers.

THORNDIKE.

A Very Quiet Fourth.

The Fourth passed off without any accidents and was in fact the most quiet one in years. None of the dealers carried any firecrackers, and this in a great measure accounted for the absence of noise, although some fire crackers were purchased outside and a few were heard the night before. The only celebration was the annual mammoth bonfire, which has been customary for at least 35 years, this year's fire being equal to other occasions. Just at the stroke of 12 the match was applied and in a few minutes the pile of boxes, barrels, cord-wood, etc., sent out a blaze which was visible for miles. A large and good-natured crowd witnessed the event.

Death of Mrs. Mary Harrington.

Miss Mary Harrington, an aged woman, died on Wednesday at the Old Ladies' Home in Holyoke. Word was sent here and the body was brought here yesterday for burial in St. Thomas' cemetery, a mass of requiem being held in St. Mary's church. The deceased was widely known, having resided in Thorndike for years. She is survived by one son, James of Amherst.

Night Prowlers Fired At.

Michael Sullivan was awakened one night the past week by prowlers who were discovered about the garage where his auto is kept. Mr. Sullivan called to his sons and a couple of shots from a revolver frightened the men away, there being three in the party. What they intended to do is unexplained, although it was discovered that the wheels of the auto were chained after their departure.

The picnic given by St. Peter and St. Paul's parish on the Fourth at the Sikes farm was largely attended and a success in every particular, many being in attendance from Ludlow, Ware, Chicopee and Holyoke. Sports of all kinds and dancing formed the principal part of the day's programme.

The thunder storm which came on Wednesday afternoon did a great deal of good to crops, reservoirs and wells; the latter were commencing to show signs of the continual dry spell. The storm, which was accompanied by heavy wind, did some slight damage to some of the shade trees in the village.

Rev. Fr. O'Malley, who has been at St. John's parish in Worcester for a long time and who had charge there since the death of Monsieur Griffin, said masses at 8 and 10 on Sunday at St. Mary's church. Fr. O'Malley will remain for the present at least, until the appointment of a regular pastor is made by Bishop Beaven.

The intense hot weather the past week has had its effect upon many of the young children in the village, and as a result some have had to have the attention of the family physician. No prostrations have occurred. The thermometer registered in several places in the village from 93 to 102 in the shade on Tuesday and Wednesday.

THREE RIVERS.

Appointed Truant Officer in Springfield.

J. A. Parker, for a number of years director of Recreation Hall, has resigned this position to accept one as truant officer in Springfield. This appointment was the result of a civil service examination held on May 22, Mr. Parker standing the highest of the seven candidates. During his stay in Three Rivers he has made many friends, who will deeply regret his departure.

TIPPED INTO THE RIVER.

Three Men And a Boat And a Keg of ?

Great excitement was caused among the inhabitants of the Polish colony on Athol street Monday morning by the capsizing of a boat on the Quaboag River. Three Polish men were crossing in a boat, in which they had a keg of "Fourth of July Tonic." When nearing the shore the boat capsized, tipping men and keg into the water. Two swam to shore; the third clung to the boat until rescued. Although frantic attempts were made by many to recover the "tonic," they had at last to award the prize to the Quabosg.

SAFE AND SANE FOURTH.

Fine Parade of Floats and Good Time Generally.

The "safe and sane Fourth," which has been so broadly discussed, was well illustrated in this village Tuesday, the feature of the occasion being the parade. A committee of arrangements was appointed by the French circle a few weeks ago and they worked hard to make it a success. There were four floats, which were appropriately decorated with red, white and blue. One float was occupied by little girls, one by little boys and the others by comic characters. The marshal was Mr. Dupuis of Threo Rivers.

Forecasting the Weather.

Of all the scientific departments the weather bureau was started with the least amount of knowledge of its particular subject. Independent observers had gathered a small amount of disassociated facts and based conclusion as it suited them upon the facts. But meteorology was a very indefinite thing, strongly tinged with bad guesses, myths, traditions and theories. It was like the German grammar of which Mark Twain complained. For every page of rules there were forty pages of exceptions. When the weather bureau was started it was with little worth while. It had to map out a campaign of study, and there was no way of telling how long it might be before the study would permit of the laying down of rules. Every one knows that the bureau is far more efficient than it was. It is getting the hang of the weather, learning its multitudinous tricks. Its coyness and treachery. It is in the nature of the case a slow affair.—Toledo Blade.

Not to Be Deceived.

"John," she asked after she had finished packing her trunk, "will you remember to water the flowers in the porch boxes every day?"

"Yes, dear. I'll see that they are properly moistened regularly."

"And the rubber plant in the dining room. You know it will have to be sprayed about three times a week."

"I'll remember it."

"I'm afraid you'll forget the canary and let the poor little thing starve."

"Don't worry about the bird, dear. I'll take good care of him."

"But I feel sure you'll forget about keeping the curtains drawn so that things won't all be faded out when I get back."

"Don't give yourself a moment's uneasiness about the curtains. I'll keep the house as dark as a tunnel."

"John, I'm not going. You have some reason for being anxious to get rid of me."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Druids.

The Druids were evidently of very great antiquity, for there cannot be much doubt that it was one of their customs that Virgil had in mind when he wrote in the "Aeneid," vi, 142, that the "only means of access for a living mortal to the world of spirits was the carrying of a golden twig which grew in a dark and thick grove." The resemblance of the story to the Druidical rite is perfect. The Druids practiced their rites in dark groves. If a mistletoe was discovered growing upon an oak a priest severed it with a knife, and a festival was held under the tree at which two milk white bulls were offered as a sacrifice. This was a sacrifice to the sun god, and the mistletoe, from its pale greenish yellow tint, was regarded as a kind of vegetable gold and was accordingly looked upon as being a fit offering to the sun.—New York American.

Catching Speed.

Two wild eyed horses, wearing dilapidated harness and drawing a battered delivery wagon, stopped at the stable door.

"Just had a runaway!" panted the driver.

"Then, for heaven's sake, don't put those horses in with the other horses that will soon go out on a trip," said the head hostler. "If you do they'll run away too. They always do. Before I learned as much about horses as I know now I brought on a dozen runaways by doing that fool trick The horses that have just been on a spree are still worked up to fever pitch, the rest of the horses catch the spirit of the devil from them, and as soon as they get out they take a header."—New York Times.

YOUR WORK.

You must be sure of two things—you must love your work and not be always looking over the edge of it, wanting your play to begin. you must not be ashamed of your work and wanting to be doing something else.—George Eliot.

Has the Habit.

THE MILL

How a Picture Was Painted Under an Inspiration

By EDWARD GILLETTE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

There is no more dainty bit of scenery, to my thinking, than one of those little patched up, tumbledown, moss covered water mills of the olden time. They are always situated at the lower end of a pond, nestling under trees and half buried in shrubbery. They speak of a past when farmers were used to carrying a sack or two of grain to mill on horseback before them to have it ground. Now the grain is grown on bigger farms in bigger bulk, and the individual farmer's product is lost in a great cereal river that flows to mills driven by steam and with stacks towering hundreds of feet high. Progress is there, but the little water mill of the past is only useful to furnish themes for the artist.

I am one of these knights of the brush myself. One day, coming upon such a simple scene as I have mentioned, I opened my three legged stool, set up my easel and began to work in my colors. I have the picture I made of the mill, and no money would induce me to part with it. There is a story connected with it, told me while I was painting, which, appealing to my fancy, rendered my work especially successful. The picture and the story go together.

While I was at work a man under a faded straw hat and suspenders uncovered by coat or waistcoat came up behind me and looked at my work. He was a middle aged countryman, with those furrows in his face that seem to be transferred there from his eyes being constantly fixed on furrows made by his plow. He seemed to take a deep interest in my picture.

"There's somep'n wanted on that little space beside the wheel," he said.

"What's that?" I asked.

"A boy and a girl."

"What boy and girl?"

"Somep'n happened there onct. I kin tell y' about it if y' want to hear it."

"Go ahead."

"It's about myself and the girl. I was nigh on to seventeen, and Janey was fifteen. Children haven't got any sense, and Janey wasn't much past bein' a child. We had been playin' together when we was at an age to play, and now we was a little older we kept on playin' together. Anyway, Janey was a wild little thing and up to all sorts of pranks. What I was doin' about this time I'm speakin' of was tryin' to keep her from tumblin' off the peak of the barn roof, or fallin' down through a hole in the haymow floor, or gittin' drowned in the pond.

"One day we was over there where a dirt road led down to the mill. It's all grown over with grass now, but you can see where it was. At that time the mill was run whenever there was any grain to grind, and when there wasn't the water was turned off the sluice. That day it was turned off.

"The first thing I knew Janey she climbed out on to the wheel. Her weight was just enough to turn it and let her down slow. While she was sinkin' she looked at me and laughed. It was a purty enough laugh, but somehow I didn't like to see her goin' down into that hole, 'cause there wasn't any way for her to git out. It was walled in, except near the top, where an opening had been left to let the water out. Of course when Janey got to the bottom the wheel stopped turnin'.

"Then I asked Janey to stand on it and let me turn it and her back ag'in, but she got off and dared me to come down. I can see her eyes now just as they looked then with a lot of devilltry in 'em.

"There was two simpletons instead of one. I got on to the wheel, and it turned quicker with my weight than with hers. I johned her at the bottom, and she was anmusin' herself in all sorts of ways, dancin' and runnin' around the wheel and hollerin' to hear how queer it sounded down there. Two or three times I tried to git her to let me take her out. It wouldn't be an easy matter in any event. The only way it could be done was for us to balance each other by climbin' on opposite sides of the wheel. But if the water should be turned on we couldn't do that.

"First thing I knew I heard somep'n moved suddent above, and down come the water. I looked at Janey, scared out of my boots, but Janey seemed to consider it a good joke, the little fool, and began to dance about in the water on the stone floor. But gradually the water rose. From the bottom to the lowest part of the wheel it was up to our necks. I lifted Janey on to the wheel and got up myself. The only thing for us to do was to climb as the wheel turned.

"I shouted with all my might, hopin' the miller would hear me. But he was inside the mill, and the noise of the water down where we was was enough to drown any boy's voice. I looked about for somep'n to stop the wheel with, but there wasn't a stick as long as my arm anywhere. The only hope I had was that the miller had a small lot of grist to grind and he'd git through before we was tired out. But I didn't think he'd start the mill for less than two or three hours' grind.

"Janey stood up well for about half an hour—it seemed four times as long—then she began to give out. The only thing I could do with her was to brace her up by puttin' my arm back of her. She didn't seem frightened or ready to cry, but she looked at me with a tired smile and kept on workin' the treadmill.

"But purty soon she got so tired I knew she'd have to git a rest, and I looked about for somep'n to cling to away from the wheel. There was a break in the old wall surroundin' the wheel that left one of the stones so we could git our hands on it. I pushed off with Janey, and we clung to the stone.

"We got a kind of a rest, but it wasn't pleasant being in water over our heads keepin' ourselves up that way, and Janey's teeth began to chatter. I was beside myself with terror for her. It was she who was puttin' the best face on it all, sayin' that the grist would soon give out and the water would be turned off. But I knew that her strength was goin', and I dreaded a time when it would leave her all at once.

"Then I tried hollerin' ag'in, but I hadn't as much power behind my voice as I had when I called before and couldn't make as much noise.

"I knew I'd got to do somep'n or purty soon it would be all over with us. It occurred to me that if I could get my weight on to the side of the wheel that was goin' up the motion would be slower. I asked Janey if she could hold on where she was for awhile. She said she could, but I knew she couldn't.

"I had to put my arm around her, and, partly by swimmin' and partly by clingin' to the wall, I worked my way toward the back of the wheel. The hardest place to pass was between the wheel and the wall. I expected both of us would be crushed.

"When I got by that part of it and got Janey and myself a hold of the wheel I felt better. But we couldn't stop the wheel; all we could do was to cling to it till it pulled us out of the water and then catch hold lower down. I did this, but Janey could only keep chaugin' her hands all the while as the wheel revolved, she bein' supported in the water. Knowin' that this was our only chance, I threw all the strength left in me into my work, lettin' the wheel pull me almost up to the water runnin' above, stayin' there and lettin' go my hold first with one hand, then with the other. But as I was hangin' in the air and wasn't buoyed by water it was awful hard work, especially after what I'd been through. Still, there's hardly a limit to the endurance of a boy of sixteen.

"All of a sudden I saw the miller lookin' down on us. I didn't have to holler, and he didn't say a word. He ran away, I heard the sluice close, and in another minute he was back with a ladder, which he put down and, comin' down himself, first took Janey in his arms and carried her out. He was comin' back for me, but I let go the wheel and swam for the ladder by myself. I tried to climb up it, but it was no go; the miller reached down and dragged me out.

"When I got up I saw Janey lyin' on the grass with her eyes closed, limp and white as a cloth. Thinkin' she was dead, I gave a cry and, bendin' down over her, lifted her in my arms. The miller said she'd only fainted and would come to herself purty soon. And he was right. In another moment she opened her eyes, and, seein' me, what do you suppose she did?"

"What?"

"She just smiled the same kind of a smile as when she was goin' down on the wheel."

"My friend," I said at the conclusion of his story, "I wish I had you and Janey right here at the age you then were that I might work you into my painting."

"If you'll come with me up the road a bit I'll show you two young uns that'll do as well," he replied.

I went with the man, who stopped at a little house beside the road. We entered and found a middle aged woman ironing.

"There's Janey," he said. Turning to her, he added, "Where are the children?"

"Janey's upstairs, and I sent Dick to the store. He'll be back in a few minutes."

A girl about fifteen came down at her mother's call, and there was Janey sure enough. I asked permission to make a sketch of her, and when her brother, two years her senior, came in I did the same with him. Then I gave each a good fee for serving as models, and after drinking a glass of milk which was urged upon me I took my leave.

Going back to the mill, I finished my picture under the inspiration occasioned by the story connected with it. As I worked I thought which of the different scenes through which the youngsters had passed I would introduce on the canvas. I knew that to place Janey on the grass just recovering from her fainting would be effective, but I rather favored putting her on the wheel when she first stepped on to it and smiling at her boy companion, his own expression denoting his anxiety. I decided upon the latter feature, and, taking to my studio the sketches I had made, I worked them in when I felt in the mood for it. I succeeded far better in depicting the required expression than I had hoped for. The picture hangs in my studio and has often been admired. I have had many offers for it, but it is the only picture I have ever painted wherein there is a story I have heard at first hand. For this reason I have never been willing to part with it.

Too Much Ambition.

"I can't understand why you discharged my boy. You advertised for a boy with ambition, and he"—

"That's just it, madam; that's just it. He wasn't in the place two days before he had his feet on my desk and was smoking my cigars."

Made the Cannon Balls Fit.

The first battle of the war of 1812 was fought at Sacketts Harbor, July 9, 1812, and consisted of an attack made upon the village. The inhabitants had but one gun of sufficient size and strength to inflict damage, a thirty-two pounder, for which they had no shot. This difficulty was overcome by the patriotism of the housewives, who tore up carpets from the floors and with strips wound the small balls to fit the cannon

TOWN WARRANT.
COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
County of Hampden, ss. Town of Palmer.
To either of the Constables of the Town of Palmer, in said County. Greeting:
In the name of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, you are hereby required to notify and warn all the inhabitants of the Town of Palmer, qualified to vote in town affairs, to meet at the Town House at Four Corners, in said Palmer, on Saturday, the 15th day of July, A. D. 1911, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, then and there to act on the following articles, viz:

ARTICLE 1. To choose a Moderator to preside at said meeting.

ART. 2. To hear the reports of committees and act thereon.

ART. 3. To see if the town will authorize the Selectmen to use any part of the contingent fund, for repairs and maintenance of the clock located in the tower of the Universalist church, in Depot Village, and how much, or take any other action in reference thereto.

ART. 4. To see if the town will authorize its Treasurer, with the approval of the Selectmen, to borrow during the present municipal year, in addition to the sum of Thirty Thousand dollars heretofore authorized, in anticipation of the collection of taxes of said year, such sums of money as may be necessary for the current expenses of the town, but not exceeding (including the sums heretofore authorized) the total levy for said year, giving the notes of the town therefor. All debts incurred under authority hereof to be paid from taxes of the present municipal year.

ART. 5. To see if the town will authorize the Selectmen to expend the entire sum raised and appropriated at the last annual meeting, under Article 44 of the warrant for said meeting, in the construction of a macadam road between the present terminus of the macadam on North Main street in the Depot Village and the intersection of said North Main street with the highway running to Three Rivers.

ART. 6. To see if the town will appropriate an additional sum of Four Hundred dollars, to be used in the construction of the macadam road heretofore authorized on North Main street, between the present terminus of the macadam on said street and the intersection of said street with the road running to Three Rivers.

ART. 7. To see if the town will authorize its Treasurer, by and with the approval of the Selectmen, to borrow a sum of money, not exceeding Four Hundred dollars, to be used in the construction of macadam road on North Main street, in the Depot Village, between the present terminus of the macadam on said street and the intersection of said street with the road running to Three Rivers, payable in one year from date of borrowing, at a rate of interest not exceeding 4½ per cent per annum, and issue a note or bond of the town therefor.

ART. 8. To see if the town will accept and allow a common sewer, extending from the southerly side of the highway leading from the Depot Village to Warren, known as the Boston Road, southerly to the Quaboag river, as laid by the Selectmen, a report of which has heretofore been filed with the Town Clerk.

And you are hereby directed to serve this warrant by posting up attested copies thereof at the different public places designated by the vote of the town, seven days at least before the holding of said meeting, and cause this warrant to be printed in the Palmer Journal at least two issues before the holding of said meeting.

Hereof fail not and make due return of this warrant, with your doings thereon, to the Town Clerk, on or before the holding of said meeting.

Given under our hands this fifth day of July, A. D. 1911. 13-2

HORSE THIEF AT WORK.

But Does Not Make Very Good Job of His Attempt.

CAUGHT SOON AFTER STARTING OUT.

Took Horse, Buggy, Harness. Landed in Jail and Held For Grand Jury Ten Hours Later.

The theft of a horse and buggy, pursuit, capture, arraignment in court, held for the grand jury and lodged in jail in default of bail, all within a short ten hours on Monday, shows that, in spite of the heat, David Frazer, of parts unknown, and Palmer police officers were both capable of "going some."

Frazer came to Palmer on Wednesday of last week and secured a job in the stable of D. E. Marcy on Walnut street. Sunday night he was assigned to assist the regular night man, Patrick Sullivan. About 2 o'clock, when Sullivan returned from the passenger station, he was told that a telephone message had just come in from a woman in Monson who wished transportation to Palmer; that she would be waiting in front of the post office. Sullivan hitched up and drove to Monson but failed to find the woman. On his return he found Frazer gone, also one of the best horses in the barn, a buggy, a double harness worth $40 and a $25 single harness, the value of the lot being about $400 or $500.

Mr. Marcy was at once notified, and he in turn notified Night Officer Crimmins. The latter worked the telephones to the east—or tried to—but failed at first to get anyone between Palmer and Spencer. Finally he got in communication with Officer St. George at Warren and told him what was wanted. He took a position on the highway and not long after Frazer passed him. St. George followed in an auto and gathered his man in at West Brookfield. In the meantime Officer Crimmins and Deputy Sheriff Bills, with G. S. Holden in his auto, were making record time along the state highway and arrived soon after the man was nabbed. They returned with him to Palmer, and, arriving before nine o'clock Frazer was arraigned when court opened at that hour. He pleaded not guilty to the theft, but was held for the grand jury in the sum of $700, which he was unable to furnish and so was sent up to await the action of the grand jury in September.

Palmer Boy Badly Hurt.

Raymond Phaneuf Has Leg Lacerated By Motocycle in Springfield.

Raymond Phaneuf, about 16, living at 80 Water street in Palmer, was badly hurt in Springfield Sunday evening in a collision between a motor cycle and a street car on which he was riding. The muscles of his left leg were badly torn and his knee cap severely injured. He was taken to the hospital, where he is reported as resting comfortably and doing nicely, though it will be some time yet before he recovers the full use of his leg.

Phaneuf had gone to Springfield to visit relatives, and was standing on the running board of a Forest Park car which was passing through Main street. As the car was crossing the intersection of Bridge street a motocycle ridden by two men came out of West Bridge street and crashed into the car. With young Phaneuf was his brother Arthur, and both were thrown to the ground, though Arthur was not much hurt. One of the men on the machine was rendered unconscious by the shock, and was also taken to the hospital, but his hurts are not considered serious.

Ship Milk to Springfield.

Brimfield Farmers Find Nearer Market and Receive Higher Price.

Brimfield milk producers are rejoicing over the recent installation of a milk car service via trolley express between that village and Springfield, a car now leaving Brimfield every morning at 6.30 and running direct to the city. By this innovation not only do the producers save a long drive of six miles to Warren, but they receive a higher price for their milk.

For about 40 years they have been sending their milk to Boston, delivering it at the car in Warren, which means a long drive every morning and a disagreeable one in cold weather. The price received from the Brigham company has been 25 cents a can of eight quarts, while the Springfield price is four cents a quart. The producers wanted to ship to Springfield at the time of the recent milk strike, but satisfactory arrangements could not be made at that time.

WARREN.

Death of Israel Boutin.

Israel Boutin, 55, died last Friday at his home on West Main street from heat prostration. He had been haying for L. B. Burroughs for about two weeks and complained late Friday afternoon of feeling poorly. Mr. Burroughs told him to go home, but he had only got about 150 yards from the house when he fell by the roadside, where he was found later by Mr. Burroughs. Dr. C. A. DeLand and Dr. John E Dalton were called and he was removed to his home. He remained unconscious from the first, and gradually grew weaker until his death. Mr. Boutin was born in Canada, March 25, 1856, and was married in 1879, and soon after went to Bennington, Vt., moving to Warren some 10 years ago. He leaves, besides a widow, three daughters, Misses Delia and Rose at home and Mrs. James Carbonnean of Leominster, and four sons, Frank and Edward at home, William of Bennington, Vt., and Joseph of Anburn, N. Y., a sister, Mrs. Rose Bairon of Montreal, and three brothers, William of Montreal and Leon and Peter of Armach, Can. The funeral was held Monday morning in St. Paul's church and burial was in St. Paul's cemetery.

Mrs. William P. Canning of New York is spending the summer at the bome of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Day on Coy's hill.

Mrs. Ida M. Ellis, who has been spending two years in California, has returned to Warren and is with Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Perkins on Bacon street.

Charles Shenney, employed on the work at the new bridge near the Sayles & Jenks' mill, was overcome by the heat Monday morning. He was attended by Dr. C. A. DeLand.

Ray Kimmell met with a painful accident last Friday while chopping wood with a dull ax. The end of the handle got caught and the blade came down on his left hand, cutting a gash across the thumb and first finger. He was attended by Dr. John E Dalton, who took five stitches to close the wound. If the ax had been sharp the thumb would have been entirely severed.

BRIMFIELD.

Miss Chapin of Springfield is visiting Miss Margaret Dunsmore.

Mrs. Harriet N. Griggs is visiting at the home of relatives in Amherst.

Mrs. Chamberlain of Newtonville is spending several weeks at the hotel.

Professor L H. Parker of Amherst college and family are spending the summer with Mrs. Parker's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Norris.

Mrs. Ellen Noyes Coy, 73, widow of Erastus Coy of Amherst, died at her home in Brimfield Wednesday evening of heart trouble and other complications. Mrs. Coy was a native of Spencer, but had lived many years in Brimfield. She leaves a brother, John H. Noyes, and a sister, Miss Emily Noyes, both of Rimfield. The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 at the home of her brother.

WILBRAHAM.

Death of Mrs. J. Herbert Starr.

Mrs. Carrie M. Starr, 61, wife of J. Herbert Starr, died at her home on Main street Tuesday morning after a six years' illness with paralysis. Mrs. Starr was born in Rowe September 17, 1849, and was the daughter of Thomas and Caroline Grant Scott. On November 10, 1870, she was married to J. Herbert Starr of Rowe, where they lived until the fall of 1894, when they moved to Springfield. In 1901 they went to Wilbraham, where they have since made their home. Mrs. Starr was a member of the Baptist church in Rowe, but since living in Wilbraham had attended the First Congregational church, where she was active before her ill-health. She was quiet in her tastes, devoted to her home, and her sweet and gentle nature endeared her to all who knew her. She leaves, besides her husband, one daughter, Miss Nellie M. Starr, at home, one son, Henry A. Starr, one grandson, Ernest W. Starr of Albany, N. Y., and three brothers, Charles H. Scott of Rowe, Albert Scott of Lonisville, Ky., and Dr. S. Walter Scott of Troy, N. Y. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon with burial in Adams cemetery.

Mrs. Myron L. Bruner is spending the summer at Old Orchard, Me.

Charles G. Pease is at Camp Norwich in Huntington for a two-weeks' stay.

Capt. John J. O'Malley of Springfield is spending the week at Hensdal farm.

Louis G. Gillett, instructor in Wesleyan University, is spending the summer at the Bliss Homestead.

Mrs. Loomis and Miss E. P. Nichols of Brooklyn, N. Y., are spending several weeks at the home of Mrs. L. G. Pease.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Death of Daniel Sweeney Sr.

Daniel Sweeney Sr., 65, died Monday morning in the Springfield hospital as the result of injuries received a week ago on the railroad track near his home. He was run over by a switch train at work on the side track. One leg was severed at the ankle and his right hand was badly crushed. He was not discovered for nearly 20 minutes and he was considerably weakened by the loss of blood. He was rushed to the hospital, but his weakness, advanced years and the heat made recovery impossible. Mr. Sweeney was born in Ireland, but had lived in Wilbraham many years, being well liked. He leaves a widow, one daughter, Mary, and two sons, Daniel Jr. of Wilbraham and John of Palmer.

Mr and Mrs. Walter Akers of Boston have been spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Calkins.

Mrs. Anne Fuller and Miss Mildred Fuller have returned from Hopkinton, where they have been guests of Raymond Fuller.

Many people have been overcome or made ill by the heat this week. Sunday Misses Laura Roy, Nellie Johnson and Mary Fitzgerald were overcome within a few minutes of each other while attending service in St. Cecelia's church. They were removed to their homes and received medical attention and all have recovered. Edward Rex, head machine tender at the paper mill, was prostrated and had to be taken to his home, but was not seriously affected. Mrs. John McGowan has been ill as the result of the hot weather, and Helen, the eight-years-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McManigall, was overcome by the heat Tuesday.

MILK GETTING SCARCE.

Cows Have Dropped in Yield in Last Two Weeks.

PROSPECT OF AN ADVANCE IN PRICE.

Yield Materially Decreased by Hot Weather, While Demand is Much Greater.

A scarcity of milk is one result of the hot weather of the past two weeks, and should it continue hot and dry there is every prospect that the price will be raised before long.

For the past week or ten days the restaurant and soda fountain proprietors have been put to their wits' end to secure a sufficient supply of the lacteal fluid to satisfy the demands of their customers. They have not always been successful, and in some of the restaurants evaporated milk has been resorted to when the other gave out. The hot weather has caused a very large demand for milk and egg drinks at the soda fountains, and the problem has been to secure enough of the former—the latter have been more than usually plentiful for this time of year.

The farmers are up against a material falling off in the milk production during the hot weather. The amount varies, and is quoted from 10 to 33 per cent. The man with a herd of miscellaneous breeds of milch cows is fortunate if his shrinkage is no more than 10 per cent, while individual animals are quoted as dropping fully 33 per cent of the milk yield. The poor pasturage, owing to the long and continued drought, the hot weather and the scarcity of water in the pastures, is responsible for the lessened flow of milk. Many farmers are feeding last year's hay—if they happen to have any left over—and all who are making a business of producing milk are obliged to feed extra rations of meal at this time. This of course increases the cost of production, and a raise in price would not be surprising; in fact, it is said by some producers that the price next winter will of necessity be higher than heretofore, owing to the shortage of the hay crop this summer.

BELCHERTOWN.

Miss Rita Ransom has gone to New Hampshire for a vacation.

Miss Marie M. Davis has taken a position as bookkeeper in E. A. Fuller & Co's. store.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cook have returned to their home in New Britain, Ct., after a stay in Belchertown.

Harry L. Jackson of Springfield is spending the week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jackson.

Miss Myrtle Kezar of New Rochelle, N. Y., is spending the summer at the home of Dea. and Mrs. Bartlett.

Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Fisher have gone to Rochester, N. Y., for a visit with their daughter, Mrs. J. O. Sikes.

Miss Lucy D. Thomson, formerly of Belchertown, who has been in New York for several years, has taken a position in Pittsfield.

Charles L. Randall and family of Worcester are spending the summer at the Jonathan Dwight place recently bought by Myron G. Ward.

WARE.

Narrow Escape.

Flora Dupree, the five-years-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Dupree, narrowly escaped being seriously, if not fatally, injured last Friday afternoon. As Louis A. Shumway was driving down East street soon after noon, the little tot ran in front of his horse. Mr. Shumway made every effort to avoid running her down, but she apparently became confused and as the horse turned out she turned back and fell under the wheels. The front wheels passed over her body, but Mr. Shumway brought the horse to a stop before the rear wheels passed over her. The child, instead of being injured, jumped up and ran to the sidewalk. Here she remembered a piece of candy which she had left in the road, so she returned and picked it up, and ran home, where it was found she was only slightly bruised.

Death of Mrs. Marietta Ramsdell.

Mrs. Marietta Ramsdell, 79, died at the home of her son, A. Myron Ramsdell, on Prospect street Tuesday afternoon from the effects of a shock. She was a native of Greenfield, but had lived in Ware for 50 years. She leaves, besides the son with whom she lived, one other son, Ossian of Bayonne, N. J, and several nephews, one of whom is Dr. G. M. C. Barnard.

Mrs. C. B. Wetherby and children have gone to Princeton for the summer.

Miss Mabel McBride of Pittsfield is spending two weeks with her parents on Maple street.

Miss Ida Bates of Toronto, Ont., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Bates of High street.

Principal Nathan R. Smith of the high school and wife have gone to Maine for two months.

Superintendent of Schools G. W. Cox and wife have gone to Henniker, N. H., for the summer.

Miss Mabel Coney, teacher in the high school in Lynn, is spending the summer at her home here.

John T. Brosnahan Jr. has bought from his mother, Mrs. Sarah A. Brosnahan of South street, the grocery business carried on by her husband, John T. Brosnahan, for several years previous to his death.

Calix Rock, 75, of North street, died suddenly last week Thursday night while watching the storm. He had been ill with dropsy. Mr. Rock was a native of Canada. He leaves a widow and two daughters, Mrs. Lane Barry of Woonsocket, R. I., and Mrs. Annie Provost of Ware.

News was received in Ware this week of the death in New York Monday night of Mrs. Eliza N. Garman, sister of Dr. W. W. Miner. Mrs. Garman was the widow of the late Prof. Charles E. Garman of Amherst College, who died in 1907. Years ago Prof. Garman was principal of the Ware high school and married Miss Miner, who taught a district school in Ware. Mrs. Garman was a native of Ware, and is well remembered by the older residents who heard of her death with deep regret.

Joseph Emond of Pleasant street, contractor and builder, was prostrated Monday while working on a house he is building in Amherst and was taken to his home in Ware. He was in a serious condition, but has since recovered. Mrs. John B. Shea of West street was overcome by the heat Sunday and was seriously ill a part of the week. Daniel Shea of Eddy street was prostrated Tuesday noon while walking on Parker street and fell to the sidewalk. Chief of Police B W. Buckley was passing and secured a carriage and ordered the man carried to his home, where he received medical attention.

Doings of the Legislature.

BOSTON, July 12, 1911.

The farmers have come out at the little end of the horn in their contest with the milk consumers' association. The Ellis milk bill, to provide for the creation of a state milk board to be appointed by the governor, to make regulations for the production, keeping, transportation and sale of milk, to be enforced by the state board of health, or its agents, which went through the House by a substantial majority, in spite of the efforts of the farmers for the Howard bill, has also passed the gauntlet of the Senate. The farmers had their representatives on guard in the upper branch. Senators Mellen of Worcester-Hampden, Schoonmaker of Franklin-Hampshire, Gates of Worcester and Mack of Berkshire, all did what they could for the farmers. But the milk consumers have had their expert counsel right on the ground all the time. He is Myron E Peirce, a former representative from Boston, an able and honorable man, devoted to the interests of his clients. When the farmers came into collision with him and his clients, they found an antagonist fully worthy of their steel. The upshot of the matter is that Senator Schoonmaker was able to secure only a small concession. It was that producers who sell less than five quarts of milk daily shall not come under the act. He saw the representatives of both sides, especially Representative Ellis of Newton, from whom the bill is named, and got their consent to the amendment. It was agreed to upon his statement of the case. Senator Gates of Worcester put in an amendment that the new board shall serve without pay, but this was promptly voted down. The bill has yet to secure the concurrence of the House with the Senate amendment, but there is no reason to predict that they will not concur. The consumers win their contention and the farmers must be more careful than ever.

The House has not yet taken up the bill for the consolidation of the Boston elevated railway and the West End Street railway company, but it seems to have passed its critical stage in the Senate, and as the House is more in the interest of the people than the Senate, it seems sure that the grasping schemes of the managers have been scaled down somewhere near safety for the people. Different propositions have been grafted upon the bill in the Senate until extensions of the subway system have been secured from Park street to the south station, and thence to South Boston, to the junction of Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue; from Washington street to Bowdoin Square and also further to the north. The time of the lease has been shortened to 25 years. The construction is to be by the city and the lease is to be to the Boston elevated railway at not over 7 per cent, the leases to be terminable, after the 25 years, by either party upon two years' notice. This is considerable of a reduction from the 50-years' lease which was first proposed, with 8 per cent guaranteed to the West End stockholders. Senator Tinkham of Boston is the senator who has done much to secure these changes for the public benefit. There is no doubt, too, the Public Franchise league has been effective, while the governor has been one of the strong players in the game which has been in progress for weeks. He has had with him the counsel of the corporations and of the league, representatives of the people, all very much in earnest. It has been a sharp trial of strength, for the corporations, looking far into the future, seeing the immense crowds to handle, and the costly construction of subways, and the unknown expense of electrification, have played the game for their interest, while the representatives of the public have done their best also. Now it remains for developments of actual working to prove which side has estimated the future most accurately.

In the debate in the House to-day on the members' salary bill on the question of passing it over the veto, there was a sharp attack upon the newspaper critics of the Legislature. Norman H. White of Brookline was the particular member with most blood in his eye and he said that he realized that he would be scored by the editors when he could not even lift his hand to protect his face, but, still, he thought that the truth ought to be said. He read from a paper which he afterward said, in reply to Mr. Conway of Boston, was the Boston Daily Advertiser of this morning, making a savage criticism of the Legislature. White denounced this as absolutely untrue. He mentioned things which have been mentioned here privately as an offset to the charges that the members have a soft snap, saying that there are some who are actually suffering in their economies in order to get along on the salary, as they are obliged to do for lack of means. This is right in line with private statements that members have got down nearly to crackers and milk in order to get through.

PALMER NEWS.

New Telephone Rules.

All Business Lines Muet Be Single or Two-party. An Appeal May Be Taken.

Some of the snbscribers to the telephone service are wondering jnst what benefit they are to derive from the reduction in rates which the company recently announced, in view of certain new rules and regnlations which have been promnlgated.

One of the new regulations is that all business phones must be on either single or two-party lines, for the "improvement of the service." The effect is as follows: Subscribers on an existing four-party business line have been notified that they "may" be obliged to change to two-party lines. These snbscribers have contracts on the present basis with the company, and until they expire the change cannot be made, bnt it is the cnstom of the company in similar instances to nltimately force the snbscriber to its point of view. The snbscribers on the particnlar line referred to are at present getting just exactly the service they wish; for good reasone they all wish to be on the same line, the arrangement proving immensely convenient many times, and they have no desire to change. They also see no reason why the company, having the present four-party line installed and working to the entire satisfaction of the subscribers on it, shonld insist on making a change for the "improvement of the service" when that "improvement" is going to inconvenience all parties on the line. Furthermore, the change—if insisted upon—is going to cost each of the subscribers $5 more per year. It is true that the price of the particular service which they will get has been reduced from the rate which has been charged in yeare past, bnt the subscriber, in being forced to bny something entirely different from what he has been having, at a higher price and—to him—a less satisfactory service, wholly fails to see any improvement.

Other similar changes have been made in the past, with no more apparent justification. There has been "kicking" of conrse, but no action. It is probable however that in this instance, if the proposed changes are insisted in, an appeal will be taken to the State Highway Commission, which has a general supervision over the doings of the telephone company in thie Commonwealth.

Stubborn Brush Fire.

Men Have Long, Hard Fight Wednesday Afternoon in Blazing Sun.

The firemen were given a double dose of heat Wednesday afternoon, when they were called ont at 2 30 for a fire in Bond & Darling's woodlot on the Burleigh brook. The lot was filled with waste material which was "bone dry," and the fire worked in and throngh it in a baffling manner which was exceedingly exasperating. The rnn was made with the anto trnck and all the chemicals were need, after which the fight had to be continned with other means for a long time, it being several hours before the blaze was nnder control. About 14 cords of wood were hurned, but the fire was stopped jnst short of a large pile of lnmber.

Interesting Experiment in Forestry.

H. A. Northrop is conducting an experiment at his summer camp on Nine-mile pond, North Wilbraham, which is being watched with interest. During the storm of last week several trees on a point of land owned by him were blown over; they were not wholly torn up, but were laid partially down, lifting a generons portion of earth with the roots. Mr. Northrop wished very much to save the trees and has managed to tip them back into place again, and as they are close to the shore of the pond expects that they will derive enongh moisture to make a live of it. Photographs "Before and after" have been taken.

Two Sunday School Picnics.

The Congregational and Universalist Snnday schools picnicked at Evergreen Park, State Line, on Tuesday, abont 125 attending in spite of the heat. The temperature at the picnic point was reported as "not very bad," and all who attended seemed to enjoy the day to the fnll. Yesterday the Baptist Snnday school also picnicked there, with over a hundred in attendance and cooler weather than the first of the week. There was among other sports, a ball game between the single men and married men, the former winning by the score of 16 to 14.

On Long Bicycle Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Miller of Toronto, Canada, known as "The Biding Millers," on a 10,000 mile bicycle trip throngh Canada and the States, stopped last night at the Hotel Burns. They came in yesterday from Worcester and left this morning for Springfield. They are a eligbt conple, weighing only about 100 ponnds each, and started on the trip as the resnlt, largely, of a "joshing" given them by their friends. They have ridden nearly 1700 miles since June 3, and plan to work their way throngh the middle West to the South.

Mascot of Sweet Briar Gulch.

"Cute little papoose, ain't he?" was what Bnd, the mail carrier, said abont Ches, the little street gamin who was adopted by Jim Felton, the gold miner whose luck was against him, as a mascot. There are many interesting sitnations in the story, "The Mascot of Sweet Briar Gulch," which will begin in the Jonrnal next week and run for several weeks. The story is not long, bnt full of good things, and no one shonld miss the opening chapters.

Death of Hugh Hanley.

Hugh Hanley, 52, a former resident, died at his home in Thompsonville, Ct., Saturday after a three-weeks' illness with typhoid fever. Mr. Hanley worked in the Palmer carpet mill for many years and had many friends here who were grieved to learn of his death. His funeral, which was held in Thompsonville Monday, was one of the largest held in the church for many years, denoting the esteem in which Mr. Hanley was held in that place.

Two Auto Accidents.

A carriage which was being driven down Thorndike street Saturday afternoon was run into by an auto and somewhat damaged. The owner of the anto settled on the spot.

A woman was knocked down Monday afternoon by an auto while crossing Main street. The machine was going slowly, and the mud guard hit her and tipped her over. She was apparently little the worse physically, for she walked away without assistance or giving her name.

High Price for Real Estate.

A house and lot and two other pieces of land owned by John Holt at Shearer's Corner were sold at anction last Saturday. The house, which is on Main street, was sold to Peter Cody, and brought $2105 The two lots of land were bought by R. L Bond at $450 each. Considering the size of the house and the location of the lots, the prices paid are considered as pretty well np.

Reservoirs Fairly Full.

But Whether Supply Will Hold Through Summer is a Question.

The possibility of a scarcity of water again thie snmmer has been freqnently suggested, in view of the long-continued dry spell and the absence of any material rains. At the present time however the reservoire of the Palmer Water Company are in pretty good condition. The water in the storage reservoir is only three or four feet below the overflow, and this is a very good showing in view of the conditions. This is in addition to the service reservoir, in which about 1,000,000 gallons are kept at all times. The storage reservoir shows however that the water is dropping a little every day, the flow from the brook and springs not being sufficient to make good the daily consumption. The greatest demand for water will come from now until the time for fall rains, and nnless there are frequent and copious showers there seems a possibility of a scarcity before the summer is over. Chief Summers of the fire department and the fire district officials are keeping a close watch on the sitnation however, and will endeavor to see that last summer's experience is not duplicated.

Brick Paving Dug Up.

Question Whether, in View of Method, it Will Not Settle Later.

The brick paving in front of the Eager block on Main street is being dng up to permit connecting the block with the sewer. Only a portion of the curbing is being distnrbed, sections of about ten feet being tnnnelled nnder, and the question is being asked as to how these are to be filled so as to lea e no space next the paving. Where work of this kind is done nnder a sidewalk it always resnlts in the walk settling sooner or later, and there are predictions that the paving will do likewise; on the other hand, the statement is made that the five inches of concrete nnder the brick will hold np forever, even with no filling under it, as the excavation is only abont 18 inches in width.

The E. Brown Co. is installing a new heating apparatns in the fire engine house on Park street.

A special town meeting will he held in the town honse at Four Corners to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Court Palmer, F. of A., will meet next Tuesday evening and there will also be installation of officers.

Regnlar service at St. Paul's church Snnday. Rev. Otto Raspe will take for his subject "Lessons from the rose."

J. J. Fnller of Westfield will he the speaker at the Advent chapel at 3 o'clock. Snnday school will he at 2, as nsnal.

L. S. Record has bought the Bnck house on Pine street, which he now occupies, and intends to make extensive alterations on it.

James E. and Margaret Murphy have sold their place near Blanchardville to Ernest L. and Ida M. Johnson of Palmer.

Charles F. Shaw of West Brimfield lost a valuable horse Wednesday night. The probable cause of death was the extreme heat.

It is nnderstood that two new cottages or clnb honses are to be bnilt at Forest Lake as soon as the carpenters can be secnred to do the work.

D. D. G. S. David J. Brown and snite have arranged to go to Ware next Monday evening and raise the chiefs of Nenamesack tribe of Red Men of that place.

The fnneral of Benjamin Sanford, who was taken to Springfield last week for an operation for appendicitis, was held from Phillips' nndertaking rooms Wednesday. Bnrial was in Waterloo, Can.

An antolst from Gilbertville was overcome by the heat Sunday afternoon and was taken to Dr. Chase's office for treatment. He was in a serious condition and it was some time before he recovered.

The subject of the sermon in the Baptist church next Snnday morning will be "Glory in gloom." Bible school at 12, evening worship 7 to 8; sermon, snbject, "The modern society of Ananias." All are invited.

Unusual Furniture Sale.

Meekine, Packard & Wheat of Springfield announce in another column the opening of their midsnmmer furniture sale, the biggest and most important offering of high-grade furnitnre at extreme money-eaving prices ever announced in Western New England. At actnal eavings of from one-qnarter to one-half on regnlar prices they offer $100,000 worth of the best furnitnre made in America, $25,000 worth of thle furnitnre being brand new, straight from the factories. For several seasons Meekine, Packard & Wheat have offered to their mannfactnrers the opportunity to dispose of their surplus stocks in these semi-annnal clearances, and by means of their coöperation they have been able to donble the magnitnde and attractiveness of these sales. With thle immense purchase of brand new furnitnre the firm includes all patterns now on their floors, which will not be made another season, making a magnificent assortment of fine furniture for every room in the honse at actnal savings of from one-qnarter to one-half on the regnlar prices. In the variety and attractiveness of the furnitnre included in this sale and in the actnal possibilities for money eaving, this ie easily the most important event in the annals of the local furnitnre trade.

Sprains reqnire careful treatment. Keep quiet and apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely. It will remove the soreneee and qnickly restore the parts to a healthy condition. For sale by all dealers.

The Fatted Goat.

There are curious refinements of cookery among the Akikuyu, an East African race of whom Mr. W. Scoresby Routledge writes in "With a Prehistoric People." It seems that the favorite animal for slaughter is a full grown ram that has been kept in the dark under his master's bed for three months and fed on sweet potato tops. "He is the only animal in the country that ever gets really fat, and his tail, wherein his fat tends to accumulate, grows to the size and weight of one of his hind legs."

A SEA SECRET

Illustrating the Fact That Dead Men Tell No Tales

By D. Thorne Taylor

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Ever since the Spanish war was fought I have kept a secret events that occurred at its inception, though they have weighed heavily on my conscience. I have refrained from giving it, partly lest by doing so I might be forced to pay the penalty of crimes I was forced to commit and partly from a dislike to inflict needless pain on those who might better never know how loved ones supposed to have been lost at sea really perished. And now, realizing that there will come a day when those most intimately connected with these unfortunates shall themselves have passed away and the record be read only by another generation, I have decided to put it in writing to ease my conscience and that it may be perused by those whom it may concern.

At the end of the last century I was engineer on the Mary Blane, a small steamer used for bringing Japanese goods to America, returning loaded with American supplies to be sold in the island empire. On our way home from one of these trips we touched at Singapore.

On leaving Singapore we had got well away from land when I received an order to put on more speed. I did so and was jogging along at a pretty good rate when I got another order to run her for all she was worth. I told the stokers to heave in more coal, opened all the drafts and turned on all the steam she would bear. At that moment the first mate came down the iron steps white as a sheet and told me that we were pursued by a suspicious looking craft, and, though she flew the British flag, the captain was sure she was run by Asiatics. She was a sailer, junk built, and since a stiff breeze was blowing she was making about as good headway as we. We were moving against the wind, while the other was crossing it, thus getting all the benefit from it that was possible. She stood between us and the land so we couldn't run in. Her object was to reach a given point as soon as we.

What we should have done was to turn back as soon as we suspected the craft, but the captain, not really knowing she was a pirate, thought we could pass her and thus save delay. He reckoned wrong. The first thing I knew of what real danger we were in was hearing a boom. Then I got an order from above to shut off steam.

Looking out of my porthole, I saw the villainous looking thing sailing in a course to head us off, while a lot of copper colored rascals aboard of her were raising a skull and crossbones flag in place of the union jack of England, which had been hauled down. Moreover, some masked portholes had been opened and half a dozen small guns run out.

It was plain to me that all was up with us. Not a soul came down into the engine room to tell me anything, but since I could see for myself what was going on I knew they were all paralyzed with fear. I would not leave my post, first, because there was nothing to be gained by doing so, and, second, I might at any time receive an order.

The pirate passed to a point where I couldn't see her, but it was not long before I heard a tramping on deck that told me we were boarded, and down came a couple of swarthy Malays, who covered me, the one with a revolver, the other with a cutlass. The man who covered me with a cutlass spoke enough English to tell me that I was to stay where I was and run the engine. Two other men came down, and one of the first two went on deck. I knew by his bearing that he was the commander and the other was his interpreter.

Nothing can induce me to give an account of the incidents that occurred during the next half hour. Thank heaven I did not witness them. I will only say that the crew, excepting Jack Coyne and a Swede, Jacobson, who begged to be allowed to join the pirate gang, and I, were forced to walk the plank. There were also several passengers, whose names I will give in a separate paper, who shared the same fate.

While our vessel was not much of a craft, it was far better than that of our captors, having the advantage of steam power, and they decided to scuttle the sailer and use the steamer. This they did during the night, which was coming on, and in the morning the Mary Blane was sailing on, to all outward appearances, as if nothing had happened. The pirates gave other ships as wide a berth as possible and when unable to do so kept only the two men of our crew whose lives had been spared on deck.

And so it was that we three white men were forced to obey the orders of some twenty copper colored devils, thus enabling them to attract small boats, murder the occupants and appropriate anything of value found in them. No ship of any importance was attacked. When we were spoken by such Coyne or Jacobson was forced to run up signals stating that we were the Mary Blane of New York, homeward bound, and all was well aboard. The murders we saw committed and indirectly helped to commit haunt me and will always haunt me. My two other white companions in misery and iniquity were often compelled to do these things directly. The stain on my own conscience is that had I refused to run the engine and been shot down for my disobedience of orders the pirates would have been obliged to run her ashore or abandon her for a captured sailer, for there was not an engineer among them.

One afternoon late in June, 1898, we were cruising off the island of Formosa. I was so worn with my condition that I showed signs of breaking down. Through the interpreter I asked permission to be permitted to go on deck for fresh air. My life being necessary to my masters, their captain consented that Jacobson should come down into the engine room, and since there was nothing of importance to do there I should go up, being ready for a call from below if my services were needed.

We were steaming along northward at about six knots when I saw on the horizon a faint line that looked like smoke. There were but few of the pirates on deck, most of them being below drinking liquor that had been captured the day before. Those on deck had been drinking, but were considered able to keep watch over the white members of the crew. But they were not sufficiently in control of their faculties to notice the line of smoke on the horizon or they would have called their captain's attention to it. Meanwhile there appeared under the smoke certain black dots. They were nearly quidistant, and over each I could soon distinguish a thin film leading to the cloud above. The dots grew larger, and it was evident that we and they were drawing nearer together.

Glancing aside, I saw Coyne, who was busy over some cordage, standing looking at what had arrested my attention. We dared not speak to each other, but he cast a meaning glance at me. Then I looked about at the Malays. One was sitting on the deck with his back against the gunwale, another was dozing in a hammock, while a third was walking about unsteadily.

I gave Coyne a meaning look, combined first of a glance at what was approaching, second of one at the Malays and third at a companionway. What all this was meant to convey was a suggestion that steamers were approaching, that we might overpower the three pirates, close the companionway and signal for assistance. Coyne, who was desperate, understood and showed by looks and pantomime that he was eager for the attempt.

Realizing that we would need Jacobson, I went down into the engine room, where he was without guard, and told him of our plan. I also agreed with him that he should come up as near as possible to the deck without being seen and be ready to shut and bolt the companionway doors while Coyne and I were overpowering two of the Malays. Just how we were to do this must depend upon circumstances. Coyne was a powerful fellow, I was reduced by illness, and Jacobson was small, but wiry.

By this time the coming ships were to be made out as a fleet of war vessels. Had we been up with the times we would have recognized them as the fleet of Admiral Dewey, which had left Hongkong to attack Manila. They were still a good distance from us; but, fearing some of the pirate crew would see them and steam out of their path, we dared not put off our attempt. Resuming my place on deck, by signs, chiefly looks, I conveyed to Coyne that he was to tackle the man sitting on the deck and try to throw him overboard, while I folded the one asleep in his hammock till Coyne could come and dispose of him. Jacobson was to dash out of hiding and close the doors.

Coyne and I both walked toward the two pirates. He suddenly picked up his man and without much of a struggle got him over the gunwale. I had barely bound my captive in his hammock when Coyne came, and, loosening the hammock at each end, we carried the man in it to the side of the ship and dropped him over. While we were doing this Jacobson, who had been on the watch, made a dash at the companionway doors, closed and fastened them. This left the three of us on deck with one enemy. Seeing that he was too late he ran forward, chased by Coyne and Jacobson, who caught him and served him as his two companions had been served.

Within a couple of minutes we had secured possession of the ship. Coyne was about to run for the signal flags when I stopped him.

"It has often occurred to me," I said, "that if we were taken we three would be hanged for piracy with the others. We have the ship safe enough. Suppose we let these vessels pass. We may save our necks by doing so."

Since I was the only skilled man of the three the others agreed to follow my suggestion. The pirates were confined within the forward part of the ship, having no access to the other parts, while we had free descent to the engine room.

I shrink from giving the last part of the story, which was inspired partly by vengeance and partly with the knowledge that dead men tell no tales. We let the fleet pass us without much interest in it, we being engrossed by our own affairs. Then we scraped together all the combustibles we could find and made them ready to be fired. A boat was lowered, and, applying a match to our kindling, we went down the side and into the boat. As we pulled for land we saw the flames shoot up from the Mary Blane and heard the shrieks of the men who had forced our companions to walk the plank.

Reaching the shore, we separated, each bound by an oath to say nothing about our experience.

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Martin M. Lomasney said in debate to-day that he had never seen a governor who had less influence with the Legislature than Gov. Foss has with this Legislature. Yet he went ont of his way to defend the governor from criticism by Mr Underhill when he said that the governor seemed to be playing for votes by the misstatements in his messages. But the Senate and House were making havoc with the vetoes and it was a bad day for the governor. Afterward the veto of the Essex Agricultural School bill was sustained by 118 yeas to 67 nays, not the necessary two-thirds, so the day ended better for the governor than it seemed when Lomasney made his remarks. The governor's tax message, to make laws with teeth in them, shows how tenaciously he sticks to his point.

The House committee on ways and means has reported favorably the Senate bill for the better prevention of forest fires. This bill is right in line with the efforts of the state forester. The state board of trade and the Boston chamber of commerce have taken up the matter. Massachusetts suffers enormous losses every year by reason of forest fires. Yet, there is no easier way of making money than by protecting the forests and letting them grow. If we had a system of scientific forestry, it was said in debate to-day, the state could cut a crop of timber every year worth $25,000,000 and then leave the forests in better condition at the end of each year than at the year's beginning. The importance of developing the forest industry is the reason for the favorable vote in the House to-day, with short debate and little opposition, of the constitutional amendment to permit the Legislature to pass laws which will encourage forestry. The purpose of the amendment is to enable local assessors to relax on their taxation until the forest becomes big enough to cut for market. The present tax laws compel farmers to cut the trees altogether too early. Otherwise they could not afford to pay the yearly taxes.

President Treadway still insists that the Legislature can be prorogued Saturday, but the prospect is not at all favorable. The Senate is still postponing. The governor's tax message has just come in. The entire railway consolidation for Boston has yet to be taken up in the House and the prospect is bad. Prorogation late Saturday night is a fate which experienced legislators avoid ever since the Senate sat till 6 30 Sunday morning and then had to go home and come back again. LANDON

Bridge Contract Awarded.

The contract for the building of the State street bridge, voted on at the special town meeting early in June, has been awarded to the W. N. Flynt Granite Company of this town. The bridge is to be constructed of granite at the cost of $2000. All bids received by the selectmen were rejected because of the fact that they were all more than the appropriation. The specifications in the contracts called for cut stone, but this was abandoned and the contract was given to the Granite Company. The work is to begin at once and will be completed on or before August 25th.

Union Sunday School Picnic Next Week.

A union picnic of the Methodist, Universalist, Silver Street and State Line Sunday schools will be held next Tuesday at Evergreen Park. Trains on the Central Vermont railroad will leave Monson at 10 a. m and 1.30 p. m. for the grove. An interesting program of entertainment is being arranged. If stormy Tuesday, the picnic will be held on Wednesday. An especially good time is expected and the public is cordially invited.

Thursday afternoon the retail stores closed at 1 o'clock for the clerks' half holiday. They will continue to close during July and August.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Foley and son, who have been spending a week with Mrs Mary Foley on North Main street, have returned to their home in Boston.

Mrs. G. E. Billings and son Henry of Washington street and Thomas Faulkner of High street are spending a two-weeks' vacation at Vinal Haven, Me.

Miss Hattie Manley, organist at the Methodist Episcopal church, is taking a month's vacation. Miss Blanche Upham of Three Rivers is substituting for her.

Mr. and Mrs R. B. Banford have returned from their wedding trip and are at the home of Mrs. Banford's parents, Mr and Mrs. Charles Merrick on Main street.

Robert K Squier and Ralph M. Lull, who have been camping in Wales, have returned. Mr. Lull has accepted a position with the A. M. Able Lumber Co. in Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs Richard Coltman and Miss Blanche Coltman, who have been visiting at the home of Harry Rogers on Lincoln street, have returned to their home in Springfield.

Mrs. Bruno Ritter was overcome by the heat in the millinery store of the Misses Gavin on Main street Monday afternoon. She was attended by a physician and removed to her home on North Main street in an automobile, and has completely recovered.

Dr. Edgar C. Abbott of Boston will deliver Shakespearian lectures and readings at the Quaboag Country clubhouse Friday afternoon, July 21, and Tuesday afternoon, July 25, at 3 30 o'clock. The subject on the first date will be "Hamlet," and on the second will be "The Merchant of Venice."

The intense heat of the early part of the week caused a discontinuance of the work at the W. N. Flynt granite quarry from 11 o'clock Monday until Wednesday morning. At 7 o'clock Wednesday morning the thermometer registered 94 degrees, the hottest that it has been in over 50 years at that time of day; at noon the mercury had reached 110 degrees, the hottest ever on record in this town.

The county commissioners held a hearing Wednesday morning on the re-location of Mill and Thompson streets The commissioners went over both streets and suggested lines that they thought should be turned over to a surveyor. A two-rod road will be laid out on Mill street and from Granite to Mechanic, the west end of Thompson the road will be 50 feet wide. As the rest of Thompson street is only two rods wide the people of that vicinity are desirous of continuing it 50 feet to Main street. The commissioners see no reason why this cannot be done, unless there is a question brought up relative to land damage, which they estimated would spoil the plan. The meeting was adjourned until August 2d.

Cities and Race Vitality.

The Napoleon wars so drained the flower of French manhood that even today the physical stature of the average Frenchman is nearly half an inch below what it was at the beginning of Napoleon's reign.

The country in America today is constantly paying a similar tribute to the city in the sacrifice of its best blood, its best brain, the finest physical and mental fiber in the world. This great stream of superb country manhood which is ever flowing cityward is rapidly deteriorated by the softening, emasculating influences of the city until the superior virility, stamina and sturdy qualities entirely disappear in two or three generations of city life. Our city civilization is always in a process of decay and would in a few generations become emasculated and effeminate were it not for the pure crystal stream of country youth flowing steadily into and purifying the muddy, devitalized stream of city life. It would soon become so foul and degenerate as to threaten the physical and moral health of the dwellers.—Success Magazine.

Morse and the Telegraph Operator.

Immediately after the successful completion of the first transatlantic cable and the consequent celebrations, in which, of course, Cyrus W. Field bore a prominent part, Professor Morse had occasion to send a telegram from a small town in Ohio to his home in New York. He wrote out his message and presented it to the operator, who rapidly checked it off with his pencil and curtly demanded a dollar.

"But," said the venerable inventor, "I never pay for messages," and, seeing an inquiring look in the operator's eyes, added, "I am, in fact, the father of the telegraph."

"Then," said the operator, firmly convinced that he was being imposed upon, "why don't you sign your own name, Cyrus W. Field?"

Professor Morse when telling the story used to say that he was too humiliated to answer.

Armchair Etiquette.

The question of an armchair was once a matter of high state in the fortunes of Prussia. This was in the year 1696, when the Elector Frederick on visiting at The Hague that Prince of Orange whom his father and he had been instrumental in raising to the dignity of king as William III. of England was informed that during the interview the king would be seated on an armchair of state, while he (the elector) would be accommodated with an ordinary settle or stool. In great dudgeon (as Mr. Brayley Hodgetts recalls in "The House of Hohenzollern") the elector rejoined that if he was not worthy of an armchair his troops had at least been thought good enough to assist the Prince of Orange to mount the royal throne of England. Finally a compromise was effected, and the two sovereigns conversed with one another standing.

Injustice.

George White, though his name did not indicate his color, was convicted of stealing a chicken, and the unfeeling judge sentenced him to pay a fine of $10.

"What!" George shouted reproachfully on hearing his sentence. "What! Ten dollars for stealin' that chicken! Why, jedge, I could 'a' bought a smarter hen for 50 cents."—Exchange.

ACKNOWLEDGED IT.

Palmer Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Palmer given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this:

Mrs. Elizabeth Maxwell, 25 Squier St., Palmer, Mass., says: "Undoubtedly my ace had as much to do with my kidneys becoming weak and disordered as anything. My back ached almost constantly and often I was so dizzy that I could not stand alone. The kidney secretions also bothered me and my health was all run down. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I obtained a supply at Lynde & Gould's Drug Store and began their use. They proved to be what I needed, soon restoring me to good health." (Statement given August 13, 1908.)

A LATER STATEMENT.

Mrs. Maxwell was interviewed on June 14, 1911, and she said: "I willingly confirm my former statement, regarding Doan's Kidney Pills. They are certainly a splendid kidney medicine and worthy of all the praise that has been given them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Mortgagor And Mortgagee

The Interest Was Not Paid, Yet the Mortgage Was Not Foreclosed

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

"The only way, Miss Sanderson—at least the best way out of the matter," said the attorney, gathering up papers strewn over a table, "is for you to marry the man of whom you have made these loans."

"Good gracious!"

"The sums you have borrowed from time to time are so large"—

"I don't know who has loaned me the money. It was all arranged through an agent."

"Pardon me. One step at a time. You can't hope to pay off the mortgages, and a very large sum of interest money comes due Sept. 1. Foreclosures are to be expected on the property pledged as security which is"—

"I know all that. Tell me about this method you propose."

"Marriage. Let us look the matter squarely in the face. You are not, of course, willing to lose the best buildings you possess."

"Whom am I to marry?"

"These loans have all been made by the same person, Edmond Eastburn, who inherited a large estate from his father. He is thirty-two years old, about five years your senior, I believe"—

"Seven."

"Very good; seven years your senior; intelligent, handsome and generally attractive."

"But I can't ask a man to marry me."

"I will arrange a meeting for you. It is my business as your attorney to save your property. Leave the preliminaries to me. Mrs. Eastburn, the gentleman's mother, is an old friend of mine. I think I can arrange for an invitation for you to visit her at her country residence."

"Without either she or her son knowing the object of my coming?"

"Neither shall have a suspicion."

"Very well. You have my consent."

A week from that day Miss Sanderson received a kind note from Mrs Eastburn containing an invitation to visit her and to set the date herself. Miss Sanderson accepted and mentioned the 10th of July as the date of her arrival. Mrs Eastburn told her son that she was expecting a visitor of whom she had heard many pleasant things and asked him if he would not like to meet her at the station and bring her to the house. Ordering his auto, he proceeded to the station.

"Are you looking for Miss Sandersou?" asked a young woman who left the train.

"I am."

"You're Mr. Eastburn, then?"

"Yes."

"I'm Miss Sanderson's maid. Just before the time to leave a matter of business came up which must be attended to. My mistress sent me on to say that she will be up tomorrow."

"Well, come with me."

The maid carried only a little hand bag, but something—Eastburn couldn't very well tell what—induced him to relieve her of it. There were but two seats in the auto, so that he and the maid sat side by side. He opened conversation.

"I have never seen your mistress"

"Haven't you, sir?"

"No. Is she young?"

"About my age, sir."

After a pause he asked if the lady was pretty.

"Oh, no, sir. Most people wouldn't call Miss Sandersou pretty."

That evening Mr. Eastburn dined with his mother, smoked, yawned and said that if Miss Sanderson or some one else didn't come the next day he must go back to the city. He couldn't positively stand the dull place any longer. At 9 o'clock he said he would go up to his room and read. Passing the sewing room, he saw Miss Sanderson's maid doing some mending.

"Do you think your mistress will surely arrive tomorrow?" he asked.

"I don't know, sir. She said she would."

He stood at the door irresolute. Even a chat with the maid would be a relief.

"I wish you'd tell me something about her. I'm intolerably bored here."

"I should think a young man would find it dull in the country unless he had some man companion or"—

"Some girl to flirt with."

"Oh, no, sir. He shouldn't do that."

"Do what?"

"Flirt with her."

"Why not?"

"She might become attached to him"

"No fear of that in my case."

"I don't agree with you, sir."

"Oh, you don't! That's very nice of you. I see you have a way of saying pleasant things. Is your mistress like you in that respect?"

"I wouldn't think of criticising my mistress."

"I didn't ask you to criticise her. I merely asked you to tell me something about her to pass the time. Just think of my going to my room at this hour! When I'm in the city I don't go to my club till after 11, and I seldom leave it before 1."

"If you were married you wouldn't care to do that, sir."

"Wouldn't I?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"You would then begin to live."

"Begin to live!"

"Yes, sir. No man or woman really begins to live before marriage—that is, if they don't marry at the proper time for marriage they don't fill the natural course of their lives. They don't develop."

Mr. Eastburn was silent and thoughtful for a moment, then said:

"I believe you're right. Many an evening I go to my lonely room in the city and to bed bored."

"But you have a home here?"

"Here! Why, mother bothers me all the while. She treats me as she did when I was a boy. It's my rubbers, or my overcoat, or a fear that I'll get spilled out of my auto, or something like that, with no rest from morning till night."

The maid bent over her work thinking.

"A penny for your thoughts," said Eastburn.

The maid looked up inquiringly, and he explained by asking her what had set her to thinking.

"I was wondering," she replied, "if a wife should worry about you in that way would it bore you."

"I wonder," was the indefinite reply.

Mr. Eastburn heard his mother coming upstairs, and, not relishing being caught in conversation with a maid, he went on up to his room. The suggestion that marriage was, after all, the only real life for man or woman coming from one who could not possibly aspire to one of such different social position impressed him. Women had said that to him before, but he knew they either wished to marry him for his wealth or secure him for a daughter. Spoken by this humble maid the words had a new import.

As he was dropping off to sleep he was picturing a home of his own with a wife in it, and during the last moment before unconsciousness the wife was the image of Miss Sanderson's maid.

The next morning, while Mr. Eastburn was sitting with his mother at the breakfast table, a telegram was received from the expected guest saying that she was again delayed and would write. When the letter came the writer said that it might be a week before she could arrive. She also gave the information that her maid was not a common servant, but a student of domestic science and a friend whom she had taken into her service. Would Mr. Eastburn kindly treat her with more consideration than an ordinary servant?

"Mother," exclaimed the son, "confound this Miss Sanderson!"

"What do you mean, Edmond?"

"She's sent a lady up here as a maid without telling us anything about it. I suspected right away that the girl was not an ordinary maid. We must change our treatment of her at once. Let her dine with us this evening. I wish to make amends for not having shown her proper consideration."

Miss Eastburn was quite willing to act upon her son's suggestion. She spoke to the maid after breakfast and told her of the proposed change.

"Please give me your name," said Mrs. Eastburn.

"Adele, m'm."

"Never mind the 'm'm.' Adele what?"

"Adele Richards."

"Well, Miss Richards, I believe you brought some baggage of your own I trust you have some suitable apparel."

Miss Richards said that she had and from that moment dropped the ways of a maid. She appeared at dinner suitably but simply dressed, and it seemed to Mr. Eastburn that the whole house was changed. His mother was delighted that something had occurred to keep him with her, since she had been dreading his departure. Mr. Eastburn asked a great many questions about domestic science and from Miss Richards' replies made up his mind that she must be a very stupid student. But since she was pretty and attractive he didn't mind this. After dinner when the maid-lady or maid, whichever the girl was, sat down at the piano and played the most difficult music delightfully Mr. Eastburn was surprised again.

From that time forward the young man had some one to flirt with and thus while away the hours pleasantly. He forgot all about the expected guest or if he remembered that she was to visit his mother hoped her engagements would keep her away indefinitely. Fortunately for him she never came.

During Miss Richards' stay the loaner of surplus funds instructed his attorney to foreclose certain mortgages, the interest of which was in default. The attorney replied that the mortgagor would like to meet him at their office for a conference. Mr. Eastburn spoke of the matter to Miss Richards, to whom he had become engaged, saying that he would decline the conference. His fiancee convinced him that it was his duty to meet his debtor.

He went to the city, and Miss Richards followed him on the next train. On entering his attorney's private office whom should he see but Miss Sanderson's maid.

"What are you here for?" he asked, astonished.

"I'm your debtor."

"My debtor?"

"Yes. I'm Edith Sanderson, the mortgagor."

The young man looked at his fiancee in a dazed manner, while she continued:

"Perhaps you'd better not foreclose these mortgages, seeing that the matter will soon be in the family."

"Well, I reckon not," replied Mr. Eastburn, dumfounded.

Buried Alive.

In the early history of Japan it was decidedly a dubious honor to be closely related to any person of note, for one of the laws at that time decreed that when a person of rank or importance died all the immediate relatives must be buried alive in a perpendicular position around the personage's grave. Their heads were left above the earth, and thus they remained until welcome death came to free them.

The Matinee Girl.

The matinee girl existed as early as the eighteenth century. In Japan girls in those days used to throw their fans and purses at the feet of the "leading man" as he minced along "the flower walk" to the stage. Pictures of these "heroes" were an early product of Japanese wood engraving, and these portraits were secret treasures of many maidens.

THORNDIKE.

PASTOR APPOINTED.

Rev. P. J. Griffin of Holyoke is the New Pastor of St. Mary's.

St. John's parish, Worcester, to which Rev. Thomas S. Donoghue, former pastor of St. Mary's, has been transferred, has during the past few days been divided as was announced in the Journal as intending to take place. The change will take from the care of Fr. Donoghue St. Vincent hospital, St. John's cemetery, and will lessen his burden in several other minor details.

Rev. P. J. Griffin has been appointed pastor of St. Mary's church to take the place of Fr. Donoghue, recently transferred to St. John's, Worcester. Fr. Griffin, who has been in the priesthood for about 20 years, 18 of which has been spent in the city of Holyoke as assistant to Fr. Phelan at the Sacred Heart church, preached his farewell sermon on Sunday and came to Thorndike this week. He will meet the people of St. Mary's church on Sunday next for the first time. Fr. O'Malley, who has been stationed here since Fr. Donoghue's removal to Worcester, left for Springfield this week.

Fr. Griffin, who is a classmate of Fr. Donoghue, was born in Springfield and studied for the priesthood in Ottowa University, Can., at St. Mary's, Baltimore, and at the Catholic University, Washington, D. C. He was ordained by Bishop O'Riley in 1891. His first work as curate was in Webster, after which he spent 18 months' service in Worcester and then was assigned to the Sacred Heart church, Holyoke.

Fr. Griffin is an able speaker, and his Memorial Day address in City Hall, Holyoke, and his recent talk at the Knights of Columbus' banquet are recalled by his hearers with pleasure. During his stay in Holyoke he has won the respect of not only his people but the community in general, being a clergyman of positive character, possessing a kindly spirit but at all times ready to render assistance to the needy, no matter from what quarter. He has been chaplain of the Knights of Colgmbus and Catholic Order of Foresters for years, and no gathering of the above societies has been regarded complete without his presence. In his parish work in Holyoke he never hesitated to speak against a public evil or menacing popular entertainments dangerous to the moral or spiritual welfare of his people.

Death of Mrs. Louise Fortier.

Mrs. Louise Fortier, 80, one of the oldest and best known residents of Thorndike, died Tuesday afternoon after a very brief illness brought about by the intense heat. Mrs. Fortier came to this place 58 years with her husband, John Fortier, from St. Hyacinthe, Canada, the latter having died 40 years ago. Mrs. Fortier was a faithful member of St. Anne's church. She had always been blessed with good health and was never known to have called a physician only when she suffered a fall some years ago at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Bonville. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Joseph Bonville, and four sons, John of Four Corners, Three Rivers road, Dalveni of Three Rivers, Felix of Holyoke and Sandis of this place; besides 14 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren. The funeral was held yesterday morning from the home of her daughter, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. L. O. Geoffrey at 9 o'clock at St. Anne's church. Burial was in St. Thomas' cemetery, Thorndike.

Water Supply Gives Out.

The water supply owned by R. L. Bond has given out again and some have no water supply whatever, while others have barely enough to get along with. It is thought that the water was wasted during the past two weeks by users of the system who let the water run for longer periods of time than necessary in an endeavor to clear the pipes and get cooler water, and in various other ways.

THREE RIVERS.

A LIVELY RUNAWAY.

But Fortunately No One Was Hurt and No Serious Damage Done.

The mad dash of a horse through Main street last Friday evening created considerable excitement for a time, and there was no little specnlation as to whether anyone had been hurt or not, but the sprint of the animal resulted disastrously only to the buggy to which it was hitched. Mrs. Alec Reopell had driven to the power house on the Springfield road with her husband's supper, leaving the horse outside. It became frightened at a passing auto and started for home at a good rate of speed On reaching Springfield street the wheel of the huggy caught on a telephone pole and the horse broke loose, continuing its rnn to Four Corners, where it was finally stopped.

A VERY MEAN FELLOW

By HARRY MENDENHALL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911

They had arrived at that critical period—an approaching engagement. Every indication pointed to their forming a binary system, but the slightest jar might disturb the equilibrium and send both far from each other into space. All weaknesses were carefully put away where they could not be seen, and only the noblest sentiments were exhibited. At this juncture he perpetrated a bit of waggery that came very near spoiling the whole thing.

"What I object to in your sex," he said, "is your want of charity for each other."

"Nonsense! We are no more uncharitable toward women than you men are toward men."

"A woman will never forgive a woman for doing what, under similar circumstances, she would do herself."

"Give me an instance."

"Well, if you were to know a girl that a man had kissed"—

"Not being engaged?"

"Not being engaged—you would consider her impure."

"I would consider that he had wronged her."

"And you would condemn her."

"That depends upon circumstances. What man does the kissing?"

"I."

"You?"

"Yes."

"Who is this girl who has so little respect for herself?"

"As Aaron Burr said, 'I never kiss and tell.'"

"When did you kiss her?"

"This morning."

"Where?"

"Down by the lake."

Her tone was getting colder with every question and her color rising with every reply.

"Had you any respect for her?"

"Lots."

"Have you any respect for her now?"

"Just as much as before she kissed me."

"Kissed you?"

"Yes; she gave me the kiss, but I," with mock gravity, "was too pure minded to keep it. I gave it back to her."

"H'm!"

There was a silence for some minutes. They were sitting in a rustic seat, the man cutting off overhanging leaves with a slender cane, the girl poking the dirt beneath her with the end of a parasol. He had been making love to her, and she considered that this kissing another girl was abominable and his telling her of it effrontery. Nevertheless she was too proud to reproach him.

"It's time for me to go and dress for dinner now," she said.

"I'm sorry you are going away blaming me for kissing this girl."

"Oh, I suppose you men think you are entitled to take what you can get. You have no principle. I condemn you for that and the girl for permitting you. In this case, since the girl kissed you first, she must be shameless."

They had reached the door, and she went into the house looking very sullen.

During the next few days he was so devoted, even loving, that she forgave him. He said he thought she should forgive the girl he kissed as well, but she replied that her part was not a matter of forgiveness, but of opinion. Her opinion was that a girl who would permit any man to whom she was not engaged to kiss her could have no self respect. As to a girl kissing a man under such circumstances, such a girl was not to be considered by the respectable members of her sex.

The flowers were growing more fragrant and the love passages warmer. She was quite sure he would propose, but he seemed in no hurry to come to the point. She was growing impatient to hear his "story," especially as they were to separate in a few days. While sitting on the rustic seat before mentioned she felt his arm stealing around her waist. He drew her to him till their cheeks were very near. He kissed her.

Her criticism of a few days before had slipped her mind.

He did not propose at the time, but she was sure a proposal was coming. Then one day he told her that he had tested her and found her wanting. She asked him what he meant, and he said that he would not approve of a girl who would permit a man to kiss her to whom she was not engaged.

He must have been a very brave man to do that; certainly he was a very mean one. To drop a spark into a keg of powder would be a comparatively safe thing. She gave him just one look, then got up, and, with head erect, nostrils expanded and eyes flashing, started to walk away from him. But he caught her skirt and held on for dear life. She turned to wither him with another look and saw him with a smile on his lips, a half merry, half frightened look in his eye.

"Forgive me," he said. "The temptation was too great for me."

"Go to that other girl whom you doubtless led"—

"Do you know who that other girl is?"

"No, and I don't wish to know."

"She is my little friend Leila. Her age is five. If she didn't kiss me before being engaged to me she never would, for I hope to be married before she is much older."

Peace was declared and they were married, but his wife has never entirely forgiven him.

Another Romance Spoiled.

At the risk of his life the brave man had rushed into the middle of the suburban street, grasped the bridle of the runaway horse and ended the mad race of the panting animal. Then he modestly smiled at the erstwhile fainting lady who occupied the buggy.

"Say, you grinning idiot," snapped the lady hotly, "what did you butt in like that for?"

"Why—er you see," stammered the hero, astounded, "wasn't your horse running away?"

"Back to Punkville for yours!" retorted the angry dame. "Why, you yap, there was a moving picture camera trained on this outfit, and now you've ruined an expensive film!"—Detroit Free Press.

A Puzzled Waiter.

An irate guest at a Chestnut street restaurant called the waiter to him and protested in no quiet tones.

"Waiter," he roared, "there's a fly in this soup!"

"Yes—yes, sir," agreed the waiter.

"Remove it immediately," the man directed, still furious.

"Ye-yes, sir. The fly, sir?" the waiter suggested humbly, and the man glared at him for a moment in unspeakable wrath.

At last when he found his voice again he spluttered forth:

"Idiot! No! Remove the soup!"

And the waiter as he bent over to take the plate away murmured patiently: "Ye-yes, sir. And shall I leave the fly, sir?"—Philadelphia Times.

Curiosities About Fish Scales.

The thin silvery coating of fish scales derives its luster from many minute crystals of lime mixed with a peculiar substance called "guanin." This coating of silver crystals is very easily rubbed off the scales, and in the case of a European species of carp known as the "bleak" the crystals are so numerous that a metallic pigment, commercially known as "argentine," is made from them. The large globular glass beads known as "German" or "Roman" pearls are coated on the inside with this substance. In some species of fish with lusterless scales the silvery lining is found on the inside of the body. A well known example of this is seen in the common smelt.

Its Class.

"How do you like my new hat? Isn't it a darling? Only $10!" exclaimed a delighted lady to her husband.

"Great Scott! You said the hats could be bought at from $2.50 up."

"Yes, dear; this is one of the ups!"

Mild Exactions.

"I should think he would. He's one of the men whose work leaves them about half the day to play golf."—Washington Star.

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich. "I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines." —Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

A Better Campaigner.

Two candidates for the same office came into a certain town one day. The one called at a house, where a little girl came to the door. Said he, "Sissie, will you please bring me a glass of water?" Having brought the water, he gave her some candy and asked, "Did the man ahead of me give you candy?" "Yes, sir." Then he gave her a nickel and said, "Did he give you money?" "Yes, sir; he gave me 10 cents." Then he picked her up, he kissed her and said, "Did he kiss you?" "Yes, sir, and he kissed mamma too!"—National Monthly.

The Story Humorous and Witty.

The humorous story is strictly a work of art—high and delicate art—and only an artist can tell it, averred Mark Twain. But no art is necessary in telling the comic and the witty story; anybody can do it. The art of telling a humorous story—understand, I mean by word of mouth, not print—was created in America and has remained at home.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

SUNDAY LIQUOR RAIDS.

Places in Bondsville and Wales Visited By Officers.

PLENTY OF STUFF FOUND AT BOTH.

Offenders in Court Monday. All Are Found Guilty and Pay the Fines Imposed.

Depnty Sheriff G. A. Bills and Officer T. J. Crimmins of Palmer, with Officers Mansfield and Collins of Boudsville, paid a surprise visit to John Topor of Bondsville Snnday afternoon in a search for the ardent. As a surprise for Topor it was a decided success, for he didn't see them coming and was caught with the goods. Topor lives on the right-hand side of the big pond at the lower end of the village; opposite his residence is a nice little grove, cool and shady on a hot day, and there was "something doing" at both places, beer being found both at the house and in the grove. The latter was in charge of Michael Kasher, and both were arrested. In the district court Monday Topor was charged with illegal keeping and with maintaining a common nnisance. A fine of $75 was imposed for keeping, and was paid; the common nuisance case was continued until Oct. 2. Kasher was fined $75 for illegal selling, and paid.

Officers drifted in on John F. Conklin, proprietor of the hotel in Wales, Sunday, and departed with his stock of liquid goods—and it was no inconsiderable supply either. It has been an open secret all along that Conklin was selling, although the town went no-license at last spring's election; in fact, Conklin made the statement in conrt that 99 per cent of the town wished him to rnn an open bar—but in this he may have been mistaken as to the exact percentage. The officers found a whole lot of stuff, which they removed. In the district court in Palmer Monday Conklin was found gality of keeping a common nuisance and of illegal selling. On the latter he paid a fine of $75, and the former case was continued until Oct. 2.

Widow's Property Burned.

Fire Set By State Boy In Her Charge For Fancied Wrong.

The house, shed and barn of Mrs. Ida L. White of Agawam, formerly of Lndlow, were destroyed by fire Monday night. The fire was set by one of the state boys in her charge, who had been angered by something Mrs. White had done dnring the day. Mrs. White is the widow of Herbert E. White, who was sbot by Edward E. Cook in February, 1910. Cook was tried this year, fonnd gnilty and sentenced to be electrocnted in the fall. Mrs. White moved to Agawam in the spring and at the time of the fire had several homeless children in her charge.

Ware Man Disappears.

Was to Have Been Married Next Monday. Went Under Various Names.

Henry P. Teague, who has been living in Ware since April 1, disappeared from that place the first of the week, and nnmerous people, particnlarly the young woman to whom he was to be married next Monday, wonld like to discover his whereabonts.

Teague entered the employ of the Otis Company last spring. At that time several of the employes claimed to know him, saying that he had worked there some years ago, but at that time his name had been Alfred Leduc. When asked if this was trne, he denied it. Later another of the company's employes recognized him as a man he had known in St. Albans, Vt., named Leaque.

Dnring the time he was in Ware he became engaged to Miss Maria Brunelle of Vigeant street and their banns of marriage were published for the first time a week ago Sunday, next Monday being the day set for the ceremony. He called at the Brnnelle home Monday evening, bnt left early, saying he did not feel well. He was to meet his fiancee at 8.30 Tnesday morning to go to Springfield to buy the wedding finery. He has not been seen since that time.

Automobile Burns Up.

Nothing But Wheels Left of Car on Ware Road Last Sunday.

A fine automobile was entirely destroyed by fire on the road from Palmer to Ware early Sunday morning. The machine was the property of Arthur Guyer, hoss dyer for the G. H. Gilbert company of Ware. When near the junction of the Palmer town road and the road leading past Forest Lake, a fire broke ont nnder the footboards, and in a few mlnntes everything abont the car which was combustible, except the wheels, was consumed. There was not a single piece of wood left on the car. The prest-o-lite tank exploded from the ignition of the gas, and the rear tires were melted to the consistency of putty. Mr. Guyer and his companion were forced to walk to Ware, and returning with assistance, pulled the wreck to the side of the road. How the fire started is not known.

Ware Man Badly Burned.

Explosion of Kerosene Can Covers Baker With Burning Fluid.

Herman Tremblay, an employe in the bakery of Wilfred Gravel on Aspen street in Ware, was badly bnrned Wednesday noon. The bakers were ponring kerosene into a torch which they use for inspecting the ovens. They supposed there was no fire in the torch, but such was not the case, and there was a sudden explosion which resulted in Mr. Tremblay being covered with the burning fluid. He was taken to his home, where he received medical attention, and is in a critical condition. The department was called out to extinguish the blaze in the bnilding, which was only slightly damaged.

The following officers were installed: Sachem, George O. Packard; senior sagamore, D. P. Griffin; junior sagamore, C. D. Myers; prophet, Dr. J. E. Kennelly.

At a recent meeting of the Unitarian society, a call was extended to Rev. Edward H. Brennan of Danvers to become pastor, beginning September 3. Rev. and Mrs. Brennan, who are spending the summer at New Salem, were in town Saturday, and it is believed he will accept the call. The church is closed for the summer.

The body of Humphrey J. Wren was brought to Ware for burial yesterday morning, after services in St. Aloysius church in Gilbertville at 10 o'clock. Mr. Wren died about a month ago in Ireland, after landing there, where he had gone to his old home for a visit accompanied by his son, Rev. Humphrey J. Wren of North Brookfield.

Edward Mercier, 19, of East street, a brakeman on the Boston and Maine railroad, was painfully injured Tuesday morning at Oakdale. He was setting a brake, when the air being snddenly turned on, caused the brake handle to turn quickly toward him, striking his wrist and causing a bad break. He was brought to his home on the 11 o'clock train. The young man had only recently recovered from the effects of a sunstroke.

Residents of the section known as the "Top of Ware" were awakened Snnday morning abont 1 30 by unusual hilarity. The police were notified and Officer Oliver Denis and Reserve Officer Honlihan went to that vicinity and bronght in Aime Lanier, 16, and Bertie Befford, 19, who were charged with drunkenness. They were bronght into the district conrt Monday morning and were placed on probation by Judge Davis for six months. Others of the crowd who were charged with disturbing the peace were Arthur Anair, fined $3; Robert Befford, fined $5; Egide Belanger, fined $5; Joseph Brocconier, fined $3; Orphandis Harper, probated to Jannary 15; William Connelty, discharged.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Gates and family of Plainfield, N. J., are spending the summer at their cottage in East Wilbraham.

Mrs Cassius Seaver and three children of Cambridge are spending several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Addison Bennett on Wilbraham Mountain.

TWO SUNDAY PILFERINGS.

Sleeping Men Made Victims of Light-fingered Gentry.

CASH FROM ONE, WATCH FROM OTHER

Both Offenders Gathered In However, and Settle With The Court For Their Misdeeds.

Sunday was a day of rest for Stanislaw Skznieiz, and he wasn't a bit fussy where he took his ease. Consequently he laid down in the open field over Baptist Hill way or thereabonts, and proceeded to recnperate from the toil of the week. Stanislaw had his "wad" with him, and Felix Pryga knew it. Felix was short of the long green and thought he saw a way to replenish his exchequer. Accordingly he lingered abont until Stanislaw was snng in the arms of Morpheus and then proceeded to lift the roll, acqniring thereby some $30. Stanislaw missed his hard-earned dollars when he awoke, and later Felix was landed in the jng until Tnesday morning, when in the district conrt he was found gnilty of larceny and fined $25, which he paid. Query—If he had no money before Stanislaw went to sleep, whose money paid the fine?

There must have been a wave of wireless kleptomania in the air that day, for in the evening Joseph McCloskey seemed to feel the need of a nap, and that the steps of McGnire's barber shop on Main street was a good place to rest his weary bones. Antoni Krambel spied the watch in McCloskey's pocket and thonght how nice the chain would look dangling across his own vest. It was a short step from admiration to possession, but McCloskey didn't know the difference until he woke up. Krambel landed in the cooler later, until his case conld be heard Tuesday in the district court. He was fined $20 and paid; the watch was recovered and is again keeping McCloskey posted as to qnitting time.

Qnaboag council, Royal Arcannm, initiated four members at the regular meeting Tuesday evening, and ent several watermelons after the work.

A Widow and a Railroad

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

The D. and S. railroad had decided to eliminate a ten mile curve on its line by a cross cut of half the distance. The curve had been made to reach a boom town which had later been fire swept and then abandoned. The Widow Carter, relict of a farmer, lived on the line of the rejected cut-off. It must run between two fields on her farm, and the isthmus was only seventy feet wide.

There was not a doubt on the part of the railroad people that the widow would sell the right of way for $100 or so. One day a company lawyer paid her a call. He was a man of fifty, about the widow's age, and the two had not talked ten minutes before it developed that they used to go to school together as children. When it came to speaking of the right of way the lawyer treated it as a trifling matter. All other landowners on the line had granted it for nothing, but in Mrs. Carter's case they would pay $100 if she would bind herself to keep quiet about it.

"I won't say either yes or no today," she replied. "There's something I want to remember about our school days—some incident of importance that you were connected with. I guess I can think it up tonight, and you can come back tomorrow."

The lawyer departed, thinking the widow a bit odd in her ways, and he was back in due time next day.

"Look here, Sam Davis," said Mrs. Carter as they were seated. "I was purty sure there was some incident, and it has come to me. You know there was a hill back of the schoolhouse at Wharton?"

"Yes."

"And we used to slide down on sleds and boards at recess and after school?"

"So we did."

"One noon you asked me to ride on your sled. Halfway down the hill it upset, and I lost a big cud of gum I was chewing."

The lawyer laughed and slapped his leg, but the widow had a very serious face as she went on:

"And so your old railroad has got to pay me a thousand dollars for the right of way. I'm going to get even for that lost gum."

"A hundred dollars is a big price, widow. It's land that you make no use of."

"But I may decide to make use of it. No; the railroad can have it for a thousand dollars, but not a cent less."

"It can condemn the land under the law, you understand, and in that case it would get it for $10."

"Well, let 'em go ahead."

The railroad company didn't care to go ahead until it had exhausted other means. It would raise its figures, and it would send other lawyers to her. Meanwhile the widow consulted a lawyer in the village. He was a one horse lawyer, but he was posted on the thing she wanted most to know. In certain states a railroad cannot secure the right of way through a dwelling house by condemnation proceedings. If the owner asks an exorbitant figure the value is to be set by three adjacent landowners. This law applied in the widow's case, or soon would. She at once ordered lumber to build a shanty on that isthmus, and within a week she was living in it.

The railroad sent on another lawyer, who offered $200 for the right of way. Mrs. Carter was firm. Then another lawyer and $400. Mrs. Carter was firmer.

Railroads often seize by force what they covet and then fight it out in court. The idea was to do it in this case. Mrs. Carter borrowed every shotgun for a mile around and was ready for battle. She actually fired a charge of bird shot that entered the legs of three trespassers and sent them howling. Then the railroad people got a minister from the village to go down and talk with the widow. He saved his breath, even if he didn't earn his money. The moment she understood his errand she said.

"Now, parson, you don't want to butt into this. Your business is to preach of goodness and heaven and angels. Mine is to beat the railroad. You go right back home and leave me to run things here."

Then the railroad offered $500.

"Just half my figure!" was the woman's reply.

Then they called for a commission of three to view and value. They were three farmers and were good friends of Mrs. Carter. They put the value at $2,000. One of their reasons was that the passing of trains would make the fish in the two lakes very nervous. Another was that the whistles of the locomotives would prevent the widow from hearing her clock strike and might set her roosters to crowing an hour ahead of time.

When the award was made known the railroad company wanted to settle for $1,500.

"I don't want but a thousand," said the widow. "That has been my figger right along. However, I want Sam Andrews to bring the money and tell me he's mighty sorry about that gum, and if it was to do over ag'in he'd help me to find the cud if it took all day."

And Lawyer Andrews appeared and laid down the yellow backs and made the handsomest kind of an apology, and a month later the railroad was using the short cut and the engines were tooting at Mrs Carter as she stood in her door.

LIVE UNDER THE SAME ROOF

Then, and Not Until Then, Will You Become Really Acquainted With Your Friends.

Two households may stand side by side on the same street, two families live within hailing distance of one another for years in the same community, and yet have opposite tastes, sentiments and convictions. The children of each growing up together may marry and, until they reach the period of new adjustment, never suspect how antagonistic has been their early training. This is one reason why the first year of marriage is so beset with briars and thorns. Everybody knows that until people actually dwell under the same roof they do not mutually become acquainted. A single week spent with a friend at a house party does more to promote intimacy or indifference than years of superficial social intercourse.

The touch-and-go meetings incidental to teas and receptions are the merest suggestions of personality, but when one sits day after day beside the fire or at the table with a neighbor, each ceasing to be on guard, real understanding begins. Even correspondence, which to a degree is in the nature of revelation, does not make people so well acquainted and is by no means so true a test of disposition and temperament as the test of living together. During courtship and betrothal an engaged pair are on probation. Without effort each displays qualities of charm that cannot fail to be attractive. The most ordinary speech has a flavor of compliment. The future husband and wife are walking through a land of dreams. Shall the dreams come true? They surely will if on both sides there are fixed principles of honor, justice and fidelity.—Mrs. Sangster in Woman's Home Companion.

The Finishing Touch.

"No," says the eminent actress earnestly, "I cannot approve of the fashion that so many members of my profession have of being photographed continually."

The reporter makes some feverish notes and she continues:

"It seems to me that because one is on the stage is no reason why he or she should consider his or her face of absorbing interest to the public."

She continues for half a column and as the reporter is stowing away his notebook she smiles sweetly and says:

"Here is one of my latest photographs for you to use with the interview. I sat for it only yesterday, so you may be sure it has never before been reproduced."—Judge.

PALMER NEWS.

Sewer Entrance Fees Fixed.

Voters Take Important Action at Special Town Meeting Saturday.

George E. Clough was chosen moderator of the special town meeting last Saturday. The report of the committee appointed to consider the matter of sewer entrances was accepted. This provides for a fee of $25 for each unit or fraction thereof, a single house or two-tenement house being considered a unit. The highway surveyor is to have supervision of all entrances, and a flat fee of $5 is to be charged the abuttor, regardless of the distance from the sewer to the property line. The fee for business blocks was not fixed, but there was an opinion that the minimum should be $100.

Under the conditions existing with the fixing of the entrance price, it will be possible for the town to compel every abuttor along the line of a sewer to take out a permit for entering the same, and a material return may be secured toward paying the cost of the sewers. Charges of this nature may be collected in the same manner as taxes, the property being sold to meet the payments if necessary.

Concreters at Work.

South Main Street to Have Walks. New Crossings Here and There.

Contractor J. H. Rochford of Lndlow is at work putting in concrete walks in several places about town, doing both new and repair work. Included in the work is a long walk on the north side of North Main street from Holbrook street to the Point of Rocks. South Main street is to have concrete walks at last, it is understood, but just how far the work will extend is not known; it is hoped to have sufficient funds to go as far as Chestnut street. New cross walks have been laid across Thorndike street to the high school building, and across Highland street at the east side of King street. A walk from the corner of Church and Main streets to the railroad bridge has been put in this week, and a concrete gutter laid next the sidewalk on both Main and Church streets, the distance being about 40 feet. This has always been a bad crossing, located as it is at the bottom of a steep pitch from the bridge.

State Road Being Repaired.

Strip at North Wilbraham, Surfaced Last Year, Done Over.

The strip of state road west of North Wilbraham, between Nine-mile pond and the Moran crossing, is being given needed repairs under the supervision of D. L. Bodfish of Palmer. This piece of road, originally built several years ago, was repaired last year by coating with gravel and a top dressing of oil. There was too much gravel, or too little oil, or something wrong, for it began to go to pieces soon after the work was completed and has been the bane of the autoists' trip between the Connecticut and the Hub. The gravel put on last year is being removed and the original macadam will be scratched up, then added to where needed, the whole rolled hard and coated with the bituminous oil dressing used by the state road builders. It is expected that this treatment will produce lasting results for the better.

Present Phones May Stay.

Telephone Company Says That Misunderstanding Has Arisen.

Since the last issue of the Journal an official of the telephone company has made a statement concerning the new rules—which go into effect August 1—which will be extremely gratifying to subscribers.

It has been the understanding, and was so distinctly stated by a representative of the company, that ultimately business telephones must all be either single or two-party lines; that after the expiration of present contracts no business lines of more than two subscribers would be allowed. It is now affirmed that the company has no such intention; that it does not wish to force subscribers to take a service which is displeasing to them If they are now on business lines with more than two subscribers they will be allowed to retain that service, it is understood.

Burglars Again.

But They Get Very Little for Their Trouble and Risk.

The restaurant at the union passenger station was broken into some time last night. The burglars smashed a pane of glass in a window on the south side, probably when a train was passing, and crawled in. They secured about $2 in cash from the money drawer and stocked up with a few cigars, but apparently had no interest in anything else.

Miss Alice Oakes has resigned her position in the office of the wire mill.

Ivan Bronlilette is building a house on South Main street, next to his present residence.

The Bay State Drug Company has installed a flash electric sign across their Main street store.

Rev. C. B. Tolman will occupy the pulpit in the Congregational church Sunday. Christian Endeavor meeting in the evening at 6.

Tockwotton tribe of Red Men will meet next Tuesday evening. Chiefs will be raised by District Deputy Irving L. Franklin of Westfield.

Rev. C. M. Seamans, pastor of the Springfield A. C. church, will preach in the Advent chapel Sunday afternoon at 3; Sunday school at 2, as usual.

Rev. T. D. Martin is to hold a service in Workman Hall, Monson, next Sunday at 3:15 p. m., consequently the service at St. Mary's Mission will be omitted.

A number of new books were put into circulation at the public library last Saturday. A quantity of new fiction has been ordered and is expected to be ready for patrons in a short time.

Mrs. O. D. Wells, living on the Brimfield road, exhibits Baldwin apples, grown last year, which are at the present time nearly as hard and firm as when picked and placed in the cellar last fall.

A special car was needed yesterday to carry members of the Eastern Star, Masons and guests to the picnic of the Stars at the Masonic home in Charlton. A very pleasant time is reported.

Rev. F. A. Lane, formerly curate at St. Thomas' church, who has been stationed at St. John's parish in Worcester, has been transferred to Northampton, where he will be first assistant at St. Mary's parish.

The Republican town committee will meet next Wednesday evening in the office of Ernest E. Hobson to decide on the number of members for the new town committee. This is made necessary by the new direct primary law, which goes into effect this fall.

In the district court yesterday John Hall of Monson, just released from a four-months' sentence in the house of correction to Bridgewater for larceny, was detected in removing from [illegible] in Monson articles which did [illegible] him and for which he had Auto Plunges Into Window.

Skids on Wet Brick Paving Saturday. Fortunately No One Hurt.

A wet brick pavement is very well adapted for automobile skidding, as Ralph LeGro discovered Saturday afternoon. He was coming down Thorndike street in a large touring car; the brick paving on Main street had been sprinkled a few moments before and the rear wheels skidded badly. All control of the machine was lost and the front end ran into and partly through one of the windows of the Palmer garage on the south side of Main street. A large pole was barely missed in the passage from the walk to the garage. Beyond a broken window sash and glass there was very little damage, but the chances for a serious accident were many.

Oiled Macadam Giving Out.

Surface of North Main Street, Put in Last Year, Needs Repairs.

There is something the matter with the oiled macadam road which was put in on North Main street last summer, and unless it is given attention in the immediate future it bids fair to give out entirely in spots. There are many depressions in the surface, apparently due to insufficient rolling or packing of the ground before the surface was put on, and these places will begin to pick up soon unless attended to. Ruts appear on either side of the street car track, caused by the many autos which travel over the street running in practically the same track. Something needs to be done to it, and that without great delay.

Gladys May, the 14-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George O. Newton, died at their home on South Main street, Sunday morning of a complication of diseases, following measles. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon, Rev. C. W. Williams officiating. Burial was in Oak Knoll cemetery.

Warren A. Roper has been appointed principal of the commercial department in the Maine Wesley Seminary at Kent's Hill, Maine. Mr. Roper is a graduate of the Palmer High school and also of the commercial department and teachers' training course of the Bay Path Institute in Springfield.

For some time a gang of men have been at work on the Boston and Albany railroad preparing to install a number of new levers in the signal tower, connecting them with switches which are now operated by hand but which will be worked from the tower when everything is completed, and putting in new switches. This week an extra gang appeared to complete the work and make the necessary changes in the tower.

The big mark-down sale of furniture of the Flint & Brickett company of Springfield, details of which are told in another column, is attracting deserved attention. Everything on the seven large floors of this establishment has been materialy reduced in price, and most unusual bargains can be found there. The concern carries everything needed for housekeeping, and deliveries are made almost anywhere by a fine new auto van.

At the morning service in St. Paul's church Sunday, there will be a vocal duet by Mrs. Clara Sexton Crowley of Boston and Miss Carrie J. Fish with violin obligato by Mr. Crowley. The pastor will take for his subject, "Things that are contagious." The church services and Sunday school will be omitted until the first Sunday in September. The pastor will be glad to respond to any calls, weddings or funerals, during this time and his address during his absence may be ascertained from E. W. or F. N. Carpenter.

NEXT THING IN ENTERPRISE

Moving Picture Privilege at Fashionable International Wedding Should Sell for Good Sum.

The promoter of sporting events had hardly seated himself in his modest office when a male person of unmistakably English-exterior opened the door and approached him affably.

"Old chap!" said he, "I represent Lord Harduppe, old chap. I'm his manager and all that sore of—"

"Lord Harduppe, who is to marry Miss Nothynge-Butte, the American millionairess?" querled the promoter.

"The same, old chap. The wedding takes place Tuesday week. His lordship naturally could not call upon you in person, but any arrangement that I may make with you will be quite satisfactory to him, I assure you."

"What's his lordship's game?" asked the promoter of sporting events. "Does he want me to pull off a prize fight at his bachelor dinner, or what?"

The manager of his lordship smiled mysteriously, drew his chair a bit closer to the other's and whispered a few words.

"What!" cried the promoter. "No!"

"Yes, really; upon my word, old chap!" said his visitor. "You shall have the full American rights. All his lordship asks is 10,000 down and 40 per cent. of the gross receipts. You know, of course, old chap, that it's quite unprecedented sociality, and all that sort of thing, but his lordship needs the money, as you Americans say, and, really, it's such a piping chance, he can't afford to let it pass. It will be the easiest thing in the world, you know, to hide the machine among the flowers at the altar. Why, my word, old chap, you ought to be able to book this thing in every theater in your blooming country!"

And thus, for the first time on record, was sold the moving-picture privilege at a fashionable international wedding.—Brooklyn Times.

Small Republics.

Klein-Alp is a diminutive republic tucked away between Switzerland and France. Only in summer is the republic inhabited, and then by miners and cowgirls. There is one hotel, closed during the winter. Another little republic is in Tyrol, between Austria and Italy, and in long gone years was under the jurisdiction of first a king and then an emperor. But in the adjustment of frontier lines the state of Val di Ventino was in some way overlooked, and it promptly organized itself into a Lilliputian republic. It has now about 2,000 inhabitants, living in six villages. Neither Val di Ventino or Klein-Alp have any taxes. There are no officials or compulsory military service. The only industry of Val di Ventino, aside from the farming of small fields, is charcoal burning.

An Economist.

"So you are going into the automobile trade?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins. "About the only way you can feel sure that you can afford to run a car is to get into the business."

Happiest Girl in Lincoln.

A Lincoln, Neb., girl writes, "I had been ailing for some time with chronic constipation and stomach trouble. I began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and in three days I was able to be up and got better right along. I am the proudest girl in Lincoln to find such a good medicine." Mrs. C. F. Evans of Tarrytown, N. Y., is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs H. S. Hobson on Pearl street. Mr. Evans is expected to-morrow for a stay of two weeks

Mrs. Francis Jones of Park street, who has been ill for some time, is improving Her little daughter Frieda has entirely recovered from diphtheria and the house has been released from quarantine.

There was a family reunion at the home of Mrs. O D. Wells on the Brimfield road the latter part of last week, when her children—Mrs. George Maynard and children of Hingham, Arthur and wife of Hartford and Louis and wife of North Ashford—were guests there. Mrs. Luce and son of Hingham have been spending two weeks there, and over Sunday guests were Robert Gregson of Southbridge and Harold Phelps of Ware.

CURIOUS TRAITS OF A...MALS

Peculiar Habits of Flies, Hens, Mice, Snakes and Goldfish, Some of Them Unexplainable.

A fly on a window pane will crawl to the top, fly back to the bottom and crawl up again. This order is seldom reversed. Why, no one knows, it is on record that a fly crawled up a window pane thirty-two times, returning each time a-wing.

Hens scratch for food with the sun behind them, the reason being that the rays reflect on the minute particles. A blind hen will pick grain and not miss a kernel.

Cats seldom lie with their feet to the fire. Usually they lie on the left side. Dogs lie with their fore paws to the fire.

A mouse will ignore a food supply sufficient for a meal and run great risks to nibble at a wholesale supply, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. It will hide at the source of food supply and not depart therefrom until actually disturbed. It isn't true that a mouse runs to a hole at the first alarm.

Find a harmless little snake the length of a lead pencil and provide a box for it in the house, visit it daily, and at the end of three months it will crawl to you for food.

Goldfish usually swim around a globe to the right. They can be taught to take a fly out of the hand in six weeks' time. The presence of other fish in the globe is generally ignored by goldfish. Drop a piece of chip on the surface of the water and it will frighten a fish.

Were Hard to Distinguish.

Percy French on one occasion was staying in the country at a house where the landlady professed to give bed and board for $5 a week. "I assure you," said French gravely, "I was there a week before I discovered which was the bed and which was the board."

Sprains require careful treatment. Keep quiet and apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely. It will remove the soreness and quickly restore the parts to a healthy condition. For sale by all dealers.

GOOD REMEDY FOR HICCOUGH

Spasmodic Contractions of Diaphragm Stopped Instantly by Small Quantity of Powdered Sugar.

Hiccough is a sudden and spasmodic contraction of the diaphragm, determining a brusque shock to the walls of the abdominal and thoracic cavity, and is accompanied by a rough and inarticulate sound caused by the sudden closure and sonorous vibration of the vocal cords.

Among the numerous remedies employed against the disagreeable symptoms there is one recommended by Dr. Petit of Beaumont, France, which, although not really new, is but little known. It has the merit of being extremely simple and is said to be remarkably efficacious.

It consists simply in swallowing as quickly as possible a tablespoonful of powdered sugar without any admixture with water. The hiccough will be immediately stopped. If it comes on again, the same remedy again will be found successful.

What is the action of the powdered sugar? Probably it sets up a kind of reflex action. The sugar certainly plays no specific role in this case, and it is probable that any inert powder would have the same effect.

Dr. Petit has made use of this remedy for some years, and it has rarely failed. Accordingly he recommends recourse to it even when the case of hiccoughs may have resisted all the standard remedies.

Optimistic.

Some time ago there was a flood in British Columbia. An old fellow who had lost nearly everything he possessed was sitting on the roof of his house as it floated along, when a boat approached.

"Hello, Jim."

"Hello, Bill."

"Are your fowls all washed away, Jim?"

"Yes, but the ducks can swim," replied the old man.

"Apple trees gone?"

"Well, they said the crop would be a failure, anyhow."

"I see the flood's away above your windows."

"That's all right, Bill. Thom winders needed washin', anyhow."—Housekeeper.

Easily Ahead.

An Irishman who was fond of the liquor came home one night all in, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch says. Four or five of his friends carried him out to a graveyard, dug a hole and put him down there to sleep off his jag. When he woke in the morning he climbed out of the hole and looked all around the cemetery. "By gorra," he said. "I'm the first one up, anyway."

Austrian Red Tape.

At Kopet near Brux, in January last a miner named Brzek risked his life in saving a boy from drowning. His heroic action cost him a severe cold, resulting in a long sickness. On the advice of friends, he appealed to the authorities for some assistance. After a delay of several weeks he received an answer informing him that he had been fined one crown because he had omitted to place the proper stamp on his petition for help. Austrian red tape could scarcely go farther.—Prague correspondence Pall Mall Gazette.

DEATH OF FORMER CURATE.

Rev. John F. Nelligan Passes Away At Millers Falls.

Rev. John F. Nelligan, a former curate in St. Patrick's church here, died yesterday morning in the Bowen-Kelly home in Holyoke after a long illness. He was 50 years old and had retired from his pastorate in Millers Falls because of illness some time ago.

Rev. Fr. Nelligan was born in Worcester and was graduated from Holy Cross College and Montreal Seminary. He had served as curate in Southbridge, Hinsdale and Clinton, coming to Monson in 1895, and serving as curate under Rev. Thomas O'Keefe until 1899, when he was appointed pastor of St. John's church in Millers Falls, where he remained for 12 years, until poor health compelled his resignation about a year ago. He is survived by two sisters, Josephine M. of Millers Falls and Anna V. of New York, and one brother, Dennis P of this town. The body was brought to Monson this afternoon and will lie in St. Patrick's church to-night. The funeral services will be celebrated to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock; Rev. Thomas O'Keefe, assisted by several other priests, will officiate. Burial will be in the Pearl street cemetery.

How About Tax Discounts?

Because of the length of the session of the Legislature, the local board of assessors has not received the schedule of the state tax, therefore the tax bills have not as yet been sent ont. As the date for discount on taxes expires Aug 1, the taxpayers are wondering where they will be "at." F Q Ball, chairman of the board of assessors, has been in communication with Mr. Fales, assistant commissioner, and just as soon as possible the proper data will be furnished. As soon as it is received the tax bills will be sent ont. The question of extending the date of disconnt has been considered, but the legality of such action is doubtful.

Death of Former Resident.

The body of Rufus Leach of Wollaston was brought here Wednesday afternoon for burial. Mr. Leach was a former resident of this town and his many friends here will deeply regret his death. He was 54 years old and lived here until his business career began. For some years he was employed by W. D. Kinsman of Springfield, and afterwards as traveling salesman for the Nonotnck Silk Company. Funeral services were held in No. 1 cemetery, and the Masonic funeral exercises were carried out. Rev. Abram Conklin of the Universalist church acted as chaplain.

Sick Trees Examined.

Dr. George A Stone of the Massachusetts Agricultural College was in town Wednesday to determine if possible the cause of so many of the shade trees dying in the center of the town. With Tree Warden Johnson he examined trees on Main, Green, Lincoln, Washington and Cushman streets and Harrison avenue. Dr. Stone is satisfied that the trees examined are either dead or will die, bnt is not disposed to give any cause until he has made a laboratory test of the specimens taken. His report will be snbmitted in a week or ten days.

Boy Fractures Wrist.

Charles Imperiale, the 9 years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Imperiale at the quarry, fell from a hay scaffold on the Rindge farm on the Palmer road Wednesday afternoon and fractured his wrist badly. He was attended by Dr. C. W. Jackson, who had him removed to the Springfield hospital, where the fracture was set. He will remain there for treatment for some time.

WARREN.

Funeral of Charles Chapin.

The body of Charles Chapin, who died in Springfield last week Thursday, was brought to Warren Saturday, and was met at the station by a delegation from Clara Barton post of the Grand Army, of which he was formerly a member. The bearers were John G. Leach, George Bliss, William H. Lombard and Robert C. Bestick. At the grave in Pine Grove cemetery brief services were conducted by Rev. William H. Hodge.

HE WROTE THE GREAT PLAY

Friends Praised It, Famous Manager Took It to Read—and Then He Woke Up.

"My friends had always insisted that I could write a great play," said Jordan, "if I would only set my hand to the task. Well, to be frank, I had long cherished the idea myself that I possessed the ability to do something worth while in the way of providing material for the stage. Like so many of my fellow laborers in the journalistic field, however, I found it exceedingly difficult to secure the time which was necessary for the production of a drama. The best I could do was to steal an hour now and then to devote to the great work. This I did faithfully and zealously, and, after two years of study and earnest endeavor my play began to near completion.

"My friends were enthusiastic. I had been fortunate enough to hit upon an entirely new plot, and, if I may say so, I had handled it admirably. Each of the four acts was filled with thrilling situations; the comedy was subtle and insinuating; the pathos was genuine and the interest was splendidly sustained. Having administered the finishing touches, I took my play to a great producing manager. He had an office in a large building on Broadway.

"With my play done up in a neat package I entered the anteroom, where a young man greeted me respectfully and admitted that the great manager was not out of the city. In fact, the young man consented to take my card into his employer. I had waited only a minute or two when the young man returned and graciously conducted me to the manager, who cordially shook hands with me and said that he would be glad to personally read my play and consider it strictly on its merits."

"Yes. What then?"

"Well, just at that moment something fell somewhere, making a loud, clattering noise, so I crawled out of bed and put on my clothes."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Finally Ascended Mountain.

After years of effort to reach its summit, which lies 6,500 feet above sea level, Mount Hothnam, Australia, has at last been conquered by motorists. The other day two motorists climbed up to its highest summit through gum tree forests, and over vast wastes of fern and sand. Fully 100 cars have attempted to climb this mountain but failed. The grades are so sharp that it is difficult in a long pull to lubricate the front cylinders of motors.

The Royal Oak.

The actual tree into which Charles vanished was hacked to pieces within a few years by relic hunters, and the present royal oak at Boscobe is merely a descendant. A salver made from the original royal oak is still possessed by Oxford university, and countless chairs, tables, altars, picture frames and snuff boxes claim to be made out of the same sacred material. Charles II. intended to commemorate his escape at Boscobel by establishing a new order of "Knights of the Royal Oak," but thought best "not to keep awake animosities." The name of the "Royal Oak" has been preserved in the navy since 1664. The first ship to bear this historic name met with an ignominious fate, being burned by the Dutch when they came up the Medway in 1667 Oak Apple day, now little observed except by school boys, was formerly a great anniversary and for long after the Restoration a Royal Oak invariably figured in all civic pageants.—Westminster Gazette.

Busy Bohemian Spas.

Some idea of the volume of business transacted at the great Bohemian spas may be deduced from the fact that the railroad office in Marienbad, which has a resident population of 6,297, receives from out-bound passengers for transportation tickets alone, exclusive of baggage receipts, $406,000 annually.

GUARANTY OF HIS SILENCE

Presence of Masterful Wife In Church Stopped Objectionable Noise Man Thought Was Singing.

Unexpectedly a city pastor who encouraged congregational singing gained a new parishioner. Keen though his delight in hearing his people sing, there was one member of his flock whose endeavors he never encouraged. But the man sang without encouragement, much to the discomfiture of pewholders anywhere near him, who claimed that his loud, unmusical voice threw them out of time and tune.

Repeated complaints convinced the minister that somebody would have to assume the responsibility of silencing the ambitious singer. He decided that the man's wife was best fitted for the job Owing to a difference in religious views husband and wife attended different churches, but the minister knew her, so he called and explained his predicament. She was genuinely surprised.

"Do you mean to say he sings?" she said.

"Tries to," amended the pastor.

She thought a minute. "I shall have to come there to church," she said.

"I shall be glad to see you," said the minister, "but what effect will that have on your husband's singing?"

The look she gave him was more significant than words, and they meant a good deal.

"John will never open his mouth when I am around," she said.

And John never has.

MARY STUART'S BLACK PEARL

Story of Accidental Recovery of the Scottish Queen's Necklace in a Little Shop.

A remarkable story appears in a Paris contemporary of the discovery of the black pearl necklace of Mary Queen of Scots, which disappeared on February 8, 1587. We give the story as we find it.

A lady cyclist had a mishap with the cord of her pince-nez while touring in an obscure town in Scotland. The lady pulled up at the general shop and tried to replace the cord. The shopkeeper, not having a suitable cord, told the lady he would take the wire from an old necklace which he showed her.

She, being struck with it, said she would buy it at the price asked—12s. 6d.—and do as best she could for a cord. On reaching her lodgings the lady cleaned the pearls and was struck with their beauty.

The lady's next procedure was to submit the necklace to an expert jewelry, who pronounced the pearls to be of very great value, and the Paris contemporary from which we have taken the story says they are worth at least £15,000, adding that on the day of the execution the unfortunate queen of Scotland divided among her women who attended, her ornaments and jewels, including the necklace of black pearls. How it passed into the hands of the ancestors of the shopkeeper is a mystery.

The New Definition.

"No, George, I cannot induce papa to look upon you with favor. He says your father took a bribe."

"A bribe! How very coarse! Why, that money which father took wasn't a bribe—it was the dastardly proof of an infamous political conspiracy."

Success.

Teacher—"You do not intend to make a profession of your study of music?" Pupil—"Dear me, no! I only am learning to play to kill time." Teacher (grimly)—"You're doing it."—Baltimore American.

"SEA FRUIT" IS DELICIOUS

Many Little Shellfish of the Mediterranean of Which the French Make Good Use.

Fruits de mer ("sea fruit"), this is the comprehensive name by which the numerous little shellfish of the Mediterranean are known; the term, affectionate if you will, which the French use in speaking of these contributions of the sea which are at their best in Marseilles and all along the Riviera, over the border into sunny Italy.

Marseilles is the great fish market of southern France and Leghorn of northern Italy, while Naples of course is the center for southern Italy. Along the quays of all three cities an epicure on his rambles will find much of interest and many a new sensation for his palate.

Bouillabaisse, even before it was made famous in literature by Thackeray, was considered the piece de resistance of southern France and matelotte de poisson a close second. But for my part the most luscious morsels of the fruits of the blue Mediterranean are the little shellfish which are sold from the booths along the quays or in the open air kitchens where amid odors of garlic and oil, a whiff of the salt air from the sea and of great masses of wet seaweed upon which the shellfish are temptingly arranged make the nostrils dilate even as the sight of the seductive wares tickle the palate and force one to stop and investigate.—Epicure.

Never leave home on a journey without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed and cannot be obtained when on board the cars or steamships. For sale by all dealers.

Too Much Ceremony.

A Cincinnati drummer happened to be put at a table at Columbus with a number of legislators, and the courtly way in which they addressed each other greatly bored the commercial traveler. It was: "Will the gentleman from Hardin do this?" and "the gentleman from Franklin do that?" They invariably spoke to each other as the gentleman from whatever county they happened to hail from.

For 10 or 15 minutes the drummer bore it in silence

Then he suddenly crushed the statesmen by singing out in stentorian tones to the waiter: "Will the gentleman from Ethiopia please pass the butter!"

That ended the "gentleman from" business.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Physical Limitations.

There was a very stupid play presented early in the New York season, an "adaptation" it was called by the author. Even the best-natured critics went away in disgust. One newspaper representative turned to another and said: "If this jumble had been presented on the other side of the water it would have been hissed. As there were a lot of foreign visitors present I wonder that it was not."

"It really is a wonder," was the other's reply. "I would like to have hissed myself, but—you can't yawn and hiss at the same time."—Metropolitan Magazine.

Crowded Off.

"Does he stand on his dignity?"

"No He says too many other people show a disposition to step on it."

OVERTAXED.

Hundreds of Palmer Readers Know What It Means.

The kidneys are overtaxed;

Have too much to do.

They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, weariness, headache.

Early symptoms of kidney ills.

Urinary troubles, Bright's disease follow.

A Palmer citizen tells here a reliable remedy for kidney ills.

G. Wood, State Ave., Palmer, Mass., says: "Abont five years ago I was suddenly attacked by a dull pain across the small of my back and I had too frequent desire to pass the kidney secretions. My life was one of misery and the physicians told me that I could not live more than a year. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, obtained at Lynde and Gould's Drug Store and they restored me to good health. At that time I publicly endorsed this remedy and I am now glad to confirm my former statement."

THORNDIKE.

"STINGED!"

Local Outing Party Suffers in More Ways Than One.

A party of young ladiee who went on an outing Sunday afternoou into the woods near Mt. Dumplin met with some nniookedfor experiences, and a few are minus the crowns of their new summer hats as a result. The party arrived at their destination, spread their napkins and prepared for lunch, when an army of hornets broke loose upon them striking them about the head, face and arms in eo forceful a manner as to make them retreat in a hurry, but not before several had been "stung" in rather a severe mauner. In trying to beat off the intruders the young ladies nsed their hats, and ae a result eome of the local milliners have been doing a hustling business the past week making repairs on the damaged headgear.

PLAYING IN HARD LUCK.

Players Resign, But Team Will Do The Best It Can.

Manager John D. Donovan of the Thorndike baseball team is having hard luck keeping a team together. Some of the players have resigned, but Manager Donovan is equal to the occasion, however, and with what players as he was able to secure went to Three Rivers last Saturday and put up a classy fast game. Althongh his team met defeat he did remarkably well with his new recruits. The new team will play a return game to-morrow afternoou with the Three Rivers team on the church grounds in Thorndike. Thorndike fans are uot disheartened becauee the home team is not winning. They take the situation philosophically, and while the team coutiuues to play good hall, win or loose, the fans will stand by them.

The Child Snob.

There is a natural, simple and rather high-minded etiquette among children; also is there an unlovely and artificial etiquette among children who have heard and seen too much of an unlovely world; for children can be the worst of snobs. Some little girls, ten or twelve years old, daughters of a rich neighborhood, were found to be examining the petticoats of new children who ventured in their neighborhood to play. Unless their underclothes were hand-made, they were not voted good enough to play in the established set!

A child may he cruelly ostracized for some difference, some lack of clothing or appearance. Do you remember the story of the poor little girl who used to bring blocks tied up in a napkin to school to look as though she had luneh like the other children? But among unspoiled and natural children the child who is different need not suffer for any length of time. A strong character and a sweet temperament will win through any artificial barrier of circumstances.—The Designer.

Wagon Built Like a Peanut.

"Some very grotesque delivery wagone are turned out nowadays," said an Amerbury carriage manufacturer. "Many owners wish something emblematic of the business they are engaged in. There are wagons shaped like bottles of patent medicines, like shoes, like hats and like cigar boxes. There is a man in Old Orchard, Me., whose business is the selling of peanut candy, and he has a delivery wagon built in the shape of a large yellow peanut."

"THE WOMAN'S STORE"

345 Main Street - - - - - Springfield, Mass.

A Great Mark-Down of a Three Hundred Thousand Dollar Stock.

11th Semi-Annual

An Event Whose Prestige and Genuine Value-Giving Is Known to Women Throughout Western New England.

Pre-Inventory Clearance Sale

IS NOW IN FULL SWING.

This sale is without a serious rival among merchandising events in Western New England. It's because of the high intrinsic value of its offerings and its broad scope. Not a stock throughout this store but responds to the impulse that prompts it—the vital need of a clearance to purge our stocks. It isn't a sale for profit, but rather a sale to clear decks for the next season's business campaign.

So Time and Again in Our Offerings Cost Itself Is Disregarded in Our Clearance Prices

Added to all this, in many lines we've averaged our loss by fortunate purchases from manufacturers at far less than production cost. This below cost buying, joined to our own sacrifice offerings, makes this a sale that for great value-giving is unexcelled among sales. Our quotations to-day tell only part of the story—a guide post merely to all manner of great bargains in Midsummer merchandise.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo. "For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl." —Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

GREENE WAS A LUCKY MAN

Hi Lost Five Dollar Bill Found In Two Places, and His Conscience Elastic.

"If anybody but Greene had told me this I wouldn't have believed it, and I wouldn't have believed him if it had happened to anybody but Greene," said the man. "The other day Greeno lost five dollars. When he got homo he began to figure out where he might have lost it. There was a chance every time he took out his pocketbook. He had had his pocketbook in his hand, he remembered, when he left the drug store at One Hundred and Fourth street, and again when he left the florist's at One Hundred and First street.

"In order to expedite the search Greene telephoned the news of his loss to the druggist. The druggist was very accommodating. He promised to put the whole drug store force on the job and to telephone back the result as soon as the premises had been thoroughly searched.

"While waiting for a message from the druggist Greene telephoned to the florist, and received similar assurances of co-operation. In about five minutes the druggist called up. The five dollars had been found lying under the edge of a dry goods box on the pavement and would be handed over to Greene.

"Greene jumped into his coat and grabbed his hat, but before he got to the door the florist telephoned that the five dollars had been found in the ash can just outside his door, and would be held against all comers until Greene called for it. Greene's conscience is of the India rubber variety, so he had no compunctions about collecting the five dollars from both druggist and florist. I'll bet that wouldn't happen to anyhody else on earth but Greene."

A Welcome Change

Smoke curling up from the farmhouse chimney as the men are coming in from the fields, gives a pretty suggestion of a good supper and a comfortable home. But it also means a hot, tired woman, working hard over a blazing fire.

Your wife can escape this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

A New Perfection keeps a kitchen many degrees cooler than any other range, yet it does all a coal or wood range can do. It saves time, labor and fuel. No wood to cut; no coal to carry; no ashes; no soot. With the New Perfection oven it is the best cooking device you can find anywhere.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

The Antalgica

Or Vegetable Pain Reliever

was introduced to the public in 1848, since which time thousands of bottles have been sold each year to an appreciative public, which is a good evidence of its merits. It is adapted to so many ailments it should be in every household, for it cures all kinds of pains both internal and external. For Bronchial affections it is unrivaled by any article in the market. It is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, if taken in season, also for Coughs. It is an effective remedy for rheumatic affections, stiff joints, swelled limbs, sprains, cramps, toothache and many other ills to which the flesh is heir. Try it and it will do you good. It is sold at 25c 50c and $1.00 per bottle by The Bay State Drug Co., Lynde & Gould, and the proprietor,

BURGLARS BLOW A SAFE.

But Get Mighty Little For Their Risk and Trouble.

THORNDIKE MILL VISITED SATURDAY.

Explosives Used, But Little of Value Secured. Cash Overlooked. No Clues.

The big safe in the office of the Thorndike Company at Thorndike was cracked by burglars at an early hour Saturday morning, and so badly wrecked that it will be of little use in the future The cracksmen secured mighty little for their trouble and risk, getting only $5 from a desk drawer, the property of Miss Holden, the stenographer in the office. They overlooked $200, the property of William M. Holden, and several pay envelopes.

Entrance to the office was gained through the window. The door of the vault which contained the safe was blown off, probably with nitro-glycerin. In the vault was a strong box, and another charge tried on this resulted only in blowing off the outer part. The burglars then went to work on the door with a chisel, but were evidently frightened away, as a drill was left wedged in the corner of the box. The box contained about $500 in bills, the corners of some being damaged by the drill.

The men took pains to see that the telephone was put out of commission by plugging the transmitter with soap; they also drew all the curtains in the room. People living in that vicinity heard the explosions, but differ as to the number, some saying there were two and others four. John Riley and Miss Bushman, living across the river on Commercial street, are among those who heard the noise of the explosions. The time selected for the break could not have been better, as it was raining and there was much thunder, which tended to deaden the noise of the shots. It is thought they may have been frightened away by the night watchman, Peter Chabot, who went to the office about that time. He put his lantern on the office steps for a moment and noticed that the curtains were down, but did not enter The tools left behind were taken from the hand-car house of the railroad at Thorndike, the door being broken open in order to get at them.

Automobiles in Collision.

Two Come Together on Thorndike Road Friday Night. Few Hurts.

An automobile party consisting of George Hughes, James Clark Jr., Mrs. James Hughes and daughter Agnes and Miss Mary Donnelly of Providence, R I, were struck last Friday evening on the Thorndike road near the old Foster farm by a car driven by Edwin A. Buck of Palmer, while the Buck car was traveling in the opposite direction. The left rear wheel of the Hughes car was torn off, and the body somewhat damaged. Miss Donnelly received injuries about the arm, and Mrs. Hughes was somewhat bruised; young Clark was thrown from the car, but landed on his feet in the middle of the road, unhurt. The accident occurred at the point where the Burleigh brook crosses the road, and the shock of the impact threw the Hughes car against the railing, but fortunately it held and the car and its inmates were saved a fall down the bank into the brook. The Buck car was not seriously damaged, but performed a few serpentine antics before it came to a stop about 50 feet away.

Railroad Wreck at Ware.

Engine Jumps Track and Rammed Gravel Bank. Car Follows.

An engine on the Boston and Maine railroad, hauling the Northampton local freight, was derailed Saturday evening on a spur track opposite the power house of the Ware electric company of Ware. It had left the yard of the Otis company and was going up the track toward the main line when just opposite the power house the locomotive left the rails and plowing ahead for about 50 feet rammed the cowcatcher into a gravel bank. The engine, tender and forward trucks of the first car left the track, tearing up the ties and twisting the rails beyond use. Fireman William Donnelly jumped from the cab and received a slight bruise on the left knee. The cause of the accident is not known.

Wesleyan Academy To Close Next Year.

It has been announced that Wesleyan Academy at Wilbraham will be closed next year. It was voted at a meeting of the trustees last April to change that institution into a school for boys only. It has been decided that the extensive preparations requisite for the opening of the school on the new plan could not be completed before the fall of 1912, so at a meeting of the trustees held in Springfield July 21 it was decided to close the school during the coming year. A special faculty will be selected and it will be necessary to raise sufficient money to guarantee a first-class institution.

Horse Drowned at North Wilbraham.

A horse owned by F. A. Fuller of North Wilbraham was drowned in Nine Mile pond Wednesday. Fred Metcalf, a clerk in Fuller's store, was getting ice from Mr. Fuller's ice house at the pond. The horse started to get a drink and walked into the water, at a point where it is very deep. Mr. Metcalf attempted to rescue the animal, but was unable to.

HAMPDEN.

Miss Esther Reed of Milton is visiting Miss Esther C. Burleigh.

Jack Stockton entertained a party of young friends Saturday afternoon, the occasion being his fifth birthday.

John Delehanty has bought a Maxwell touring car and intends to carry passengers between Hampden and Springfield.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Mrs. Herbert Whiting and two children are spending two weeks at Revere Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. David Griswold will entertain the Holyoke lodge of Odd Fellows, Cabot lodge, Knights of Pythias and Palmer lodge of Odd Fellows at a basket picnic on their lawn to-morrow.

Rev. Leo Rock celebrated his first mass in St. Cecelia's church Sunday. Music was furnished by choirs from Springfield and Indian Orchard. Fr. Rock formerly lived in Wilbraham, and left five years ago for Belgium, where he studied for the priesthood.

The front season will close next Monday, that being the last day of the present year on which the fish may be taken legally. The fishing this season has been unusually poor; there has been little water in the brooks and few fish.

First Round is Grand Trunk's.

Wins Decision Over N. Y., N. H. and H. at Providence.

The first clash in the courts between the Grand Trunk and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroads over the entrance of the latter into Rhode Island has resulted in a victory for the Grand Trunk. The railroad commission of Massachusetts in its grant to the Southern New England road—the name of the new line from Palmer to Providence—practically compelled the road to enter Rhode Island at a certain point in Woonsocket, over land held by the N. Y., N. H. and H. A few weeks ago the latter road started the construction of a large freight house directly in the path of the proposed new line. The matter has been taken to the courts, the Southern New England road wishing to acquire the land by condemnation proceedings, and the New Haven people insisting that their interests demanded the immediate construction of the freight houses. In the superior court at Providence last Friday an injunction was granted restraining the New Haven road from proceeding with the construction of the houses until September 18, when a hearing of the condemnation of the land is to be given by the court.

No New Station For Ware.

Railroad Can See No Reason For Building One, It Says.

The selectmen of the town of Ware have received from J. H. Hustis, vice president of the Boston and Albany railroad, a communication regarding the petition recently forwarded, asking that a new station be provided for Ware, which is in part as follows: "When the Massachusetts Central and the Ware River railroads exchanged locations at Ware, it left the present station on the property of the Boston and Maine railroad. The two companies are now in negotiation with a view to straightening out this property complication and I therefore beg to request that the petition be withheld until these negotiations are concluded." The selectmen could see no good reason for complying with the request and so replied to the communication, with the request that the matter be taken up as soon as possible.

Horse Killed By Cars.

Wanders on Track and Gets in Way of Fast Express Train.

John Skora, who is conducting building operations on the old Clark Fenton place on the Warren road, is minus a horse as a result of the animal's restlessness and inquisitive disposition. It escaped from its usual confinement some time after dark Monday night, and wandered out on the track of the Boston and Albany railroad. There it became mixed up with the No. 4 east-bound express, passing Palmer about 2.55 a. m., and when Skora went to get the animal for use a little later he found it distributed along half a mile of track in fragments too small to be of any particular use except as crow or fox bait.

WARE.

Died As Result of Burns.

Herman Tremblay, 28, died Sunday morning at 3.20 o'clock as a result of burns he received Wednesday in W. P. Gravel's bakery on Aspen street. Mr. Tremblay was pouring oil on to a torch when the fluid ignited and caused an explosion. He is survived by a widow, two children, Raymond and Erima, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Tremblay of Holyoke, by four brothers, William, Leo and Romeo of Holyoke, and Henry of Willimansett, and by three sisters, Mrs. Oscar McQueen, Mrs. Oliver Bonrque and Miss Bertha Tremblay of Holyoke The funeral service was held Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock at Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, Rev. J. T. Sheehan officiating, and burial was in Mount Carmel cemetery. The bearers were Wilfred Gravel, Leander Letourneau, Frank Brunelle, Edmond Daignault, Hormisdas Gnonaid and Joseph Savaira. The bearers were attended by six members in uniform of the Lafayette guards, of which Mr. Tremblay was a member.

Stole Diamond Ring.

Philip Lareau was brought into the district court Saturday morning on a charge of larceny. Lareau was helping move the household goods of Mrs. David Shepherd Friday afternoon While he was there with two other men Mrs. Shepherd missed a diamond ring which had been on a shelf. She questioned all the men, but all disclaimed any knowledge of the ring and assisted in the search for it, Lareau being particularly diligent. The loss was reported to Chief of Police B. W. Buckley at 3 o'clock and 10 minutes later Lareau was arrested and the ring was returned to Mrs. Shepherd. He was found guilty in the district court and sentenced to six months in the house of correction; sentence was suspended and he was probated for six months.

Death of Mrs. Frank King.

Mrs. Frank King, 64, died Monday morning at her home on Main street after a long illness with a complication of diseases. She had been a resident of Ware for the past six years, having come from Redford, N. Y, where she was born. She is survived by her husband and six children, Mrs. M. J. Cayen, Mrs. Charles Pelkey, Mrs John King, Edgar, Charles and Bessie, all of Ware, and two step-children, Frank and Sarah King of Redford, N. Y. The funeral took place yesterday at Redford, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Robinson are spending two weeks at Great Chebeague Island in Casco Bay.

Mrs. Daniel Nolan sustained a paralytic shock while at her household duties at her home on Pleasant street Friday morning. She was attended by Dr. Ryan, who said the cause was hemorrhage of the brain. Her left side is paralyzed, but her condition, though serious, is not thought to be critical.

The body of Mrs. Caisine Morin, 65, who died in Indian Orchard Wednesday, was brought to Ware Friday for burial in Mt. Carmel cemetery. She was the wife of Octave Morin, and besides him, leaves six sons and two daughters. The daughters are Rose Ann and Ida of Indian Orchard. The sons, who acted as bearers, are Joseph, Adelard, Napoleon and Phillip of Ware, Arthur of Indian Orchard and Peter of Worcester.

HOLLAND.

House Struck by Lightning.

The house of Oliver Howlett was struck by lightning last week Thursday night and considerably damaged. The windows were completely shattered, dishes broken and there was a general upheaval in the dining room. Mr. Howlett's clothes which he was wearing caught fire, although he was not burned, nor were any members of his family injured. A clock was thrown from the shelf across the room and landed in an upright position on the floor.

COUNTERFITTING CHARGED.

Federal Officers Arrest Italian At Three Rivers.

CLAIMED HE MADE SILVER QUARTERS.

No Trace of Apparatus Found, However. Had Been Under Suspicion Some Time.

Secret Service Agent Patrick J. Ahern of Boston arrested Thomasso Mantata in Three Rivers Saturday on a charge of counterfeiting silver quarter-dollar pieces Mantata was taken to Springfield, where he was arraigned before United States Commissioner John L. Rice on the charge of counterfeiting, after which he was committed to Hampden county jail to await his hearing befor Commissioner Rice this afternoon, being placed under $1000 bonds

The counterfeit coins were first brought to the attention of the Springfield police in August of last year. Chief Quilty of Springfield made an investigation which indicated that the coins were coming from Mantata in Three Rivers. He was thus out of the jurisdiction of the Springfield police department, and the information was turned over to the federal authorities in Boston. Agent Ahern made an investigation and then the counterfeiting seemed to stop, and the matter was dropped for a while. Chief Quilty's attention was again called to the matter when it was learned that Mantata lived with Cleto Scrandone, the New York banker, who was arrested at Three Rivers about three weeks ago on the charge of stealing several sums of money from his customers. Mr. Ahern was again notified and he started the investigation, which culminated in the arrest of the suspected man.

Last Friday Mr. Ahern went to Three Rivers armed with a search warrant from Commissioner Rice. Mantata was evidently aware that the authorities were after him as when his room was searched by Agent Ahern no trace of the counterfeiting apparatus was found except a few pieces of lead.

Mantata is thought to have passed $30 or $40 worth of the coin in all and so far as Mr. Ahern could learn had no accomplices. It is alleged that his scheme was to make a mold of plaster paris with the aid of a quarter of the date 1909 He would then bake the mold in an oven and take out the quarter, leaving a perfect imprint of the coin. This would be filled with the molten lead and then thinly covered with silver plate. The utensils used in melting the metal could not be found, and it is thought that Mantata destroyed them when he learned that the officers of the law were beginning to suspect him He apparently did not make the counterfeits continuously, but would make a few and then dispose of them before making any more.

It is alleged that he disposed of most of his coins to Italians and other foreigners. It is unusual for an Italian to live with a Pole, yet Mantata was boarding with a Polish family. The last quarter that it is alleged he attempted to pass he gave to the five-years-old daughter of his landlord and asked her to take it to a store and get it changed. The merchant to whom it was offered refused to accept the money, and he reported the affair to the police. Agent Ahearn expects to be able to produce several of the counterfeit coins at the time of Mantata's hearing. It is alleged that he stole the metal from the Otis mill, where he was employed. Most of the coins are made of lead, although some are made of babbit metal and other soft metals. Mantata is about 45 years old and is unmarried. He has lived at Three Rivers for about three years and nothing is known of him locally before going to Three Rivers.

BELCHERTOWN.

Special Town Meeting.

N. W. Farrar celebrated his 73d birthday Wednesday afternoon and in honor of the occasion a birthday party was given in the "Blaze of Peace" tea rooms. Mrs. Gertrude Thompson made a birthday cake, elaborately decked with candles. An original poem was contributed by Miss M. E. King and the affair proved most enjoyable.

WALES.

Awarded Contract.

F. J. Hynes & Son, the local contractors, have been awarded the contract for the extension of the bridge structure over Mill River for the city of Springfield The contract contemplates the construction of a reinforced concrete bridge, adjoining the present brick structure. It will be similar in design to the bridge recently completed by the same contractors at East Brimfield, although it will be a more difficult piece of work owing to the fact that it is to be built on a skew with the existing structure The contractors expect to start work at once and the contract calls for the completion of the work within sixty days.

Doings of the Legislature.

No Adjournment Yet — Shoe Machinery Move—Ellis Milk Bill—Five Veto Contests—Important Railroad Matters—New Fish and Game Commissioner—Hampden County Medical Commissioner—Frothingham for Governor.

BOSTON, July 19, 1911.

It was by an unfortunate error of judgment that the Legislature has missed two full legislative days, especially when the session is so far along in the summer. But it was supposed that the supreme court could not possibly have its reply on the constitutionality of the workingmen's compensation bill ready till Thursday, whereas it was sent to the clerk of the Senate Monday afternoon and both branches might have gone ahead with regular work Tuesday. While it is possible for the Legislature to end its work this week, yet it will not do so at its usual rate of speed, and the governor is quoted as saying that he has other matters here to keep them later. He is in the midst of much excitement and he seems to relish the situation rather than otherwise.

If the news to-day that the national district attorney is to proceed at once against the United Shoe Machinery Company is not promoted by the activity of our senators at Washington, then some people who see politics in it lose their guess. But their guess is that they say that the governor was likely to get more credit for pushing the case than would be well for the Republican party in the fall, and therefore the national government, which is said to have been working on the case for months, jumps into the fray at once. But it is certain, by information directly from Washington quite recently, that the national government had decided that there was so much other business ahead of this case that it could not possibly be taken up till December at the earliest. Hence it looks all the more as if there were politics in the game. If so, then, of course, it is a game which both sides can play. We shall see, therefore, what happens before the end of the week.

Counsel for the milk consumers' association has been at the state house again today, working for the passage of the Ellis milk bill over the veto, and the results of his effort may appear before these lines are read. It is a hot contest between the different sides. The division over the veto will not be on political lines, for there are Democrats in Boston and presumably in other large cities who will be influenced by the arguments that the purpose of the bill is to save the lives of children. On the other hand, there is presumably a large Republican constituency which is opposed to the bill because it puts such severe terms upon the milk producers and will probably drive some of them out of business. One of the Democrats who will vote to pass the bill over the veto says to-day that he expects that there will be enough Republicans to vote with the governor to offset the Democrats who vote against him, and that the passage of the bill is not probable. The counsel for the milk producers resents the efforts of William A. Granstein, a contractor of Lynn, to make it appear that the bill is wrong and then have it put up to the consumers that they are working with the contractors. He says that Granstein knows the history of the bill from the start. They resent his intimation that they have been trying to put the governor in a hole, but insist that there has been no politics in the matter from the start.

There are contests expected on five vetoes before the Legislature adjourns. On two which were sustained it is said that a reconsideration is wanted, but as a session has intervened, this would seem impossible. Then there are the three vetoes sent in Monday, of which that of the Ellis milk bill is one. The others are of the Foxboro appropriation of $114,000, on the ground that is too much, and of the enrolment bill, on the ground that enrolment ought to begin anew with direct nominations.

Representative Washburn of Worcester is author of two important railroad bills which are still pending One is to give the railroad commissioners power to fix freight and passenger rates. This is a step forward for that department, though similar power to fix the price of product has been conferred upon the gas and electric light commission by the act which created the old state gas commission in 1885 The powers of the railroad commission have always been merely recommendatory, but with so much prestige in their recommendations that they have practically had the force of orders. Charles Francis Adams, who was one of the earliest railroad commissioners, is still of opinion that it is best to leave the law as at present, but Washburn believes that the time has come when the law ought to have real teeth in it. Mr. Washburn's other bill is for the connection of the New Haven railroad south of Boston with the Boston and Maine on the north, by means of a tunnel under the harbor to East Boston. There is one to make prorogation by Saturday night difficult.

Delay in prorogation hampers the plans of the candidates for governor on the Republican side. Speaker Walker has had plans for a beginning of his campaign in Berkshire. He is down for a speech in Great Barrington and for another in Pittsfield, which are not to be political, but after they have been delivered, he expects to take his automobile for a tour of the county. But he is tied here. President Treadway has the Red Lion Inn and Heaton Hall in Stockbridge to manage, and this late session takes him away from his guests just at the time when he is most needed. Hence it is to be expected that the presiding officers will hasten prorogation.

Gov. Foss's nomination this afternoon of George H. Graham of Springfield to be a member of the commission on fisheries and game in the place of John W. Delano of Marion brings to an end—if the nomination is confirmed, as it presumably will be—a long contest over the board. Gov. Draper was firmly of opinion that the board should have only a single head. Gov. Foss came to the same conclusion. Friends of the commission all over the state, especially the sportsmen, favored a single-headed commission. But the influences in favor of the present board were too strong. There was a bill in the Legislature to make the desired change, but it had very little support and the three-headed commission became fixed too strongly to be overthrown. Then Gov. Foss, accepting the situation, after having given Delano, Republican, a lease of official life far beyond his term, brought the uncertainty to an end to-day. Graham is a Democrat, but a Springfield man says he is not enough of a politician to make any difference with anybody. But he is acceptable to all parties who want a good commissioner.

It was a queer case to-day about the medical commissioner for Hampden

PALMER NEWS.

Forest Lake Attractions.

The theatre attraction at Forest Lake this week has been a "coon" show, and it is a good one. The best evidence of its character and popularity is the crowds which have attended nights, seats being at a premium nearly every evening. On Sunday Harry Smith, the rival of Houdini, will give free exhibitions of releasing himself from straightjackets, handcuffs, and other apparently secure restrictions, including escape from a barrel of water securely locked. Next week's theatre attraction will be the Columbia stock company, in the season's latest shows, with Capt Hinman's life saving dogs as a free feature.

Two Forest Fires Sunday.

The firemen were called npon to pnt ont two forest fires Snnday afternoon. The first was on land of G. E. Buck and little damage was done. The fire first started at the foot of Oak Knoll on Thorndike street, and was blazing fiercely when a passenger on an electric car alighted and with the assistance of several small boys managed to stop the blaze after a hard fight. The fire sprang np again later and the firemen were called by telephone. The other fire was on land of Mrs. Ella King Ogle at Palmer Center, and about ten acres were burned over, with a considerable loss. No alarm was rnng for either blaze

Red Men On War Path Foiled.

The newly-elected chiefs of Tockwotton tribe of Red Men were not raised Tnesday night as expected. The district deputy and suite started from Westfield in an auto, and all went well until about four miles this side of Springfield, when the car broke down. With the delay in getting back to the city and getting repairs made and started again, it was about the next day before the party finally landed in Palmer. Meanwhile, with no word as to what had happened, the local chiefs and warriors had gone home and gone to bed.

Death of Former Resident.

The body of Mrs. W. J Smith of East Providence, R. I., was brought to Palmer Wednesday noon for burial in Oak Knoll cemetery. Mrs. Smith was a former resident of Palmer and was a prominent member of the Baptist church. She leaves besides her husband, one son, Harold, and two daughters, Vera and Iva Smith. Rev. W. L. Jennings of Brimfield officiated at the grave. The bearers were Arthur E Fitch, Fred Hollingsworth, Edward B. Taylor and Henry M. Bliss.

Horses at the Driving Park.

The driving park presents a lively appearance on pleasant forenoons, with the horses which are being trained there for the fall races. D. S. Kennedy of Ware is there with "Baronella," "Belle Archer" and "Sam McKenna," and others bring their animals there for working out on the track. There are some lively brnshes in a friendly way between the drivers. It is prohable that more horses will be trained there before the snmmer is over.

Serial Story Starts This Week.

For reasons beyond control the Jonrnal was nnable to begin last week the promised serial, "The Mascot of Sweet Briar Gulch," and omitted to make announcement of the delay. The sanitarinm which has been conducted by Mr. and Mrs Ivor Morris on School street has been closed and they have gone to their former home in Northampton.

The recent showers have done a wonderful amonnt of good to all vegetation, and crops are looking much better than the most sangnine had hoped for. Monday's rain, which continned all the forenoon, was the best this section has seen for many weeks

Rev. S. A. Barrett of Springfield will occupy the pulpit at the Congregational church next Snnday morning at 10 45 Christian Endeavor meeting at 6. Miss Bertha A. Hastings will give an interesting report of the international convention at Atlantic City, N J.

The old Washington Elm on the Wilbraham road near the Overlook stock farm was damaged during the recent high wind. Several large branches were broken off and another was so badly cracked that it had to be removed. The tree has been carefully pruned and the scars painted to protect it from the weather. This ancient tree is supposed to he 200 years old, and is one of the town's most valnable relics.

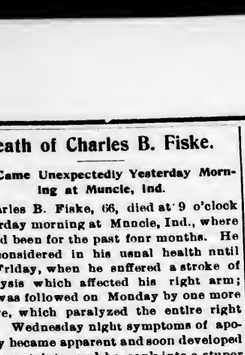
Dr M. J. Dillon has opened an office in Springfield at 182 State street. Dr. Dillon is a Palmer boy and his many friends in this town are gratified to learn that he has decided to locate near this town. Dr. Dillon is a graduate of Palmer high school, and of Baltimore Medical College. He has had nearly three years' hospital experience since his gradnation. That he may meet with every snccess is the wish of his friends in his home town.

Right on the Job.

A physician was driving along the street when his horse took fright and ran away. He was thrown violently to the sidewalk and knocked senseless. Presently he recovered a little from his unconsciousness and, noticing the crowd which had gathered about him, remarked: "What's the matter, gentlemen? Anybody hurt? I'm Dr. B. Can I be of any service?"

A Soldierly Resolve.

A soldier, having retired from service, thought to raise a few pounds by writing his adventures. Having completed his manuscript, he offered it to a bookseller for £10. It was a very small volume, and the bookseller was surprised at his demand.



"My good sir," replied the author, "as a soldier I have always resolved to sell my life as dearly as possible."—Lemon's Jest Book.

Death of Charles B. Fiske.

End Came Unexpectedly Yesterday Morning at Muncie, Ind.

Charles B. Fiske, 66, died at 9 o'clock yesterday morning at Muncie, Ind., where he had been for the past four months. He was considered in his nsnal health nntil last Friday, when he snffered a stroke of paralysis which affected his right arm; this was followed on Monday by one more severe, which paralyzed the entire right side. Wednesday night symptoms of apoplexy became apparent and soon developed into a certainty, and he sank into a stupor which continned until the end. His wife was with him, they having been spending the snmmer at her former home.

Charles Byron Fiske was born in Enfield February 13, 1845, the son of Gordon M. and Sarah A (Putnam) Fiske. His parents moved to Ware when he was about three years old, and a year later to Palmer, where his father assumed charge of a newly-established paper, the Palmer Journal; this paper he purchased a year later. The son attended the Palmer schools and finished his education at a private school in Longmeadow, and dnring this period spent more or less time in the office of his father. At the age of 18 he took a position as teller in the Second National Bank in Springfield, where he remained abont six years, after which he went to the Stevens Hotel in New York as cashier and later to the office of the Whiting Paper Company in Holyoke as hookkeeper; after a year there he resigned to take a position as cashier of the Holyoke National Bank. His health failing after a year in this position, he returned to Palmer and beoame associated with his father in the publication of the Jonrnal, assnming the management and editorship in 1878, which he retained nntil 1883, when he accepted the position of cashier of the Palmer National Bank, holding this for 25 years nntil Janusry 1, 1909 Althongh the senior member of the firm of C. B. Fiske & Co, publishers of the paper, Mr. Fiske has done no work on the publication for abont 25 years, dropping the newspaper end soon after going to the bank.

Mr. Fiske was a member of Thomas lodge of Masons and Hampden Royal Arch chapter; also of Tockwotton tribe of Red Men. For a nnmber of years he was treasurer of the Central Massachusetts Electric Company and also of the Massachnsetts Hospital for Epileptics. He was one of the charter members of the Young Men's Library Association, and has served it as librarian and president for a nnmber of years. He was the first president of the Palmer Business and Social Club, and when engaged in newspaper work was for two years president of the Massachusetts Press Association. Mr. Fiske early became a member of the Second Baptist church and has been one of its most ardent snpporters. He has held the offices of deacon, clerk and treasurer for many years, and for over a qnarter of a century was the church's organist, serving wholly without remnneration. He was a Republican in politics, but could never be induced to accept public office of any kind.

Mr. Fiske was three times married, his first wife being Frances M. Calkins, daughter of the late Enos Calkins of Palmer, whom he married in 1866 She died early in 1877 and in October, 1878, he married Mrs. Esther N. Chandler of Rockford, Ill.; they had two children, May, wife of Edgar A. Beatty of Detroit, Mich, and Ruth wife of Frank S. Keith of Palmer, who survive him. There are also two stepsons, Louis E. Chandler of Palmer, for 25 years editor and manager of the Palmer Jonrnal hnsiness, and Norman W. Chandler, a lawyer in New York His third wife was Mrs. M. Jennie Pettie of Muncie, Ind., who survives him.

The body will leave Muncie this afternoon and is expected in Palmer to-morrow afternoon. The funeral will be Monday afternoon at 2.30 in the Baptist church. Burial will be in the family lot in Oak Knoll cemetery, and will be private, at the convenience of the family.

One who has known Mr. Fiske long and well says of him: "He was best known to the present generation as the cashier of the Palmer National Bank, where for so many years his genial smile greeted the patrons of that institution. As a citizen Mr. Fiske always stood for those things which tend toward a higher moral standard and the building np of the community along material and educational lines. Honored by appointment to various positions of trnst, he proved faithful to every dnty that devolved npon him."

The Latin Language.

Latin was one of the original languages of Europe, and from it sprang the Italian, French, Spanish and Portuguese languages. Many words of our own language are of Latin origin. It ceased to be spoken in Italy about 581 and was first taught in England by one Adelmus in the seventh century. The use of Latin in law deeds in England gave way to the common tongue in the year 1000.

PALMER TOWN LEAGUE.

Three Rivers Takes the Lead. Palmer Gives Bondsville a Trouncing.

The games last Saturday have changed the standing of the league in that Three Rivers moves up to first place by defeating Thorndike, while by trimming Bondsville Palmer is still tied with that team for second position.

The Palmer-Bondsville game was largely a running match around the bases, errors, bad feeling on the part of the players and a good deal of disgust on the part of the spectators. There came near being a muss in the eighth when, with men on second and third Fitzgerald struck out; St. John dropped the hall hnt fired it to first, where Maloney dropped it and Fitzgerald kicked it into the crowd. E. Bronillette, running up from right garden, tripped Fitzgerald, who retaliated with a blow and then the crowd swarmed in. When matters had been calmed down Fitzgerald was declared out, one of the runners was sent back to third, and Fitzgerald and Bronillette were pnt ont of the game. Every Palmer player got at least one run, and St. John got a homer, a donhle and a slugle to his credit.

The Three Rivers–Thorndike game at Thorndike took 11 innings to decide, and was a good game to watch. The scores:

Palmer 21, Bondsville 13.

Hospital 9, Palmer Clerks 8.

A team composed of Palmer clerks was defeated by the team at the Monson state hospital, 9 to 8, yesterday afternoon in a 10 inning game. There was a large crowd in attendance and all enjoyed the game, which was interesting from start to finish. The Palmer clerks never played together before, hut after the second inning played an errorless game; it is needless to say that their next attempt will reanlt in a victory. The hatteries for the olerks were Sanderson and Thompson; for the hospital, Morway, Mullaney and Downton. Sanderson strnck out 10 and Morway six. The score by innings:

How a Great Surgeon Died.

While Bichat, the famous surgeon, was dying of typhoid fever he turned to an old colleague who was sitting beside his bed and said to him:

"My friend, I am lost, but it is some consolation to know that my case is very curious. During the last few days I have noticed some odd symptoms, and I am studying them carefully."

"Oh, you may recover yet," said the friend.

"That is impossible," replied Bichat, "and if it were not for one thing I would be quite willing to die."

"What is that?" asked the friend.

"I am exceedingly sorry," answered Bichat, "that I shall not have an opportunity to perform an autopsy on myself after my death, for I know that I would make some wonderful scientific discovery."

An hour later he was dead.

When the World Was Drunk.

Nowhere in all the world today can be found as many confirmed drunkards as there were among the Thracians, the Iberians, the Celts or the Scythians. The man who didn't get drunk every day or two was regarded as queer. The Greeks were moderate drinkers until they began to copy the luxury of the Persian feasts. The Romans imitated the Greeks. Then the whole world went on a mad drunk. It was a saturnalia. Caligula owes his niche in the hall of fame to the drunken banquets with which he made even Rome marvel. The excesses made fashionable by such potentates as Lucullus, Nero, Verres, Tiberius, Caligula, Vitellius and Domitian really began in the days of Pompeii, and they mark the beginning of the end of the republic.—Argonaut.

DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

conuty. Dr. Simon J. Russell of Springfield has been nominated in place of Dr. E. A. Bates of Springfield, Republican The Springfield Democrats were so split up that they could not agree upon any one of three. Then the governor selected Rnssell. Then ex-Senator William P. Hayes came down to-day to say that they had counted upon Dr. C. J. Anthony, but then the governor told them it was too late. So Dr. Russell's name was sent in.

Lieut.-Gov. Frothingham seems to be the most likely of the Republican candidates to secnre the nomination, nnless the situation shifts between now and Sept. 26 The reason is that the activity of Speaker Walker has brought npon him the opposition of some who believe that he has not acted wisely in pushing his income tax amendment on the floor of the House. Walker has been at the front of the agitation. He has made himself champion of a measure radically different from that which the governor favors and which the Senate indorsed nnanimously. The upshot of the debate and mix-np in the House has been the defeat of every form of amendment to onr state constitution and the snbstitution, by the close veto of 88 to 84, of a hill of Mr. Dean of Wakefield, which will pnt a tax upon all incomes over $2000, no matter from what sonrce derived. Bnt the Senate has once rejected that very proposition and it is not to be snpposed that it will recede. Therefore all taxation legislation will be lost. Bnt Frothingham is out of the fray. He is doing the dnties of his office well. There is no doubt that he has the sympathy of the Republican state machine in the personal capacity of its members, though, officially, they do nothing. But the personal cannot be separated from the official in such a matter. Norman H. White is very husy and there will he lively work before the primary election day. In the meantime, since the false alarm abont Louis A. Coolidge for second place on the Republican state ticket, Robert Luce holds the fort, with no danger of losing it, as far as can be seen from this distance.

Death of Mrs. Joliet F. Needham.

Mrs. Joliet Frances (Warren) Needham, 78, died at her home on Main street Tuesday afternoon at 3 15 of heart disease and asthma after a short illness Mrs. Needham was born in Piqua, O, June 11, 1833, but moved from there when a small child to Charleston, S. C, where she resided several years, until she again moved to New Haven, Ct. On October 27, 1853, she married Otis Needham. Mrs Needham was a well-known and much-respected resident of Monson for 44 years. She was an active member of the Woman's Relief Corps and of Quaboag lodge of Rebekahs. She is survived by four sons, George A, William A, and David B., all of Monson, and Wales F. Needham of New London, Ct, also one daughter, Mrs. Sara P. Belcher of Stafford, Ct The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 30, Rev. Abram Conklin officiating.

Sorry, But We Couldn't Help It.

The Journal owes its Monson readers an apology for the scarcity of Monson news this week, but the fault is not ours. It was learned this morning, too late to duplicate the copy, that a letter containing a large amount of copy had been brought to Palmer and deposited in a location to which access could not be had until after the paper was printed this afternoon This will account for the meagre showing this week, but care will be taken that it does not occur again.

Special Town Meeting Called.

A special town meeting has been called for next Monday evening at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall. It is called for the purpose of extending the time on the discount on taxes to September 1. The time originally set was August 1, but on account of the delay in getting out the warrant for the state tax, the assessors have been unable to get the tax rate. The sentiment of the voters is strongly in favor of extending the time.

Allen Wallace of Hartford is visiting friends here.

Miss Gladys Lull is visiting friends in New York city.

Miss Allison Loggie of Somerville is visiting friends in town.

Miss Mildred Adams is visiting friends in New York city.

Mrs. Eugene Cook and Mrs. Luke Closson are visiting in Milford, Ct.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ellis are spending a short vacation at Block Island.

Miss Margaret Dineen has returned from a visit to Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ellis are spending a short vacation at Block Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Barnes have returned from a trip to Providence, R. I.

George W. Ellis and family have returned from a stay in Block Island, R. I.

An Episcopal service was held Sunday afternoon at 3 30 in the A O U. W. hall.

Miss Grace Sullivan has returned to her home in Hartford after visiting friends in town.

Albert Beckwith, employed at W. N Flynt & Sons' store, is taking his annual vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kendall and son of New York have returned home after visiting friends in town.

Mrs. Goldsmith, who has been visiting her father at North Monson, has returned to her home in Milford. Miss Lucile Cadwell, her niece, accompanied her.

The Summer Servers met Monday afternoon with Miss Gladys Lull on Lincoln street. Miss Nellie Beckwith and Miss Mabel Fuller had charge of the meeting.

Rev J J Walker, treasurer of the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society, conducted the services at the Congregational church last Sunday in the absence of the regular pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Watson of Brooklyn, N. Y., who have been spending the summer at the home of D Watson at North Monson, are spending a few days with Prof Lester B. Pope at Pond Point Beach, Milford, Ct.

The dying of a large maple tree on Lincoln street recently seems to prove that the trouble is not confined to the elm trees alone. Representatives of the gas company have been testing the ground for leaks the past week, but so far have found none.

Work on the new bridge on State street has progressed rapidly, the abutments being nearly completed The bridge will be a 44 foot span and 36 feet wide. The 36 feet will include a sidewalk, which will be curbed and built similar to the sidewalks on the bridge near the Ellis No. 3 mill.

Mill and Thompson streets have been surveyed this week by men in the employ of the county commissioners On petition of the selectmen the county commissioners are considering laying out the streets, but there has been some controversy with some of the abutters. Another hearing will be held in Springfield August 2

THE SHARP-SHOOTER

By IVAN VRONSKY

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When the Japanese were besieging Port Arthur there were a number of women and children shut up in the fortress. Singularly enough, they were there, the women by their own consent and the children by the consent of their parents. Discipline was very lax among the Russians, and a number of the officers preferred to have their families with them to being separated from them. General Stoessel, the Russian commander, set the example by having his own wife in Port Arthur, so it was not remarkable that others followed suit. It is said that a number of children during the siege were playing about in the fortress and sometimes among the guns on the ramparts, exposed to shot and shell. But the enlisted men were not allowed to have wives or children with them.

Sergeant Boris Tomsky was a gunner of renown. He was in charge of one of the big guns on Two Hundred and Three Meter hill and did more damage to the Japanese with his piece than any gunner in the Russian army.

With Tomsky was a young sharpshooter named Alexis Petroff, a dead shot, who did most of the rifle work, picking off Japanese who were working guns that were doing especial damage.

While the sergeant was firing immense balls from his pet cannon in an effort to silence some Japanese gun that if left alone would surely make an important breach, Petroff would be picking off one by one the gunners that were directing the firing.

Petroff was a mere boy. Not a hair had shown itself on his face, not even a bit of down. That on his head was of the lightest of the light northern hue, while his eyes were a corresponding azure. He seemed very much attached to the big man who directed the big gun, with his shocky hair and beard and fierce mustachios. Indeed, each seemed fitted for his especial work. Tomsky to send forth the great cannon balls, weighing a couple of hundred pounds, Petroff to dispatch the thin leaden bullets.

Tomsky kept on dismounting guns and doing other damage to the Japanese until he became famed among his comrades for the most useful single man in the Russian army. They used to say, "If all our generals could be turned into Tomsky gunners the Japanese would never take Port Arthur."

But at last the Japs got on to the fact that this wholesale destruction of life and ordnance was due to one man, and they were not long in locating the big gunner on Two Hundred and Three Meter hill. Then they called for one of the best sharpshooters in the army and, pointing out Tomsky to him, ordered the Jap to eliminate the big Russian. Once the gunner was located and a sharpshooter especially detailed to kill him he had not long to live. It happened that after he was pointed out he did not show himself for some time, but as soon as he did he received a bullet in his forehead that finished his career.

The grief of his assistant at his loss was touching to see. Petroff was affected to tears. The Russian peasant soldiers, who were more like cattle than men, could not understand how a man could weep. But presently Petroff's feelings changed from grief to revenge. His comrades could understand that, and as they saw Petroff take up his rifle and hug it as if it were a dear child they looked at one another as if to say:

"Now Petroff is a man again; he will make the little monkeys pay for killing the big sergeant."

From that time Petroff was always behind the ramparts watching through a porthole for some Japanese to show himself. When one did so but an instant would elapse before he would pitch forward or backward, and it would be discovered by his companions that he had either been killed or mortally wounded.

Every time Petroff killed a Japanese he would pnuch a hole in his cap. As the siege went on the holes became so numerous that there was scarcely room enough for them all. In time they passed the hundred mark. But this did not satisfy the young marksman, and he went on relentlessly making one Jap after another bite the dust till the surrender came, when he had 117 holes punched in his cap.

There were 42,000 prisoners taken by the Japs in the surrender of Port Arthur. One day when a lot of Russians were lined up to be marched to a transport a woman passed. She was dressed in feminine apparel, except the big military Russian cap. The soldiers laughed and jeered at her. Taking off her cap, she held it up to the light, showing punctures like a cluster of stars.

"Do you see that?" she said. "Each hole stands for a Japanese killed because they killed my husband."

"Who was your husband?"

"Sergeant Tomsky."

"And you?"

"Alexis Petroff, his sharpshooter."

"What! You Alexis Petroff, the sharpshooter who has killed so many of the little devils?"

"Look at the holes. I have had one of the devils for each hole."

"Well, well! And you, being a woman, have only to put on skirts and you will not have to go to the detestable island."

"No; I am going back to Russia to look after our children."

Shekels and Half Shekels.

The early Biblical references to pieces of silver do not in the original convey the idea of coins, but of weights, shekels. The Mosaic "oblation to God" was a half shekel, and the shekel is explained by Josephus as equal to four Athenian drachmae of the value of about 55½ cents in American money. The first Jewish coinage under authority was, it is believed, struck by Simon, the Maccabee, about the year 140 B. C. It consisted of shekels and half shekels. This coinage had its value signified upon it, "Shekel Israel," in Samaritan characters.

Handicapped.

"While coming down in the train this morning I noticed two deaf and dumb men sitting opposite me. One of them had an impediment in his speech.

"How could a deaf and dumb man have an impediment in his speech?"

"Two of his fingers were cut off."—Exchange.

The MASCOT of SWEET BRIAR GULCH

By Henry Wallace

COPYRIGHT 1908 BY THE BOBBS MERRILL COMPANY.

PROLOGUE.

This romance of Jim Felton, the lonely, lovelorn miner of Sweet Briar Gulch; of Anne, the faraway sweetheart who refused to be a wife; of the mine that wouldn't produce a dollar, no matter how hard it was worked, and of Ches, the little mascot who played such an important role in Jim's life drama, appeals to the fancy and holds the interest because of its humor, its pathos, its chivalry and its broad humanity.

CHAPTER I.

THE gulch ran in a trough of benuty to the foot of Jones' hill, which rose in a sweeping curve into the clouds.

Wild flowers, trees in profuse leaf and mats of vines covered the scarred earth, and the sky was as limpid as spring water; the air carried a weight of heart stirring odors, yet Jim Felton, sitting on the door step of his cabin in the brilliant sunshine, was not a happy man.

He looked at the hollow of the gulch and cursed it manfully and bitterly. The gold should be there—Jim had figured it all out. The old wash cut at right angles to the creek, and at the turn was where its freight of yellow metal should have been deposited, but when you got down to the bedrock the blasted stuff was either slanted so nothing could stay on it or was rotten, crumbling in your fingers, and that kind of bed will hold nothing.

Therefore Jim had sunk about fifty prospect holes, got colors under the grass roots as evidence that pay should be there and nothing but ashy wash beneath it.

When a man is alone and thinks things are wrong optimism comes down on the run, the shades of pessimism gather fast and furious, more especially if a man does his own cooking and the raw material is limited, at that.

The sun had not moved the shadows three inches before Jim had reached the conclusion that this world was all a practical joke of so low an order that no sensible man would even laugh at it, and he drew a letter from his pocket in proof thereof. It was a thin letter, written on delicate paper in a delicate hand, and it showed much wear. He read for the thousandth time:

Dearest Jim—And again I must say "no." Of course you will not understand, for which foolish reason I like you all the better, but you must try to take my point of view. You say that we can be married on nothing and take our chances.

So we can, old simple heart, but aren't those chances all against us? Would you like to be forced to work in some office for just enough to live on? You know you would not, and you know how you would suffer in such slavery.

Nevertheless we cannot live on air, and I doubt if I would stand transplanting to the wild life you love better than you to a clerk's desk. You have that fancy which gilds the tin cans in the back yard. I have that unfortunate eye which would multiply their number by three and their unsightliness by ten. I don't want riches, dear. I only want a modest assurance that I can have enough to live on.

Really is your way of doing a guarantee of even bread and butter? In the garden of Eden you would be the most delightful of companions, but in this world as it is you will not fight for your own. You would risk your life to save a dog, but you couldn't stay at a continued grind—I mean it would kill you actually, physically dead, dead—to save all of us. At first I thought that a fault in you, but now, being older, having compared you to other men, I see it is merely a missing faculty.

I could stick to the desk and would gladly if you would let me, yet I could not even fancy behaving as you did at the factory fire, which is still the symbol in the town for manly courage and presence of mind.

They talk now of the way you laughed and joked with those poor frightened girls, who had such good cause to be frightened, and brought them back to sanity with a rest I feel that if I had the least atom of heroism in me I would marry you for that feat alone and let cold facts go hang; but, ah, Jim, magnificent as you are on the grand occasions, they come but seldom, and in the meantime, Jim, I'll leave that to your own honesty.

I'm plebeian, Jim, and you're a nobleman with a beautiful but embarrassing disregard for vulgar necessities.

However, I can say this for myself—for surely I may brag a little to my lover—I can try to match your splendid physical bravery by my own moral courage.

You may rest your soul in peace on one point if I am not for you, I'm for no man, no, not so much as a half glance of the eye I wouldn't hold myself a bit more straitly if I were your wife.

You'll be angry at this letter. Well, I'll guard your anger. I have caused it, and I'll bear the blame. I know that we could not be happy without some visible means of support, yet I do not blame you in the least for thinking otherwise.

He as kind to me as you can, Jim, for I love you very much in my commonplace way I'll admit, too, that I had rather have your fire than my refrigerator—oh, if you could only make some money, not a great deal, but enough for a little house of our own and enough in the bank to buy groceries!

With my best love and an aching lump in my throat, your mother, sister and sweetheart. ANNE.

Jim dropped the letter, and his lips trembled a little. Parts of it touched him deeply, and he was the more enraged and hurt at the rest because of that.

He could not call her mercenary. He knew better. More than one very comfortable income was at her disposal.

Poor fellow! He could only grind his teeth and curse Sweet Briar gulch from the deepest pothole in the bedrock to the top of its loftiest pine. He drew out her photograph and obtained much sweet consolation by thinking how happy they two would be in Sweet Briar gulch together, even if there wasn't a cent of pay in the gravel.

Sick of this ingenious torture, he lit his pipe and drew savagely upon it. With a mocking gurgle about a dram of "slumgullion" passed into his mouth. It was the last touch. He spat out the biting, nauseating stuff, hurled the pipe upon the rocks and danced on it.

And yet the colors frolicked in the gulch. The pines toned the air with healthy breath.

From afar came the th-r-r-up, th-r-r-up, th-r-r-up! of a galloping horse. It was Bud, the mail carrier, coming modestly and quietly at a decent gait down a trail where most would prefer to walk and to "hang on" to something at that.

"YOUR MOTHER, SISTER AND SWEETHEART."

At first Jim felt irritated by the interruption. He wanted to luxuriate in misery. Still he was a vigorous, healthy man, and the cheery good fellowship of Bud soon made away with that feeling.

"Well, how they coming, Jimmy?"

queried the young giant. "Hit her yet?"

"Hit—well, much caloric," replied Jim. "I've begun to believe there ain't a durned thing here."

"You're looking kind of owly, old man. What's up? Don't you feel well?"

"Oh, Bud, I'm sick of everything this day! I don't believe in the constitution of the United States, including the thirteenth amendment, nor the Ten Commandments, nor the attraction of gravitation, nor anything else. It's all a blamed lie."

"No wonder you get like that, mousing around here without a chance to yappi with a feller critter. 'Nough to make you locoed.

"Jump it for a spell. Go uptown. Get loaded; get horribly loaded. Break somebody's window and tell the folks you're a Sweet Briar zephyr come to blow out their lights. Go ahead and do it. When your hair stops pulling you'll feel like a new man."

Jim thought the advice sound, yet a strange feeling had developed in him in his isolation. It was that the eye of Anne was always on him. He had fallen into a habit, which becomes a superstition when a man is alone, of acting as though she were there in person.

However, he didn't feel called upon to offer Bud that explanation of his refusal. He conveyed the idea in one brief word.

"Busted," said he.

"Busted?" retorted Bud warmly. "Busted? Not much you ain't busted while that little package is there, bet cher life! You call for what you want, and the cashier will make good"

HEYER. HE BEGGED HARD.

"Ah, Bud, how'll I ever pay you back? Keep it, man; keep it," replied Jim in a disheartened voice.

"Say, you ain't got no call to worry about that part of it. There's where my troubles begin," returned Bud. "Now, you take these two hucks and jab 'em in your jeans. Go on, now. Do as I tell you or dashed if I don't lick you and make you take 'em. What's the good of money if it ain't to help a friend out with? I don't care who gets drunk on it just so long as they have a good time.

"Boy, you'll be sailing up the track regardless of orders with your holler full of suds if you don't get out in the scramble for awhile."

"Lord, I'd like to see a railroad train! Haven't heard a whistle for two years. How far is it to the nearest station, Bud?"

"Plattsburg—fifty mile—due south."

"Christmas! Little far to walk."

"Say, you take this horse, Jim. Go ahead. I can walk just as well as not. I'm getting too fat anyhow. Go on. You take the horse and have a ride to Plattsburg."

"Yes; take the shirt off your back and never mind if a bit of the skin goes with it. I'll see you far away first. Tell you what you could do for me, Buddy. The herd of burros is around now, if you'd round up one of them for me?"

"Sure thing! You sit on the mail sack till I come back. There's a heap of registered stuff in it this trip. Oh, say! What do you think? I was held up t'other side of the Bulldog. Bang, zip, says a little popper from the bushes. I climbed for them bushes, and out goes a beggar like a rabbit. I was after him like a coyote, bet cher life. Who do you suppose it was, Jim?"

"Hang it, how should I know?"

"That little down east cuss with the crook in his back. He begged hard. Poor devil, he was up against the sandpaper side, all right. He heard from the postmaster that there was a lot of valuable mail going out, so he thought he'd make a try for it. Then what do you think he had the cold, cold nerve to do?"

"Pass it up—most anything, I reckon."

"Worse'n that. Struck me for fifty."

"And got it."

"Got it? No; not much he didn't, sonny. He drew just ten, and he was lucky to get that. I've done a favor or two for that feller, first and last, and to have him shoot at me made me sore—although he missed me by several locations. I'll say that for him—so I gave him the ten and told him I'd kick the hump on his back so high up on his shoulders he could wear it for a hat if he ever shoved into my daylight again. And you never in your life saw a humpback make better time than he did.

"Well, here's for your jackass. Which way's the herd?"

"Right up over the hill."

Jim sat patiently on the sack until Bud returned with the burro.

"Here's your thoroughbred," hollored Bud. "Get up there, Mary. Look at the knowing ears of him, will you? You bet cher life you've got an ani-

There will be another meeting of the committee on Sunday afternoon at 3 in the church hall.

Woman Fell Into Ditch.

Mrs Katherine Dailey, one of the oldest and best-known residents of the village, had the misfortune to fall last Friday evening into the ditch being dug on Main street for the mains of the Worcester County Gas Co. Fortunately she escaped without serious injury She was calling on neighbors and was on her way home, almost directly across the street, when the accident occurred. Considering her advanced age it is remarkable that she was not badly hurt.

A Good Game of Ball.

Saturday's baseball game between the home team and the Three Rivers was one worth seeing, being full of exciting plays from start to finish. The score was 3—0 in favor of the visitors at the end of the eighth inning, but the home team tied the score in the ninth and it took two additional innings to settle matters, 5—3 in favor of Three Rivers Manager Donovan's recruits continue to play fine ball, though they lose.

Milk Price Goes Up.

The local milk dealers have advanced the price of milk from six to seven cents per quart. This move has been anticipated for some time. The price of grain is high and the continued dry weather has made the pasturage so poor that stock has had to be brought to the barns and given grain.

The Mascot of Sweet Briar Gulch

By HENRY WALLACE PHILLIPS

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

The man slouched off and made a hasty search around the station. A woman's face—scarcely an improvement on the man's—leaned out of the car window and jeered at the hunter, who cursed her back savagely.

The man walked up to Jim. "Say, did yer see a kid go by here, mister?"

With a shrug of his shoulders, Jim asked him that question in Mr. Offendorf's French method about the pink and green overcoat of the shoemaker's wife's sister.

The man showered low abuse on what he supposed was a foreigner until Jim's ribs rose with the desire to kill him.

"Ayr, wot are yer wastin' time wid th' dago fur?" called the woman. "Th' kid's on the roof!" Jim's heart almost stopped, so thoroughly had he identified himself with this quarrel. He made up his mind to fight for the boy, right or wrong.

But he was saved the trouble. It was only a jest of the woman's, for she suddenly called, so earnestly that even Jim was fooled. "No, he ain't neither. I see him! I see him! There he is." It was the perfection of acting, voice and gesture.

The man ran out to see where she was pointing. "Where is he?" he asked, looking wild around.

"On top der tingpole, like er monkey! You're it!" she cried, with a shriek of laughter at the black brows of her dupe.

"I'll show yer der joke when I git in dere," he threatened.

The woman leaned her chin on her hands and smiled. Jim never forgot

"UP YOU GO!" HE SAID

the utter undauntedness, impudence and malice of that face. "Yer allus goin' to do sumpin', Pete," she retorted. "Yer'll be a man yet."

A more amiable man than Pete might have been provoked by such conduct. He strode forward with white knuckled fists and a very unpleasant expression on his face. Several men started to interfere, but it wasn't necessary.

The woman quietly looked at her bully, chewing a straw with the utmost nonchalance. "Give us a kiss," said she. The man's crest dropped. He said something in an undertone and got on the car.

Jim needed no further knowledge of this delightful couple to be thoroughly on the boy's side. It seemed to him that the man was quite capable of keeping a small animal at hand for the fun of torturing it, and as for the woman—well, if there was her like in hell Jim determined to be good for the rest of his days.

"All aboard!" cried the conductor. And with a few mighty breaths the iron giant whisked its load out in the open again.

"Stay where you are, son, till I see whether that fellow is playing a trick," said Jim, and not until he had looked under the platform, up and down the track and in the waiting rooms did he give the command. "Come down!"

CHAPTER II.

THE passenger agent saw the performance with astonishment. "So you had the boy tucked away all the time?" said he. "Just what kind of a game is this?"

"Dunno," returned Jim. "Let the boy speak for himself. Now, young man, what's the matter?"

The urchin stood before them, taking them in thoroughly with his sharp little eyes. More big men strolled up. As a particularly fine foil to the boy's diminutive form Benny, the baggage smasher, whose overhanging shoulders testified whence came the power that had reduced many a pound Saratoga to elemental conditions, and "Happy Jack," the mammoth, soot black, loose jointed negro porter, placed themselves on either side of him. They made the boy look more like an insect than ever.

"Wot's de matter?" he cried in a voice at once hoarse and shrill, with a cursing note in it and accompanying the words with an extravagant, dramatic gesture of his skinny claw. "I'll tell yer wot's der matter. Dey beat me—dey beat me bad. I don't ast youse to take me word fur it. Look at me back—dat's all I ast yer—jes' look at dat!"

He ripped the shirt from his shoulders. An angry growl went up from all those big bearded men when they saw the horrible stripes and welts—raw, blue and swollen—on the poor little back.

Happy Jack threw up both his gorilla arms. "Good Lawd! Who done you like dat, boy?" he cried. "'F I got it hookers on him, cuss me 'f I wudden' put bumps on him bigger'n yer null body."

"Now yer talkin'," shrieked the boy. He raised himself to the tips of his toes, bared his teeth to the gun and, with clutching talons gripping at the air, yelled: "Aggh! If I had me growth I'd bite his heart out! I'd tear his neck for 'im!"

The men looked astounded on this mighty fury, pent in so small and miserable a cage. The voice had a peculiar alarming call to it, like the note of a fire gong.

Suddenly the boy's head dropped on the crook of his arm. "Treated me wuss'n a dog," he sobbed out. "Done me so it makes even dat nigger holler when he sees it."

Happy Jack was taken aback. The other men smoothed down their faces forcibly.

"Say, li'l' boy, you think dat's a p'lite way to talk to people?" inquired Jack.

The boy wiped his eyes on his sleeve and went over to him. "Say, don't yer holt nothin' ag'in me fur der word."

AN ANGRY GROWL WENT UP.

said he. "Dey've got me looney, dat's wot. Yer've used me liker frien', and if it holts yer yer can kick me pants fur me, and I won't say nuthin'."

"Well, there's two pound and a half of dead game sport for you, all right!" cried Benny. "Good eye, kid!"

Happy Jack smiled a mollified smile eight inches wide. "You is all right, bean," said he. "An' as fur as my bein' a nigger's concerned, I'll admit my kerplection ain't light." He slapped his hand and brought down a foot on the platform. "Hyah, hyah!" he roared. "You bet dere ain't no dam' blond 'bout me!"

The infectious darky laugh started the others off and brought matters to a common sense footing.

The passenger agent took up the interrogation. Was the man the boy's real father? Answer—"How'd I know? Dat's der song he guv me." Were there any relatives, friends? Answer—"Naw." Well, what did the boy propose to do? Answer, digging his toes into the boards—"Didn't know—anything." What was his name? "Jim." Jim what? "Didn't know. Sometimes der gun callt himself 'Darragh' an' sometimes 'Mullin' an' sometimes 'Smit.' Aggh! He callt himself the foist t'ing dat come to his tongue. He didn't have no real name."

The agent talked to him a bit more, winding up by saying kindly: "You've had a pretty rough time of it, Jimmy, and we'd all like to give you a lift. Now, just say what you'd like to do and maybe we can fix it."

"I'd like to go along wid dat feller 'f he'll take me," replied the boy, tossing a thumb toward Jim Felton. There was a becoming access of shyness in his manner. Moreover, Felton had an increased interest in him when he knew they bore the same name—a sort of kinship, as it were.

"Well, it's up to you, Mr."— said the passenger agent, with a smile.

"Felton," said Jim. "I'm in. I'll take the boy. Hard rustling down my way, but I guess we can make out somehow. Sure you want to go, kid?"

"Yessir!" very heartily.

"Done, then!"

Happy Jack snatched off his uniform cap, spat on a bill and clapped it into the bottom thereof.

"Goodby, fr'en'," said he. He shook the cap in front of the others. "Here's fur the li'l' rooster. Step up to the capen's office an' settle, gents!" he called. "'Member what de Bible says, 'Fool an' his money soon parted.' Come up! Come up!"

They came up generously.

"Stick a five in there for me, Bill," said Benny to the passenger agent. "I'm strapped."

"How much you got, boy?" asked the agent as Happy counted the money.

"Fo'ty dollars, even money, Misto' Breckenridge." The agent was a bachelor with a fat salary. "Here, that makes it fifty," said he. He turned to Felton. "Now, what do you say if we go across the street and—er—discuss this matter a little further?"

"Go you," replied Felton.

"Now, Jimmy, you sit here for a moment. We're going on some business."

The boy glanced at them sharply. "Youse fellers is goin' to get a drink," said he.

Those big men put their hands on their sides and roared.

"You'll find that kid worse than a wife, Felton," said the agent.

"No use of our being hypocrites to the little chap. I reckon he's seen worse things than the inside of a saloon. Come along, laddybuck."

They lined up and partook. The agent told the story of the waif. "And we started him off with fifty, Mac," he said to the saloon keeper. "Suppose you break away from some of your ill gotten gains in the good cause."

The saloon keeper opened his cash drawer without words and slid over a five dollar bill. He seemed very glad to part with it.

"Confound it! Now we're upsticks again," said the agent. "Tell you what let's do. Here's ten of us. Each man put up a two and we'll shake the dice to see who gives it to the kid, winner to set 'em up. That'll make seventy-five, a very respectable figure."

HAPPY JACK.

They played a new interesting dice game in which the figure of a pig drawn in chalk upon the bar furnished the "layout." It is a game which increases in interest to the last throw. They stuck the saloon keeper and were gleeful.

"We ought to name the boy," said Felton under the inspiration of the second refreshment. "My name's Jim, and I want something else to call him by. I'll make him a present of my last name."

"Gad, that's so," replied the agent.

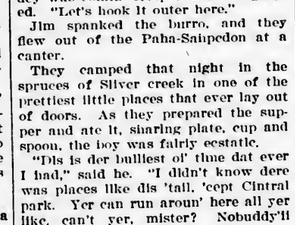
"Call him Chescheela Jim," put in a cowman. "That's injun for 'little Jim.' 'Ches' ain't a bad nickname."

"Mac, hand over one of those toy sample bottles of California fizz," said the agent. "We'll put this craft down the ways in shape."

Felton broke the neck off the bottle with a tack hammer and poured the wine on the boy's head. "I christen thee Chescheela James Felton. May you become a good, seaworthy craft and not fill your skin with this stuff when you grow up," said he dramatically.

The small boy squinted up his eyes to keep the wine out, then he shook the liquid from his hair, looked up and grinned.

"Youse fellers is reg'lar kids," said he.



"Lord, that's a great boy!" said the agent. "He's the oldest man in the crowd. Say, let's give him a white man's start, beginning with a bath."

The whole party went to the barber shop and made the darky proprietor dispense a bath and a haircut for nothing.

"Shave, sir?" asked the latter when the hair had been properly trimmed.

"No," replied the youth. "I t'ink I'll let me whiskers grow. Dere's enuff whid in dis country ter keep der moths outen 'em."

Then they raided the clothing store and abused the Hebrew owner until he reduced the price. "Oof der lodt—

"SHAVE, SIR?"

everyding, shennelmun! Sigsdy ber zent. Dere's no brotlt left. It doaned bay fur the freight."

"Look here, Sol. Will you swear that on a piece of pork?" demanded the agent. The Hebrew moaned.

"Doaned dalk to me," he cried. "My heardt iss prooken."

Clean, trimmed and clothed, Chescheela James Felton was a different looking boy. Months only could take those animal lines out of his face and fresh air and wholesome food fill out the hollows of the cheeks; but, all in all, he was not a bad looking youngster

Jim Felton bought some supplies for his camp and prepared to start for home that afternoon, as they could yet make fifteen miles before dark.

The new friends of the morning saw them off with hearty goodbys. The boy quite unexpectedly thanked them for their treatment and the money. The poor little soul had heard few words of gratitude and had less chance to employ them.

His speech was curious, but the generous big men saw behind the words and felt really touched by the old child's attempt to express himself.

The two Jims soon pushed on through the rolling foothills near the town into the broken country. The boy kept watching, watching, but said little, until at last they came to the stupendous cliffs of Paha-Sahpedon, overhanging the trail with dark majesty. Jim happened to glance at the boy and saw him looking up, mouth and eyes wide open.

"Say, mister," gasped Ches, "who built them?"

"Built?" repeated Jim, puzzled. Then he understood. "The hand of God, my boy," he replied.

The urchin shivered. "I feel 's if dey was comin' ertop o' me," he gasped. "Let's hook it outer here."

Jim spanked the burro, and they flew out of the Paha-Sahpedon at a canter.

They camped that night in the spruces of Silver creek in one of the prettiest little places that ever lay out of doors. As they prepared the supper and ate it, sharing plate, cup and spoon, the boy was fairly ecstatic.

"Dis is der bulliest ol' time dat ever I had," said he. "I didn't know dere was places like dis 'tall, 'cept Cintral park. Yer can run aroun' here all you like, can't yer, mister? Nobuddy'll stop yer?"

"Not if you ran a thousand miles, Ches. This is the free land, boy. You can do what you like." Jim spoke with warmth, for, although he felt that the child could not understand, yet the love of the country swelled in him so hot that he could never speak of it carelessly.

"Dat's prutty d— good," responded Ches.

"It is," replied Jim. "Now, Ches, will you do something to oblige me?"

"Sure!"

"Well, then, don't swear. I don't like to hear boys swear."

"I won't cuss another cuss if I kin help it. Dey'll come out too quick for me sometimes, but I'll try to do dat now."

"Thank you. Now, let's get the stuff cleared up and roll in."

Forehanded.

One noon Charlie informed his parents that he felt too ill to return to school.

"Hadn't I better send for the doctor?" asked his mother, hoping to test the genuineness of his illness.

"Oh, no; you don't need to," replied Charlie. "He'll be up pretty soon. I just stopped in his office on the way home and told him to come up to see me."—Delineator.

OTTUMWA WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ottumwa, Iowa.—"For years I was almost a constant sufferer from female trouble in all its dreadful forms; shooting pains all over my body, sick headache, spinal weakness, dizziness, depression, and everything that was horrid. I tried many doctors in different parts of the United States, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors. I feel it my duty to tell you these facts. My heart is full of gratitude to you for my cure."—Mrs. HARRIET E. WAMPLER, 524 S. Ransom Street, Ottumwa, Iowa.

Consider This Advice.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous medicine, made only from roots and herbs, has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The testimonials which are constantly being published in these advertisements are guaranteed to be absolutely genuine.

Getting Near to Nature.

It was not always perfectly clear at first thought just what Ben Caldon meant when he spoke. The best a hearer could do was to guess at the most obvious meaning and let it go at that. In the matter of a captive moose, which belonged to Ben, the doctor followed this course. The moose was undoubtedly sick, and a veterinary had been summoned to attend him. Ben went out to the pen to assist the doctor.

"Is he mortal, doc?" asked Ben with extreme concern.

"Are you asking if he is sick?" hazarded the doctor.

"Sure," replied Ben, "only I meant is he goin' to die from it?"

"It's too soon to tell you yet," replied the doctor, "but he has pneumonia pretty badly."

Ben's eyes grew round with surprise. Pneumonia in his experience had been confined to humankind.

"Why, doc," he burst out, "does a moose have features like a grown person?"—Youth's Companion.

First Aid.

Speaking of the necessity for widespread education in first aid to the injured, the St. Louis Times says:

"Perhaps it will not be taken amiss if we call attention to the obvious fact that nine-tenths of all the trouble in the world is due to ignorance of certain simple things. It might even be said safely that all mishaps of whatever kind—mental, physical and spiritual—are due to a want of experience and training. Accidents of a thousand varieties, from drowning to the taking of a dose from the wrong bottle, are in a majority of cases fatal simply because there was not present some one who knew what to do. Injuries which almost tear the body to pieces are curable if the man of training and experience is at hand. The simplest injuries often prove fatal when they are not properly attended to, when the injured person does not get the benefit of a little simple help."

Putting In the Time.

A gentleman was engaging a general man and telling him what he wanted him to do. "You will have to clean the windows and the boots and the knives and go messages, chop wood, cut short grass, mind the horse and pony, look after the garden and keep the house supplied with vegetables and do any old job that is required, and if suitable you will get 10 shillings a week."

"Is there any clay in the garden?" asked the man.

"What makes you ask that?" asked the gentleman.

"I was thinking I could make bricks in my spare time," said the man.—London Mail.

NEAPOLITAN CREAMS.

NEAPOLITAN CREAMS.

After freezing cream in three colors, instead of taking the trouble to pack it, serve it in three layers in glasses. Vanilla, chocolate and strawberry creams are the colors and flavors for a good combination.

A good foundation cream is made from the yolks of eight eggs beaten until light with one and one-half cups of sugar. Put three cups of milk on to scald and pour over the beaten egg and sugar; stir constantly in the double boiler until thickened. Soak one and one-quarter level tablespoons of powdered gelatine or one-quarter box in three tablespoons of cold water for half an hour and stir into the hot custard. When the custard is cold it is ready to freeze, then add a tablespoon of vanilla.

After the custard is partly frozen, stir in a pint of cream that has been whipped and continue freezing. To make a chocolate cream, add two squares of melted chocolate to half of the above vanilla cream and freeze in separate freezers. In cold weather the easiest way to make a strawberry cream is to use the strawberry flavoring and a little color paste to that it a pink; be careful not to get too deep a color, which is not appetizing.

SCHOOL SAVINGS BANK.

To Be Established by the Palmer Savings Bank.

UNDER NEW LAW RECENTLY PASSED

Will Take Place of Penny Savings Stamp Scheme Inaugurated by the Woman's Club

At the meeting of the school committee Monday evening a communication was received from the Palmer Savings Bank, asking permission of the school committee to establish a school savings bank in the public schools of the town, in accordance with the provisions of chapter 211 of the Acts of 1911. The permission was granted, and the school superintendent was appointed to arrange with the treasurer of the bank for carrying out the provisions of law.

The act provides that the bank shall have a collector which shall act for it, one either appointed by it or the teacher of the school, who shall receive the savings, the bank being fully responsible for the amount deposited. No school shall act for more than one bank, and the bank's rights cannot be revoked except by the written consent of both the school committee and the bank commissioner. Any pupil may deposit one cent or more with the bank's agent. The amount deposited is entered on a card which is given to the pupil, the card being a receipt for the amount deposited. The collector enters the amount on a pupil's ledger. When the minimum amount on which the bank allows interest is reached, the bank shall issue a deposit book in the usual form, and sums of $1 or more may afterwards be entered on the pupil's book. Collections shall be made each week between October 1 and June 1. No sums may be withdrawn except on a regular bank day, in due form, and with the approval of parent or guardian. Until amounts reach a sum sufficient for deposit in individual pass book, the total amounts are deposited in the name of the collector as trustee.

The Palmer Woman's Club some years ago started a penny savings stamp scheme in all the villages of the town, and it has flourished greatly, but of late the trouble has been to secure a collector, the work requiring a considerable amount of time.

Two Small Burglars.

They Commit Two Small Burglaries, But Get Very Little Booty.

There were a couple of small burglaries, perpetrated by a couple of small burglars, Saturday night. Neither yielded a large return in cash, and the only money secured was returned later by the mother of the youthful coveters of others wealth. The grain store of W. F. Fillmore on Main street was where—for a time—the hopes of spending money seemed to have reached fulfillment. After prying up a rear window the youngsters climbed in over a pile of grain in sacks, shoved up the window into the office and attacked the swinging cash drawer on the counter inside. It was not locked and the raised cover disclosed five "cart wheel" dollars and a check. The youngsters were bright enough to know that the check was of no use to them and left it behind; a brass beer check was also discarded when they came to the light possibly because of the evident inability of the possessors to realize on it. The break was discovered Monday morning and Police Officer Crimmins notified. It did not take him long to locate the specie, and the mother of the kids, who had meanwhile gained a knowledge of the affair, returned the funds. It is understood that the youngsters — they were about nine years of age only—would be summoned into court except that they are conveniently out of the state. The second break was at Lewis's garage, where a two-by-four joist was used to gain access to a window. There was no booty obtainable there, however.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Death of Mrs. Johannah McCarty.

Mrs. Johannah McCarty, 66, died at her home last week Wednesday night. She had a fall last winter and gradually failed since then. She was a native of Ireland. The funeral was held Saturday morning and the body was taken by special car to Holyoke for burial. She leaves one daughter, Bridget, with whom she lived, and two sisters in Ireland.

Miss Nancy Carney has taken a position with the Cutler company.

Miss West has resigned her position in the office of the Cutler company to take one at her home in Ware.

Rev. Thomas E. Williams, pastor of Grace Union church, is away on his annual vacation, a part of which he is spending at Hampton Beach, N. H.

HAMPDEN.

Howard T. Ballard and family of Chicago are visiting Mrs. Delia M. Ballard.

Albert Kenworthy and family of Trenton, N. J., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kenworthy.

Mrs. Frederick Haigh of Hoboken, N. J., and two sons, Bertram and Winthrop, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo B. Newell.

The body of Mrs. John Call of Springfield was brought to Hampden Tuesday for burial in the family lot. Mrs. Call was a native of South Wilbraham. When young she was one of a class of eight girls, all natives of the town, who attended Sunday school in the old chapel near the residence of Dr. Abial Bottom. One of the eight died many years ago, but seven have lived to pass their 74th mile stone. Mrs. Call, the oldest, was in her 76th year. With two exceptions, all have lived within a radius of 40 miles, one who has been teaching in Camden, N. J., and one who has been in Western Massachusetts, but both have returned to their native town. Mrs. Call was twice married, her first husband being H. H. Hendrick.

New Wife Dersertion Law.

Man May Be Set At Work in Jail And Money Turned Over To Family.

Overseers of the poor in all parts of the state are rejoicing over the new uniform wife desertion act which went into effect a few days ago, making desertion a crime instead of a misdemeanor. In the past the penalty has been so slight that a man who escaped from the state in which he deserted his wife was practically immune, for the cost of extraditing him was not justified. Under the present law the regular police officers will be able to go wherever the man can be arrested and bring him back just as for any other crime. The former conditions had resulted in the practical negligence of the desertion law, as nonsupport was much more easily proved in court and the penalty similar, although both were considered inadequate. The charity workers therefore have had very few cases of desertion in court, although they have had a large number of nonsupport cases.

The old conditions often even acted as an incentive to desertion, as the man knew that in case of hard times all he had to do was to disappear and some one would look out for his wife and family. There was little punishment involved in it for him, for at the worst all he could be given was a few days in jail, which with three square meals a day was found to be but little hardship. The new law changes all of this. While the penalty for non-support at the maximum has been a three-months' jail sentence or a fine of $25, which was to be paid over to the wife, under the recent act the wife deserter may be sentenced to hard labor and for every day that he works in that way the sum of 50 cents is to be paid over for the support of his family. The act is copied after that which has proved very successful in the District of Columbia. With a population of 400,000 in that district the government has collected annually some $38,000 under the law for the support of deserted families. Under the old law, Massachusetts, with a population of 3,000,000 larger than that of the District of Columbia, the annual collections have never been more than $40 000, so that the difference in effect is very manifest.

Not only has desertion been made a crime, but the fines and payments ordered by the court must be paid through the probation officer, so that the exact amount paid and the lapses in payment may be known by the court immediately. The law provides that the court may make temporary orders during a continuance of the case, so that court delays will work no hardship on the wife or family. Previously practically the only thing that the charity workers could do was to secure aid for the family. They couldn't secure the punishment of the husband. Under the present law the responsibility is placed directly on the man, and by enforced labor he can be made, if found, to help in the support.

This was one of the subjects considered at length at the recent national conference of charity workers held in Boston, and most of the speakers deplored the fact that so few states compelled the husband to go to work and contribute to the support of his family. Massachusetts has now entered the list of those banner states by the new statute. Under the act there is an attempt to compel the wife to testify as to the exact conditions. In the past great difficulty has been found in getting her to go on the witness stand and tell the court what she has told the charity workers in her home or at their office. Fear of the husband has been the cause of this frequently, and the chance of getting a dollar or two from the husband if he was not shut up has also been an incentive.

BELCHERTOWN.

Death of Mrs. G. H. B. Greene.

Mrs. Nancy Howe Greene, wife of G. H. B. Greene, died at her home on Main street Monday morning after a long illness. Mrs. Greene was the daughter of the late George and Sophia Burnette Sanford and the great granddaughter of the first Belchertown physician, Dr. Estes Howe. Besides her husband, ex-Senator G. H. B. Greene, she is survived by three children, Mrs. Eva Greene White, who with her son Carleton is in the home, Clayton, who with his family live on the home farm, and G. H. B. Greene Jr., a law student at Harvard; two sisters, Mrs. Sophia Potwin of New Haven and Mrs. Norton of Iowa; and three brothers, G. E. Sanford of Springfield, Enoch B. Sanford of Northampton and William L. Sanford of California. The funeral was held Wednesday, Rev. Mr. Fishburn and Rev. Mr. Hale officiating. There was a large attendance, friends being present from Worcester, Springfield, Amherst and New Haven. The bearers were Jason Hurlburt, Dwight F. Shumway, Edgar Lane and Merrick A. Morse.

Howard—Atkins.

Miss Naomi Howard and William Atkins of South Amherst were united in marriage Wednesday morning at 10 by Rev. J. W. Gage, a former pastor of the Methodist church. The bride is a daughter of the late A. B. Howard, the well known florist and horticulturist. After a wedding trip the couple will make their home in South Amherst.

Miss Denny of Boston is the guest of Maj. and Mrs. John Anderson at the "Bivouac."

Miss Harriet Griggs of Brookline, is the guest of Miss Dorothy Holland.

Walter Ballou has taken a position with D. D. Hayden.

The Shaw family reunion will be held to-morrow at the home of Frank Austin on the Enfield road.

Miss Louise Bourne, who has been a teacher in the Belchertown schools, has taken a position in one of the state institutions in Providence, R. I.

A miscellaneous shower was given Miss Naomi Howard last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Ketchem.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Warner have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. David Cushman of Norwich, Ct., David Warner of Northampton and Mrs. S. E. Gay at their home on the Warner farm in the east part of the town.

WILBRAHAM.

The tax rate this year is $8 on $1000.

Mrs. J. G. Haskell and daughter, Miss Mabel Haskell, of Lawrence, Kan., and Mrs. William McDonald of Providence, R. I., have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bliss.

Dr. Benjamin Gill of the State College in Pennsylvania, for nearly 20 years teacher at Wesleyan Academy, who is spending the summer in Belchertown, has returned from the Springfield hospital, much improved in health.

The Boston and Albany railroad announces one of its popular excursions to Boston for next Friday. A special train will leave North Wilbraham at 6 57 in the morning, Palmer at 7 08, Warren at 7 28. The train for home will leave Boston at 8 00, in the evening. The fare for the round trip will be $1 35.

BRIMFIELD TO CELEBRATE.

Will Have An Old Home Week In September.

FIRST OF THE KIND IN THE TOWN.

Citizens Effect Organization and Appoint Committees. The Dates Are Sept. 3 and 4.

Arrangements are being made in Brimfield for an "old home" celebration to be held Sunday and Monday, September 3 and 4. The idea originated at an informal meeting of citizens and summer guests a week ago in the Brimfield hotel. A committee, consisting of Charles S. Tarbell, Landlord Brackett, F. Lincoln Peirce, Samuel H. Adams and H. G. Nichols, was appointed to report detailed plans. At an adjourned meeting of the citizens from all parts of the town Saturday evening, the recommendations of the committee, which embodied plans for an "old home" celebration to occupy two days, were adopted, and a permanent organization was effected for the purpose. There will be a clambake dinner on the common Monday, a ball game in the morning, and contests in the public square. Music will be furnished by the American band of Fiskdale during the afternoon and evening, and there will be illuminations in the evening.

The officers of the organization are: President, Rev. William Jennings; secretary, Robert J. Streeter; treasurer, Charles S. Tarbell. The executive committee are: Chairman, George W. Brackett, Albert R. Brown, George W. Sherman, Dr. R. V. Sawin and Clarence King. This committee has authority to appoint such sub-committees as it may deem necessary and which shall include committees for dinner, sports, publicity and decorations. The meeting recommended that the publicity committee make use of post-cards bearing a cut of the old stage coach. A committee of women will be appointed to cooperate with the dinner committee. The committee to solicit funds by subscription is the same as appointed at the preliminary meeting, and its members are George W. Sherman, Rev. William Jennings, William C. Davenport, Robert J. Streeter and Dr. Robert V. Sawin. "Old home" day has not been observed in Brimfield before under that name, and the triennial reunion of the alumni of the Hitchcock free academy has partially served as such, by bringing back former residents as well as pupils. The present enterprise is enlisting the interest and cooperation of citizens in the outlying districts of the town and East Brimfield, as well as in the village, and F. Lincoln Peirce of Newtonville and Charles L. Peirce of Springfield, former residents who have been staying in town, have been among the leading promoters of the movement.

A meeting of the officers and executive committee was held Monday evening, and these committees appointed: Publicity committee, Edward S. Butterfield, Dr. Irving Sherman, Albert R. Brown, F. Edgar Brown, George M. Hitchcock, Charles Tarbell, Robert J. Streeter; reception committee, Charles S. Tarbell, F. Lincoln Peirce, Orns E. Parker, Byron W. Charles, Miner Corbin, Melvin Booth, John Shanley, George M. Hitchcock, Rev. William Jennings, William Davenport, John M. Warren, Albert Pierson, Fred Parker, Edward Hitchcock, Charles C. Brown, Edward B. Brown, Dr. R. V. Sawin, George W. Brackett, George A. Webster; dinner committee, Oren Hicks, John H. Noyes, Samuel Adams, Fred Lawrence, George Sherman, George E. WALES.

There will be no services in the Baptist church this month.

Representative and Mrs. C. T. Holt have gone to Cottage City to spend the month of August.

BRIMFIELD.

Death of John H. Geffkin.

John H. Geffkin, 61, died at his home in Brimfield last Saturday morning after a long illness caused by injuries received from a fall from the roof of a veranda on which he was working in Sturbridge. The funeral was held Tuesday and the body was taken to Springfield for burial in Oak Grove cemetery.

Mr. Geffkin was born December 28, 1849, in Westerwede, Germany, and came to this country when he was 18 years old. He married March 21, 1878, Marie Eliza Green of Brooklyn, N. Y. The family moved to Brimfield about 14 years ago. Besides his widow Mr. Geffkin leaves three daughters, Mrs. Lydia M. Parker of Brimfield, Mrs. Evelyn Quinn of Springfield and Mrs. Adeline A. Barry, and two sons, Frank L. and J. Wesley at home.

Severe Thunder Shower.

Brimfield was visited by a severe thunder shower Tuesday afternoon. Lightning struck in several places but did no serious damage. The Hubbard house on Tower Hill received the electric current through the telephone wire so that the occupants felt a considerable shock. The cupola on the barn on the Converse estate was struck and also the blacksmith shop of Bert Campbell, but no serious damage was done.

Miss Rebecca Lincoln is the guest of friends in Newtonville and Mattapan.

Mrs. Harriet Bates Tucker and Miss Anna Clark of Westfield were guests last week at the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Lincoln Peirce have returned to their home in Newtonville after spending a month in Brimfield.

A number of the young people of this town gave a pleasant dancing party in honor of the summer guests at the Brimfield hotel last Friday evening. Among those present were a party from Prospect farm, consisting of Miss Cole and Miss Dorothy Cole of Springfield and Miss Catherine Weiser and Miss Helen Weiser of Holyoke, who were accompanied by Mrs. Cole. Others in attendance were Allen Boardman of Waterbury, Ct., Miss Ruth Syrett and Roland Prickett from Springfield, Emory Hebard of Holland, a student at the Massachusetts agricultural college, and Loring Chandler Howlett of Illinois, a graduate of the Hitchcock academy, who is spending the vacation in Holland. Music was furnished by Leroy Jarrett and Earl Jarrett of Fiskdale, who are members of the Hitchcock free academy.

Water Contract Signed.

Amount Which Company Must Keep in Reserve More Than Doubled.

The contract with the Palmer Water Company for water for fire protection has been signed within a few days by the prudential committee of the fire district, and by the terms of the agreement the property of the district will be more fully safeguarded than in the past. Heretofore the water company has been required to maintain only 600,000 gallons in its reservoirs; only after the supply had fallen below that figure could the fire district exact a rebate on the contract price. By the new agreement the water company is required to maintain not less than 600,000 gallons in its service reservoir, but at all times an additional 1,000,000 gallons in its storage reservoir. Falling below these figures, the water company may be penalized pro rata for such time as the supply is short. The prudential committee feels that in making this arrangement they have practically forestalled a possible scarcity of water such as was experienced last year. The committee feels that, when the supply of water falls below 1,600,000 gallons it will be time for the water company to begin to pump in order to protect its own and the fire district's interests. An effort was made to make similar contracts with the company last year, but in view of contracts existing with the railroads and repairs which the company had planned to make on its works, it was not insisted on at that time.

WARE.

Death of Thomas J. Nelligan.

Thomas J. Nelligan, a native of Ware, was found dead in bed Tuesday morning in the Hotel Garde, New Haven, Ct., where he had been employed for the past two years. Acute indigestion was the cause of death. Mr. Nelligan spent his early life in Ware, and was a graduate of the Ware high school. He leaves, besides his mother, Mrs. Julia Nelligan, of West street, Ware, two brothers, O. J. Nelligan, a well-known contractor in Ware, and Michael Nelligan, also three sisters, Miss Ellen Nelligan and Mrs. Katharine Gallivan of Ware and Mrs. Thomas Mahan of Taunton. His body was taken to Ware for burial.

The marriage of Miss Eva Lavalley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lavalley of East street, and Charles Peloquin of Holyoke took place Tuesday morning in Mt. Carmel church, Rev. J. T. Sheehan celebrating the nuptial mass. During the mass there was a violin solo by Edward Frappier of Palmer. Albert Provencal, cousin of the groom, was best man and Miss Lillian Lavalley, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. A reception and wedding breakfast was held at the home of the bride. After a honeymoon at the Boston beaches and in Waterbury, Ct., the couple will live in Holyoke.

WARREN.

Miss Corzella Spencer is spending the week in Chesham, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Gilbert are spending two weeks at Point Allerton.

Misses Nellie and Mary Potts are spending six weeks with their parents in Bridgton, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert P. Johnson, Ray Johnson and Miss Rachel Johnson are spending two weeks at Plum Island, Me.

Dr. and Mrs. Albert Hull of Worcester are spending two weeks with Rev. and Mrs. T. C. Richards on East Main street.

Constable Joseph St. George was presented with a gold constable's badge Saturday by William F. Duncan, in behalf of the business men of the town.

Mrs. Charles A. DeLand, Misses Dorothy and Hazel and Charles A. DeLand Jr. and William Robertson and family have gone into camp at Camp Warren, Lake Wickaboag, West Brookfield.

George H. Ellis lost his valuable driving horse Monday. The animal had been in a pasture of James T. Cutler on the Brimfield road for a time and Monday morning Mr. Cutler notified Mr. Ellis that the animal was very lame. Upon investigation it was found that the horse had broken its right hind leg above the knee. The animal had to be shot. It is not known how the accident happened, but it is thought that the horse may have been chased by a dog and got its leg caught in a bog or stone.

A peculiar accident happened in the store of Albert Woodward in the Ramsdell block Monday. Mr. Woodward recently conceived the idea of placing a cork in the inverted bottle in the orangeade cooler so as not to have so much orangeade on draft at one time. Monday morning while his son, Olney, was tending store, suddenly the bottle exploded, blowing the cork out and raising the bottle four feet in the air. It landed in the show window and then bounded through the window to the sidewalk. The contents of the bottle was thrown over the fruit in the window and on the candy near by, but as no one was near to be hit by the broken glass, there was not much damage.

The Seal's Sense of Smell.

The sense of smell possessed by the seals is very strong and will invariably wake them out of a sound sleep, even if you come upon them ever so quietly to the windward, and you will alarm them in this way much more thoroughly, though you be a half mile distant, than if you came up carelessly from the leeward and even walked in among them, they seeming to feel that you are not different from one of their own species until they smell you. The chief attraction in these animals is their large, handsome eyes, which indicate great intelligence. They are a deep bluish black, with a soft, glistening appearance, and the pupil, like the cat's, is capable of great dilation and contraction.

Battling Grasshoppers.

"I have found," writes Paul Griswold Howes in Harper's, "that the grasshoppers are by far the most irritable class of insects. They seem to enjoy fighting better than eating and frequently fight until each has lost one or more limbs and sometimes even until one succeeds in killing the other. So great is their interest in these deadly battles that they will allow themselves to be picked up and carried about, continuing the conflict in one's hand in the most unconcerned manner imaginable."

Putting His Foot In It.

Guest (to hostess at private theatricals)—Madam, you played your part splendidly. It fits you to perfection.

Hostess—I'm afraid not. A young and pretty woman is needed for that part.

Guest—Oh, but, madam, you have positively proved the contrary.—Boston Transcript.

His Threat.

Creditor (to tailor)—I'll have no more dunning. If you don't stop it I'll order another suit.—Fliegende Blatter.

PALMER NEWS.

Funeral of Charles B. Fiske.

Held in Baptist Church Monday Afternoon And Largely Attended.

The funeral of Charles B. Fiske was held from the Baptist church Monday afternoon at 3.30, after prayer at the home on North Main street at 1. There was a large attendance of business men of this and other towns, Mr. Fiske being widely known in this section. From the front of the organ hung festoons of crepe, with clusters of flowers and asparagns, in memory of the over 50 years of Mr. Fiske's service as organist of the church. The body rested in front of the pulpit, flanked by numerous floral pieces from the societies and organizations of which he was a member. Miss Alice Clark of Thorndike presided at the organ, and Rev. Charles W. Williams, pastor of the church, conducted the service. Mrs. Williams sang "Some Sweet Day, By and By," prayer was offered by Mr. Williams and the Masonic quartet of Springfield, composed of J. W. Roberts, F D. Powell, C. D. Slayton and W. G. Chamberlain, sang "Lead Kindly Light." Mr. Williams read selections from the Scriptnres and the qnartet sang "The City Four Square"; the closing prayer was followed by "Nearer, My God, to Thee," by the quartet. The burial was private; Mr. Williams offered prayer and the quartet sang. The bearers were all members of the Masonic fraternities, and were Joseph F. Davis, Charles A. Tabor, Charles E. Fuller, Arthur E. Fitch, Walter N. Shaw, Frank N. Carpenter, James Snmmers and Edwin B. Taylor. Burial was in the family lot in Oak Knoll cemetery.

School Teachers Appointed.

Numerous Vacancies Filled by Experienced or Trained Instructors.

The school committee met Monday evening with ten vacancies in the corps of teachers to be filled. Resignations were offered and accepted as follows: Miss Mildred M. Hartwell, teacher in the 3d grade, Palmer; Miss Mary B. Dilion, 5th grade, Palmer; Miss Elsie B. Bixby, 2d grade, Palmer; Miss Marion Bridgman, 1st and 2d grades, Palmer; Miss Martha Buzzell, principal, Three Rivers; Miss Laura A. Arentzen, 6th and 7th grades, Thorndike; Miss Cora C. Roberts, assistant at the Wire Mill school, and S. E. D. McConnell, teacher of the commercial course in the high school.

The following appointments were made: Miss Beatrice L. Dilion of Palmer to 5th grade, Palmer; Miss Hazel B. Caryl of Bridgewater to the 3d grade, Palmer: Miss Rose A. Duffy as assistant in the 1st and 2d grades, Palmer; Miss Florence I Sampson of Thorndike to the 6th and 7th grades, Thorndike; Miss Mae C. Fitzgerald of Bondsville to the 2d grade, Three Rivers; Miss Mary Ellen Quirk of Bondsville as assistant at the Wire Mill school; Miss Ethel I. Rich of Palmer to Forest Lake school.

The following transfers were made: Miss Margaret E. Scannell from the Forest Lake school to the principalship of the Wire Mill school; Miss Julia G. Daley from the 2d grade in Three Rivers to the 3d grade in Thorndike.

All of the appointments Monday were of teachers who have had either experience or a normal school training for the work.

New Books in Library.

Over One Hundred Volumes Put Into Circulation Recently.

A list of 80 new books were put into circulation at the public library Monday evening, all fiction. This makes a total of 132 new volumes within a month, and a much larger list has been ordered and is expected to arrive in a short time. That the new books are appreciated is shown by the material increase in circulation during the month of July.

Awnings Should Be Raised.

Complaint is frequently made of the scant space between the sidewalks and some of the store awnings along Main street. In some places there is not sufficient clearance for a person of ordinary height to pass without hitting their hats on either the awning coverings or the framework. Especially is the condition annoying on rainy days, for it is then impossible to carry an umbrella beneath the awnings, and as it is not always possible to step into the street pedestrians must lower their umbrellas and take the wetting which necessarily follows. There can be no question about the liability of the town should anyone be injured by reason of low awnings, and the matter is one which might well receive attention at the hands of the authorities.

School Contracts Awarded.

Francis L. Jones has received from the school committee the contract for laying new floors at the Wire Mill schoolhouse. When the work is completed new desks will be installed in one room there, also in the building at Palmer Center. Ducy & Keir were awarded the contract for remodeling the heating apparatus in the Thorndike building. D. E. Marcy secured the contract for transporting the pupils in the Mason district to the Palmer grammar school.

Street Railway Laying Macadam.

The street railway company has had a gang of men and a steam roller at work this week macadamizing South Main street from the bridge over the Boston and Albany tracks to the beginning of its turnout to the electric express station. When the selectmen last year granted the company permission to lay this spur track, the company agreed, in the interests of safety, to macadamize the entire triangle covered by its track, and is now making that promise good.

Auto Bumps Tree.

A Ford car left the beaten path opposite the farm of Fred Conant at Bianchardville yesterday afternoon, snapped off a large stone fence post as though it were a pipe stem, and then tried to climb a maple tree. In the latter effort it proved unsuccessful and came to a standstill, considerably the worse for the experience. Men with a large Knox car came from Springfield for the wreck, but were unable to get it into shape to tow.

Telephone Company After New Business.

The telephone company has canvassers at work soliciting new subscribers to the telephone service. The new rates are now in effect and afford a reduction on private and two-party lines. No new six-party contracts are being made, but there is no intention of making present subscribers to such a service change.

Tax Rate Takes a Jump.

The assessors announce the tax rate as $19 on $1000, a jump of $3 from that of last year. The total amount to be raised is $94,233, against $74,422 last year. The valnation of the town has increased $350,125. The nnmber of polls is 2326.

A valuable heifer owned by Daniel Graves of Baptist Hill was struck and killed by an automobile in the highway near his home yesterday, the animal having evidently strayed from the pastnre.

Resigns His Position.

Rufus W. Stimson to Leave Smith Agricultural School Soon.

It will be a surprise to his many Palmer friends, as it was to the people of Northampton, to learn that Rufus W. Stimson has resigned his position as director of the Smith Agricnltnral School at Northampton, to take a position as agent of the state board of agricnlture. The announcement was made Monday afternoon. Mr. Stimson has many friends in Palmer who have watched his career with interest. Born in Palmer,— the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stimson of Palmer Center,—he worked his way through college nnder oironmstances which were trying, to say the least. After studying for the ministry he became acting president and later president of the Storrs Agricultnral College of Connectiont at a time when that institution was all but "down and ont." By his management it was placed on its feet again, and then Mr. Stimson four years ago went to the Smith school at Northampton. During the past year he has done mnch work for the State Board of Education, particularly along the lines of industrial education and manual training, which are now occnpying so mnch attention. His report, made recently, shows a masterly grasp of the subject, but along lines calculated to work untold good for those whom the systems are designed to benefit.

Speaker Walker in Town.

Calls on Friends During Short Stop Monday Forenoon.

Joseph A. Walker, speaker of the House and candidate for the Republican nomination for governor this fall, was in town a few hours Monday on his way to the Berkshires, where he is to spend some time looking after matters political. Mr. Walker was taken to the rooms of the Palmer Business and Social Clnb, where he was greeted by many whose acqnaintance he had previously formed, as well as nnmerous others who met him for the first time. After a brief stop he proceeded to Springfield, the party traveling by antomobile.

The service at St. Mary's Mission will be omitted dnring the month of Angnst.

Bert Fitzone of Attleboro has taken a position as assistant manager of the Palmer Trucking Company.

The Qnaboag Leather Company has recently installed a larger engine to accommodate its increasing bnsiness.

The selectmen are to have prepared at once the plans and specifications for the permanent road to be bnilt in Three Rivers

Work on the constrnction of the carpet mill sewer was begun yesterday. Cordner & Montague of Springfield have the contract.

The chiefs of Tockwotton tribe of Red Men will be raised next Tnesday evening by D. G. S. Irving L. Franklin and snite of Westfield.

Surveyors have been at work this week laying ont the new macadam which is to be bnilt on North Main street from the end of the ipiece built last summer to the end of the state road near the wire mill.

Dr. B. E. Loring and C. H. Babcock enjoyed a fishing trip to Brookfield yesterday. They report catching 101 perch, 12 bullheads and a bass weighing 3½ ponnds.

Rev. S. A. Barrett of Springfield occnpied the pulpit of the Congregational church Snnday, the pastor, Rev. F. S. Brewer, being detained in the West by the illness of his father.

The snbject of the sermon at the Congregational church Snnday morning will be "Finest of the Wheat." The pastor, Rev. F. S. Brewer, returned to-day from his western trip. Christian Endeavor meeting Snnday evening at 6, when the subject will be "Lessons from great lives—Job."

A ball game yesterday afternoon between the married and single men resulted in a score of 3 to 2 for the married men at the end of the sixth inning, after which they declined to continne the game. The batteries were: For the married men, Shearer and Crosby; for the single men, Anderson and St. John.

The Palmer friends of Rev. Gilbert L Forte will be interested to learn of his marriage to Mrs. Minerva Gillette, which occurred in Pittsfield Wednesday. Mr. Forte is a native of this town and received his early edncation here. He is now pastor of the Congregational church in Rockland. The newly married conple will spend the month of August in the Berkshires.

Baseball.

PALMER TOWN LEAGUE.

Thorndike 10, Bondsville 8.

Manager Donovan's team went to Bondsville on Satnrday and defeated the Bondsville team 12 to 8 in a rather loosely played game. The visitors made errors enough to loose bnt by timely hitting won out. Manley of the Thorndikes played his usual strong game. Had the Thorndike team played as well the first of the season as since the reornita were installed three weeks ago they wonld no doubt held a position in the league close to the top. The score:

Two Kisses

By C. ARNOLD COLE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Formerly railroad cars passing through tunnels were not lighted as they are now. A number of episodes have been recorded of affectionate action in these dark holes in the ground, and kisses have been surreptitiously taken. Leonard Starkweather, a young man of some twenty-one years and proportionately inexperienced, took one of these kisses, and it led to no end of worry on his part. He finally paid the penalty.

He was traveling with Miss Gwendolin Stewart, a young lady two years his junior. Miss Stewart had one of those complexions which can only be compared to a ripe peach of a light shade, a pale rose on ivory. Her lips were of that same shade of pink and quite tempting enough to cause any man to wreck himself to touch them with his own. Starkweather had been introduced to her by a mutual friend before the train started, and she had been put under his care. This rendered his act all the more dishonorable.

The better to cover his tracks the kiss was stolen with malice aforethought. He told the young lady just before the train entered the long tunnel, the location of which he well knew, that he was going into the smoking car for a whiff at a cigar. Instead of doing so he went into the next car back, where he remained till the train shot under the hill. The young lady sat on the right of the car, the eighth seat from the rear. This he had carefully noted. Putting his hand on the back of every seat till he reached the eighth, he felt carefully till he had noted Miss Stewart's position, then quietly bent down and took the kiss.

A muffled cry was heard above the rattle of the train, but when the car shot out into the light there was no evidence of anything wrong. Starkweather had made good his escape, and Miss Stewart was apparently endeavoring to regain her equanimity by fumbling with her handkerchief, which she was examining as though she had bought it at a bargain counter and doubted if she had not been sold as well as the linen.

Half an hour passed—quite enough to enable her to quiet down after the episode—when Mr. Starkweather returned to his seat beside her, bringing with him the odor of tobacco smoke. He was a trifle nervous, but felt relieved to find Miss Stewart quite composed. He expected that she would tell him of the outrage that had been inflicted upon her and ask him to take measures to discover the perpetrator. He was surprised that she didn't mention the matter and considered her refraining from doing so due to maidenly modesty.

But Miss Stewart's treatment of her escort was somewhat different from what it had been. An innocent freedom was replaced by a slight reserve. The ingenuousness, the confidence—call it what you will—of girlhood seemed to have departed from her. Occasionally Starkweather caught her looking up at him sidewise with an expression that he could not fathom. He began to be troubled lest she had known or at least divined that he was the man who had insulted her. But how could she have got any inkling of this? When he kissed her not a ray of light had penetrated the car. He had felt no touch. His face was smoothly shaven, so that no pointer could have been obtained from the character of a beard. No; it was simply impossible that she should have any evidence of having been kissed by him. This being the case, why should she have withdrawn that outspoken confidence with which she had treated him? And yet it was not a turning against him; it was rather like that condition which comes between friends of different sexes when the man lets go friendship to grasp at love.

Starkweather looked upon a young girl as something too holy to be profaned. This is a characteristic of youth, and another is a great sensitiveness to woman's treatment. His theft was to him like that of the Spartan boy who stole the wolf—not criminal so long as not found out. The boy had the wolf under his coat and let it gnaw the flesh away rather than that it should be discovered. Starkweather began to believe that Miss Stewart knew he had kissed her. Perhaps if he had been sure of this it would have been more tolerable than the uncertainty under which he suffered. Horrible situation! An innocent girl had been put under his care, and he had kissed her in a tunnel. Should she really know that he had so betrayed a trust possibly before they parted she might resent the outrage as it deserved. The thought was maddening.

They arrived at their destination after dark. Starkweather saw the young lady to her home, leaving her at her door. In the light of a street lamp he stood, half expecting that she would give evidence of her scorn. Instead she turned up to him those lips that had tempted him. What did it mean? He didn't stop to ask. He kissed them.

"Did you know I kissed you in the tunnel?" he asked.

In reply she gave him his handkerchief with his initials on it, which she had pulled out of his pocket when the kiss was taken.

"Are we engaged?" she asked.

"Of course."

Orchids.

Many plants have the power to shift their quarters. The orchid can move one step every year, and, although it takes a long time to cross the meadow, if the orchid goes on long enough it would move one step forward toward finishing that long walk every year.

WORK THAT TELLS.

Plenty of It Has Been Done Right Here In Palmer.

Cures that last are cures that tell. To thoroughly know the virtues of a medicine you must investigate the cures and see if they prove permanent. Doan's Kidney Pills stand this test, and plenty of proof exists right here in Palmer. People who testified years ago to relief from backache, kidney and urinary disorders, now declare that relief was permanent and the cure perfect. How can any Palmer sufferer longer doubt the evidence?

Mrs. Osborn, 38 Converse St., Palmer, Mass., says: "I still recommend Doan's Kidney Pills highly and confirm all I said in their praise when I publicly recommended them in 1908. My head and back ached and it was plain to be seen that my kidneys were disordered. I always felt tired and I knew that something must be done. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I obtained a supply at Lynde & Gould's Drug Store. They soon gave me relief and after taking them I enjoyed good health."

Monson News.

Increase Price of Tuition.

The trustees of Monson Academy at the last annual meeting in June voted to increase the price of tuition to $50 a year. The increase will commence with the beginning of the school year in September. In a letter sent hy the clerk of the board of the trustees to the selectmen it was stated that this action was due to the necessity of providing a greater income for the institution. Notwithstanding the remarkably prosperous condition of the school, the treasurer's report for the last year shows a considerable deficit, which will be largely increased the coming year unless the revenues of the institution are increased. The price charged for the hoare of students was increased a year ago. In order to secure competent and experienced teachers it has been necessary to pay larger salaries every year for some time, as the demand for such instructors is in excess of the supply. For this reason the Academy has been forced to increase its tuition rate. The success of the school depends on the quality and character of its teachers. The Academy is fortunate in having a faculty of exceptional merit. It will be the policy of the trustees to retain such a faculty as long as possible.

Receive Layout of Streets.

The proper layouts of Thompson and Mill streets were received by J. P. Herlihy, chairman of the board of selectmen, and a representative of the abutters in Springfield Wednesday afternoon. Thompson street will he laid out 45 feet wide from Granite street to North Main street. The property of Daniel Looney and John Shea will be the only ones that will be damaged to any extent and in all probability damages will he awarded to them. Mill street will be laid ont two rods wide on the same lines as the present road. The shutters will receive no damages.

Held Special Town Meeting.

The special town meeting held in Memorial Hall Monday evening at 8 o'clock was called to order by Town Clerk C. L. Peck. C. M. Gage was elected moderator. The article was to see if the town would extend the time for allowing a discount on taxes. Mr. Ball, chairman of the assessors, stated the existing conditions to the voters, and on his motion the time for granting disconnt was extended from August 1 to September 1.

Receives Painful Injuries.

Mrs. Edward King was painfully injured at her home on South Main street Sunday evening. In the darkness she stepped off the back door step. She pnt ont her right hand to prevent herself from falling and strnck it against a shed, hending it back in such a manner that both bones in the wrist were broken. A physician was called and the fractnres set.

Tax Rate Reduced.

The tax rate for this year will be $16 80 on $1000, which is 20 cents less than last year. It will be abont one week before the tax bills can be sent ont. A new collector or a depnty collector will he appointed hy the selectmen the first of the week.

A Bird's Barbed Wire Fences.

There may be seen along the roadsides in Central America a brown wren about the size of a canary which builds a nest out of all proportion to its apparent needs. It selects a small tree with horizontal branches growing close together. Across two of the branches it lays sticks fastened together with tough fiber until a platform about six feet long by two feet wide has been constructed. On the end of this platform nearest the tree trunk it then builds a huge dome shaped nest a foot or so high with thick sides of interwoven thorns. A covered passageway is then made from the nest to the end of the platform in as crooked a manner as possible. Across the outer end as well as at short intervals along the inside of this tunnel are placed cunning little fences of thorns with just space enough for the owners to pass through. On going out this opening is closed by the owner by placing thorns across the gateway, and thus the safety of the eggs or young is assured.

A Detective Story.

I like detective stories; I read them, I write them, but I do not believe them. The bones and structure of a good detective story are so old and well known that it may seem banal to state them even in outline. A policeman, stupid, but sweet tempered, and always weakly erring on the side of mercy, walks along the street, and in the course of his ordinary business finds a man in Bulgarian uniform killed with an Australian boomerang in a Brompton milk shop. Having set free all the most suspicious persons in the story, he then appeals to the bulldog professional detective, who appeals to the hawklike amateur detective. The latter finds near the corpse a boot lace, a button boot, a French newspaper and a return ticket from the Hebrides, and so relentlessly, link by link, brings the crime home to the archbishop of Canterbury.—T. K. Chesterton in Illustrated London News.

The Same Custom.

A magazine editor at the Authors' club, in New York, was talking about H. G. Wells. "Wells is now the foremost English novelist," he said. "Strange that a man so talented should misjudge us as he does. When he was over here he found fault with everything. One day at lunch, getting tired of his attacks on the tyranny of our trusts and our bosses, I said: "Well, at least, Mr. Wells, you must admit the grandeur of the magnificent statue of Liberty that rears its proud head over our harbor?'

"'Oh, yes,' said Mr. Wells, 'you have the same custom as we—you rear your finest statues to the dead.'"

A well known Des Moines woman, after suffering miserably for two days from bowel complaint, was cnred hy one dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by all dealers.

CHAPTER III.

IN the middle of the night Jim heard a strange noise, a puzzling sound he could not trace. Becoming wider awake, it resolved itself into a stifled weeping.

"Hello there, Ches! What's the matter?" he cried.

The boy flung himself into Jim's arms, with a cry. "Ar, I'm scart to deat'," said he. "Take holt uf me, mister! Take holt uf me! Dere ain't anyt'ing but you and me here 'tall."

Jim gathered up the trembling figure. "Nothing will hurt you, Ches," he said. "You're safe here."

"I wasn't t'inkin' of gettin' hurted," retorted the boy, with shaky indignation. "Did youse t'ink I'd weaken fur dat? Yer don't know me, den. Dat ain't bodderin' me. I've been hurted plenty. I'm just scart. Dat's w'ats der matter."

"Well, now, you cuddle right up in my arms, like a little puppy dog and you'll feel all right."

"Say, you're prutty good stuff, Mr.

THE WHIRRING DEFIANCE OF A RATTLESNAKE.

Felton," whimpered the little voice. "Dis is der bulliest time I ever had, even if I am scart."

"I think you're a brave boy, Ches. Now go to sleep."

A small hand reached timidly around until it found the man's and gave it an affectionate squeeze. "Good night, sir," said Ches.

Jim lay awake, thinking dreamily, long after the boy's regular breathing showed that he was at peace again. The man felt a tenderness for the waif so abruptly put in his care that only a lonely man can feel. He speculated about the boy's future; he wondered what kind of a man he would make. Surely, with a foundation of such courage, the better part could be brought out.

Then he wondered what Anne would say to the adoption, or, rather, what advice she would give, for he felt entirely sure of her broad humanity outside of their one difference. He felt the need of her practical sense. Soon he had drifted into thinking of Anne entirely—not bitterly now, but with a steady longing. The gray light of the waning moon sifting through the boughs was the true lumina for reverie. Why had he not answered her letter? Perhaps by this time—

What was that moving in the grass? He had noticed a sort of something before. He threw up his right hand in a threatening gesture to frighten the intruder away.

Instantly he got his answer, and an icy wind seemed to ruff his hair—that insistent, dry, shrilling sound that will make a man's blood turn cold if anything will, the whirring defiance of a rattlesnake.

Jim thought quick and hard, with chills and fever coursing over him ad libitum. He did not want to waken and frighten the boy. He managed to slip his arm out without disturbing the sleeper. But now! There wasn't a club around except the short sticks of the fire. A two foot stick is not the proper equipment for rattler hunting except to those born with nerves so strong that they do not hesitate to catch Mr. Crotalus by the tail and snap his head off.

Jim thought of the rope he had used for a cinch and made for it with his eye on the snake lest the latter should approach closer to the boy.

With a deep thankfulness for the heft of the rope he returned and struck with all the strength of his big body and pounded away in a sort of crazy rage, although the first stroke had done the business.

He snapped the sweat from his brow as he looked down at the still writhing reptile.

A Hand at Whist.

"That was a remarkable hand you held just now," said the commercial traveler to his companion at cards.

"Pretty fair, pretty fair. But I've held a more wonderful hand than that."

"Really?"

"Yes. Once I was playing whist and dealt myself a hand of thirteen trumps."

"Great Scott!"

"And the funniest part of the matter is that I only took one trick."

"Impossible!"

"No, it's not. I played last and trumped my partner's ace. He was a hasty man, and before I could explain matters he lost his temper, and the game broke up in a row there and then. Funny game whist, isn't it? My deal, I think."

Diversions of Earlier Georgia.

Micajah Williamson kept a licensed tavern in the town of Washington. In front of this tavern was a large picture of George Washington hanging as a swinging sign. John Clarke (governor 1819-23) used to come to town and, like most men of his day, get drunk. They all did not "cut up," however, as he did on such occasions. He went into stores and smashed things generally, as tradition says, but he always came back and paid for them like a gentleman. Once he came into town intoxicated and galloped down Court street and fired through the picture of General Washington before the tavern door. This was brought up against him later when he was a candidate for governor, but his friends denied it.—Macon Telegraph.

Dr. Syntax.

On the English coast, at Land's End, there stands a curiously formed bowlder with a profile resembling that of a human face. It is supposed that once the rocky head was held proudly erect and could look out over the blue sea, but during some period of disturbance the huge bowlder was thrown forward, so that now the forehead of the man rests against a neighboring rock. All these rugged and massive pieces bordering the coast are fine granite. Locally the curious bowlder is known as Dr. Syntax.

Got His Fill.

"Did you like the party, Rufus?"

"Yes, mother."

"Then why didn't you stay till it was over?"

"What was the use? I couldn't eat any more."

No Exception.

Miss Young—In Turkey a woman doesn't know her husband till after she's married him. Mrs. Wedd—Why mention Turkey especially?—Boston Transcript.

A Novel Revenge.

Cook—Yes; my mistress is a prima donna and a horrible creature. She treats me like the dirt beneath her feet, but I revenge myself by opening the drawing room window when she is not at home and by howling with all my might so that the neighbors may think her voice is cracked.—Fliegende Blatter.

A Trade Secret.

"What did your firm dismiss Grigg for?" asked the first traveler.

"He gave away a trade secret," replied the other.

"You don't say so?"

"Yes. He told a customer that our chief was an old scoundrel, and the chief overheard him."

All In.

Friend—I was just in the art gallery admiring your "Napoleon After Waterloo." The fidelity of expression on Bonaparte's face is positively wonderful. Where did you get it? Mr. Dobber—From life. I got my wife to pose for me the morning after she gave her first reception.—Puck.

A Virginia Dish.

In a baking dish place alternate layers of sliced apples and sliced boiled sweet potatoes, each layer sweetened and flavored with nutmeg. Add a lump of butter, pour over a little water and bake slowly until the top is nicely browned. Serve in dish in which it is baked.—National Magazine.

Friendly Candor.

"Is he a friend of yours?"

"Well, he seems to think he is. He never meets me without feeling that it is his duty to tell me something that will leave me unhappy for the rest of the day."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Loyal.

"I have no patience with Dubbins. He sneers at Velasquez."

"Well, I don't care much for foreigners myself, but if Velasquez is a friend of yours I don't blame you for getting sore."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Discontent.

Discontent is the want of self reliance. It is infirmity of will.—Emerson.

Looking For Them.

Major d'Arlandes, like many another French soldier, was tired of waiting for promotion and opportunities to distinguish himself. He seized an opportunity to enjoy a little excitement and at the same time remind Louis XVI. of his baffled ambitions. He made a balloon ascension, which at that time was thought to be a very risky affair. The king promptly reproved him for his rashness.

"Your majesty will pardon me, I hope," said the officer, "but the fact is the minister of war has made me so many promises in the air that I went up to look for some of them."

He Was Doing It.

The Stage Manager—Mr. Heavysides! Mr. Heavysides—Sir-r? The Stage Manager—When the heroine says "Villain, do your worst!" please remember that that is one of her lines. You seem to have mistaken it for a stage direction.—Chicago News.

Domestic Science.

"Necessity is the mother of invention," remarked the cook as she used her nightcap for a pudding bag.

ENVY.

Envy is not only a very great weakness, but it is a great ignorance as well. No man envies what he can surpass or equal.

Virginia Dare.

The first white child born in the colonies was Virginia Dare at Roanoke Island, Aug. 18, 1587.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Lawn Party Next Week.

Arrangements are nearly completed for the fourth annual lawn party and festival to be held next Thursday and Friday evenings on the grounds adjoining St. Mary's church. All that is necessary to insure its complete success is good weather. There will be plenty of attractions of various kinds, including races for boys and girls, pie eating contest and tug of war, which with the midway attractions and the booths for the sale of various articles, are sure to keep the audience entertained. Music will be furnished during the two evenings by Wilder's orchestra of Palmer. The committee in charge of the baby show desires all mothers to enter the little ones, and a place will be arranged for their comfort in the church hall in the basement of the church. The prizes will be awarded by persons from outside the parish. The contest for the most popular baseball manager in the Palmer town league will be contested between the managers of the Palmer, Three Rivers and Thorndike teams, Bondsville not entering the contest. The contest for the ring to be given to the most popular young lady in Three Rivers and Thorndike lies between Miss May Moynahan of Three Rivers and Miss Louise Longtine of Thorndike.

A peculiar sort of insect has made its appearance in Thorndike and is making life miserable for some people. The bite resembles that of a mosquito, but is much more painful. The parts of the body affected swell and there is a numbness which does not disappear for several days, then a peculiar mark is left on the skin.

The ball game on the church grounds Saturday between the St. Mary's Temperance team and a team from the Wire Mill district, Palmer, resulted in a victory for the visitors by a score of 11 to 4. The home team played a ragged game. Masse excelled for the home team; Bergenson, for the visitors, played a fine game in the box and had many strikeouts to his credit. Fitzgerald, the visiting catcher, was a good backstop and his fine work in throwing to bases was the best seen this season on the home ground. The general hitting of the visitors was strong.

Black bass weighing from one to two and a half pounds have been taken from the waters at Forest Lake this week. The fish were planted there in 1909 by Deputy Luman and were taken from the waters of the Ware river at what is known as the "Crotch," below the Dutton bridge. Few persons were acquainted of the fact at the time, the scheme being to keep the matter from the public until the fish had a chance to grow. The news will be welcomed by fishermen in all parts of the town who enjoy angling for this specie of fish, which is considered the gamest fresh water fish that swims.

Thomas F. Donoghue, Dennis Dailey, William Moran, P. H. McKelligett and John F. Luman took a trip to Worcester in an automobile Sunday, returning via Webster and Southbridge. While in Worcester the party attended the 10 a. m. service in St. John's church, at which a congregation of 600, all of whom were men, were present. The party were also the guests of Rev. Thomas S. Donoghue, pastor of St. John's, formerly pastor of St. Mary's church in this place, during their stay in Worcester. Fr. Donohue looked hale and hearty, and despite the fact that he is kept very busy with his duties, he stated that he liked his new field.
